TWO LENTEN SONG SERVICES

Choirs of Christ Church and Phillips Academy Combine in Singing Stainer's "Crucifixion"—One Hundred Eighty Voices Take Part in Free Church Festival

The performance of Stainer's "Crucifixion" last Sunday afternoon in the Stone Chapel was notable for three things. It was the first time that a boy choir had ever sung in the chapel and it was the first occasion a local Phillips academy and the music department of Phillips academy had combined. Lastly—and with regret—it was the final musical event of any magnitude in the old chapel where so many noted musicians and musical organizations have performed in the past quarter of a century.

Stainer's Lenten cantata is one of the most popular with choirs and choral societies. The presentation by the chorus of 100 voices was heard by a large and appreciative—though necessarily undemonstrative—audience. The choruses were sung with due regard to attack and tone, although the tempo at times gave the impression of a triumphal march rather than a "Processional to Calvary". There were instances where little attention was given to color which after all marks a well trained chorus. "The Agony" the opening number and "The Appeal to the Crucified" showed the chorus at its best. In general, however, the choral work gave unbounded pleasure to the audience and there is a possibility it may become an annual event.

The boys of Christ church choir and the women of the soprano and alto sections merit unstinted praise. It is truly surprising that boys of such tender years master works like Spohr's "Last Judgment" and the "Crucifixion". Their training was in evidence throughout the performance and they were letter and tone perfect. The academy choir would have profited had the tenor and bass sections of Christ church choir assisted, although there is no intention here to minimize the splendid work of the students.

Harry Wilkinson, tenor and C. Houghton Richardson, bass, Portsmouth, N. H., were the soloists. Mr. Richardson sang with dramatic effect but unfortunately sacrificed articulation to a marked degree. Mr. Wilkinson's artistry was in evidence even though his voice lacks the flexibility it once possessed. Sumner Davis of the tenor section of Christ church choir interpreted the minor solos with

The Cross Coal company has been awarded the contract for 100 tons of New River soft coal at $5.80 for use at the pumping station at Haggert's pond. The award was made at a special meeting of the Board of Public Works. The board is purchasing 100 tons this year instead of the customary 500. It is expected that this amount will carry through the year as the new electric pump will be installed shortly.

Six Departments of American Woolen Company to Be Transferred—Anticipate Great Saving in Expense

At the annual meeting of American Woolen company, it was announced that on or about May 1 the entire executive offices would be removed from Boston to the company's own building, 225 Fourth avenue, New York. Wool-buying, waste, chemical, electrical, engineering and traffic departments will be transferred to Shawsheen village. General counsel, who will hereafter serve as clerk, as well, will remain in Boston, as the company is not to alter status as a Massachusetts corporation.

The new management estimates that tremendous savings in personnel and expense can be accomplished by removal to the center where all merchandising activities are concentrated. Through the consolidation of the operations of the Boston and New York offices it will be possible to eliminate considerable duplication of work. The entire office space at 1 Federal street, Boston, is to be put on the market for sub-letting and, as well, will remain in Boston, as the company is not to alter status as a Massachusetts corporation.

Perley Stevens at Crystal Ballroom This Evening

Perley Stevens and his famous radio broadcasting and phonograph recording orchestra of Boston are coming back to the beautiful Crystal ballroom in Shawheen Village this evening. This will be the fourth engagement of this popular orchestra at Crystal this season. No orchestra in Crystal history has won more instant favor than Mr. Stevens and his clever musicians did on the occasion of their debut more than a year ago. There has been a very insistent demand on the part of Crystal patrons for a return engagement since the sensational hit registered by the Stevens musicians two weeks ago. Perley Stevens is one of the pioneer radio entertainers in New England as well as one of the most important factors in popularizing night club dancing in Greater Boston.

Roland Russell and his Rollicking Ramblers will occupy the orchestral stage for the regular week-end dancing party tomorrow evening. This great orchestra, easily the most popular in the Merrimack Valley district, is enjoying its most successful season this year. In fact, the Ramblers were the featured artists on the three occasions this year when Crystal attendance records were shattered. Next week, in observance of Holy Week, Crystal ballroom will be closed until Easter Saturday evening, when Roland Russell and his Ramblers will again present the musical program. It is expected that another banner throng of dance enthusiasts will be on hand for this first post-Lenten dancing party.

Simmer new peas, never boil them. Add salt when the cooking is half done. Salt lightly. Do not cover during cooking, and do not cook longer than necessary for tenderness. Cook spinach for 10 or 15 minutes only, in just the water that clings to the leaves after washing it through several waters. When it begins to get tender, chop it very fine and season with plenty of butter, or cream if you have it, and salt and pepper.

Contrast in flavor is important in a meal. Do not repeat the same flavor too often. For instance, although tomatoes once in a meal are heartily recommended, it is a mistake to serve a meal beginning with tomato soup, followed by tomato sauce on the meat, or stewed tomatoes, and fresh sliced tomato salad.

Acquaint yourself with the various sizes of canned and package goods, to know how many servings each will give. Get into the habit of looking for the weight on a box of cereal of the number of fluid ounces in bottled goods. Compare brands with each other to see which gives the best value.

The Market Basket

by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Woman's Division of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment.

Family Food Guide

Every meal—Milk for children, bread for all.

Every day—Cereal in porridge or puddings. Potatoes. Tomatoes (or oranges) for children. A green or yellow vegetable. A fruit or additional vegetable. Milk for all.

Two to four times a week—Tomatoes for all. Dried beans and peas or peanuts. Eggs (especially for children). Lean meat, fish or poultry, or cheese.

A nation-wide appeal for home gardens to provide food while money for work is scarce is being made by Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, chairman of the Woman's Division of the President's emergency committee for employment, who asks that the agencies which direct the committee cooperate again at this time. Doctor Gilbreth says we are now engaged in a war on human suffering within our own borders in which all persons can help.

Experts of the United States Department of Agriculture, who are cooperating with the committee in this movement, estimate that seed and fertilizer for a garden to supply vegetables to a family of from five to eight persons will cost no more than $8.00. Such a garden would yield some surplus for storage. The department emphasizes that the garden should have a good vegetable garden this year and when reasonably convenient those living in towns and cities should make them when it is necessary to supplement the income of the family.

The purpose of the home garden is twofold, Doctor Gilbreth points out; it will offer work to the unemployed in many instances; and will also be a source of inexpensive food supply especially for those persons whose winter diets have been limited because of lowered incomes. To use more vegetables in the diet is to follow the recommendation by the Bureau of Home Economics that the diet include more vegetables, wherever possible, than the quantity outlined in its low cost food guide developed for the committee.

According to the bureau, vegetables, particularly the green leafy ones, are especially important for iron, and, with the exception of milk, furnish more calcium than any other class of foods. They are also valuable for their vitamin content and bulk. Home-grown vegetables seem to taste better than others, perhaps because the family makes special effort to produce them. The longer the planting season is extended, the better balanced the diets are likely to be, the bureau says.

In order to assist the unemployed in raising vegetables, the committee suggests that vacant city lots be utilized, and that civic organizations make every effort to help in financing the work. It follows this up with a plan for instruction in the care of such gardens.

