Symphony Hall on Sunday evening as follows:

The sacred music, including liturgical music and music by Lyov, Rachmaninoff, Tschaikowsky, and Archangelsky, revealed the many excellencies of this group of singers. There are many splendid voices in the organization: high sopranes, of characteristically Russian brilliance, almost shrill; deep, rich bases, good tenors and baritones. Indeed, if it were not for the good quality of the voices, the choir would make a less favorable impression, for Mr. Kibalchich asks them to do many an unmusical thing. He sometimes breaks up phrases into successions of notes, loosely strung together; he is fond of hummed passages, in which he suggests violins by imitating typically violinistic faults, scooping and slurring, and fading away from a decisive initial attack. But be it said, that these peculiarly unmusical effects of Mr. Kibalchich's are manifested almost solely in the music he labels, with a fine catholicity, "classic."

In the sacred music and folk music, the "classic."

In the sacred music and folk music, the viril singing of the choir was most enjoyable In "Wedding Bells," a folk tune, Mr. Kibachich, the arranger, made use of bell-imitation by the bases, an exotic and beautiful effect being attained when the clear high voices of the women sang against the boomis background of bells. "The Bridal Song" and "In the Garden" sung by women only, were charming; "The Volga Boat Song," in Kibalchich sarrangement, sung by the men, Brought available at the usual price.

Andover began to celebrate the Tercentenary of the Massachusetts Bay Colony on Wednesday night. At that time Mr. Roth instructor in history in Phillips Academy, gave the first of a series of lectures which will cover the three centuries by next May. Speaking in the South church, he explained "The English Background," His explanation was so clear and interesting that his audience was startled when the lecture ended.

Mr. Roth traced those events in English phistory which led to a new religious and political thinking, and finally to the Puritan migration. He spoke of the long wars which resulted in poverty and restlessness, the church criticisms of Wycliff, the social criticisms of Langland in "Peter the Ploughman," the "Black Death" which raised the cost of living without changing repressive laws, the "Peasants" Rebellion. "He sketched with such names as Thomas More and Erasem us, touched on the Reformation, and outlined the policy of the Tudor kings who favored the masses as against the nobility. Finally he showed the doors which swung to hardy salors with the development of a new commerce.

Work on Highway Construction Halted by Winter Weather-Superintendent of Public Works Submits November Report—Partial Solution of Roger's Brook Problem

Plans are underway for a New Year's party to be held at the meeting of the Ladies' auxiliary, 42, to Clan Johnston, 185, O. S. C., in Fraternal hall Thursday evening, January 2. The committee in charge of the entertainment program will meet Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Petrie of Chickering court. This committee was at first scheduled to be held this evening. life in the Arctic.

He found Eskimos which were never known to exist, and he spent several years of his life among them so as to learn their language and customs thoroughly. leading geographical societies of many countries.

Mr. Stefansson started his lecture by recounting the various beliefs and misblelefs that people used to have concerning the Arctic. He had been, he said, a professor of anthropology at Harvard University, and had conducted a course on the Arctic. When he did reach the Polar regions, however, he found that out of every ten statements he had made as a teacher, seven were incorrect.

"The North Pole is not the coldest place in the world," said Mr. Stefansson, "To be cold, a place must be far from the equator, far from the ocean, and high above sea level. The North Pole answers only one of these requirements; it is far from the equator. The North Pole, contrary to most beliefs, is only a mathematical point, four hundred miles out at sea." The temperature there never falls lower than fitty-five degrees below zero. In fact, it is never colder there than at my early home in Montana."

Often people are ignorant as to whether Greenland is entirely covered with snow and ice. The mountains are covered all the year around, but the lowlands, which make up about sixteen per cent of Greenland, are very warm in summer. Sixteen per cent may seem small, but it composes more territory than that of England, Ireland, and Scotland put together.

From the rim of the Arctic circle, there are forests which extend one hundred fifty miles northward. From this point on, prairies spread out almost indefinitely. These prairies, which cover islands and mainland, contain a great many species of flowers and plants. Among these are our common daisies, primoses, and forget-me-nots.

