SEE METEORITES FALL

andover a Target for Celestial Missile on Sunday Morning. No Meteorites Found by Searchers

Found by Searchers

A meteorite streaming towards the earth out of the east gave Mrs. Henry S. Jenkins of Ballardvale road one of the thrills of her life last Sunday morning.

Mrs. Jenkins, who was on her way to church shortly before ten-thirty, describes the celestial visitor as a yellow ball of fire, leaving a trail the color of moonlight behind it. It was traveling in a course which was at an angle of about forty-five degrees with the earth and was apparently headed for a field said to be owned by S. H. Bailey.

The Jenkins family proceeded on their way to town, but returned to the vicinity in the afternoon. Accompanied by neighbors, they searched in vain for any trace of the meteorite.

George Dick of the Board of Public Works office, who with two other men, was near the power house in Shawsheen village Sunday morning reports that they saw a ball of fire, apparently about the size of a football, shoot through the air approaching from the east. As it neared the ground it burst like a rocket into countless fragments, which he describes as of a beautiful blue color. No trace of the fragments has as yet been found.

At the same hour, shortly before half past ten in the forenon, balls of falling fire were also observed by residents of Roslindale, Boston, South Portland, and Harrison, Maine; Milford and Keene, N. H.

FIREMEN'S BALL

giving Eve for Benefit of Relief Association

The fifty-fourth annual ball by the Andover Steam Fire Engine company, for the benefit of the Relief Association, will take place in the town hall Thanksgiving eve, November 25. The committee in charge has completed arrangements, and a gala evening is assured all who attend. The Buckley Franks orchestra will render a concert prior to the general dancing. The concert commences at 8 o'clock, and general dancing will continue until 1 a.m.

The Andover fire department is an organization on which everyone relies the safety of life and property. The annual ball is an opportunity excellent to enjoy an evening of dancing and at the same time express appreciation of the firemen's work by contributing a trifle to their relief association. The members of the committee are canvassing the town with tickets, and it is hoped that the public will respond generously.

Walter S. Donald, former member of the board of selectmen, holds an unusual record in attending the firemen's ball. Mr. Donald has for the past 54 years been in attendance each time. Andrew McTernen, present members of the board of selectmen, has also established a record, being in attendance at the affair for more than forty successive years.

The members of the committees and officers are as follows:

Ball committee — Henry Todd, chairman; William Stevens, Edward Buchan, Alexander MacKenzie, Henry Pomeroy.

Officers of Andover Steam Fire Engine Company No. 1 — Henry Todd, captain; Fred Collins, clerk; Henry Pomeroy, treasurer.

Standing committee — William Baker, Ralbh Baker, William Stevens, Walliam Stevens,

A bridge party, the proceeds from which will be used by the November club for the purchase of new chairs, was held in the club-house yesterday afternoon.

Cards were played at fourteen tables and prizes were eawarded to Mrs. George Dick and Mrs. Warren K. Moorehead.

The sale of candy by Miss Mary Angus added materially to the very substantial sum realized from the affair.

The arrangements were in charge of the board of directors and the house committee.

The public is invited to the benefit concert which will be given under the auspices of Clan Johnston, No. 185, O.S.C., this evening in Fraternal hall.

The gross proceeds of the affair are to be given to a needy and deserving person. Aside from the merit of the cause which deserves the heartiest support, the program will attract a full house. A male chorus of sixteen voices from the choirs of the town and the choral society will render a number of favorite Scottish part songs, with "Scots, Wha Ha'e?" as an opening number.

The sololists have appeared many times with great success, and George Leacock, favorite basso, will sing "Angus McDonald."

Instrumental numbers will be given by Alexander Meek and George B. Petric.

Walter Scott of Clan McPherson, Lawrence, who has appeared here before, will give several readings and Henry Fairweather will entertain with Harry Lauder selections. The chief Alfred Robb will direct, and Gordon S. Mary Pickford Has New Hoydenish Role

Mary Pickford Has New Hoydenish Role

"Little Annie Roney," the comedy drama of tenement life in New York in which Mary Pickford stars, and which comes to the Colonial theatre, Monday and Tuesday, November 23-24, under a United Artists Corporation release, appears to have been written to order for "The World's Sweetheart" for it is an ideal Mary Pickford story. Combining comedy and drama, smiles and tears, children's gang battles and a pretty love story, "Little Annie Rooney" is the type of play in which the public loves to see Mary Pickford, and the type she can do as no other actress can.