The Department of Agriculture experts suggest the following group of vegetables for the home garden which can be planted in the following order: peas, potatoes, onion sets, beets, spinach, radishes, lettuce, cabbage, turnips, broccoli, carrots, string beans, tomatoes, peppers, and lima beans. They say, however, not to plant peas and potatoes if space is limited. The department distributes a bulletin, "The City Home Garden," which goes into the problems of the small vegetable garden in much detail and should be of great help to those who are attempting one for the first time.

In the South, turnip greens, and collards, which have wintered in the fields, are already available, the department points out. Northern gardeners can get early crops of greens by planting spinach, beets, and carrots as soon as the ground can be worked in the spring. The thinning of carrots can be served as creamed baby carrots.

A family of five including father, mother, and three children should buy every week:

Bread	12-16 pounds
Flour	1-2 pounds
Cereal	4-6 pounds
Whole fresh milk	23-28 quarts
Canned unsweetened milk	23-28 tall cans
Potatoes	15-20 pounds
Dried beans, peas, peanut butter	1-2 pounds
Tomatoes, fresh or canned, or citrus fruit	6 pounds
Other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color), and inexpensive fruits	15-18 pounds
Fats, such as bacon, butter, lard, margarine, salt pork, etc.	2-12 pounds
Sugar and molasses	3 pounds
Lean meat, fish, cheese, eggs (8 eggs approximate 1 pound), 5-7 quarts	8 pounds
Eggs (for children)	1 pound
Coffee	1 pound
Tea	1-4 pound

Cover and simmer the meat until almost tender then add the vegetables and cook until they are soft. Season with salt and sprinkle the top with the parsley after it is placed in the serving dish.

Andover Townsman:

I submit this article with the hope that it will interest the citizens of Andover regarding the Lighting and Domestic rate of Electricity.

Since Thomas Edison made it practical to use electric light there has arose throughout the world large powerful power Companies until today throughout the land there are but few householders who do not pay to these large power companies a monthly toll for light and power.

No Nation under the sun demands more service and pays more cheerful than the American people. Yet the average American dislikes an injustice and as soon as they realize that something has been put over on them are pretty quick to resent it. History proves the truth of this statement. Let us now consider our Domestic and Lighting rates—Andover rate is 10 cents per Kilowatt hour. Compare the rate with the rate recently given to the Town of Andover for power to drive an Electric pump at Haggatt's Pond Pumping station. The power rate given was 11-4 cents per Kilowatt hour.

Since 1920 power rates have been reduced the average power rate is somewhere around 2 cents. Lighting and Domestic rates still remain at the same high level. By this contrast we can see the large difference there is between power rates and Domestic and Lighting rates. This does not seem right when we consider that the Domestic Lighting consumer uses only one fifth of the current consumed but foots the bill to the tune of two thirds of the total revenue derived from Electricity.

There is such a thing as killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Let us compare our Domestic Lighting rate with other towns and cities. Cleveland Ohio pays 5 cents, Cambridge pays 5 cents, Worcester 5 cents, Pasadena 4-1/2 cents, Ontario 1-6 cents, Ottawa one cent. Many towns and cities manufacture their own electricity and sell power and light to the citizens. Duncan, Oklahoma claims they enjoy the lowest rates of electricity, because the plant is powered by Diesel Engines. Ipswich how carries the full load since the town installed another larger Diesel.

Now the question is What can Andover do regarding her Domestic and Lighting rates. There are just two courses to follow. The first and best is to follow the example of other progressive towns who now manufacture their own electricity and provide the householder with a cheap rate.

The other course is to bring about an investigation to lower the present high rate. This means calling to your aid your faithful servants, the Public Utility Department. An investigation along these lines could be started by our Town official getting in touch with our Representatives and bringing into cooperation the surrounding Towns and Cities receiving power from the same power Company. If this second course was adopted there is no doubt that the Domestic and Lighting rate could be reduced to the same rate as some of the towns I have mentioned.

At our Brisbane in an article Monday said "The Diesel Engine threatens power companies and that he wished to prophesy that improved engines will make human beings independent of power companies."

This gifted writer states facts.

A Town in Texas decided to manufacture and sell Electricity. The profits from the venture were so large that for the first time in the history of the town there was no taxes. The good book says "Go thou and do likewise."

I thank you

Senator Fess of Ohio said at a dinner in Doylestown:

"European farmers, with their fields about as big as a pocket handkerchief, can hardly credit the immense size of our American farms, with their motor plows that can plow eight furrows at a time, and so forth."

"Describe these things to a European farmer and he'll think they're about as true as the anecdote."

"It is an anecdote about some men in a New York hotel who were bragging about home. Finally one of these braggers said: 'My home, gents, is in the West. We got some quite sizeable farms out there. First-stance, Bart Smith, a friend of mine, always starts out with his men in the Spring and they plow a straight furrow till fall. Then they harvest back.'"

"What do I do when I go to the Zoo?" asked Mike.

"You be careful about the Zoo," advised Pat. "You'll see some fine animals. If you follow the words 'To the Lions' or 'To the elephants' but take no notice of the one 'To the exit' for, Mike, it's a fraud, and it's outside I found myself when I went to look at it."—Christian Advocate.

"Then," said Bobby artfully, "if a man marries twice, there isn't anything left of him, is there?"

First U. S. Experimental Forest Established in White Mountains

ington, the highest peak in New England, is announced by R. Y. Stuart, Chief Forester of the United States Department of Agriculture. This forest tract is within the White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire and is the first experimental forest to be officially established under the new regulation, by which the Forest Service is to designate primitive, natural and experimental areas representative of the various forest regions of the United States.

The Gale River Experimental Forest includes approximately 130 acres. The area lies between two State automobile highways, making the tract readily accessible for research. Although it is only now being formally set aside for research work, investigations have been under way on this Experimental Forest since July, 1927. The North-eastern Forest Experiment Station of the United States Forest Service, with headquarters at Amherst, Mass., plans to develop this area very rapidly within the next few years, placing within it much of its permanent sample plot work.

The experimental forest is located in the spruce-hardwood belt, and is conveniently located for study of the pulpwood forest problems of New England.

It was the first time Mr. and Mrs. Newly-rich had stayed at such a good hotel.

His wife tried her best to coach her husband in all that he should do, and to keep these directions fresh in his memory she had bought him a book on etiquette.

The dinner coffee was put on the table, and he was about to help himself to a piece of sugar when she stopped him.

"Don't use your fingers," she whispered. "What do you suppose the tongs are for?" He reached out for the tongs.

"All right," he replied, "how was I to know that the darn stuff was hot?"

LONDON ANSWERS.

On "The Fall River Line"

Every city and town in Massachusetts has multiplied its expenditures from two to five times the last twenty years. These increases in spending far outstrip all gains in population and much more than counterbalance the reduced buying power of the dollar. All our municipalities are travelling in the same direction. All are caught in the same current. The differences among them centre in the fact that some are spending more wisely than others, that some manage their finances better than others, and that they are travelling at varying rates of speed.

