

COUNTRY FAIR AT FREE CHURCH

Church Societies Combine in Arranging Attractive Display of Goods Peculiar to the Harvest Season—Cafeteria Supper Is Served

An abundance of the fruits of the garden and orchard combined with fancy-work, cooked food and decorations of autumn leaves, all arranged with unusual taste transformed the interior of the Free church parish house into a veritable Country fair on last Friday afternoon and evening. Apples in great variety, pears, peaches and the more humble squash, cabbage and turnip tempted the housewives to lay in a winter's supply. Canned fruit, jellies, bread and cake also were offered to complete the furnishing of the latter.

A cafeteria supper was served by members of the Margaret Slattery Class. The menu included cold ham, frankfurts, baked beans, potato salad, cabbage salad, relishes, pickles, hot rolls, pie and coffee.

Those in attendance in the kitchen were: Grace Lake, Bessie Cutts, Etta Brown, Marion Silva, Sadie McLeish, Alice McDermott, Martha Mears, Mrs. Evelyn Schubert, Mrs. George Brown, Mrs. E. A. Silva, Irma Beane, Mrs. William Faulkner, Margaret Laurie, Margaret Purcell, Frank Donough, Stanley Swanton and William Barnett.

Stanley V. Lane was general chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements. Those who assisted at the various tables were:

Candy table—Woman's Alliance; Mrs. Roy E. Bradford, chairman; Mrs. E. E. Perry and Mrs. George A. Carter, and Mrs. Stanley Hickok.

Miscellaneous table—Helping Hand Society; Mrs. Charles Mayer, chairman; Mrs. Joshua Paine, Mrs. William Morrison, Mrs. Samuel R. Harris and Mrs. George Nicoll.

Food table—Mrs. James M. Eakin, chairman; Mrs. Gilbert Caldwell and Mrs. Evelyn Marr.

Preserves table—Christian Endeavor society; William Bradford, chairman; Stanley Swanton, and Mary Marr.

Cake table—Primary department; Mrs. Stanley V. Lane, in charge.

Dolls and Toys—A. G. C. class; Mrs. Alfred C. Church, chairman; Mary Bissett, Doris Manning, Helen Saunders, Hazel Kreiling, Emma Stevens, Jessie Dobbie, Annie Jamieson, Helen Skea, Helen Black, Margaret Buchanan and Mae Valentine.

Grab bag—Mrs. Roy E. Bradford's class; Catherine Jamieson, Helen Nelson and Helen Marr.

Post Office—Mrs. Marion L. Wilkinson, chairman; Isabel Batcheller, Ada Carlson, Elizabeth Crox and Florence Nystrom.

Vegetable table—David B. Black, chairman; Fred Swanton, Mr. Cotton, Jeannette Amedee, and Harriet Newman.

New men's brotherhood class—Pop corn, cider, doughnuts, and cheese; John Morton, chairman; Duncan Bissett, and George Early.

The members of Troop 2, Boy Scouts of the church entertained with a turtle race during the evening.

A doll, beautifully dressed by Mrs. Marion Wilkinson was won by George Gilley of Temple Place. Those in charge of this contest were Isabel Batcheller and Ada Carlson.

Music was furnished by Lundgren's orchestra.

LEGION POST INSTALLS

County Commander Calvert and Commander Saunders of North Andover Install New Officers

The new officers of Andover post, 8, American Legion, were installed at the meeting in the Legion hall Tuesday evening by County Commander Hartley Calvert of Lawrence assisted by Post Commander Louis P. Saunders of North Andover as sergeant-at-arms.

The new officers installed were: Commander Arthur L. Coleman; first vice commander, Percy J. Dole; second vice commander, George D. Walsh; adjutant, Joseph A. McCarthy; finance officer, Arthur Jowett; service officer, Herman J. Hilton; chaplain, Frederick E. Cheever; acting historian, Thaxter Eaton; judge advocate, Frederick R. Hulme; members of the executive board, George D. Walsh, Frederick R. Hulme and James H. Hilton.

Among the speakers of the evening were: Jere J. Twomey of the National Americanization committee, Department Vice Commander Stephen Garrity of Lowell, Commander George McCarver of Saugus post, commander Clarence Ellis of North Andover post, Commander John Leahy of Newburyport post, Commander-elect John Quinn of Newburyport post, Commander Irving S. Navin, president of the Ladies' auxiliary to Walter L. Raymond camp, 111, Sons of Veterans, and Mrs. Thomas W. Platt, president of General William F. Bartlett Woman's Relief corps, 127.

At the business meeting plans were made for a social dance to be held Thursday evening, November 7, in the Legion hall for members and their friends. Eddie Schubert's American Legion orchestra of Methuen will furnish the dance music.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by the members of the house committee, James Fairweather, Edward Vannett and Herman J. Hilton.

Dr. Kidder to Speak on Expedition to Central America

On the evening of Tuesday, October 29th, at 8:15, in the auditorium of George Washington hall at Phillips academy, Dr. Alfred V. Kidder, of the Phillips Academy department of Archaeology, will speak on his experiences with Colonel Charles Lindbergh on the expedition recently taken by them to Central America. On their flight over the impenetrable jungles of Dr. Kidder and Colonel Lindbergh found hitherto undiscovered traces of the ancient Maya civilization, and it is of these, and of earlier discoveries in that section, that Dr. Kidder will speak. No admission fee will be charged and the general public are cordially invited to attend.

SPORTING EDITOR SPEAKS

George M. R. Holmes Tells Members of Phillips Club How Athletic Events Are Covered

"Personal Experiences and Views on Athletics" was the subject of a most interesting talk given by George M. R. Holmes, sporting editor of the Christian Science Monitor at the first meeting of the season held by the Phillips club at Peabody house on Monday evening.

Following the talk there was an opportunity for questions and answers.

In speaking of his experiences and views on athletics, Mr. Holmes said in part:

I do not know how many persons have told me how much they wished they had my position. How nice it must be to do nothing but go and see games and read about them. Well, I am free to admit that it certainly is a very interesting vocation; but strange as it may sound to those who are interested in going to games just for the pleasure of seeing them, when one goes to them as a matter of business, it is far different. Covering a world baseball series, a big football game or a golf tournament, is indeed very fascinating work; but it is real work to the newspaper man and much of the enjoyment which the ordinary spectator gains is lost to the writer. In fact, sports to him are very different from what they are to the ordinary fan.

Since the World war the demand for sporting news in the daily papers has just about doubled until now it is one of the most important departments of newspaper work. I can remember when the average daily paper could get along with about one page of sporting news and the Sunday paper might have two or three; but today the big metropolitan daily papers carry from three to five or six sporting pages, while the Sunday papers print whole sections of sporting news. One day during the past week one of the New York city daily papers had six pages.

As the demand for sporting news has grown so has that department of the paper grown. With this growth has also come a change in the way sports are handled. Developments and improvements in mechanical equipment have resulted in more speed, greater accuracy and a widening out in the field. Whereas some fifty years ago the sporting news of a paper would be confined largely to local events, today we will see on the same page the story of a local game side by side with just as full an account of a game played at Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago, or even in Europe. The world is continually growing smaller and smaller and while the sporting editor would in the old days be concerned only with the covering of games in his own locality, today he must look out for events all over the world.

Specializing has now become just as important in sport writing as it has in any other line of industry. This is not to be surprised at, as the continual development of and improvement in the various sports have brought in technical points which, if the stories are to read right to close followers of the sport described, they must be written by a man who knows that sport from A to Z. He is a rule the best writers follow a winter and a summer sport; but there are comparatively few today who can go out and cover any sport. This has necessitated the enlarging of the sporting departments of the daily papers until now they carry men who have intimate knowledge of all the big sports played.

It is the work of the sporting editor to see that all the events which his paper wants to run are properly covered and that they get into the paper. He has the assigning of his reporters to the various events and sees that the stories get to the copy readers who in turn get them into final shape to go into the paper. Some of these stories come by mail, some by telephone, some by telegraph, some by radio and some are written in the office, especially when the event is near enough to permit the reporter getting back and writing his story in time to catch the edition. Most of the mail stories are what we call "publicity."