Eskimos live in snow houses—so peopel think. Of the fifteen thousand Eskimos in Greenland, however, fourteen thousand seven hundred had never before even heard of a snow house. Only about twenty per cent of all (Continued on page 5, column 5)

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, noted Arctic explorer and lecturer, entertained a large, interested audience last night in George Washington hall. Dr. Fuess, in introducing the speaker, remarked that a man of Mr. Stefansson's fame needed no introduction because almost everyone has read accounts of his explorations or some of his books, of which he has written about seven.

Mr. Stefansson was born in Arnes, Manitoba, Canada, in 1879. He graduated from the University of Jowa, has an A.B. degree from Harvard, and other degrees from several colleges. His career as an explorer began by a trip to Iceland in 1904 and another Icelandic expedition in 1905. Soon after this, he made three expeditions, following in rapid succession, which gave to the maps new lakes, rives ers, mountains, and islands, and which gave to the maps new lakes, in the succession, which gave to the maps new lakes, in the succession, which gave to the maps new lakes, in the found Eskimos which were never known to exist, and he spent several years of his life and customs theromethyl, All together, he has and content to the case of the ca

Men are constituted differently from women. From earliest times they have been lived to coping with hardships, defending the waker ones, and meeting problems sanely. Necessity made them that way from the time of Adam. Only during this last quarter century have women come forth in great numbers into realms where men have been. Why should it be expected that they can jump in and work, play, or think as men? It is a serious problem and especially so because their health is more involved than anything health is took of herself, and ask where she is getting with all this frenzied life. Our daughters must be trained to conserve their energy, to maintain a high bodily resistence that will protect against sickness. They must be taught the meaning of leisure and have an example sub the older, supposedly more sensible women.

Boys Were Walking to Bangor

Boys Were Walking to Bangor
Two young boys, James Whitney, 16, of 97
East Brookline street, Boston, and George Seever, 15, of 109 East Canton street, Boston, were picked up by Officer Harold Newcomb on Main street, just south of Chestnut street about two o'clock Sunday morning. They first told the officer that they lived down the street and were going home but when he assured them that he knew them to be strangers they said that they were walking to Bangor, Maine, to visit the aunt of one of the boys.
They were then taken to the police station for further questioning. Whitney said that he was employed by Black & Sheppard, Boston lumber dealers and Seever said that he was attending school in Boston. The police, feeling that the night was too cold for a walk to Bangor, gave the boys a night's lodging.
Chief Frank M. Smith notified the Boston police later in the day and the boys were turned over to Whitney's grandfather, Charles A. McIntyre of 97 East Brookline street, Boston.

Barbers Win Special Match

The Andover Barbers won a special bowling match from the Andover Press five at the Majestic alleys, on Monday night, by 61 pins. The winners rolled 1508 to 1447 for the losers. The winners folled 1508 to 1447 for the losers.
Tony Calvaene of the winners rolled the high single of 130 and also the high triple, 352. His teammate, Dave Strachan, proved himself to be a first-class bowler as well as a master barber by rolling 113 and 318. A special committee is still investigating the whereabouts of his barber shop, where it is claimed, the Messrs. Clifford and Adams wield the razor when not engaged in toppling plins.

REPORT OF PUBLIC WORKS

November 26th the steam roller was ded, greased, and stored for the winter, ery catch basin has been given a thorcleaning.

Cleaned, greased, and stored for the winter.
Every catch basin has been given a thorough cleaning.

Stone bounds have been set on Red Spring road in the way of the new section of road, and a number of stone bounds have also been set on Chestnut street, near Morton street. The trench that the Gas Company dug on the cast side of Wolcott avenue left a ragged edge and this has been repaired, the work being paid for by the Lawrence Gas & Electric company.

Ashes are now being placed on a section of Rattlesnake Hill road and Boston road to care for very poor stretches of road.

WATER DEPARTMENT

The length of pipe which was so cleaned extends from a point near higher have been cleaned on Lowell street and Shawsheen road. The length of pipe which was so cleaned extends from a point near higher have been cleaned on Lowell street and syear. We have found that in this town after a cast iron water pipe (commonly referred to as water main) has been in the ground for approximately thirty years, its cross sectional area is reduced due to incrustation. The removal of this incrustation materially reduces the friction head or resistance.