Take the town of Andover. We printed on this page on Friday a welcome letter from the town treasurer. He pointed to Andover as an "honorable exception" to the spendthrift charge we have made against many of our municipalities. We congratulate the town on its cutting in half of its funded debt. We hail with satisfaction the information that its tax rate has not varied more than 10 per cent in ten years. For further illustration of this creditable performance we cite additional facts from our own sources. Our figures are slightly incomplete, but it seems that Andover for a quarter of a century has shown an excess of revenue year by year over town expenditures. Moreover the ratio of the net debt of the town to its total valuation in 1910 was 3.55 per cent, by 1922 this rate had been reduced to 2.38 per cent, and on January 1, 1930, it stood at 2.33 per cent.

But the shield has another side. Between 1910 and 1928 the total payments of the town, not counting such items as temporary loans, were multiplied more than threefold, from $190,000 to $638,000. The corresponding figures for general maintenance of all the town departments went up from $120,000 to $416,000, for police and fire protection from $15,000 to $68,000 for schools from $42,000 to $146,000, while the municipal debt increased from $114,000 to $390,000. Meanwhile population gains have been only from 7,300 in 1910 to 8,268 in 1920, to 10,291 in 1925 and to 9,969 in 1930. In these respects Andover offers no exception to the general sweep.

The tabulation below illustrates the management differences to which we refer. It shows the ratio of the total net debt of each municipality named to its total valuation. A city which has a ratio of 5 per cent, for instance, would have a net debt of $5 for every $100 of the value of its taxable property.

Valuation of	1921	1929
Boston	4.98	5.52
Fall River	3.32	5.52
Haverhill	1.79	2.01
North Adams	4.01	2.74
Salem	5.15	3.21
Andover	2.38	2.33
Brookline	0.91	1.30
Frammingham	1.68	5.35
Amherst	4.12	1.82

Bear in mind that in municipal finance what costs a dollar when paid for in cash will cost $1.12 as a 5-year loan, $1.22 if paid in ten years, $1.32 in fifteen years, $1.42 in twenty years, $1.52 in 25 years, and $1.62 in 30 years. This makes all the more suggestive such facts as are noted in the tabulation subjoined. It shows the portion of every dollar of revenue which is used to pay interest and take care of other debt requirements of the cities and towns in the list. These are selected only as interesting examples of the tendency on the one hand to spend with abandon and on the other hand to spend with care. Fall River figures are easy to interpret. Haverhill has a fine record. Frammingham has a huge debt. A large outlay for sewerage raised the Amherst percentage. And so on.

Boston	21.1	19.1
Fall River	19.9	25.8
Haverhill	16.2	13.1
North Adams	11.3	16.5
Salem	19.5	16.1
Andover	13.8	15.9
Brookline	14.5	15.4
Frammingham	17.3	21.3
Amherst	9.8	12.3

In the multitude of figures at hand there may be cited a few contrasts further to illustrate the point in view. To the charge of high and mighty spending every community in the state must plead guilty. As we scan the record we wonder what the end is to be. One elaborate tabulation shows on the one hand the revenues of our cities for current charges and on the other the current charges against revenues. The better managed cities, of course other matters being equal, are those which have an excess of revenues over expenditures.

Here is Chelsea with a deficiency in 1924 of $96,000, in 1925 of $29,000, in 1928 of $17,700, while in 1927 the excess was only $996. Here is Revere with a deficiency in 1928 of $605,000. Haverhill in 1920 had a deficiency of $141,000. The city looked after the matter. Year by year from 1924 to 1928 it has shown balances of income over outgo of $38,000, $106,000, $164,000, $128,000, and $100,000 respectively. Fall River back in 1925 had an adverse showing of $1,703,000. Brookline on the other hand in five years has run its excess of revenues from $229,000 to $559,000. We must go back to 1918 to find Amherst in arrears, the amount being $3709. These examples might be indefinitely multiplied.

The one constructive suggestion that has been offered thus far in the present debate over the mounting expenditures of our municipalities is really a revival of one that has been suggested several times before. It was debated and rejected in the constitutional convention of 1919. It is that there should be established some kind of commission to do the sort of work that is now done most efficiently by Mr. Waddell of the bureau of accounts in the department of taxation and to do more besides in the way of supervising, advising, and rendering all manner of assistance to local communities. With this board there might be included a central purchasing agency as a method of saving money in the buying of materials required in nearly all our municipalities. The objection is that of centralized administration and loss of local autonomy which always comes to mind when such proposals are made. Such an agency ought not to be imposed on any community.

It should render help at the option of the community, and only on request. If it made good there probably would be plenty of requests for its services.

THE BOSTON HERALD, MARCH 21

Andover's Affairs

The following letter, written by Town Treasurer Thaxter Eaton, is reprinted from the Boston Herald of March 24, being the second written by him in answer to the editorial of March 20:

To the Editor of The Herald: To make the picture of the other side of the shield of Andover's finances, as presented in your editorial of last Friday, entirely fair, I think some reference should have been made to the large increase in taxable valuation between 1910 and 1928. An increase of 230 per cent in expenditures looks rather startling as compared with a gain of only 41 per cent in population, but does not seem out of proportion when you realize that the assessed valuation of real and personal property increased 195 per cent during this period. This figure makes due allowance for the value of stocks and bonds which, of course, was not included in 1928 but was in 1910. Considering the greatly increased cost of living and the variety of services now expected—and rightly so—of a municipality, the comparative expenditures quoted do not, I believe, reflect unfavorably upon Andover's conduct of its affairs.

refreshing intelligence. One of the most pleasing numbers was the quartet "God So Loved the World" sung by the soloists and Mrs. Alfred Harris, soprano and Miss Wilhelmina Valentine, contralto of Christ church choir.

The chorus was directed by Frederic H. Young who is in charge this year of the music department of Phillips academy. Gordon S. Brown, organist and choirmaster at Christ church was at the organ and Leonard Parker was pianist. Mr. Brown's ability as an accompanist is too well known to require extended comment. His two contributions, Elgar's sonata at the offertory and Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D minor as a postlude were played with Mr. Brown's accustomed musicianship. The prelude, a fantasia of Demarest for organ and piano was played in a pleasing manner by director Young and Mr. Robert Covell, a student at the academy.

South Church C. E. to Present "The Dawning"

On Palm Sunday, March 29, the South church society of Christian Endeavor will present the pageant "The Dawning" by Lyman K. Bayard in the auditorium at five o'clock in the afternoon.

The society is very fortunate to have the assistance of such fine artists as Miss Marion Abbott, pianist; Mrs. Percy Holt and Mrs. Kenneth Fisk, music coaches; John A. Arnold, organist; Tyler Carleton, lighting; John Holmeland to assist the young men; and Mrs. G. Edgar Folk, Miss Marjorie Sherman and Mrs. E. Taber McFarlin to help the girls.

Mrs. Mervin E. Stevens of the Punched high school faculty will sing the beautiful solo, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." With the exception of Mrs. Stevens, the soloists are members of the South church society, Miss Barbara Folk, Miss Polly Francis and Howard B. Huntress.

The scene is by the wayside on the way from the city to the tomb. Properties have been secured from Abbot academy; the remainder has been made by Polly Francis, Evelyn and Barbara Folk and Marion Coutts.