SPORTING EDITOR SPEAKS

The last books were moved from Brechin Hall on Wednesday morning, and the beautiful Oliver Wendell Holmes library formally opened its doors to the students of Phillips academy. For nearly two years, under constantly changing plans, the building has been under construction, and now in the stillness of the exterior and in the magnificence of the interior it gratifies the hopes and expectations of all.

As one mounts the granite steps and passes through the lofty monoliths of Indiana limestone, he is impressed by the grandeur of the architecture; and as he enters the comfortable reading room and views the shelves filled with books selected for their beauty of binding, and the intricately carved wood-work on the walls and on the mantel, where the seal of Phillips academy is cut, and the exquisite Persian rugs, and the great easy chairs, in which it is a pleasure to pass an afternoon with a book, he is struck with the restfulness of the building, which is equaled by the libraries of no schools and few colleges of the country. The high-ceilinged study room too, with its long tables and Windsor chairs, its towering chandeliers, its panels of fumed oak, its carved walls and ceiling, seems rather the chamber of a palace than the room of a student's library.

The 24,000 books from Brechin Hall partly fill the stacks, which in five tiers occupy the rear of the building, and which are capable of holding 180,000 books. Three thousand more, bought from part of the $15,000 gift to the Academy, await cataloguing before distribution, and others on all subjects are being purchased each day. It is hoped that in the course of a few years over 50,000 volumes will be available for the undergraduate body. In the reading room the shelves are devoted to the works of standard authors. In one corner one finds the handsomely bound volumes of Anatole France, Montaigne, and other French writers; in another section, the works of Hart, Holmes, Irving, Hawthorne, and Longfellow; in another, complete sets of Byron, Carlyle, Dickens, and Macaulay; in another, Landor, Scott, Ruskin, Fater, Thackeray, and Meredith; in another, Goethe and Dante. And, furthermore, one may pick from their shelves for reading in the library the novels of the finest current authors. The new Fourteenth Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica will be available also, in addition to the already excellent reference books in the study room.

The library staff includes Miss Sarah L. Frost, librarian; Mrs. Theresa W. Richardson, reference librarian; Miss Grace K. Pattillo, cataloguer; Miss Elizabeth E. Fades, in charge of circulation; and Miss Delight W. Hall, assistant in the library.

The six rooms on the second story contain the paintings which were formerly in George Washington hall. They await the completion of the Addison Art Gallery, the twin building of the Oliver Wendell Holmes library. The rooms with their treasures are open to the public at all times during the day. Entering the larger room, one sees on the wall opposite the door the glorious "Monadnock Angel" of Abbott Thayer; and his "Woman in Grecian Gown" and "Woman in Green Velvet" attract immediate attention. The resplendent landscapes of Winslow Homer, "West Wind" and "Eastern Point", are a pleasure to the eyes. There may be found also, among many others, Sulley's "Alice Bringham Dunant", Samuel F. B. Morse's "Self Portrait", Whistler's "Battersea Bridge" and "Sargent's 'Horses at Palma'" and "Cypress Trees at San Vigilio". The students of Phillips academy are indeed fortunate to have for their enjoyment such a wealth of literature and art.

Old Brechin Hall, an historical land mark of the East Campus, is being torn to the ground. Work was begun immediately on the

Pennsylvanians at Crystal Ballroom Tonight

Roane's Pennsylvanians, undoubtedly one of the most popular out-of-town dance orchestras to visit Greater Lawrence in many years, will be the featured attraction at the beautiful Crystal ballroom in Shawshen village, Andover, this evening. It is the policy of the Crystal management to book the leading orchestras in the East as special features every Friday evening. The sensational Pennsylvanians have legions of friends and admirers in Shawshen village, where they were featured on more than one occasion a year ago, and they are assured a warm welcome at their initial appearance there this season.

Regular mid-week and week-end dancing parties are staged every Wednesday and Saturday evening, with Roland Russell's Rollicking Ramblers occupying the orchestral stage. If attendance figures mean anything—and they usually are conclusive—the Ramblers boast more friends and followers than any other local band. They were the featured attraction two weeks ago when all Crystal ballroom attendance records were distanced by several hundreds. It is this policy of giving its patrons what they want in the way of musical programs that makes Crystal the popular rendezvous of the dance enthusiasts of this district.

During an inspection of an asylum the trustees came upon a party of workmen who were repairing a wall. One of the harmless patients, apparently assisting in the work was pushing a wheelbarrow along upside down.

"My friend," said a kind-hearted trustee, gently, "you should turn your wheelbarrow over."

"Not on your life," replied the patient. "I turned it over yesterday, and they put bricks in it."—Forbes Magazine.

When You Telephone

Three factors account for the remarkable increase in out-of-town telephoning. They are—

SIMPLICITY—whether the call goes one mile or a hundred, you may give the number to your local operator.

SPEED—almost instantaneous, whether you call your next-door neighbor or a friend a hundred miles away.

LOW COST—the lowest rates consistent with rendering good service.

The evening period from seven to eight-thirty has been instituted to provide low rates on social calls at the time when you are most likely to find friends at home.

On calls by number at distances above forty miles, the evening rates are about one-quarter less than normal day rates. And traffic records show that a greater percentage of calls can be completed promptly during this period than at any other time in the evening.

Plan your social calls during this seven to eight-thirty period. We are sure you will be pleased with the speed and economy of this service.

SHUBERT-APOLLO

William Faversham returns to the local stage next week, October 28th, at the Shubert-Apollo Theatre, after an absence that has been noticeable. This distinguished star appears in a new romantic comedy entitled "Her Friend, The King," that is said to offer one of the most delightful evening's entertainment in many seasons. He is supported by a noted cast headed by Ara Gerale.

Mr. Faversham is of the school of the theatre that believes that the audience has a right to hear what the actor or actress is saying, and knows that proper diction insures this result. In his company there is none of the mumbled words that mark the new style repressed school, nor is there any of the shouting that is typical of the other extreme.

He obtains the effects for which he is striving by acting like a human being, and with his lead, and under the able direction of F. Catenby Bell, the entire cast gives a performance that is a joy to behold. Once again the stage shows the potent lure it has when "good theatre" rules the stage and its players.

The story is smart, the dialogue and situations equally so. The plot revolves around the efforts of a rich American widow to regain the throne of a charming monarch, whom the radicals have deposed, and with whom she is madly in love. The troubles of the King's daughter, and a neighboring prince, both of whom are trying hard to be democratic, furnish the secondary phase of the plot. The authors, A. E. Thomas and Harrison Rhodes, have fashioned a vehicle that gives the star every opportunity to give one of the superlative performances for which he is noted.

METROPOLITAN

The management of the Metropolitan theatre takes great pleasure in announcing the New England premiere of George Arliss in his first ranking masterpiece, "Disraeli" in which the world-famed stage and screen star recreates his greatest role.

Charles Whibley says of him in "The Pageantry of Life": "His progress was like a fairy tale, or a chapter from Balzac, which you cannot read without a certain enthusiasm. What a career was his! What an achievement in fascination! Truly he emptied the bowl of life and found no poison in the wine. He was witty, accomplished, glorious, and his table was littered with letters; and London was at his feet."

Disraeli, master of men—and women, the quintessence of wit, wisdom and courage, great lover and leader, a character who will live through the centuries as a source of inspiration to those who cherish the worthwhile things of life.

Supporting Mr. Arliss in "Disraeli" are Joan Bennett, daughter of Richard Bennett; and Florence Arliss, as "Lady Beaconsfield."

George Arliss says of his talking picture, "Disraeli": "I believe we have an even more brilliant story in the Vitaphone version of 'Disraeli' than we had on the stage."

In addition to this brilliant and spectacular feature, the Metropolitan theatre presents on the stage, "Sisly Harbor," a new type of stage entertainment, devised and staged by Frank Cambria, in which the entire action takes place in a Zepplin while it is touring in the air. Herschel Henler, the "madcap pianist" is featured, as is Jimmy Ray, in his original hand and foot dance. Nick Lang and Fred Hatcher, in "A Kiss and a Song," Alice Donahue, sister of Jack Donahue, Berna Doyle, Zelma Bushner, Cleo Floyd, Mary Janis and Lucille Arth, who sing, dance, and otherwise entertain, are included in the cast.