In order to readily and accurately determine the elevation of water in Haggett's pond, an iron pipe painted white with black figures has been erected.

GENTLEMIN:
In accordance with your request I have made an examination of the conditions along Roger's Brook with particular reference to that portion between Main Street and a point east of Whittier Court for the purpose of ascertaining what may be done to remedy conditions which exist periodically during heavy rainfalls.
The stream within this area follows an irregular course with several sharp bends. At places the channel has been confined to random widths by stone masonry walls which appear to have been built in some instances with little regard for the maximm flow of the stream. This is especially true of the section just below the Bartlet Street culvert.
Between Bartlet and Chestnut Streets and again just east of Whittier Court stretches of slack water indicate that the gradient of the stream is slight.

Rights of Pedestrians

A dangerous eituation exists on that section of High street that stretches from Harding street to Burnham road. The light fall of some last week necessitated the clearing of snow ear ormorbide traffic. The protection only path available for pedestrians, and it was left there, thus partially blocking the "sidewalk."

At the point referred to a yellow lim on the road surface marks off a walk on the west side of the street. This is about three feet in width. With the path clear of snow there is none too much room for persons on foot to pass without getting into the path of machines. With the path, for almost its entire length, covered with ridges of snow and ice, the pedestrian is forced into the section traversed by automobiles. This situation has produced a serious fatality hazard, for, since the reconstruction work on North Main street started. High street has been one of the main through traffic detours, and traffic continues to be heavy on the street, there being a good road surface which intersects highways leading to Lawrence. It was, of course, an oversight on someone's part that the snow was left on the walk. With attention given to the bigger work of keeping the road clear to traffic it was rather natural that the fall effect produced by that work was not reading as well as the automobile driver, those in charge of street construction and traffic additional work was not reading as well as the automobile driver, those in charge of street construction and traffic additional work was not reading to the street in the bigger work of keeping the road that the fall effect produced by that work was not reading to the province of the street in the produced province of the street in the province of the street in the variety of the conditions of the destruction of the the scenes of his childhood overcame him. He quit his job, packed his belongings and started west to the haunts of his younger days.

Finally in the valley at the foot of the mountain he had seen from afar, weary with travel, and hungry, he knocked at a cabin door. A buxom woman granted his request for a "meal" and while he was "downing" her doughnuts words led to words which revealed his host as a playmate he had not seen for a score of years.

Yes, romance rapidly wrapped the couple in its warm embrace and as man and wife they are rearing their children in their home beside a trout brook, and no happier person lives than this fathers.

* * *

and no happier person where thait this fathers.

"There's no Place Like Home" is the song that pulls at all heartstrings, and when we go farther and add "old" to "home" we get at the source of the success of the "Old Home Weeks" that have brought so many thousands of people back to New England during the years since this movement started.

Less emphasis on the idea has been made of late and fewer and fewer cities and towns have arranged programs in recent years. In 1930, however, 300-year-old Massachusetts is going to make a concerted effort to bring back to the state as many former residents as possible. To that end an appeal has been issued already for cities and towns to set apart, next summer, a week if possible, but one day at least to be devoted to the interests of returning residents.

Historic Andover, with its wealth of attractions, should be among the first to take such action as will ensure a notable home gathering here next.

The Norfolk Symphony Orchestra, of eighty players, is celebrating its tenth anniversary at this concert and preparations are being made for a gala event. An audience of several thotsand is espected, and State and City officials will attend the concert.
Curiously enough, Mr. Howe is the only American conductor the orchestra has played under. W. Henry Baker, an Englishman, Dr.
Fickenscher, a German, Bart Wirtz, a Hollander, and Sr. Delpino, an Italian, have been conductors of this orchestra. Sr. Delpino is the present conductor.

Mr. Howe was the first conductor of the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra, giving up the post when he came to Abbot Academy.

Arthur Bassett, known to Andover by his piano recitals at Abbot, has been invited by Mr. Howe to play the Beethoven Concerto in G major with the orchestra at this concert.