Accidental Shooting

Walter H. Stuhr, sixteen years old, a student at Phillips academy, has been a hospital patient this as a result of an accident which occurred last week Wednesday while he was out gunning on Boston hill in company with another student, Walter Edmundson, aged thirteen, and James Spanney, fifteen of the Punched High school.

According to the story told by Edmundson to the Andover police, when he and Stuhr were separated about 100 or 150 feet, Stuhr started shooting in his direction. Several shots were fired, some of them striking the ground within seven or eight feet of Edmundson. Finally he started shooting in the direction of Stuhr, who at that time was partly sheltered by a rock behind which he was lying. One of the bullets glanced off the rock and hit Stuhr high up in the thigh. With them and he tells nearly the same story.

According to Spanney, Stuhr was behind the rock eight or ten feet from him and fired seven or eight shots. He said that his gun was jammed and he was taking it apart and getting out the jammed cartridge while the other two boys were shooting.

Stuhr was assisted to the road by his companions and in a passing motor driven to the office of an Andover doctor. A few hours later he was taken to the Phillips House of the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Stuhr's home is in Chicago and he roomed at the Stowe house on Bartlet street. Edmundson's home is in Fitzburg, and he roomed at Mr. Sides just across the street from the Stowe house.

Harvard Club Meets at Peabody House

The last word in thrilling vacation trips, an airplane flight to Alaska was graphically described by F. N. Blodgett, Dartmouth '25, at a meeting of the Harvard Club of Andover held Monday evening at the Peabody House.

With only a month's time at their disposal and a determination to visit Alaska, Mr. Blodgett and a friend took off from the East Boston airport in a ninety horse power Moth plane with a minimum of equipment and preparation. Luck was with them and in spite of several hair-raising escapes they arrived at the Pacific coast, changed their wheels for pontoons and proceeded north to Alaska. There they found a hunter's paradise, shot bear and fished in rivers teeming with salmon and trout. The great brown bear, of which they shot two, is said to be the finest animal in intelligence and of phenomenal vitality, making him no mean opponent when brought to bay. A two-year-old cub may weigh six hundred pounds and a full grown bear, a ton.

Trips were also made to see the mountains and glaciers, the airplane making it possible to cover in an hour and a half country which would require seven days by other means of transportation.

There were several reels of pictures showing the plane in action, the country as seen from the plane and salmon jumping which substantiated the almost fabulous "fish stories" which Mr. Blodgett told.

About twenty members of the club and their friends attended the meeting which was presided over by Alexander Wadsworth. The chairman announced that Randolph Perry and C. Carleton Kimball had been appointed members of a nominating committee and that Eric Hulme had been appointed auditor. The annual meeting will be held sometime in May.

Punched Alumni Association to Be Hosts to Senior Class

Wednesday Afternoon Tea Held

The Wednesday afternoon tea was held this week as usual in the Goldsmith library of the Punched High school for the members of the faculty.

Nathan A. Hamblin, principal of the Punched High school, who has just returned from a four weeks' leave of absence which he spent visiting his son at the Canal Zone, showed some very interesting photographs of the zone and also told about his trip.

Tea was served by Mrs. Emma Carter, assisted by Miss Marjorie Smith.

The Board of Health held a meeting Monday evening and organized for the coming year. Franklin H. Stacey is chairman and George E. Brown, secretary. Routine business was transacted.

Easter Egg Hunt

The children of Andover are looking forward to good weather on April 4 as this is the date set for the annual Easter Egg Hunt by the Andover Guild. The hunt is to be held at the Town Park at two o'clock in the afternoon for school children between the ages of six and twelve years. In case of bad weather on April 4, the hunt will be postponed until Easter Monday at four o'clock. This will enable children from Shawshen and Ballardvale to attend.

The children will assemble along Chestnut and Bartlet streets shortly before the hour leaving Whittier street for spectators. The usual blast from the trumpet will start the hunt at two o'clock.

The hunt will be carefully supervised to avoid roughness or unfair snatching of prizes, but the competition will be too great for little tots under six years to enter. It would only mean disappointment for them or else the care of them would hamper older children who might otherwise be successful. No eggs will be held back for the unlucky children. Each child must do his own hunting, without help, but when the contest is over fortunate children will be encouraged to divide spoils with less fortunate brothers and sisters and friends. Many beautiful acts of unselfishness were witnessed last year by the leaders and it is hoped that the same splendid spirit of sportsmanship will prevail this year.

There will be hundreds of attractive Easter novelties strewn over the grass and under among the shrubs and stones. The children will find candy eggs, hen's eggs, decorated china eggs, chicks, bunnies and baskets. Hen's eggs are being solicited. These will be dyed at the Guild the latter part of the week with only pure food dyes being used.

Persons contributing raw or undecorated eggs are requested to have them at the Guild by ten o'clock Thursday morning. Eggs being formed and will be announced later.

Names of children ill and unable to attend the hunt should be reported to the Guild Friday in order that a souvenir of the hunt may be sent them. There will be a special committee appointed to care for the names reported.

Over thirty children from Andover and North Andover will attend the annual camp party to be given by the Essex County Health association at the Essex Sanatorium in Middleton, tomorrow afternoon.

This party which has been a yearly event since 1927 is a camp reunion for the children from the various cities and towns of the county who have attended the children's camp at Middleton. It affords in addition to a festive games and refreshments an opportunity to check up on the physical condition of the children. In this connection a weight contest is a feature of the entertainment and prizes are awarded to those who show the greatest gain in weight in each year.

The program arranged for the children's enjoyment includes games under the direction of the camp instructors, a showing of the camp movie taken last year and substantial refreshments practically all of which have been donated by H. P. Hood & Sons, Loose-Wiles Biscuit company, Eldridge-Baker company, Morehouse Baking company, Lawrence and Ralph Wheelright, Danvers.

To Show Remarkable Moving Pictures of Plant Life

When Arthur C. Pillsbury shows his films at Abbot Academy in Davis Hall on Tuesday afternoon, April 7, at three and thirty o'clock, the spectators will see the most remarkable moving pictures ever made of plant life, flowers blooming before their eyes, the habits of insects, seed germination, the ways of pollen, leaf circulation, and several biological subjects which required the use of the X-ray.

A graduate of Leland Stanford University, Mr. Pillsbury went to Alaska as official government photographer with the Census Bureau, during the Gold Rush of 1898. His camera, which is of the size of a cell, is enormous. He says "If you magnified a six-foot man in the same proportion, he would appear eighty miles tall."

His photographs of plant cells were taken in his laboratory at Berkeley, California. When the films are projected upon the screen, the increase in size of the cells is enormous. He says "If you magnified a six-foot man in the same proportion, he would appear eighty miles tall."

The charge of admittance to this lecture will be $1.00, and it is hoped that many persons may avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Mr. Pillsbury.

Editorial Cinders

It is welcome news to Andover that several departments of the American Woolen company, which have been located at the Boston office, are to be transferred to the company's office building in Shawshen Village. While the main offices are to go from Boston to New York the sending of such departments as wool buying, chemical, electrical engineering and traffic to Shawshen means considerable increase in activity there that will be reflected in more business generally for the town.