Rubinioff, the celebrated Russian violinist, presents his descriptive concert composed by himself, called "Russian Rhapsody." It tells in music of his boyhood days in Russia under the oppressive rule of the former Czar.

A Paramount Sound News, with its usual exclusive news shots and other entertaining features also is included in the program.

"It Won't Be Long Now" before the Fourth Birthday Festival Celebration Program of the theatre will have arrived. All the vast resources of Paramount and Public have been called upon to make the week of October 31st the greatest entertainment ever presented at the Metropolitan theatre. Thrilling stage entertainment, devised and staged by Jack Oakie, Nancy Carroll, and Helen "Sugar" Kane, and a youthful cast in a delightful, youthful, musical, vivacious love story. An augmented stage orchestra, with additional stage and musical delights will supply entertainment in the highest sense of the word.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

"Education in a democracy, both within and without the school, should develop in each individual the knowledge, interests, ideals, habits, and powers whereby he will find his place and use that place to shape both himself and society toward ever nobler ends."

The Junior High School aims (1) to recognize individual differences, (2) to provide a program of studies suited to the needs of boys and girls in their years of early adolescence, (3) to encourage and assist pupils to discover their own permanent interests, (4) to teach boys and girls in an elementary way something of the social, economic, and political problems which they must face later on, (5) to encourage young people to continue at least through Senior High School, (6) to give those who must leave school for economic reasons a good start by way of special vocational training, (7) to inculcate good-citizen-ship by practice.

In short to give every adolescent boy and girl a richer and fuller program than the old type of grammar school gave.

The corner-stone of the Junior High School is justice to the individual.

Clubs have an immediate and a deferred value: the formation of good habits now in the use of spare time; the provision in life for an avocation.

The following clubs are now organized and meet once each week:

Mythology, a study of the myths of different nations—Miss Dodge.
Dramatic, training in voice, posture and presentation of plays, etc., for assembly programs—Miss Atkinson.
Current Events, a study of the current history which is being made from day to day—Miss Chase.

Studio, application of art to things of common everyday life—Mrs. Espey.
Nature, study of the great out-of-doors—Miss Hird.
Health, a strong, healthy body—Miss Parker.
Handicraft, decorative art, gifts—Miss Stimpson.

Needlecraft, art work with needle, crochet, etc.—Mrs. Derrah.
Know-Your-Town, a study of Andover from early beginnings down to the present day—Miss Putnam.

The Stowe orchestra under the direction of Miss Sweeney is to make its first appearance before the school at Morning Assembly next Monday, October 28. The following are the members:

Violins—Elaine Eaton, Helen Tower, Agnes Deyermond, Frederick Winkley.
Banjo-Mandolins—Frances McTernan, Frederick Toohy.
Mandolin—Helen MacDonald.
Cornet—George Thayer Burridge.
Flanist—Betty Manning, Helen E. McDonald, Doris Anderson.

Others are expected next week. Rehearsals are held during the noon hour on Tuesdays. A student council, consisting of six members, has been organized. Councilors are elected by their home rooms. They are as follows:

Room 1, Agnes Deyermond; Room 2, Priscilla Abbott; Room 3, Edwin Hadley; Room 4, Eleanor Winslow; Room 5, Clara Holland; Room 6, Frederick Toohy.

The council meets in Miss Putnam's office each Friday afternoon, the period immediately preceding the noon period. Ways and means by which Stove's citizenship may be improved are discussed, and suggestions carried back to the home rooms to be acted upon by the student body.

The organization of Stove school is government of, by, and for the students. A safety council for the purpose of safeguarding the pupils of Stove school. At present the council is limiting its activities to keeping pupils off the street when going to and from school and prohibiting bicycle riders from using the sidewalks.

The members of the council are: James Gorrie, Harold Brackett, John Gorrie, Burnett Carlson.

THE ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

Looking Back Twenty-five Years

Arthur Comeau has been awarded the contract to build a house on High street for John Sweeney.

The sidewalk on the eastern side of Summer street near the Whittier estate is being built to the proper grade by Superintendent Lajoie of the street department.

In the annual open golf tournament of the Merrimack Valley Country club held last Saturday, W. S. Carleton of this town won the prize for the best net score with 79. Other local people who contested were H. Bradford Lewis, H. W. Boynton and J. Newton Cole.

Miss Jean David who is teaching in Putnam, Connecticut, is spending a few days in town.

Arthur Cummings has entered the United States Navy being stationed at the Newport Training station.

The bridge over the Boston & Maine railroad on North Main street is being repaired. New planking is being laid on the portion used for vehicles.

Mrs. F. H. Ladd and daughters, Bertha and Marion have returned from Westport, Maine, where they have been spending a portion of the summer.

Miss Blanche Higgins entertained a number of friends at her home on High street, Monday, October 17, in honor of her sixth birthday. Games were played and refreshments served. She was the recipient of many presents.

The following names were added to the voting list at a meeting of the registrars of voters held on Monday evening: Chester D. Abbott, William R. Arnold, Charles W. Damon, Jeremiah A. Donovan, Chester H. Harnden, Clarence W. Moar, Warren K. Moorehead, Thomas F. Paradise, Fred S. Phelps, Atherton R. Ramsdell.

A large and fashionable audience assembled at the November club house on Tuesday evening in response to invitations sent out by the Dramatic department to a short play and dance. Three members of the department Miss Butterfield, Mrs. Phillips, and Mrs. Slocum of Abbot academy gave a well-balanced presentation of the amusing comedy "Petticoat Peridy". Later, the dancers, fresh from their summer frolics, entered into the spirit of the hour with their usual abandon, the enlivening music of the Punctet orchestra from Haverhill adding zest to the occasion.

Christ church has come into the possession of the property of the late Mrs. M. W. Blodgett on the corner of Central and Brook streets. The property was willed by Mrs. Blodgett to her nephew, Hon. S. W. George of Haverhill, but the will contained the request that Mr. George should give it to Christ church unless he needed it. The property adjoins the Christ church rectory and consists of a colonial house and a large lot of land.

Roy Dearborn, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Lauren F. Dearborn of Elm street, was seriously injured by being gored by a cow owned by his father, last Saturday morning. Young Dearborn was going through the pasture where the animal is kept and without the slightest warning the cow made a furious dash at the boy driving his horns into the boy's leg above the knee. He was taken to his home and Dr. Scott was summoned who found it necessary to take four stitches in the wound.

Mrs. George Piddington has returned to her home in town after eight weeks spent in St. Michael, Canada, where she was called.

West Parish
Wesley B. Hardy and his friend Mr. Stukenger of Roxbury have been spending a few days with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hardy.

The Ladies' club of the Grange were entertained in Grange hall last evening by Mrs. Joshua H. Chandler, Mrs. J. Warren Moar, and Mrs. E. W. Burt. After supper had been disposed of the following entertainment was given: Cornet duet, Mr. and Mrs. McGraw; reading, Miss Celia McGovern; solo, Miss Carolyn Burt with violin accompaniment by Charles Newton; reading, Joseph T. Lovejoy; solo, Henry Hardy; violin solo, Charles Newton; solo, Robert Watson.

Gas Freezes Fire

Carbon dioxide, which is expelled from your body whenever you exhale, has been put to use by the Los Angeles fire department to put out fires in which streams of water are of little use, as in chemical and oil fires. The gas is carried in high pressure cylinders and when released a cloud of dry ice like that used in certain kinds of refrigeration is squirted over the fire. This reduces the temperature and prevents oxygen from reaching the blaze, thus smothering it.

Regular use of the railroads instead of commuting by automobile offers the only method of relief from the traffic conditions that exist in downtown Boston and other metropolitan centers, according to Commissioner William A. Fisher of the Boston Traffic Commission.

In a letter to H. F. Fritch, passenger traffic manager of the Boston and Maine railroad, Commissioner Fisher yesterday congratulated that railroad for its recent announcement of free space for parking automobiles at its stations.

