Lake Ontario

Lake Ontario, while smallest of the chain of Great Lakes, is one of the most important historically and commercially. Its area is 7,260 square miles. It was discovered by Champlain and probably by Brule in 1615, the former at the east and the latter at the west end of the lake, it was also known as Lac des Iroquois and Lac St. Louis. Both Cartler and Champlain had heard of it from the Indians. Father Le Moyne ascended and later exploers landed on its shores and navigated its length. La Salle seems to have built the first boat on its waters.

Long Controversy Over

Death of Mind-Reader

Washington Irving Bishop died in a coma following a cataleptic trance soon after giving a strenuous demonstration of mind-reading at the Lambs' club, New York, May 13, 1889. An autopsy was performed by several doctors less than four hours after the death had been pronounced and without the consent of relatives. His relatives stated that on his person he could be the consent of relatives an autopsy or the use of electricity to revive him should he be thrown into a trance. Electricity was used. A second autopsy was ordered and later an inquest was held, due to the statement of his mother and others that the first autopsy had been performed while he was still alive. The jury's verdict, however, was that the death was due to coma and had occurred before the autopsy. Later the grand jury indicted the doctors for violation of the sanitary code. A book was published by his mother, giving his biography, and also her view of the case.

Ancient Roman Racketeer

Ancient Roman Racketeer
Dr. William Stearns Davis, the late historian, dug up from the records of ancient Rome a man whose ideas were dozens of centuries ahead of his time. He was Crassus, a wealthy real estate operator. His racket was this: He drilled a score or so of his slaves as fire fighters. Then, picking out a handsome villa, he would have one of his mob set fire to it. As the flames mounted Crassus would appear and make a small offer for what looked like a total loss. At the owner's word "Sold," Crassus' visiting firemen would rush out of the shrubbery and save the property.—New York Herald Tribune.

Mrs. Mary Tenney Healy, president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, has announced that the Exercise Maries school which has been an annual event under the auspices of the League since 1922, will be held January 27, 28, 29, 1931 at Agassiz House, Radcliffe college. These schools have been conducted with the co-operation of Radcliffe college with the exception of those in 1929 and 1930 when they were on "sabbatical leave" owing to crowded conditions at the college. The next school will resume its former relations with Radcliffe and continue its reliance upon the help afforded by members of the faculty of Harvard university.

The purpose of the school is to present a carefully selected program devoted to discussion of the most pressing problems engaging the attention of the world. Its speakers

Reports from Miss Mabel Worden, executive secretary of the Essex County Health association are very satisfactory so far concerning the sale of the Christmas seals but there are still many people in the various towns of the county who have failed to make the proper refund.

The neat little "Health to All 1930" will still be good in 1931. In fact thousands of people throughout the land use them on envelopes for many months, and each one as brightly presents its message of hygiene and good cheer. Although labeled with their year the Christmas seals are in fact timeless as the work which they help to do is priceless. With the proceeds of the sale the work of the Essex County Health association is supported which includes the summer health camp, the visiting nurse, and the health education services.

A mid the bustle of Christmas it is very easy for anyone to forget to pay for the packet of seals which he received but each packet is important to the work and those who have received them should either return them or pay for them.

The New Year

A year of opportunity lies ahead. What its accomplishments are to be depends largely upon ourselves. It is a sobered America that faces 1931, but if the lessons of the past have been learned, what is to come can be met with courage and confidence.

What has been written and said in an effort to create an atmosphere of optimism appears to be having effect. There has been altogether too much pessimism, but a reaction has set in. More and more business men are realizing the futility of grumbling over unsatisfactory economic conditions and are taking energetic steps to combat them.

On all sides there are encouraging indications of progress toward business rehabilitation. Bank clearings, while more than 14 per cent below the level of a year ago, continue to improve relatively. Contract awards for heavy construction and engineering work are much in excess of a year ago. Increased buying of copper at better prices is considered a favorable indication. Inventories are low in various lines of manufactures, notably textiles, which can only mean increased activity soon. While the steel output is reduced temporarily the industry is making noteworthy provissions for increased production later.