Break and Enter Smith and Dove Mill

Undaunted by the prospect of meeting two men armed with guns, Officers Deymond and Stevens mounted to the roof of the vacant Smith and Dove mill when summoned by the fireman, Edward York last Tuesday evening, shortly before ten o'clock. They were met at the mill gate by the watchman, David McKee who informed the officers that two figures had been seen in the vicinity of the cupola and that they carried guns.

Struggling through a small hole in the roof with his pistol in one hand and a flashlight in the other Officer Deymond approached the figures demanding the surrender of their arms. A flashlight was the only weapon of defense in their possession, and a bag their only equipment. Their errand was a visit to the pigeons in the belfry with the purpose of adding to their nests at home. Only one pigeon had been secured. This was released and the boys sent home with a reprimand.

They gave their names as John Smith of 4 Shawshen road and Alyre Godin of 26 Pearson street.

A Tribute

MRS. JOHN AVERY

It is indeed bitter for all of us who knew Margaret Avery, and many were so fortunate, to realize that we have lost in her death a merry sympathetic friend. She was a friend always eager to hear of our gladness and sadness, ready to make us laugh again in either case, and always so sincerely glad to see us, so cordial and generous. If we became too wrapped up in our own affairs, she sought us out with an unexpected cheery visit, or bade us to her home with welcome and entertainment so that we are sure we must have tried, without knowing it, to be a little kinder, to a little more tolerant of others, whom perhaps we failed to understand.

How eager she was to take her part in worthwhile affairs, always seeking to hear and learn the best, with the thought of bestowing it naturally and simply on her family and friends. Her family's happiness and that of her friends were uppermost in her mind, and her own spontaneous enjoyment of life came as a result of this happiness of others.

A fashionable city tailor had taken his daughter into partnership with high hopes of the future upon her graduation from college, but the situation was distinctly not so good. "I'm ruined!" he mourned. "What an idiot I was to let her get in the business with me!"

"What's happened, old man?" asked a sympathetic friend.

"Why, the first thing she did was to change the name to Ye Olde Clothes Shoppe,"—"American Legion Monthly."

The park orator set his barrel in the middle of a little crowd of people and invited them to lend him their ears.

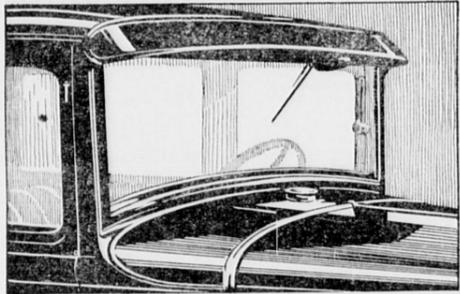

"This country is going to the dogs," he shouted by way of opening. "Everybody is going up—"

"O, no, govnor," came a cry from the crowd.

"You say 'no'! What ever do you mean?" replied the orator.

"Pens, pencils and notepaper are stationery," answered the voice.

During the fall a creditable football team was formed and games with teams in Lawrence, Andover and Tewksbury were played and the attendance proved that the people of the village were back of the boys in their endeavors. Again during the winter months the B. V. A. I. S. supported a hockey team which was in the league and although no games were won, the team played well, but were somewhat handicapped for lack of experienced players. Now that the baseball season is just starting it is the object of members of the club to form a team that will be a credit to the village.

This town can boast of having fine material for a team, and what is needed now is the backing of the people of the village in order to put the team in a position to get games with out-of-town delegations. All interested in a team should be on hand next Monday night.

Doctors Oppose Bill on Chiropractors

The following letter is reprinted from the Haverhill Gazette of March 21:

To the Editor of the Gazette—Concerning the state registration of chiropractors and their constituents from the Essex North district, the following information is submitted:

House Bill 914, which is before the state legislature at this time, asks for the establishment of a special board of registration of chiropractors. This is an extremely long bill and only a few of the important parts need to be mentioned at this time, and it is our desire to have this information put before the legislature and their constituents of this district before the bill reaches its next step in the process of law-making.

The medical profession has always maintained by every means possible to prevent the healing art in this commonwealth should pass the state examination which is given by the board of registration in medicine. This insures a knowledge of disease sufficient to protect the public from gross errors in diagnosis. The entire fabric of our state and public health laws in relation to the reporting of communicable diseases is based upon this standard. Methods of treatment, however, do not enter into consideration and any physician, qualified by his education and by passing this examination, is at liberty to adopt such methods of treatment as seem to him adapted to the individual case.

In the first place may we compare the qualifications of two men, one to get a degree of M.D. from a Class A medical school and become a practicing physician in the state of Massachusetts, and another to become a chiropractor.

One desiring to be a physician, with the degree of M.D. from a Class A medical school in our state, has to be a high school graduate. He must have had at least two years and preferably three years of pre-medical college work. He must have four years in a medical school. He should have at least one or two years' hospital training before graduating from medical school. Then he is allowed to present himself before the state board of registration in medicine and, if he is found duly qualified, is granted a license to practice medicine in this state.

For one who wishes to become a chiropractor, there are no standard requirements of education. In the college from which the chiropractor graduates there are three sessions of six months each. These may be taken in three different calendar years or they may be taken in direct succession, completing the course and getting the degree in a period of eighteen months.

Then it is proposed in this bill that a special board of registration shall be established which shall examine these candidates and pass judgment on their knowledge and ability to diagnose and treat the many diseases to which human beings are subject. We feel that this is grossly wrong. When the chiropractic schools increase their requirements for admission and offer a course that will enable their graduates to pass the state board of registration, we believe it will be perfectly legitimate procedure and there will be no objection whatever.

It is understood that the chiropractors claim that they treat diseases by reducing displaced bones in the spine which the ordinary practitioner of medicine is unable to do. We feel that this condition is adequately dealt with by the orthopedic department of medicine.

The medical society represented by the physicians of this district feel that if any legislative act, authorizing the license of chiropractors in this state, is to be enacted, it ought to be only after people are informed of the facts and can make an intelligent decision. It has always been one of the duties of the state to protect the public against any persons, however well meaning, practicing the healing art who cannot give evidence before the state board of examiners of sufficient knowledge to manage the case of the person applying for relief as well as to prevent such person from being a menace because of unrecognized communicable disease.

The chiropractic bill provides for the examination of candidates for registration as chiropractors by a special board consisting of the surgeon general of the state, the commissioner of public health and three chiropractors. In this examination the same questions in eight different subjects are to be given to the chiropractic applicants as are given at the same time to applicants applying for registration in medicine. This provision, however, is nullified by the fact that the examination papers of the chiropractic applicants must be marked and passed upon by the chiropractic board.

The following is a clause in the proposed chiropractors' bill which we believe is definitely worthy of note:

"In case of doubt as to the diagnosis of certain diseases which it is proposed to exempt from the chiropractors' practice, a registered physician is to be consulted. In case of refusal of the physician to comply with this provision of the proposed law and to determine immediately the diagnosis, he the physician, will be liable to a fine of $1000 for the first offense and to a fine of $5000 for the second offense. On death of a patient under the care of a chiropractor, a physician is to be notified and a death certificate, filled out by the physician, is to be submitted to the physician for his signature. In case of difference of opinion, the matter will be referred to the medical examiner. For this service a fee of $10.00 is to be paid to the physician by the chiropractor and will be charged to the estate of the deceased."