He declared his belief that such parking of automobiles at suburban railroad stations as provided by the Boston and Maine, will become regular practice in the very near future.

Commissioner Fisher further asserted that such coordinated use of the railroads to and from offices, shopping centers, and other places in Boston provides the only method of relief for this city and for all metropolitan cities in this country.

His letter was in reply to one sent the Commissioner by the railroad calling attention to the fact that all agents at Boston and Maine stations where parking spaces were available had been instructed to allow Boston and Maine patrons free use of them, with no time limit on the parking privilege.

Commissioner Fisher's letter to Mr. Fritch read as follows:

I received your communication of October 17, and wish to congratulate your company upon the progressive step it has taken. There is no doubt in my mind, but what this practice will become prevalent in the very near future. It seems to be the only method of relief from the conditions which exist in the downtown area of our city, as in all metropolitan cities in this country.

Thanking you for your information, I am, Very truly yours,
(Signed) WILLIAM A. FISHER
Commissioner

P.A. 7 Dean 0

A clean and well-fought battle between Phillips academy and Dean academy on Brother's field last Saturday resulted in the score 7-0 for Andover. The visitors played an amazingly fast and hard game, and several times came within an ace of crossing the Blue's goal line. In the second quarter, Dean had four yards to go and two downs in which to make them; they attempted a forward across the line, but Broaca, Andover's speedy right end, intercepting it, raced 102 yards for the only touchdown in the game. King, who started throughout, then drop-kicked for the extra point and completed the score for Andover.

SPORTING EDITOR SPEAKS

That is they are sent out by the promoters of the games or the colleges, telling about the coming games and how good their teams are. Perhaps you would be interested in knowing how a big sporting event is covered in an extra edition and, as an example, I will take a Harvard-Army football game. The first thing the sporting editor has to do is to get his press accommodations from the Harvard Athletic Association. Applications for the seats in the press box, which as some of you know is on the top of the west side of the Stadium, have to be filled out a week before the game. To take a game properly at least three men are needed. Then the telegraph company is notified that the paper will want a wire and an operator for the game. This wire is known as a special loop going directly from the press box to the side of a typesetting machine in the composing room. It is open from about three-quarters of an hour before until after the game and is in almost constant use during that entire time. The operator should be a man familiar with football.

The press box is so arranged that the writer sits side of the operator. He also has his assistants beside or directly back of him. It is the writer's task to follow each play, dictate to the operator word for word as the play goes on and the operator puts it on the wire as fast as he gets it. It is taken down by the operator who is seated beside the typesetting machine in the composing room who passes it to the typesetter sentence by sentence and the compositor sets it into type just as fast as he can. From him it goes right to the forms where it is assembled in the page ready to go to press the minute the last page is in. One of the men who is in the press box looks out for substitutions and queries regarding anything the writer may not be sure about and the other usually keeps track of the yardage made or lost on each play, just which man makes the play, and anything else he may be asked to do.

In addition to this the Harvard Athletic Association has two men stationed in the center of the press box, each with a megaphone. It is their duty to announce to the writers the name of the man carrying the ball, the man who tackled him, the man who fumbled, and the man who recovered, the man who kicks and the man who catches the ball as well as all substitutions. Between the halves the writers and operator get a little chance to rest; but not much of late years as there is always something doing worth sending to the papers. When the teams are not playing, the bands are, or else something is taking place which has to go on the wire.

At the end of the game, however, the pressure gets really intense. Each paper is striving to get its edition out on the street first. As a result, when the game begins to get near its end, the story is assembled in sentences instead of paragraphs so that when the final whistle blows, there are only about four or five words to be put in the paper. It takes about a minute to lock the forms, another to make the mat, another to make the plate and about another to get it on the press, so that five minutes is good time for getting the paper on the street.

When I think of the way we had to cover games twenty years ago and compare it with the present day, I wonder how it was that the press was so complete and accurate as they were. Then there were no numbers in the press box, nor were there any announcers in the press box. It was a case of watch the players in preliminary games, get familiar with their movements and see if there was anything distinctive about their uniforms and then try to pick the carrier of the ball or the player who tackled him. It was a matter of guesswork when you stop to consider that the playing was going on all the time and if you got behind you could never catch up and simply lost some of the plays from your story.

I have often heard people say that the papers carry altogether too much sporting news, but do they? I think that you will agree with me that the mission of the real daily paper is to give to the readers such news as they want. If a paper prints too much of sport or too much of anything else, it soon knows it through the falling off in sales. On the other hand when it does not give enough of one line the answer is the same. So if the daily papers are to devote more and more space to sports and still show increased sales, there must be an ever-increasing demand and an ever-growing interest in them.

Some people are trying to account for this tremendous growth in athletics throughout the world and especially since the World War. To me it is not surprising that people should take an interest in one or more forms of sport either as contestants or spectators, or perchance, as both. What is the first real activity of a child—play and what is sport but play. It is to my way of thinking only natural that the normal child, especially in these days of equal rights, should continue to develop his or her instincts for play and in time take up some line which all cling to him or her for many years to come. I recognize that there are some who are entirely interested in intellectual pursuits; but at the present time I would venture to say that there are probably not ten in every 1000 persons in the United States who are not in some way more or less interested in some form of sporting activity.

If you go back in history you will find that sports were engaged in centuries ago. Greece was famous for her athletes and games. The early history of England shows that sports were popular there almost from the first, and it is safe to say that the American Indian was a lover of sports before the white man ever settled in this country. It is claimed that a crude form of our present game of lacrosse was his national game. It is also interesting to note that those countries which have excelled in sports have been the leaders in other lines of civilization.

There are two real classes of sport—amateur and professional. Each has noted a steady growth during the past half century and each has an ever growing place in the world. Some persons are inclined to look on professional athletes as of a rather lower type of manhood than the amateur but I have not found this to be the case.

There have been, in the past, objectionable features connected with professional sports, largely due to those handling them; but it is gratifying to note that the financial interests realize that their sports must be kept on the level if they are to prosper and are continually working toward that end. An example of this is the appointing of Judge Kemesaw Mountain Landis as high commissioner of baseball.

One of the most important questions that I have ever been asked is "What is an amateur?" My answer has generally been "The fellow who can get the most out of it." Of course this is not literally true although we have had many cases where an amateur was getting away with it. Different governing bodies have different rules as to amateurism, so that it would be difficult to give any one definition to state that I believe an amateur standard is certainly better than they used to be.

I have been interested in noting that if professional sports are to be successful, they must be supported by amateur sports of the same kind. If you do not have amateur baseball, you do not have profitable professional baseball and the same is true of practically every branch of sport. I believe that the professional sports promoter realizes this more and more and when he becomes thoroughly convinced of this situation, he will encourage the amateur to be an amateur until such time as he is good enough and cares to enter the professional ranks.

Personally I have always been more interested in college athletics than in any other form. I have always followed them and feel that I have a pretty fair idea of their good and bad points. I have been more or less mixed up in one or two disputes regarding the question of over-emphasis of football and the proselyting of athletes.

As far as the over-emphasis of football is concerned, I do not give it much thought and perhaps I better not as every time I pass or write a football story I suppose I am helping along this self-same emphasis. But what are you going to do when the people demand it? When you do not have it, they find fault with you and go to some other paper that will carry it. It is estimated that football followers in the United States spend something like $4,000,000 in gate receipts every Saturday during the football season and if that is true, then it is very easy to see that there is going to be a considerable demand for football news in the newspapers. The only way that I know of by which you can cut down on the emphasis given to football is to get the people to stop going to see the games and reading about them.

To me, however, the question of proselyting is a far different matter and one that should be stamped out to the limit of possibilities. It appears to me to be the one rock on which college athletics will fall, if they do fall. The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has been giving a lot of thought and study to this question and I have just received a copy of its bulletin number twenty-three entitled "American College Athletics," in which this subject is quite exhaustively treated. It contains 383 pages and anyone interested in college or school athletics might well take the time to read it. There is some very enlightening information as to just how some of our colleges pick up their athletic teams.