"Little Annie Rooney" is as Irish as its name, and as Irish as the curly haired little ragamuffin who plays the title role. It deals with the young daughter of an East Side policeman whose playmates are about thirty young boys, and who enters into the gang fights and rows of these tenement lads with all the vigor at her command.

Unexpected tragedy stalks into the policeman's family, and the girl is suddenly faced with some of the grim realities of life that seldom come to a child of her age.

Through the gang battle sequences Miss-Pickford romps gloriously, a leader of the dirty faced boys and the idol of her "gang."

In the dramatic scenes she does some of the finest and most convincing work of her whole screen career.

She is sweet and appealing as the sweetheart of her "Joe," and through the entire picture the artistry of Mary Pickford is again revealed.

While of the type of many of her best pictures, "Little Annie Rooney" has a new and strong plot, a carefully chosen cast of supporting players, and is photographically beautiful throughout.

In fact there is nothing to be desired that so to provided in this, the latest vehicle of Miss Pickford to reviews.

Want Laws Enforced

The following is the text of a petition now in circulation among the different churches in town, and is receiving large numbers of signatures:

To the honorable Board of Selectmen of the Town of Andover:

We the undersigned citizens of the Town of Andover do hereby most respectfully petition your honorable board to exercise your authority in the enforcement of the laws of the State, which regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors by the druggists of this town.

Punchard 27 — Newburyport 0

Punchard High continued its winning stride Saturday afternoon when it defeated Newburyport High by the score of 27-0, at the Andover playstead. Capt. Gordon Coutts led the Orange and Black attack, scoring 15 of the 27 points for his team.

Coutts furnished two brilliant runs in the first and second periods when he skirted the opposing extremities for runs of 35 and 42 yards, both resulting in touchdowns. The Newburyport defense was unable to stop him once he broke loose, and in Murphy he had an able running mate. Both traveling behind a perfect fan of interference gave a dazzling display of ball-carrying.

The visitors outweighed Punchard, but their weight was offset by the speed of the Andover eleven. Sweeping end runs baffled the opposition and coupling this with mighty thrusts into the opposition line they swept the Joppa defense before them.

During the opening period both teams resorted to a kicking game until Coutts was given the ball on the visitors' 35-yard line. He swung their right-end and in a brilliant dash negotiated the opposing goal-line. In the second period the ball see-sawed up and down the field with both teams doing a lot of punting. Late in the period Coutts again brought the fans to their feet with a brilliant run from punt formation which resulted in a score.

run from punt formation which resulted in a score.

Murphy started to function in the third when he cleared the visiting forward defense in the third period and ran over from the 15-yard line. The last score came in the closing stanza when Murphy repeated with another run around the Newburyport right end for the final score of the game.

Christ Church Men's Gathering

Bishop Babcock spoke to a good sized group of representative men in the Parish House last. Wednesday night. His talk about the General Convention in New Orleans was interesting and humorous. The greatest encouraging feature about the Convention to the Bishop was the note of unity and sympathy among the various schools of churchmanship there represented. After the address, solos by Alfred Robb, David Forbes, Alexander Bertram and George Leacock roused enthusiasm, and at length everybody joined in the choruses, a William Walker accompanied the singers. Refreshments, served by Mr. Rhodes, brought the pleasant evening to a close. On December 9th, in the evening, the men of the choir will be hosts to the men of the Parish. A talk by James P. Ransome of Lowell on his experiences abroad will be given them. The men of the choir will sing appropriate selections.

Hollins as an Improvisateur

The recent tours of Marcel Dupre, famous french organist, aroused the American public as never before to the sensational of wonders of the rare art of Improvisation, which Dupre's gifts have brought to the famous of the training of musicians, and of organists in particular. This does not always take the same form—some organists make use of it in the church services to bridge the gaps in the ritual, others build up great symphonies on the spur of the moment on themes handed them, such as Dupre—and others prefer to improvise in more popular forms on themes already well known to the audience, folk songs, songs of the home, old familiar melodies which bring up a train of tender recollections and which can be followed with ease by the audience as the artist weaves it into patterns of lovely tone.