While in Norfolk, Mr. Howe will give an organ recital for the Society of Arts.

At 7.30 on Sunday night, the Christmas Vespers will be given in Davis hall. Miss Bailey will conduct the service and give the Christmas address. The beautiful and traditional Christmas hymns will be sung by the school and the Fidelio society will sing two old Christmas anthems. The public is welcome to the service.

The entire school will be included in the pageant—which will impress upon the children the joy of giving and the tenderness of the Christ child. Old carols and Christmas hymns will be sung by the choir and soloists, the music being under the direction of Gordon S. Brown.

Miss Shirley McKee, who has been studying church pageantry, will arrange the details assisted by Mrs. Charles W. Henry.

Real Winter Weather

With the ground covered with snow and reports of a temperature of fourteen degrees below in Shawsheen Village at midnight, no one doubted yesterday that winter was upon us in full force no matter what the calendar night say.

No other section vied with Shawsheen village in the record for low temperature though there were many places where it registered in the vicinity of zero. Fortunately there was no wind and the weather did not seem unduly severe.

With the rising sun, the mercury rose and esign which represents the number of consent unduly severe.

With the rising sun, the mercury rose also so that by mid-forenoon the thermometer on the north side of the Town house registered 26 degrees.

Exeter seems to be entitled to the next place among the New England preparatory schools. The Henry Blake coached team defeated all preparatory school rivals that it played, with the exception of Worcester Academy. Worcester caught the New Hampshire eleven on an off-day and ran rough shod over Exeter to win 33 to 0.

Andover had nine letter men when the 1929 campaign opened but only two were regulars in 1928—John Broaca of Lawrence, an end, and Capt. Frank Crane, from Everett center. Coach Ray Shepard had one of the greenest elevens in years. The other seven letter men with the exception of Walter Sugden Kimball, saw only a few minutes of action against Exeter in 1928.

The material was not as good as that available for some of the Greater Boston high school teams. Shepard and his assistants did yeoman work and had it not been for a fast whistle by the referee when O'Neil blocked and recovered an Exeter punt Andover might have tied Exeter.

have tied Exeter.

In the selection of these teams everything has been taken into consideration and those who have been honored are entitled to the places without any question. Capt. Frank Crane of Andover would ordinarily land a place on any eleven, but he was handicapped by a bad knee most of the fall, and while he was very steady and dependable he failed to show the brand of football that marked his playing in 1928.

Worcester and Exeter have been awarded four places each on the Globe's first team; Andover has been given three berths, and St. John's and Bridgton one each. On the second team, Dean, Andover and St. John's have been awarded two places, apiece; Vermont, Lawrence cardemy, Exeter, Hebron, St. Anselm's, Worcester and Kent's Hill, one apiece.

automobile tour to Canada next summer.
Few of you, my hearers, will disagree with me that that is the popular and prevalent creed and platform of our time. Yet it does not work. The car means mess and fuss. We wish we had bought the other ice-box. Getting comfort means struggle. Worse than that, what we call duty rises up and immediately it looks as if something was going to be badly damaged—either the comfortableness or the duty.

Life makes a rough attack on our creed of adily dimaged—either the comfortableness or the duty.

Life makes a rough attack on our creed of comfortableness, and is nimble with both its right hand and its left. Bad luck, illness, accident, calamity of nature, calamities in business, the calls of sympathy and pity and loyalty.—all these get in the way of comfortableness and demand a readjustment of program. But what readjustment? Now if we turn to Jesus and ask Him to help upon the answer, we discover at once that from the start He has not much sympathy with the creed of comfortableness. "Except your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you cannot be my disciples." The Scribes and Pharisees! Those were the very men who had achieved comfortableness. They had played safe—and won! But Jesus walls when, then He would be still—a Master without a disciple.

And another saying of His comes to my mind: "Except you take up your cross daily you cannot be my disciple." Why, that cross is the very thing which has destroyed comfortableness. And lo, Jesus says you've got to bear it. Not even grumble about it. Not even to say: "I suppose what can't be cured must be endured." But to lift it, to square one's shoulders and bear it upright, to carry it as it cross-bearing was the program and not comfortableness.