As I see it there are two main kinds of proselyting. One is where the college or school more or less openly through its coaches or otherwise, goes out and gets players, the other is where the "Old Grad" does a little missionary work for his alma mater. The first kind used to be quite general, but now there are not many such violators. But the second kind is always with us. Perhaps if I tell you that I am one of those "Old Grads" you may be willing to put more stock in what I think about the situation.

Just where the dividing line comes is a delicate question. If, say, a graduate knows some young man who is very brilliant in his studies but is not an athlete and who wants a college education but cannot afford to go, sends him to his college out of sympathy and also does not have any money, then the trouble begins. To me I see little difference provided the college holds the boy up to the same educational standards as are required of every other boy and also provided that the boy himself wants the college education and is not just desirous of playing on the varsity football team. If, however, pressure is brought to bear on this boy, to go to a different college from the one he originally intended going to, then I believe we have a clear case of proselyting that should be stopped.

The "tramp" or transfer college athlete may really come under the term proselyting as it is seldom indeed that one of them has transferred except as he has been approached with satisfactory inducements. It is been one of the worst phases of intercollegiate sport. In the old days it used to be a very common thing for the star athletes in some of the smaller colleges appearing in the line-ups of some of the biggest college bigwigs. Some were not even satisfied with representing two colleges, but kept right on transferring as long as any college would let them compete. In fact this practice became so common that those interested in intercollegiate sports began to realize that something must be done to stop it if colleges were to be represented by real amateur teams and as a result some of them adopted a rule which I advocated.

The rule is simply that a student who has played on the freshman or varsity team of one college can never play on the freshman or varsity team in the same sport at any other college. While such a rule may not be ideal and may prove unjust to a few who really transferred so as to get better educational facilities, still it seems to me that it is the best to be offered and I hope that every college and school will soon adopt it.

In closing I would like to say that I believe athletes are one of the greatest forces for good in the world today. I also believe that international games are doing more to bring the various nations of the world together for peace than is generally recognized. Is it any wonder that such a field of activity is ever on the increase and that the Western Union Telegraph company operated 302 wire circuits in carrying all of the football stories to the various newspapers a week ago Saturday and that no less than 4,200,000 words were sent out on their wires on the five world series baseball games?

How Executives Are Made

In these piping times of prosperity, every man seems to think that his son must be sent to college. It has become a social necessity. In the majority of cases a college education fails to "take", and the son of ambitious parents returns, incapacitated for earning a living by the use of his hands, and unable to support himself by using his head.

prohibition against entering life until one is twenty or twenty-five years old. Worse than that, when permitted to enter, one's equipment is all theory and no experience. "Every year," says E. M. Herr, President of the Westinghouse Electric and Mfg. Co., we take in from 200 to 250 men just out of college. These men may become executives, but they are not executives. They do not learn their way at the start. They must first learn the business. An executive is someone who manages a business, or a part of a business, but in order to manage a business you have got to know it.

Thanksgiving and Mrs. Jarley

The members of the Woman's Guild of Christ church are planning to hold their annual Thanksgiving sale on Tuesday, November 26. There will be gifts, aprons, candy, jellies, flowers, vegetables, pies and also many articles of interest to the children for sale. The well-known Guild mince meat may be purchased too, and orders should be given early to Mrs. Arthur Boutwell, for in spite of the huge quantities made it is impossible to supply the demand.

Fire in Peat Bog Causes Numerous Alarms

Fire in a peat bog on the Smith land near Indian Ridge reservation on last Friday continues to burn in spite of hours of labor and gallons of water which have been spent on it. The value of the water in a dry season as compared with the value of the peat consumed has decided Chief Emerson to give up hope of flooding the area and station watches until such time as their efforts are aided by rain. On Friday 1800 feet of hose were laid in response to the alarm from Box 4 at 1:08. Sunday there were two alarms for the peat fire; one at 5:50 p.m., and one at 7:40. Monday the alarms began at 1:20 a.m. Again at 8:10 the department responded to a still alarm using the state pump and 2,000 feet of hose. After another still alarm at 3:35 the fire seemed under control at Indian Ridge. Thursday morning were again at work, but the fire is so far underground that it is impossible to extinguish it by any ordinary means.

Girls' Friendly Society Holds Card Party

Twenty tables of whist and bridge were in play at a party held under the auspices of the Girls' Friendly Society of Christ church Monday evening in the parish house. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. The winners were: Bertha Hilton, Mary Walker and Beulah Dennison. Candy was sold by Amy Phillips and Helen Caverly. The members of the committee were: Ethel Hilton, chairman; Annette Anderson, Helen Smith, Alice Wrigley, Daisy Stevens, Alexina Harris and Ruth Saunders. The prize winners: Arnold Halstead, console set; Mrs. George Stewart, set of glasses; Mrs. Alfred Harris, dish; Mrs. George Brown, string of pearls; Anna Neas, plate; Mrs. Fred L. McDermitt, manicure set; consolation, Mrs. Floyd Napier.

Religion Needs Science, Says Harvard Professor

"Religion without the backing of science is worthlessness," said Dr. Kirtley F. Mather, chairman of the Department of Geology and Geography at Harvard, in his address before the students and faculty of Abbot academy Sunday night. "Rational Religion" was Professor Mather's subject. "Religion has been brought from a heaven in the clouds of geography or of psychology to a geographical and psychological earth. No more profound revolution could possibly be effected in the minds of all who think deeply concerning affairs of religion." To trace the development of rational faith, Dr. Mather went back to the minor prophet, Micah. He reviewed the opinions of outstanding religious leaders since that time down to the present. "This habit of going beyond words to facts and experiences is the greatest contribution which science has given to modern civilization," said the professor. "It has permitted and made necessary a new evaluation of all our knowledge. Science and religion, however, are not at odds but rather they work together, according to the speaker. "Science is obviously in the service of religion. One of the keystones of every great religion is expressed in the desire that the sick should be made well, blind eyes opened, unfortunate economic situations set aright, that persons in positions which gave them opportunity to display their own real worth should be given that opportunity. Is it not obvious that religion has profited greatly by the knowledge which science gives along such practical lines as these?" In conclusion, the speaker made it emphatic that no faith which is afraid of the facts is real value and particularly that this is true in a scientific age like the present. Dr. Mather addressed Abbot students last year.

Abbot Vesper Service

The monthly choral vesper service will be held in Davis Hall of Abbot academy on Sunday night of this week. Miss Bailey will conduct the service, which begins at 7:30. ACADEMY LIBRARY OPENS

(Continued from page 1) removal of the last books, and soon the obsolete building will disappear entirely. When the Chapel, which will be replaced by a new one of brick on the other side of Chapel avenue, is demolished, the architecture of Phillips academy will be entirely Georgian.

To Have Most Extensive Vergil Collection

In 1910 the bimillennial celebration of Vergil's birth will be observed throughout the world. Scholars, educators, and writers will join with universities, colleges, schools, and governments in paying tribute to one of the few commanding figures of the world's literature. Committees are busy everywhere with the formulation of plans for local celebrations and memorials, and the press of our country is generously lending its powerful aid in spreading information about the poet and his place in the history of literature. Phillips academy will have a permanent memorial in the collection of Vergiliana now being assembled for the Oliver Wendell Holmes Library. Years ago Dr. Cecil F. P. Bancroft, former principal of the school, gave to the academy a gift of old and rare printings, comprising the "Aeneid" in the "Georgics," the "Eclogues," and the other works of the great poet; some were printed in Latin, and others were translated into English; some were famous histories on the life of Vergil. Perhaps the most interesting is the huge volume of Dryden's translation, a priceless old edition; the many great prints illustrating the pages are a treasury of the art of England of the late Seventeenth century. This collection will form the nucleus of a greater compilation, which will consist of a goodly number of rare volumes from early presses of the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries, and many of the works of scholarship interpreters of the poems from the earliest days of printing down to the present time. It is hoped that in the near future Andover will be able to place at the disposal of students and scholars, and for the history of scholarship centering about Vergil, the most extensive apparatus possible to gather together. A very generous friend of the academy is supplying the impetus and the means of securing for the school this valuable memorial to Vergil.