Such is the type of improvisation which will be heard in the chapel of Phillips academy, at eight o'clock, when Alfred Hollins, the great English organist, plays his recital in this town. Although schooled in the severer forms of musical composition, as are all well grounded musicians, Hollins prefers to make his improvisations a sort of personal appeal to the music loving instincts of his audience. They are intermeezi in his programs—moments of melody, color and rhythm, tracing familiar lines, rather than great climaxes in his program. For that reason, when Hollins improvisation sort of personal appeal to the performance. The Johannesburg Star (S. Africa) on the occasion of Hollins' linauguration of the great Town Hall organ there some years ago reported, "It is difficult to speak of his marvelous extemporisation gifts without using what may seem extravagant expressions." The Sydney Morning Herald, after his improvisations before the Royal College of Organists said, "His extemporaneous performance upon a given them encous performance to the famous Australian organ said, "The applause was so continuous that an encore was granted."

The Musical News of London, commenting upon his improvisations

Dr. Cadman, in one of his recent Sunday afternoon talks, made a statement to the effect that our character is ninety-eight percent determined by the time we are six years old. To many such a statement will seem quite astonishing for it is generally supposed that a person's character is shaped in large measure throughout his minority. Students of the question are by no means agreed as to just how early in life one's character and habits are practically determined, yet there is now a fairly general agreement that a person's nature is almost entirely fixed at a very early age.

If, as we might suppose, Dr. Cadman's statement is quite accurate, we are at once confronted with the question of the relative importance in one's life of heredity and early environment. This is a problem which is still bitterly fought out among psychologists. One camp says that environment is the other insists that no amount of good environment can ever overcome the influence of "bad blood." This latter group has summarized its argument by saying that no amount of training can ever make a racehorse out of an obplug. world with a matters ovr which he can exercise no choice. It is safe to say, therefore, that we are what we are, not because we want to be, but because forces which we can't influence have made us so. This seems in large measure to justify the old belief of predestination held by John Calvin and his followers.

If all this is accurate, it would appear that society at large were justified in adopting a new and more sympathetic attitude toward the worst elements in adopting a new and more sympathetic attitude toward the worst elements in Sale of Red Cross seals

A settlement was reached in the Lawrence Superior civil court Wednesday morning in the contested will case of the late Mrs. Ellen Boria of Andover which was sent to trial Tuesday. The jury was to determine issues and the verdict was to be reported back to the Probate court where Mrs. Lillian A. Navin of Andover, sister of the deceased, had petitioned to have the will allowed. The allowance of the will was opposed by another sister, Mrs. Annie Bora, alias Boria, of Lawrence.

another sister, Mrs. Annie Bora, alias Boria, of Lawrence.

The jury was to determine whether the will was executed according to law; whether the tate Mrs. Boria was of sound mind at the time she made the will and whether there was fraud or undue influence on the part of Mrs. Lillian Navin and William H. Navin.

Judge Lourie informed the jurors that the matter had been adjusted and excused them from further service on the case.

Attys. Irving W. Sargent and John R. Haverty appeared for Mrs. Lillian A. Navin and Atty, John P. Kane represented Mrs. Annie Boria.

Old Medical Treatise

The search for the fountain of eternal youth did not begin with the old Spaniard Ponce de Leon. A chapter on "How to change an old man into a young man of twenty" has been found in a treatise on medical science and surgery written 1,600 years B. C. The papyrus on which it is written, says Prof. James Breasted, is "incomparably the most important body of medical knowledge which has survived to Are You a Day Dreamer?

Bradlee School Teachers Enrolled in National Education Association

Bradlee School Teachers Enrolled in National Education Association

One hundred percent of the teachers of the Bradlee School, are enrolled in the National Education Association, according to a report received by J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the Association Association, from Miss Grace Hill, the principal. In a letter to Miss Hill, acknowledging the report, Mr. Crabtree says: "We are proud of your one hundred percent membership in the National Education Association. It means that your teachers realize the necessity of solidifying the profession. You and your associates are to be congratulated on this record. You will soon receive the certificate granted by the Executive Committee."

The National Education Association was organized in 1857. Through its efforts the United States Bureau of Education was established. It has more than 100,000 members. It is the largest professional teachers association in the world and the greatest publisher of literature on education. Among the planks in its platform of service are: (1) A competent teacher in every public school position in the United States; (2) such inducements to enter the profession as will attract the most talented men and women; (3) the establishment of a Dep rtment of Education with a Secretary in the President's Cabinet; and (4) ratification of the Constitutional Amendment authorizing Congress to regulate child labor.