The National Industrial Conference board reports that leading authorities consulted look for an improvement in business activity early in the new year. And Joseph R. Nutt, nationally known financier, and chairman of the board of the Union Trust company of Cleveland, is firm in his belief that the tide is soon to turn. In a syndicated article, which gives a particularly keen survey of the situation he says:

There are several encouraging factors in the commit has been for many years so important a factor in our community life.

A glance at the Andover Grange program for 1931 impresses one with the vigor and versatility of the organization that has been for many years so important a factor in our community life.

New Year's Resolutions for Motor sts While the Governor's committee on street and highway safety has no definite data on how many New Year's resolutions will be made and broken this year, and therefore cannot predict with any accuracy just what their effect on the life of 1931 will be, it nevertheless has several very definite resolutions of its own on which it can make some lequally definite predictions provided every months.

The resolutions total six in number, and out of years of experience the committee feels free to predict that if they are adopted and obeyed to the letter Massachusetts will have a safety record second to none and a year of such freedom from automobile fatalities that no amount of police regulation to could ever hope to produce.

Their adoption and observance would automatically eliminate practically every cause of accident with which the committee in has come in contact, and while an automobile Utopia may be impossible in this day and as some in contact, and while an automobile to up the proposed proposed in the first and third Tuesday of each month.

Le Prince was a huge man. He stood six feet four inches and was broad in proportion. He came to this country as a young man, and at Leeds, in 1888, he photographed pictures with a one-lens camera and also made a projector. His invention attracted considerable attention, though he was never able to exploit it commercially, for he came to an untimely and mysterious end. Puppy Spoiled Scheme
An actress on tour became tired of paying railway fares for her small dog, so she bought a basket with ventillation holes.
On the first occasion when she attempted to use it, the ticket collector at the station barrier asked what was in the basket.
"Hats," replied the actress, and went on to the platform.

"Hats," replied the actress, and went on to the platform.

Before she had proceeded many yards, she was recalled by the grinning ticket collector, who, pointing to a stump of fuzzy tall which wagged joyously from one of the ventilation holes, remarked: "You'll have to pay for that one with the feathers."

A woman applying to go to the poor farm stated that she had five children. "But they don't help me any; they all grew up and married off."

"I suppose that made you pretty ionesome at home," remarked the judge kindly.

"Oh, no," said the woman, "Every once in a while one of them gets a divorce and wanders back."

"Thalers" and "Dollars"

"Thalers" and "Dollars"

A rich silver mine was discovered in Joachimsthal, Bohemia, in 1516, and in commemoration a large number of silver coins were struck, having the effigy of St. Joachim. These were called joachimsthalers or thalers, a name that was modified to "dollar" and was applied to other silver coins of a similar size. The Spanish dollar was current in America before the Revolution and it was natural that this name should be given to the coin of the new republic. Various explanations of the dollar sign have been suggested, but the most plausible one is concerned with the design of the old Spanish dollar. This bore on one side a representation of two pillars, side a representation of two pillars, symbolic of the Pillars of Hercules. Our dollar sign shows these pillars with the ribbon or scroll interlaced.

Average Human Hair
According to one authority, the average head has about 1,000 hairs to the square inch. As the adult scalp area is from 50 to 140 square inches, this gives a figure of 95,000 to 140,000 hairs on a head. The number varies according to texture and other factors, blond hair averaging this higher number, while red hair averages about 90,000. Women's hair averages higher than men's. The annual growth is estimated at 5½ to 6½ inches and the weight of hair grown annually varies from .000 ounce per annually varies from .009 ounce per square inch on the thinnest-haired scalp to .05 ounce per square inch on