The Andover Guild Rummage Sale

The Andover Guild rummage sale which is scheduled for Saturday, November 2nd, promises to be as full of variety as a dish of chop suey. Besides the kittens, cooies, hames, trying wives and more trying infants offered us last week we now have chairs, china and a lace range. So the person who first puts her eye on the stove has a good chance of keeping the home fires burning this winter. All she needs then will be to buy a few of the chairs and with the addition of the much-desired kitten, which we regret even mentioning last week, we can conjure up a picture of comfort and contentment. There is always a waiting list for that kitten, which is most embarrassing for, as he already seems to have almost outlived his nine lives, it is most doubtful whether he will even live to attend the Guild rummage sale. His owner tells us that since consuming the Dutch Cleanser he has been shut in the ice box and innocently tied up in the laundry bag and sent off to the laundry. There he caused great annoyance as he refused to be weighed and a heated discussion arose among the office force as to whether he should be treated as cotton or wool. Eventually he was returned with a rather rough-dry look but no sign of shrinkage and a tag with "no cost" about his neck! Donations of clothing, old rugs, furniture, books, bulbs, garden tools, and pictures—anything that is usable—will be gladly received by Miss Anna Kuhn, Mrs. W. D. Walker and Mrs. C. C. Kimball.

Obsequies

MIRLE E. BORNEMAN The funeral of Mirle E. Borneman, who passed away Wednesday morning at the family home on Prospect Hill road, was held Friday afternoon, October 18 from the late home. Services were conducted at two o'clock by Rev. Charles W. Henry, rector of Christ church. A delegation of members from St. Matthew's lodge, A. F. and A. M. was in attendance at the services. The bearers were Joseph T. Lovejoy, Joseph Holland, John Holmeland, Percy Crosby and Charles Gregory. As the flag-draped casket was lowered to its last resting place in the family lot in Spring Grove cemetery, salutes were fired by members of Andover post No. 8, American Legion with Commander Percy J. Dole in charge. The squad comprised Arthur L. Coleman, Harry Hilton, Patrick Tucker, Joseph Levi, Joseph A. McCarthy and Joseph Remmes. Committal services were conducted at the grave by Chaplain Frederick E. Cheever of Andover post and taps were sounded by Buglers David Petrie and Roger Huntress, Boy Scouts of Andover. The late Mr. Borneman served as sergeant in the coast artillery at Fort Warren, Boston during the World War. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes. Intermedate C. E. Society Elects Officers The South church C. E. society held its weekly meeting in the church vestry Sunday evening with Miss Mary K. Francis as leader. The topic for the meeting was "Taking Part in the Meeting: Why and How." Verner Frost will be the leader next Sunday. The executive committee met after the regular meeting. Reports from the chairman of the various committees were received. The intermedate society was organized Sunday with eighteen members. The following officers were elected: President, Roger Whitcomb; vice president, Helene Hall; secretary, Elya Fraize; and treasurer, G. Edgar Folk, Jr. Miss Amelia Drew of North Andover, general superintendent of the Intermedate Union, was present with her secretary, Miss Jane Wetterberg.

Communication

I wonder how many Andover people know the number of children who attended daily the Summer Playground conducted by the Andover Guild the past summer. One had only to "break thru" the mad rush of automobiles streaming down Main street and turn into Bartlet street where the joyous sound of happy children at play greeted your ears, to realize the true benefit such a playground is to the young people of the town. Fortunately play is the natural instinct of youth, but when it can be instructive as well, it becomes doubly useful. Should not the town itself appropriate a sum for this wonderful work? The Summer Playground has closed a very successful season, and it is again time to open the Guild House for the winter season. Attendance has increased tremendously each year, making the financial pull keener all the time, a condition which should not exist in a glorious work of this kind, taking the place as it does, of Boy's clubs, Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s, etc., in the larger communities. The Guild house opens November first. Many things are needed in the line of equipment, such as: Horizontal ladder, ladders, well-adjusted flying rings, jumping stand with rope, inclined spring board—for jumping, glass Indian clubs, gymnasium mats, medicine ball, billiard cards, bean bags, grass hoops, rubber drill balls, folding card tables. The following games for the children's game room: Pegity, whirl-pool, U. S. puzzle map, World puzzle map, dominoes, jack straws, cut animals, old maid, conversation cards (circular), circus picture puzzle. The following items for use: Ring-ole, cork board with feather darts, Disco. Will many kind and interested people remembering their own youth (not quite so complicated) help out in this good work, keeping in mind that the life of such equipment is a short but useful one? Please notify Miss Davis at the Guild house or telephone 350 if any thing is to be called for. In doing our bit "now" for the Youth of Andover, we are making for better citizenship in the future. Dance and Favor Party

About one hundred and fifty attended the dance and favor party in the Knights of Columbus hall held last Friday evening under the auspices of St. Augustine's Dramatic club. The dance is the first of a series of Friday evening dances which the club will conduct in the K. of C. hall during the coming season. Favors were distributed and refreshments of cake and punch was served. The hall was prettily decorated and several specialty numbers including a grand march, waltz and cut-in dance completed a well-rounded program. Casey's Merry-makers furnished the dance music. Miss Mary Connelly was chairman of the committee in charge of the dance. Next week the club will sponsor a Halloween dance. Cider and doughnuts will be served.

Punchard Prepares for Gloucester

Coach Eugene V. Lovely sent his Punchard high squad through a long workout Tuesday in preparation for Gloucester high at Andover Saturday afternoon. Both teams worked on new plays and the coach had them running at full speed.

Loosigan has replaced the late Fred H. Ladd, Jr., at right tackle and will undoubtedly start in that position against Gloucester. John Cole, a former Stowe Junior high athlete, joined the Punchard squad Tuesday and worked as a tackle on the second team. Gloucester high which plays Punchard at Andover Saturday afternoon has a record of having won two games out of five, losing two and tying one. The team scored victories over Swampscott and Chelmsford and dropped games to Beverly and Marblehead. The contest with Chelsea ended in a scoreless tie.

This record is not as good as the one which Punchard possesses. The Punchard eleven has romped through four opponents this season with but one touchdown being scored against it. On the other hand the Orange and Black have sent down four teams by scoring an aggregate of 89 points.

Neither aggregation has met the same opposition and as nothing can be taken for granted in comparative records a good game should result at the week-end.

Mother Goose Bazaar

Every fall when leaves begin to turn from green to golden brown, there's a certain group of ladies start to hurry, scurry, rum!

Now this year is no exception. They have come from far and near Gath 'ring at each others houses.

Planning like an engineer. They've made aprons, towels, and bridge-sets. Pillows, dolls and handkerchiefs. And smocks, and frocks, and dollies in quantities beyond belief. They have plants and wicker-baskets. That'll decorate your den; And there's candy, nuts, and supper. That'll satisfy the men. Sure everything's been thought of. To the very last detail: So they send this invitation To their Annual Fall Sale!

South church vestry is the setting. And November twelfth is the date. There'll be lots of things to choose from. And they'll be at bargain rate. So bring all your friends and neighbors. Come real early, stay as late as you please. A. P. C. will give you welcome. And your help A-P-R-C-iate.

Legion Auxiliary Plans Harvest Supper

The regular meeting of the American Legion auxiliary was held Thursday evening at the Legion hall. Previous to the regular meeting, the harvest supper committee met and made final arrangements for the supper which is to be served Saturday from 5 to 7 o'clock.

The committee in charge of the supper includes: Table No. 1, Mrs. John Alexander; table No. 2, Mrs. Thomas Platt; table No. 3, Miss Ethel Hilton; pie table, Mrs. Catherine Eastwood, and Mrs. David Hartigan; salads, Mrs. Mary Garside, Mrs. Peter Markey and Mrs. Charles Buchan; relishes, Mrs. George Brown; rolls, Mrs. Joseph Miller; kitchen, Mrs. John Keith, Mrs. Timothy McCarthy and Mrs. Florence Trautman; tickets, Miss Doris Hilton; decorations, Mrs. Robert Franz; silver, Mrs. Annie Davis; postoffice, Mrs. Harry Gouck. Members of Andover post will also assist.