ROGER W. BABSON SAYS THAT FARMERS ARE IN A PREFERRED POSITION

Powerful Economic and Social Factors Now Working for Their Welfare-Agricultural Sections Least Damaged by Stock Market Crash-Good Farm Mortgages and Joint Stock Land Bank Bonds Should Improve

Babson Park, Massachusetts, December 13, 1929. The sun is always shining on business somewhere. Tulk always shining on business somewhere the part of the sun in for a spell of fair weather. It appears that the farmers were very little hurt by the stock market crash. Most of the damage was done in the large cities of the country and in the thickly settled industrial areas of the East. As we travel from East to West we cannot help that notice a more optimistic feeling as we go but notice a more optimistic feeling as we go but notice a more optimistic feeling as we go but notice a more optimistic feeling as we go but notice a more optimistic feeling as we go but notice a more optimistic feeling as we go at a first, but have sheen made a good recovery. Total farm income for 1929 will be at least as large as in 1928 and may be larger. Unquestionably, as between the various sections of our population, the farmers are now in a preferred position. They hold the trump cards for the following reasons:

Buring a period of industrial activity prices of manufactured goods are lower which says the edites and turn to the farmers are some struggling to get out from under the burden of debt which that wild farm land spread to the following reasons:

Second, in deelining industrial activity prices of manufactured goods are lower which enables farmers to buy at lower prices. That is, when business is declining competition is keyed up and industrial prices are forced lower. Agricultural price faxing encess of the country.

Life's Happiness Found

in "Doing Unto Others"

Leather Jackets

in "Doing Unto Others"

An old man who had met life serenely and tranquilly for more than eighty years was asked the secret of his cheerfulness. He answered in four words: "Thinking of other folks.

You can't travel very far in this world," he explained, "without finding that your path is all tangled up with other folks' paths, Some people think that if they can only travel their paths without getting hurt themselves, they're geing to be happy.

"But there's more to it than that.

"But there's more to it than that. When you've learned to dodge a collision, not because you're afraid of getting hurt yourself, but because you're afraid of hurting the other fellow, you're getting near to happiness. But when you arrive at a point where it's a genuine pleasure never to cause grief to another living soul you're still closer. In other words, when you get closer. In other words, when you get so far that it's a joy to you just to make others happy, you're about there yourself."—Great Thoughts (London).

Why the birds should be more numerous there than in other parts of the world is not easy to say. It has been explained that a current flows along the west coast of South America keeping that section cool and hence suited to the habitat of myrlads of small fish. By a fortunate coincidence the birds congregate here, and the bare islands in the vicinity form centers where the invaluable fertilizer is deposited in vast level tracts, from whence it may be dug out and trans-

Washington Current Comment

Census takers have been instructed to set down housewives as having "no occupation" but this should not be taken to mean that they have no business in the kitchen.

England and the United States are said to be on the verge of a controversy over the ownership of the Antarctic regions. Recall what the captain told Hamlet concerning the war in which Norway and Poland were about

Mrs. G. Flint set a new record in the Thim-ole club league by rolling three consecutive centuries 104, 100, 113 for high triple of 317 against the Thimbles who won four points. The Needles took three from the Spools with Mrs. E. Hall hitting 97 and 257. The Scissors lost three to the Pins. Mrs. M. Wink-A straw vote taken in Washington, to as-certain what noises are most objectionable, shows that s substantial per cent of the bur-ghers who voted are disturbed by sounds that are chargeable to garbage and ash collectors. Considering the irritating nature of the gar-bage man's calling, no one should curtail his ancient prerogative of banging the can as are outlet for his feelings.

Black Bass Outwitted

by Cornered Pickerel Winsted, Conn.—Sitting on his porch at Highland Lake, Irving Smith wit-nessed a battle between a large black bass the weight of which he estimated at ten pounds and a pickerel weigh ing about two pounds. The battle was fought in a shallow lagoon near shore after the bass had trailed the pickerel from deen water into the nock.