More than any other modern nation, the United States formally and officially recognizes the existence of the Supreme Being in its acts and utterances. The Declaration of Independence in its solema proclamation of the freedom of the Colonies, after reciting all wrongs suffered, begins, "We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America in General Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world," and concludes: "And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and out sacred honor." And to emphasize and perpetuate this reliance on Divine Providence, our coins are stamped with the proclamation of this faith: "In God We Trust." So it is appropriate and fitting that it is the only nation in which Thanksgiving Day, a day set apart every year for the purpose of returning thanks for benefits to the Creator, is a national celebration.

Thanksgiving as a public feast is a very old institution, it is true. It can be traced back.

Day, a day set apart every year for the purpose of returning thanks for benefits to the Creator, is a national celebration.

Thanksgiving as a public feast is a very old institution, it is true. It can be traced back to the earliest times and among all nations had its origin in the same idea — the celebration of a successful harvest; hence, this celebration in the autumn, the time of harvests. Among all, too, it had two special returners — the holding of religious services and the following of feasting and enjoyment. Moses issued what was practically a thanksgiving proclamation when he established the Feast of Tabernacles in these words: "Thou shalt celebrate also the solemnity of tabernaces when thou hast gathered in the fruit of the barn-floor and of the wine press. And thou shalt make merry in thy festival time. Seven days shalt thou celebrate feasts to the Lord thy God in the place which the Lord thy God in the place which the Lord shall choose; and the Lord thy God will bless thee in all thy fruits and in every work of thy hands, and thou shalt be in joy." Here was a direct command not only to give thanks to the Lord but also to feast and make merry. Thanksgiving Day or the harvest festival of Greece on the same order was called Thesmorphia, when thanks were offered to Demeter, the goddess of corn and harvests, and in Rome to the same goddress whom the Latins worshipped under the rame of Ceres; the sa red repast prepared by thosen matrons after worship and thanks to Ceres, was the classical equivalent of our Thanks iv ng dirner. In England this feast was called the Harvest Home, and its celebration goes back to the time of the Saxons.

The Pilgrim Fathers introduced the feast that the same of Ceres; the same of Ceres; the same content of the content of the

Since the opening of the Norwood Players Mr. Norwood has received over eight hundred requests for "Peg O' My Heart." So she seen a number of years since this beautiful play was produced in Lawrence Mr. Convowed has decided to accede to these a numerous requests and for Thanksgiving Week has arranged for a stupendous revival of this greatest of love stories. The story of "Peg O' My Heart" is so familiar to all theatregoers that it hardly needs repeating I Produced in New York some years ago with Laureatte Taylor in the title role of "Peg" it is met with instantaneous success and up until the sensational run of "Lightning" held the record for the longest dramatic run of any play in New York City. Since that time it has been produced in nearly every country in the world and at one time there were eight companies in America alone appearing in "Peg O' My Heart." The story of "Peg," the little Irish waif world and enteres the home of a titled English family, the Chichesters, is one of the most fascinating and entrancing love stories ever told. The play abounds in real heart interest and splendid comedy scenes. Miss Devereaux will appear as "Peg," a part which she has played a number of times, and one of her favorites. Mr. Rawlings will play the part of Jerry, a real wholehearted boy who is "Peg," best friend. Miss Works as Ethel Chichester, Miss Robinson as Mrs. Chichester, and the balance of the cast in equally splendid roles will make this play one of the high spots of the season.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Repairs Made by Highway Department on Burnham Road from York Street to High Street

The highway department of the Board of Public Works has this week done an ex-cellent job on resurfacing Burnham road and the thoroughfare is now in very good and the thoroughfare is now in very good condition.

Beginning at the junction of Burnham road and York street, the surface has been scraped and leveled and the road-roller finished the job. The steep hill on the easterly side of the railroad track has been covered with gravel and rolled and placed in a condition for travel.

From Burnham road at its junction with High street all cradle-holes have been filled. The thoroughfare in spite of its former deplorable condition, has been used generally by automobilists to escape the congestion on North Main street. The reconstruction of the road will now relieve the traffic on the main highway.

The most baffling problem in the universe is the thing that we call disaster. It is the utter reversal of everything that nature apparently teaches us to believe.

seems perpetual.