H. Gilbert Francke Speaks at Meeting of Associated Industries

H. Gilbert Francke, of the Pacific Mills, speaking at the 14th annual meeting of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts which opened Wednesday at the Westminister hotel, Boston, declared he was thoroughly convinced that there is no concerted movement on the part of the mills to discard their older employees at a given age. Mr. Francke's address was on the subject: "The Problem of the Displaced Worker in Industry."

Continuing in his remarks Mr. Francke said: "Even if the mills tried to do this (assuming that the movement was not good business) they would meet strong opposition from possibly a rather unexpected source. The overseer, who has received more than his full share of abuse, is living every day with his employees and has lived with the older ones for many years and the farsighted overseer knows he is to live with his people for years to come and cannot bring himself to arbitrarily discharge people whom he sees are no longer in their prime."

The annual meeting of the organization was presided over by Irving Southworth, agent of the Pacific Mills. Frank J. O'Connor, superintendent of Welfare and Safety at the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company, Deepwater Point, N. J., a native of Lawrence, was also one of the speakers. He spoke on the subject, "The Workman is No Safer than the Foreman."

Gift for Choir Member

Mrs. Wilfred Svenson of Lowell street was presented with an electric toaster in behalf of the members of Christ church choir of which she is a member, at the choir rehearsal Thursday evening. Attains Record Attendance

Sunday morning the largest attendance for three years was registered at the Sunday school service in the Congregational church.

Interesting subjects were discussed with a corps of teachers in charge.

Mrs. Philip Lowe and Mrs. James Morton have been added to the list of Sunday school teachers.

Followed Flag's Example

After Sedan

In his book, "Napoleon the Third, Mr. D'Auvergne gives an interesting picture of the meeting between the vanquished emperor and Wilhelm I of Prussia after Sedan.

"The old king took the Frenchman's hand and said something about the fortunes of war having decided between them with a friendly, encouraging gesture.

Wilhelm of Hohenzollern gripped the broken monarch by the arm and led him into an inner room. They discussed the battle and the origins of the war.

"Really, I think I cheered him up," wrote the chivalrous old king to his wife."—Illustrated London News.

Odd Topic of Discussion

There is a story of the late Earl Rosebery which gains peculiar significance through his death. One night at dinner he was observed in deep conversation with his partner, paying no attention to any other member of the company.

In the smoking room his host rallied him upon his undivided attention to the lady in question, suggesting that they must have found a topic of absorbing interest.

"We did indeed," replied Lord Rosebery, "we were considering what it would be like to be dead."

Enemies That Swallow

Catfish "Out of Luck"

The very unpleasant looking catfish has an unusual spine which fits into a peculiar socket joint, says a naturalist. By a slight downward or forward twist it may be set immovably. A slight turn in the opposite direction releases the joint.

During their flight over the impenetrable jungles of Honduras, Mrs. Lindberg probably did not tell Lindy that it was time for him to settle down.

Indian Monkeys Assume

Role of Bold Bandits

Depredations of monkeys at the hill station of Matheran, near Bombay, India, are causing annoyance and anxiety. Cases have been reported where various articles and food have been snatched away from women and children, and in one instance a well-organized raid was carried out on a meat safe full of fruit.

A Pennsylvania justice of the peace who attempts to settle difficulties between his contending neighbors, has been so successful that he has not been compelled to try a case for twenty-five years.

Hair Almost Indestructible

All mammals are supplied with hair, although the quality varies greatly. It may be of the softest down hardly perceptible on the child's cheek or the tough bristles of the hog or the quills of the porcupine.

Long Enough

After an hour or more, Pat, the new clerk in the animal store, was becoming exceedingly irritated at the fastidiousness of his customer.

Unique Uses for Gas

As an aid in reducing high mortality among young monkeys, the Philadelphia Zoo recently installed a gas-fired refrigerator in the nursery kitchen of the monkey house.

Not Encouraging

The motorcyclist was on unfamiliar ground, and directly before him was a fork in the road, with no signpost to tell him which way to go.

LAND COURT

To Krikor Loosigian and Melkon Loosigian, of Andover, in the County of Essex and said Commonwealth; any heirs, devisees or legal representatives of Frances E. Burr, formerly of said Andover, deceased, who have not released their interest in the land hereinafter described; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Mary C. Tatosian of Lawrence, in said County of Essex, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated in said Andover, bounded and described as follows:

Northerly by Bellevue Road, 932.14 feet; North-easterly by the junction of said Bellevue Road and Osgood Road, 22.49 feet; Easterly by Osgood Road, 919.27 feet; Southerly by land now or formerly of Melkon Loosigian, 1037.02 feet; and Westerly by land now or formerly of Krikor Loosigian, 980.33 feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

If you desire to make any objection or defense to said petition you or your attorney must file a written appearance and an answer under oath, setting forth clearly and specifically your objections or defenses to each part of said petition, in the office of the Recorder of said Court in Boston (at the Court House), or in the office of the Assistant Recorder of said Court at the Registry of Deeds at Lawrence in the County of Essex where a copy of the plan filed with said petition is deposited, on or before the twelfth day of November next.

Unless an appearance is so filed by or for you, your default will be recorded, the said petition will be taken as confessed and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THORNTON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fourth day of October in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-nine.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

CHARLES A. SOUTHWORTH, Recorder (SEAL)

ROGER W. BABSON'S ADVICE TO INVESTOR IS "BUY VALUES NOT QUOTATIONS"

The Mere Fact a Stock Has Declined Is No Sign It Should Be Bought—Advises Study of Underlying Values Rather than Market Quotations—Unfavorable Market Factors Still Present

Babson Park, Massachusetts, October 25, 1929. A curious and particularly damaging form of psychology has gripped the speculating public during the frenzied stock markets of the past year or two. Instead of buying values they have been buying quotations. Their eyes have been fixed wholly on the price movements. Only a few wise investors recognized that earnings, assets, and outlook for the industry were far more important than whether the stock might rise 15 points, or cross 200, or reach any other arbitrary figure. The reason speculation went to such absurd lengths before the crash was that trading public as a whole cared very little about the fundamentals underlying stocks so long as the prices could be pushed up and they could sell to somebody else at a higher figure! It is the same curious psychology that characterized the Florida Land boom. People were not buying for investment, they were buying to sell to somebody else.

Price Psychology Still Dominates Trading

One would naturally expect that recent drastic declines in stock prices would bring speculators to their senses. The "price psychology", however, has too strong a grip. For example, if a popular stock sold before the break at 230, when it declined to 210 many speculators rushed in to buy it, feeling that it was undervalued. They had their minds fixed on 230 as representing a real and tangible value for that stock. They neglected to recall that the same stock probably sold for 150 earlier in the year, and that the whole rise to 230 was unjustified on the basis of earnings, assets, or prospects. Hence, false ideas of values have been set up, and it will require further market shake-outs to break these false ideas.

Roger Bacon First to Talk of Metal Airship

In the all-metal airship we see realized an eight-century-old Baconian project. In the Thirteenth century, says Domestic Air News, United States Department of Commerce, Roger Bacon, English philosopher and Franciscan friar, seems to have been the first to realize the principles of aeronautics, if we discard Kircher and the legends.

Bacon wrote in glowing language on the possibility of constructing engines of immense size and power that could traverse the land and the water with great speed and carry with them persons and merchandise.

He proposed the construction of an aerial machine which "must be a large hollow globe of copper or other suitable material... filled with 'etheral air or liquid fire' (some have claimed Bacon referred to rarefied air and hydrogen gas) and then launched from some elevated point into the atmosphere, where it will float like a vessel on the water."

There may be made, Bacon said, "flying machines so that a man sits in the midst of the machine revolving some engine by which artificial wings are made to beat the air like a flying bird."

The idea of the rigid airship may be traced from Bacon through Albertus de Saxonia (1350), Mendoza (1503-75), Lana (1670), Gourdin (1783), Delcourt (1824), Monge (1843), Giffard (1855), Sless (1873), Bausset (1888), Schwartz (1897) to Zeppelin (1900), all of whom proposed metal for the hull.