Mother Nature Provides

Protection for Insects

Many animals, birds, fish and insects are shaped and colored by nature in such a way as to protect them from their enemies. This marvelous provision is seen at its best in some new groups of stick insects and leaf insects which recently arrived at the zoo. The stick insects have come from the East Indies, and they are of a light greenish-brownish color, measuring from 2 inches to 4 or 6 inches in length. They are very thin, indeed, and they are so much like tiny twigs or sticks that it is almost impossible to distinguish them from their surroundings. They imitate the twigs exactly, folding their slender legs close to their bodies, and hanging from the smaller branches just like leafless stalks. Leaf insects are of a bright green that, and are shaped exactly like leaves, their wings being folded over one another and marked with veins. Even their six legs are shaped like smaller leaves; and as they hunt among the foliage of trees for the smaller insects they feed upon, they are quite safe from the birds, which think they are merely leaves.—London Answers. Ladies First

There is at least one mother remaining in Boston who believes that by sparing the rod we are spoiling the child. But she applies it sparingly when at all. Recently her little son of six years and her daughter of four both got into mischief which she felt merited the laying on of hands or at least a thin strap in one of her hands. As the boy was the older, she felt he was the most to blame, so she would punish him first. It was at this point that the good breeding which the mother had endeavored to inculcate made itself manifest. So when sonny was informed of the order in which the punishments were to be inflicted he said, with much earnestness: Protection for Insects

Oaks Retain Leaves Long
Oak trees are usually the last to shed their leaves in the fail, and frequently they stay on all winter. According to the United States forest service this is due to the fact that their growth has not entirely ceased when frost arrives. A sudden drop in temperature stops their growth when the fibro-vascular bundles or woody fibers connecting the leaves with the twice are still in a vegetable condition. The connecting fibers which have been suddenly killed by frost become hard and tough and the leaves sometimes cling to the twigs until the next spring, when they are shed through wind and rain. Perfection in mixing plaster was reached in a very remote period, as is well indicated by examination of the earliest samples still standing in hard, durable condition. The scientific composition of such examples compares even favorably with modern plasters. The pyramids of Egypt contain plastering done at least 4,000 years ago, still hard and serviceable. It is interesting to note from recent discoveries that the prinleast 4,000 years ago, still hard and serviceable. It is interesting to note from recent discoveries that the principal tools of the ancients were substantially identical in design, shape and purpose with modern tools. Also that the plaster so much used by the Egyptians was made of calcined gypsum, like the plaster of paris of today. Reeds were used for lath.

Much Traffic Borne on Bosom of Mother Volga

Bosom of Mother Volga What a shame such a beautiful river as the Volga has to be descerated to commercialism, laments a writer in the Los Angeles Times. It is as jarring to one's sensibility as seeing a fine race horse drudging behind an express wagon when an ordinary stud would grow fat under such a light task. Yet this charming river carries a large traffic, huge quantities of timber, and is one of the chief means of transportation in eastern Russia. The river is held in great affection by the Russians and they call it "Mother Volga." The huge rafts used to float lumber down to call it "Mother Volga." The huge rafts used to float lumber down to the Caspian sea have on them two well-built houses in which the people on board live. The men do the steering while the women look after the cooking. The Volga boatmen have been immortalized in song.

Jewish Good-Luck Boxes

Among orthodox Jews it is a com-mon custom to have a small box in the llving room in which small sums of money may be placed. While the money in these boxes is often used money in these boxes is often used for private purposes, the contents are more frequently, particularly by the orthodox Jews, devoted to the needs of the poor Jews or for the Jewish cause in Palestine, or for the acquisition of land in Palestine by the Zionist organization. There are a great many boxes put out by the Zionist organization for this purpose. These are blue boxes, decorated with the Shield of David, Visitors to the home frequently drop a small contribution in the ly drop a small contribution in the box before leaving, and it is reported that the name "good-luck boxes" originated in the custom of dropping into the box gains from cards or other recreations.

Swans Royal Birds

Swans Royal Birds
There was a time during the Middle ages when swans formed part of the regalia of European courts and only kings were allowed to keep them, the swan being a royal bird. In England
there were a number of severe laws designed to protect these birds. In the reign of Henry VIII, the theft of a swan's egg was punished by a year's imprisonment. No subjects were permitted to own swans except by special mitted to own swans except by specia permission of the king. I mose permission that do dt o cut on the bills of the birds their special "swan-mark." The royal swans on the Thames river are marked and are counted each year.