It is our belief that the knowledge acquired in the chiropractic schools is not in any sense adequate for the practice of medicine and no one with the education received at such a school would be able to pass the state board of registration.

We believe that we are voicing the opinion of the medical profession of the entire state by declaring that the principles of this bill are thoroughly unsound and should not become a law.

(Signed)

President, Essex North District of the Massachusetts Medical Society.

One desiring to be a physician, with the degree of M.D. from a Class A medical school in our state, has to be a high school graduate. He must have had at least two years and preferably three years of pre-medical college work. He must have four years in a medical school. He should have at least one or two years' hospital training before graduating from medical school. Then he is allowed to present himself before the state board of registration in medicine and, if he is found duly qualified, is granted a license to practice medicine in this state.

For one who wishes to become a chiropractor, there are no standard requirements of education. In the college from which the chiropractor graduates there are three sessions of six months each. These may be taken in three different calendar years or they may be taken in direct succession, completing the course and getting the degree in a period of eighteen months.

Then it is proposed in this bill that a special board of registration shall be established which shall examine these candidates and pass judgment on their knowledge and ability to diagnose and treat the many diseases to which human beings are subject. We feel that this is grossly wrong. When the chiropractic schools increase their requirements for admission and offer a course that will enable their graduates to pass the state board of registration, we believe it will be perfectly legitimate procedure and there will be no objection whatever.

Andover Grange Notes

At a meeting of the Andover Grange held on Tuesday evening the lecture hour was unusually interesting. The speaking contest by members sixty years and over brought the rare treat of a reading by Edward W. Burt that same that he gave at a Grange meeting just forty years ago. Needless to say it was enjoyed as much as it was at that meeting on March 24, 1891.

James Smith and Miss Eunice Smith of North Andover gave some pleasing duets, Mr. Smith playing the harmonica and Miss Smith the violin. The old songs that all love were played with feeling and that they were enjoyed was proven by the applause which recalled the players again and again.

The debate by Walter P. E. Friedwald and Arthur Lewis was won by the affirmative side upheld by Arthur R. Lewis.

A talk on "Housecleaning" was given by George Kline. Among the new ideas was a method of cleaning paint with a new paint cleaner that certainly did the work. Some timely hints on paper hanging and whitewashing were also given with demonstrations which made the methods very clear to all who watched him.

The report of the attendance contest showed the men in the lead by one per cent.

The treasurer of the minstrel show turned in $79.20 for the Grange. A rising vote of thanks was tendered all who helped make a success.

Notice was given of the Regional meeting at Venham Saturday, March 28, at three o'clock. Members were urged to attend as many Grange problems will be explained as exemplified.

The next meeting of the Andover Grange are to be guests of Billerica Grange together with Bedford Grange P. of H. 283.

May 28 will be past master's night at Billerica. A cup is offered the Grange having the largest number of its past masters and following present.

April 23 members of Andover Grange are to give a vaudeville show which is being sponsored by the building fund committee of Haverhill Grange. Three prizes are offered, five, three and two dollars. The proceeds of the entertainment are to help Haverhill Grange pay for the rebuilding of their hall which was destroyed by fire some time ago.

The next meeting of the Grange April 14 will be first and second degrees. The second degree by the Men's degree team with Roland Trauschke as master. A class of six will be initiated.

Concerning Loneliness

A botanist is not lonely when he is soul-alone on the flank of a mountain, bending over the alpine flowers and shrubs of the snow-line, for all that there is no place above water that is lonelier than a mountain. He has for his companions the floral growths that interest him; he has the mountain, and the sublimity of it—but most of all he has himself.

An angler is not lonely when he is far from other men, in a canyon threatened by a wild stream, though he may have fancied himself to be ever so lonely when he was one of many thousands in a city. He has the canyon, the stream, and his employment—but most of all he has himself.—Portland Oregonian.

When Snakes Had Legs

Undoubtedly all snakes at one time walked on four legs. It is believed that they lost their limbs at a time when they lived in dense vegetation where locomotion by lateral undulations was especially advantageous. All snakes have vestigial hind limbs and in the pythons and boa constrictors these rudimentary legs are still used to some extent. Snakes are really lizards that have lost their legs and undergone other modifications. The so-called glass snake, which is classified as a legless lizard, is an example of a lizard in the process of becoming a snake. It is a connecting link between the true snakes and the true lizards.—Pathfinder.

Nowhere Not Popular

If you received a letter addressed to you at Nowhere, would you like it? You would have to if you lived in the town of Nowhere, England. Residents now that the people of Buxworth have renamed their village Buxworth. Citizens of Totton End, Uxley, Pig street, Swinhead, Swineshead and Swine, all in England, are considering new names for their town or village, and Muck Island, Ireland, also has the question up. But Houndsditch, England, objects to changing its historic name.

ROGER W. BABSON THINKS INDICATIONS POINT TO BETTER TIMES FOR TEXTILES

Cotton Textile Business on Sounder Foundation Than Any Time in Past Five Years—
Demand Has Overtaken Production—Trend Has Definitely and Tangibly Improved

Babson Park, Florida, March 27, 1931. Cotton textiles was one of the first industries to go down in this depression, and from present indications it will be one of the first to come back. Much the same thing happened in the depressions of 1914-15 and of 1921-22. In fact, textiles was the very first of all industries to lead the way to recovery after the extreme hard times ten years ago. In the winter of 1920-21 everything looked about as black as it could. Mills were operating only thirty-three per cent of capacity and employing thirty per cent less than normal working forces. Sales and shipments of cotton cloth were still below production even at the greatly reduced rate of output. Improvement began in the midsummer of 1921; by the fall of 1922 mills were operating at seventy-eight per cent of capacity, employment had increased to 5 per cent above normal, and instead of over-supply there was an under-supply of cotton goods to meet the demand. The improvement was earlier and more rapid than in other basic industries. Will the textiles repeat in 1931? In judging the outlook it is well to remember that this business was going through a lot of grief, long before general business turned downward in the midsummer of 1929. For some months textile profits had been negligible, production burdensomely excessive, and price margins disastrously small except for the very strongest companies. While the rest of the business world was still on a grand prosperity spree textiles were suffering, mills were being closed, necessary consolidations were being made, much obsolete machinery scrapped, and drastic readjustments undertaken. This process has continued during the depression and has greatly speeded up the depression. Of course, there still remains burdensome over-capacity, and too many inefficient mills, but much good has been accomplished in the way of curtailment. The cotton textile business is on a sounder foundation today than at any time in the past five years.

From these facts it will be seen that the trend has definitely and tangibly improved. Reports from the trade show an active demand for finished cottons, including percales, gingham, sheets, towels, and other lines. Some of the most important print cloth mills have sold their production through the second quarter of the year. Print cloth is still in the largest demand, but the yarns are also more active, though without the necessary goods, several mills are actually operating overtime. Of course, there is still much employment among textile workers, but in some of the New England centers the situation is rapidly improving, with the mills again taking on considerable numbers of idle workers. The near-term prospect is for further gains.