Depressing Factors Still Present

There never was a time that required more discrimination in the making of investments than the present. The underlying depressing factors which prevailed before the breaks are still present. First, credit is still overstrained and brokers' loans are too high. (2) England is suffering financially through excess speculation in New York. (3) American trade is being hampered to some extent by high money rates. This is particularly true of building. (4) There are still some sore places existing as a result of the smash in stocks. (5) The market contains a large volume of more or less security issues. Dealers are carrying more than they wish of stocks offered at higher levels than can be sold in the present market.

Careful Discrimination Essential

The stock market is a more selective proposition than it ever was before. Any stock purchases now should be made only after careful study of the industry and a thorough knowledge of the financial position, earnings' prospects, and management of the particular company. If people still insist on buying quotations instead of values they are due for some more severe disappointments. Furthermore, this is not a time to load up heavily with stocks of any kind! Every investor should buy good bonds now. Bonds are the outstanding purchase today. The best judges of securities are accumulating them. Also one should have most of his speculative funds in liquid condition, either in bank deposits, or in short-term notes. A few long-pull bargains will undoubtedly be uncovered in the stock market. Moreover, I don't care how low a stock has fallen in price, I would not buy it if the outlook for the industry were at all uncertain. Another stock, possibly selling at a higher price, but in an industry with a thoroughly sound outlook would be a far better purchase. It all comes back to the question of studying values rather than prices. Some of the power stocks can be bought advantageously for long-term holding. This also applies to certain issues in the natural gas industry. From a long-term standpoint the best oils are all right. However, in buying power, gas, or oil securities, remember that they should be bought outright and not on margin, and held for the long-pull irrespective of intermediate market movements. Moreover, only a minor portion of one's funds should be invested in any common stocks at this time. The portion allotted to good bonds, however, should be at its maximum!

Rewards for Service

The time will come when investors who now follow a conservative policy will be able to perform a distinct economic service to the security markets, and to general business. They must, however, keep a large part of their speculative funds in liquid shape so that they can buy later on when prices shall have obviously fallen below intrinsic values. Thus, they can exert a healthy, stabilizing influence and help prevent a more severe crisis. If, however, such investors are loaded with over-priced stocks they not only cannot perform such service, but will undoubtedly suffer severe losses themselves. There is a reward for service in the stock market just as in other fields. Also, there is a penalty for greed.

Today investors can perform an economic service by buying bonds. Not only will they help to stabilize the bond market, but they will also reap a reward in the form of high yields and later on substantial price appreciations for themselves.

Business by the Babsonchart is now 3 per cent above normal compared with 10 per cent above a year ago.

Who's to Blame?

A leading medical journal announces that Americans are morbid over vitamins, periodic medical examinations, dietetic systems, roughage, therapeutic dogmas and health "isms," and figuratively calls them a "lotta bunk." Well, who started us that way if it wasn't the medical—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Consider the Minutes

Minutes are given us to use. Every man gets exactly the same number. How we employ them determines largely our success or failure in life. Remember, therefore, that he who "kills time" often murders opportunity.—Grit.

Forged Art on Show

Some of the specimens of forged pieces of "ancient art" are so clever that they are of marvelous interest, although they are known to be spurious. The characteristics of old stone carvings, for instance, have been so minutely reproduced that it is often difficult to detect the fraud. As a matter of fact, there is hardly a museum in the world which at some time has not had one of these "fakes" in its collection. Ultimately, however, the imposture is revealed and the offending piece removed. The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York has a special department devoted to these forged antiquities and they are regarded by experts as quite as interesting as the genuine, but in a different way.

"Phillips Academy Bulletin" for October

The October number of the Phillips Bulletin, now being sent out to the alumni, contains a description of recent building activities on Andover Hill, together with a large number of photographs showing the new constructions; an article on John Gould Fletcher, '04, by Alan R. Blackmer of the Department of English; an article on George Bassett Clark, the eminent astronomer, by Scott H. Paradise; and various items relating to school activities during the summer and early autumn.

Roger Sullivan Awards Made

The Roger C. Sullivan awards, awarded to one member from each of the classes of Phillips academy on the basis of the greatest improvement in scholarship during the preceding school year, were granted for the school year 1928-1929. Awards of $300 were made to the following students: From the Senior class, Malvin Joseph Mayer, now at Harvard; from the Upper Middle class, Pollard Garrison; from the Lower Middle class, David Wilder Goodale; and from the Junior class, Daniel Geary Lewis, Jr.

Holstein Breeders to Meet

Superintendent C. H. Abbott and A. E. Little, proprietor of the Sorosis Farms, Marblehead, will entertain the breeders of Holstein cattle at the farm, Wednesday, October 30, starting at 10.30 a.m. Lunch will be served by the Sorosis Farms.

Mr. Abbott has been selecting some excellent animals for this herd; many are from the famous Field herd; the whole herd is under test in the Essex County Dairy Herd Improvement Association. A high grade milk from the F. B. tested herd is carefully handled and marketed in nearby cities.

All Holstein enthusiasts will want to see this herd and dairy. Allan Crissey, eastern representative of the National Holstein-Friesian Association, will be the speaker.

Catholic Daughters to Hold Installation

The installation and banquet of Court St. Monica, 783, Catholic Daughters of America will be held on Monday evening, November 4, at seven o'clock.

The members of the committee in charge of arrangements are: Miss Grace McKeon, Miss Olive Noel, Mrs. Charles Proulx, Mrs. Barbara Shultz, Miss Mary McKeon and Mrs. John Alexander.

Are Placing Wires Underground

The wires of the Andover fire department and the telemeter wires of the Board of Public Works are being placed underground on Main street from Morton to a point over the top of the hill near the residence of James C. Sawyer. The work is being done under the supervision of the fire department and the entire expense is being borne by the trustees of Phillips academy. The trustees have also purchased a new modern fire alarm box which they are having installed on Chapel avenue in place of the old box. The number of the new box, 45, is the same as the old one.

Scouts in Joint Meeting

A joint meeting and get-together of Troops 6, 7 and 8, Boy Scouts of St. Augustine's parish was held Tuesday evening in the parochial school hall. Forty-eight boys were present. Scoutmaster Henry Page and his two assistants, Frank Davis and Arthur Mullen were in charge of the meeting. Rev. Charles A. Branton, O. S. A., pastor and District Commissioner Dr. Nathaniel Stow, who addressed the boys. Five members of the troops' committees were present. After the meeting the boys served refreshments.

Program for Bradford Day

Miss Mary Carpenter of Abbot academy, and Mrs. Florence Dangerfield of Bradford academy, physical directors, have arranged the program for Bradford Day. The Play Day will not be "tournament style", where each girl plays each sport in rotation, but each girl will take part in one game, and in one relay, and all three hundred odd will be playing at the same time.

Miss Nora Sweeney of Methuen, Miss Gertrude Gross of Boston School of Physical Education and Miss Barbara Goss of Melrose all graduates of Abbot academy, and Mrs. Waddington, hockey coach at Abbot will assist with the games. Cornelia Gould, '30, is head of the Abbot Athletic Association, and Marion Broer is president of the Bradford Athletic Association.

Students of the two schools will be placed on twenty-four color teams, and Abbot and Bradford will play together in everything, even sharing the riding drill (when the horses from the Phillips stables on Salem street will be used) and singing together after luncheon. The program:

10.30 Folk dances on the Circle.
11.00 Games for everyone.
Hockey, basketball, volley-ball, German bat-ball, kick ball, croquet, tennis, croquet, tennis, croquet, tennis, croquet.

12.30 Luncheon, followed by singing.
2.15 Riding—drill, games.
3.15 Relays for all Color Teams.

Women's Relief Corps Notes

The General William F. Bartlett Women's Relief Corps, 127, held their regular meeting Tuesday evening in the G. A. R. hall.

The Essex County Association, W. R. C., will visit the Soldiers' Home at Chelsea on Wednesday, October 30. Members of the Corps are requested to carry cake and a whist prize, as whist will be played.

The annual inspection of the work of the Relief Corps will be held Tuesday, November 12.