At midnight a loud explosion was heard aloft, the whole ship was shaken, then the lights vanished for shaken, then the lights vanished for

Kitten May Conquer Cobra

A snake is, indeed, a defenseless animal. I had a three-quarter-grown kitten which specialized in the killing of cobras, and I have several times seen her trotting across the drawing-room carpet, while I was at tea, trail-ing over her shoulder four feet or so ing over her shoulder four feet or so of very dead cobra. She always gripped them at the back of the neck, just behind the head. As the bungalow has no plinth, and the compound was full of snakes, she got plenty of practice.—Sir John Campbell, in Atlantic Monthly.

Man's Better Half

Man's Better Half
The correct expression as used in the Bible to describe a man's wife is helpmeet. In Genesis 2:18 is this:
"And the Lord God said, It is not good that the man shall be alone; I will make him a help meet for him." Meet is here used to mean fit or suitable—a helper suitable for him. The words were combined as helpmeet to mean a wife, and changed by popular misuse to helpmate, and both words now are recognized as proper. recognized as proper,

Tricky Criminals Keep Law Officers "on Edge"

Tricky Criminals Keep

Law Officers "on Edge"

Growing a beard, dyeing the hair, and staining the face and hands with a mixture of butternut oil, nuttail, and permanganate of potash, are old-time dodges that have often been very useful to the hunted man. Stained with the above mixture, a fair-skinned man becomes as swarthy as a Spaniard or Italian; it once made a burglar "on the run" so confident that he actually had the audaeity to sell lee cream within a stone's throw of Scotland Yard. Perhaps the most recent dodge for criminals who are anxious to give a wide berth to the police is going on the sick list. Hospital authorities in London and the provinces are much perturbed by this new and deplorable form of trickery. At one London hospital the suspicions of the doctors were aroused by the arrival in the course of one week of several individuals who, according to their own story, were in terrible pain, but whose all-ments the medical men were quite unable to diagnose. The surprising speed with which these mysterious "patients" recovered at the end of a few days convinced the doctors that there was "something up." Inquiries were made, and it was learned that at least two of them were badly "wanted" in connection with a motor car theft.—London Times.

Elastic Clause

Clause 18, Section 8, of Article I of the Constitution is called the Elastic clause. It reads as follows: "The congress shall have the power... To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof." This clause does not give any new power, but it does give congress a wide latitude in choosing means and passing laws for carrying out the powers granted elsewhere.

Many people pay little attention to the furnace unless the house gets too hot or too cold, but it should be attended to at regular intervals, say engineers of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Don't shake down a fire more than twice a day; usually twice is sufficient, in the morning and afternoon late. Unless the fire has been burning hard continuously and coal has been fed frequently, take care to not shake it too much. Don't shake live coals through the grate. In mild weather let some ashes accumulate on the grate. Clean out ashes under the grate immediately after shaking. Ashes that accumulate in the ash pit prevent air circulation, hinder combustion, and damage the grates. Don't shake down a fire until fresh coal has been kindled. In the morning, it is well to open the smoke-pipe draft damper and the ash-pit draft damper, throw on a little fresh coal, and let it catch well. When it is glowing, shake the grate back and forth with a short quick movement. Don't turn the grates completely over unless it is necessary to remove large clinkers.

On Monday, December 29, thirty-six candidates in classes of poultry husbandry: Al Saugus, Carl L. Evans, Sandy and dairy laboratory practice received diplomas representing not only a completion of the work required in short unit courses, but more than that: progress and a pledge of future development.

Director Fred A. Smith greeted the graduating members and their friends with a synopsis of the origin and development of short unit classes in this school. This year's exercises introduced a new experiment: that of having a representative from each class relate the advantages his course profited him.

Mr. Conrad Tronerud of Topsfield, a candidate in poultry husbandry, stressed that the importance of these short unit courses lies in the contacts they bring, resulting in better communities.

Mr. R. S. speck of Rockport, graduating in the dairy unit class, emphasized that the course taught what one ought to know about his product. When one expects to win on the merits of his article he must know the article himself.