Cotton between ten and eleven cents a pound gives manufacturers raw material at the lowest price they have been able to obtain it since 1915. While some rebound has already occurred in raw cotton prices from the extremely low levels of last fall, further strengthening is anticipated in the next few months. Those mills which covered their raw material needs at the lowest prices will enjoy a preferred competitive position. Quotations of some finished cotton goods have already turned up from the very depressed levels earlier this year. This means that profit margins have been to some extent improving although still relatively low. The trend of margins has been steadily narrowed for the past five years. At the beginning of 1928, with raw cotton at 20.25 cents per pound, the spread between gray goods' prices and raw cotton was 21.0 cents per pound. Today with cotton at 10.80 cents, the spread is only 15.3 cents per pound. Both spinners and weavers' margins have reached a level where the mills must depend upon efficiency of operation and large volume at low margin, rather than on high unit profit. The recent uptrend in cotton goods is a helpful factor, but it does not obviate the necessity for close control of expenses and increased efficiency throughout the industry. The present rising trend in cotton goods' prices does, however, strongly suggest that merchants should check up on their stocks of goods, making sure they are fully adequate to spring requirements.

Restriction of Night Work Highly Favorable to the Industry
The most constructive step textile leaders have taken to date is the present abolition of night work by mills employing women and children. By voluntary consent of seventy-five per cent of the mills this practice has now been done away with. Not only is night work injurious to the health and welfare of the workers' families, but it was highly injurious to the cotton industry by creating constant over-production. Even more important than the actual abolishment of this step, however, is the new spirit of co-operation which it shows within the industry. It means that the textile manufacturers are at last getting together to check uneconomic and wasteful methods and practices. The thing which the industry must guard against is too rapid speeding up of plant operations which would upset the whole balance between supply and demand which has been so painfully acquired. The lesson of co-operation must be fully learned if the gains are to continue.

When we consider that the cotton industry employs more wage earners than any other industry in the United States, and that it stands eighth in the rank as to value of products, we understand how tremendously important it is to conserve and foster its improvement. Textiles may be the Moses that leads the whole industrial army out of the wilderness of business depression into the sunlight of returning prosperity.

Cheap Raw Material
Cotton between ten and eleven cents a pound gives manufacturers raw material at the lowest price they have been able to obtain it since 1915. While some rebound has already occurred in raw cotton prices from the extremely low levels of last fall, further strengthening is anticipated in the next few months. This means that profit margins have been to some extent improving although still relatively low.

Business by the Babsonchart now registers 27 per cent below normal compared with 10 per cent below normal at this time a year ago.

File Act for Closer Supervision of School Buses

Stricter inspection of school buses to determine the condition of their equipment, greater care in the selection of drivers, greater caution at railroad crossings, and the elimination, in so far as possible, of standing passengers are highlights of an act providing for the regulation of school buses filed with the clerk of the House today by the Governor's committee on street and highway safety. The measure is made up of several amendments to various sections of the present motor vehicle laws and carries an emergency preamble which would make it effective with the signature of the Governor as "necessary for the immediate preservation of public safety."

Washington Current Comment

The Soviet Government is giving its collective farming scheme an over-hauling, having noted some errors and mistakes, one of which was the paying of the same wage to all. By the time that the errors and mistakes are eliminated, it will be found that Russia did not know more than the rest of the world, and that human nature cannot be changed by legislation. A new anti-knock motor fuel has been discovered. There is a field for a food or drink which will put an end to knocking in human beings. A ship carrying a motion picture party blows up off the coast of Newfoundland. The risks incident to the motion picture business remain in the background, and are regarded merely as part of a day's work. A film based on all of the accidents which have befallen screen actors would furnish a dismal evening's entertainment. The Prince of Wales has opened the British Trade Exposition in Buenos Aires. Borrowing a bit of slang, his mission was to "tell the world" about British goods. He had to have the services of an American broadcasting concern, in order to do it. Americans still "hope" for the payment of claims turned down by the World Court. Nothing is quite so good a stimulant of hope as an outstanding debt. The post said that hope springs eternal in the human breast. He should have closed the sentence with the term "pocket book". Breaking records is so common an outdoor sport that no one pays much attention to it nowadays. It may be noted, however, that the women's altitude record has been broken again. Miss Renner, of Akron, has succeeded in lifting her plane about six miles above the solid pasture land of Ohio. A movement to investigate the administration of Mayor Walker in New York City has been started. He has left for western trip, and his enemies imply that he has skipped out. The charge seems unjust. James may have many of the frailties that burden humanity, but an inclination to shun the gaze of his fellow men is not one of them. Those who covet a moment's let-down from the serious things of life will be willing to smile at the New York daily which apologized, in a recent issue, for referring to the Sea Horse Yacht Club as the Sea Hogs Yacht Club. From the standpoint of the editor, it was no laughing matter. Few outside the newspaper profession can understand the chain which the printer experiences when the rapidly tumbling type lead him into an error which gives offense where nothing but accuracy and the best of service were intended.

Much Sunken Treasure May Soon Be Salvaged

Many of the difficulties of deep-water salvage have been successfully overcome, and the prospects are that much wealth will be recovered from the sunken hulks of the sea bed. One of the chief factors which have contributed to this success is a new diving apparatus, invented by a Kiel firm and used with great success. It looks like the conning tower of a submarine and has a trunk made of steel, the upper portion of which consists of windows of hard glass. This trunk not only contains measuring and respiratory apparatus, but also a telephone and buoyant tanks. These tanks enable the diver to obtain complete control of his equilibrium. If he wishes to descend he lets water in through a tube. If, on the other hand, he wants to ascend, he blows it out with compressed air. With this it is possible to make descents of 500 feet, and there are many wealth-laden wrecks on the floor of the ocean within that distance of the surface.

Modern Music Made No Hit With Lord Balfour

In music Lord Balfour took a great delight and was an enthusiastic lover of the old masters, especially of Handel. Modern music had little charm, if any, for him. "I remember how patiently he would sit through dinner at his favorite restaurant in Paris until most of the clients had left and the noise of jazz and jingle had ceased," recalls Sir Ian Malcolm in his personal memoir of Balfour, "and would then ask the chef d'orchestre (a very gifted young Polish violinist) to play him some Eighteenth-century French music."

Sympathy of Golfers Will Be With Dreamer

One morning a more or less methodical individual was awakened as usual by the alarm clock. He scrambled out of bed, but instead of shutting off the alarm and proceeding about the leisurely process of dressing, he merely reset the clock and climbed back into bed. His wife noted his unusual behavior with some surprise. "What's the matter?" she asked. "Don't you feel well?" "Keep quiet!" he grumbled, and went about the intensive business of going back to sleep. He explained everything later, and in spite of her huff the mistress of the household got a laugh out of it. It seemed that the alarm clock summons interrupted a dream in which the husband was engaged in an exciting game of golf with Bobby Jones. "Well," his wife observed, "how does that explain your hopping back into bed again?" "I wanted to finish that match," her husband replied, "and I wanted to give one particularly offensive pest a good punch in the nose. And the sad part of it is I can't for the life of me remember whether I did or not."