Science teaches us that the universe is obelient to an infinite compulsion, and out of it has been coined the proverb that "Order is Heaven's first law." And this is true, until nature now and again runs amuck; bids defiance to all law; wrecks order into chaos, and the whirling cyclone, the searing lightning stroke, swollen torrents, tidal waves, quaking earth and raging conflagration, with titanic fury destroy what nature has builded with such scrupulous care. We call them disasters because we can find neither name nor reason for them in the economy of the universe.

nor reason for them in the ectonology of universe.

Before the suddenness and the horror of disaster man stands helpless; he prides himself that he has done marvelous things in discovering the ecrete of the world. He has laid his hand of mastery upon its mighty forces and holds them apparently obedient to his will. In less than a moment of actual time he flashes his intelligence around the world. He saulis in safety beneath the surface of the sea. He navigates the uppermost reaches of the air. Through the vast reaches of nothingness he sends his voice, and an invisible potency dispatches power over leagues of distance.

Earth and air, water and sky, have apparently yielded themselves to his domination, and yet he knows that any moment, unannounced and unexplained, any of these great nature forces may turn upon him with resistless ferocity and, in spite of all that he has done, disaster strikes, bringing havoc, suffering and death. All that man can do is to lend his aid to those who are stricken, and thank whatever fate has kept him for the moment safe where others have miserably perished.

If disaster befell your home town to it.

moment sate where others have miserably perished.

If disaster befell your home town tonight, and in the darkness hundreds or perhaps thousands of people found themselves broken, dying, helpless, shelterless, what would be your first hope? The relief sources of your own city might be paralyzed; those who ordinarily would be most active in caring for others would find themselves stricken and helpless. Tidings of the catastrophe would be flashed far and wide, and sympathetic people everywhere would wish that they might contribute to your relief. But hours and days would of necessity pass before that relief could be organized and brought to you.

What then would be your first hone?

What then would be your first hope?
Would it not be that in the midst of your dire necessity the tidings would flash to you, "the American Red Cross is on the way; it is bringing food, clothing, blankets, medical relief and trained workers who have learned in the experience of a multitude of such disasters what to do and how to do it. Cheer up and hold fast — the Red Cross is coming."
It is that message that has brought comfort and courage to thousands of stricken people, and, because of its instant readiness, has saved thousands of human lives.

From 1882, when the United States signed administration.

When the great cyclone of last March camshricking with its demon-like ferocity acros the middle west, leaving a mighty swath obestruction and misery in its train, within a few hours special relief trains, loaded with overy requirement both in material an personnel, were rushing through the night and before sunrise necessity found its answe in efficient relief.

In efficient relief.

During the past year, sixty-one disasters in the United States have called for Red Cross aid, for which $1,186,000 were expended in relief funds. Thirty-four of these were so serious as to demand action at National Headquarters. How many communities have been saved from hopeless abandonment; how many families have been regathered that might otherwise have drifted apart in the grim touch of tragedy; how many human lives have been saked the three are no trustworthy figures to relate.

No human ingenuity can prevent calamity, but we owe it alike to ourselves and to our fellow men to see to it that relief stands ready on the heels of circumstance.

First Egyptian King

It would be a fine study in psychology if the hundreds of thousands who read this statement were frankly to confess their reaction to it. How many swallowed it whole like young fledglings? How many tilt by tell why? How anny with pigmy minds and of its journey to the scrap heap? A microspoic few of such dwarfed and jealous personalities unfortunately may be found in Andover. They carry on their faces a broad grin of satisfaction over the news and desture and gesture an "I told you so!" attitude. You have a job on your hands to justify the form of these readers disclose a scintilla of doubt of the "infallible and unchanging truths" of the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth the whole truth, and nothing but the truth the whole truth, and nothing but the truth of the whole truth, and nothing but the truth of the whole truth, and nothing but the truth of the whole truth, and nothing but the truth of the whole truth, and nothing but the truth of the town in taxes $4,317.22. It is true that much further development in Shawsheen for several years cannot be looked for. One reason for this is the depressed condition of the textile industry all most be constructed as the control of the settle industry and the control of the textile industry and the control of the textile industry as the control looked for. One reason for this is the de-pressed condition of the textile industry all over the country, exceeding that of any other period in the entire history of the American Woolen Company. But the second, and the chief reason for the stoppage of development in Shawsheen is that its originator, planner and inspirer has been suddenly struck down by paralysis. No one familiar with the history of William M. Wood who knows the comprehensiveness of his outlook, the clear-ness and tenaciousness of his plans, his per-sistent and successful push, in the teeth of every obstacle, toward a predetermined goal,