Ingenious Methods of Making Use of Suction

Some of our readers probably are old enough to remember the first vacuum cleaners and the interest aroused when it was found that a carpet could be cleared of dust without a broom being used. Coal is now unloaded by suction. The pipe used is made of steel and is 12 inches in diameter, the nozzle is a box three feet long and something more than a foot wide, and the most ingenious part of the invention is an arrangement to prevent the whole thing getting choked by coal dust. The latest invention in this direction is a marvelous fish trap. In this case, a pipe of great size is lowered from the fishing vessel deep into the sea, the air is exhausted, and the water rushes up, carrying with it the fish. The fish are kept, the water goes back. One more use for this kind of device is in the war against locusts. In Palestine, where there was a plague of these ravenous creatures, gigantic vacuum cleaners fixed on motor vehicles were used and the locusts drawn up by the million.

Linen "Textbooks" Used in Early Schoolrooms

"Your lesson for tomorrow will be on the blue handkerchief." Children in the primary schools of Wisconsin, during the days of a century ago, fully realized the significance of the school marm's words. In the absence of textbooks, linen handkerchiefs, full of prints depicting the great moments and the great men of history, were used to instruct the youngsters. This method was used to teach children how to read and to spell. Different lessons required different handkerchiefs. Fortunately, little Mary and little Johnny did not have to tote pocketful references. A handkerchief a day made schooling pay.

Royal Friend of Dogs

Queen Victoria's love of animals (a characteristic inherited by all her descendants) is shown in several passages of her recently published letters. In August, 1886, when everybody in London was infected with an unreasonable fear of mad dogs, she wrote a long memorandum on cruelty to animals which might almost be described as the Magna Charta of man's four-footed pensioners. "As regards her poor dear friends," she runs the first clause, "she would repeat that no dogs should ever be killed by police unless the veterinary surgeon declared they were mad. That dogs, who were close to their masters or mistresses or their house door, poor quiet dogs should be left alone and not molested."

Recalls Famous Nurse

Withered and wrinkled by years in a museum, the carriage Florence Nightingale used in the Crimean war now occupies a place of honor in St. Thomas' hospital at London. It was at St. Thomas' that the "Lady With the Lamp" started her training school for nurses after the war. Black with age, the carriage is ten feet long, five feet wide and about eight high. A four-wheeler with a leather hood, it was built to be drawn by two horses.

First Colonial Surgeon

The first surgeon to come to Philadelphia is believed to have been John Goodson, of London, who came over as surgeon to the Society of Free Traders before William Penn arrived. On the ship Welcome, with Penn, was Griffith Owen, the Welshman, who performed the first amputation in Philadelphia. To Dr. Thomas Bond, one of the co-founders with Franklin of the Pennsylvania hospital, when that institution was started in the middle of the Eighteenth century as the first hospital in the Colonies, belongs the credit of having performed the first lithotomy in America and also of having established the first clinic. This was only a few years before the medical school of the College of Philadelphia, now the University of Pennsylvania, was founded in 1765.—Detroit Free Press.

Reminders of Past Ages

Dinosaur canyon, situated in the almost inaccessible region of the Hopi Indian reservation in Arizona, was unknown to United States Indian agents or the white pioneers of the territory until Hubert Richardson, keeper of the Cameron trading post, was told of it by an Indian whose confidence he had gained. The result was that the National Geographic society sent a research party into the section which uncovered dozens of dinosaur tracks, cut deep into the rocks and said to have been imprinted there by prehistoric monsters about 30,000 years ago.—Detroit Free Press.

Old New Zealand Bird, Kiwi, Nears Extinction

The strangest bird in the world—the kiwi—kiwi, is described as follows in Boys' Life, the Boy Scout publication.

"Native of New Zealand, he nearly makes fact of ancient fable—current when the continent was first discovered—that everything around Australia was upside down. The kiwi is practically wingless and completely flightless. He has no visible tail. His brownish plumage, moreover, because the feather-filaments are disintegrated, looks more like coarse hair. His nostrils, unlike any other bird's, are at the very tip of the long beak, that is flexible and very sensitive to touch.

"The kiwi grows like a dog, and snags his bill as you crack your fingers; he can hiss like a cat when angry. His extraordinarily powerful legs can give mighty kicks, not backward but forward, and have been known to break a bone in a man's hand. In small flocks, the few kiwis left of a disappearing species inhabit New Zealand's hilly forests. Females burrow long tunnels, laying in a nest at the very end of it two large eggs—eggs a quarter the length of the whole bird. Incubating is entirely the job of the male.

"Maoris are very fond of kiwi flesh broiled or roasted, so fond that the bird was well hunted out before ever a white man saw one. Now the peculiar bird, distant relative of ostrich, emu, cassowary, and survivor of a species that flourished with the extinct, gigantic dinosaurs and fierce, sluggish moas, millions of years ago, is fast approaching extinction."

"Maoris are very fond of kiwi flesh broiled or roasted, so fond that the bird was well hunted out before ever a white man saw one. Now the peculiar bird, distant relative of ostrich, emu, cassowary, and survivor of a species that flourished with the extinct, gigantic dinosaurs and fierce, sluggish moas, millions of years ago, is fast approaching extinction."

Marriage Promise Just Incident of Vacation?

A New Yorker, lifted out of his habitual caution by the balmy atmosphere of Florida during a winter vacation, brought suit against a girl he met down there, to recover a ring. The young lady contested the suit.

When it came up in court, the young man said that they had enjoyed a fond good-by on the beach, but later, when both had returned to New York, the girl had passed him up cold. The girl herself admitted it, saying:

"I really didn't know whether I should recognize him or not. Our acquaintance in Florida was really very slight."

"But," expostulated the court, glancing at the sparkling ring, "you promised to marry him, didn't you?"

"Why, yes," admitted the girl, "but that was all."—Los Angeles Times.

Picked Out Wrong Time to See Model Children

People wondered at our frolics, but enjoyed them, and droll stories are still told of the adventures of those days. Mr. Emerson and Margaret Fuller were visiting my parents one afternoon, and the conversation having turned to the ever-interesting subject of education, Miss Fuller said:

"Well, Mr. Alcott, you have been able to carry out your methods in your own family, and I should like to see your model children."

She did in a few moments, for as the guests stood on the doorsteps a wild uproar approached, and round the corner of the house came a wheelbarrow holding Baby May arrayed as a queen; I was the horse, bit and bridled, and driven by my elder sister Anna; while Lizzie played dog, and barked as loud as her gentle voice permitted.

All were shouting and wild with fun, which, however, came to a sudden end as we espied the stately group before us; for my foot tripped, and down we all went in a laughing heap; while my mother put a climax to the joke by saying, with dramatic wave of the hand:

"Here are the model children, Miss Fuller."—From "Louisa May Alcott, Her Life and Letters," by Edna D. Cheney.

Popularity of Cuckoo Clocks Well Deserved

Cuckoo clocks originated in Germany. In the Black Forest district, the first one was made by Franz Anton Ketterer, in Schonswald, in 1790. Copies soon became popular, the appeal made by their quaintness and novelty being reinforced by their good workmanship and excellent time-keeping qualities. The mechanism of the cuckoo clock is very ingenious. By the thrust of a wire the body of the bird is bent forward, the wings and tail are raised and the beak is opened. Simultaneously two small bellows are raised and dropped. The notes are produced by little wooden organ pipes, one tuned a fifth above the other, to which the bellows are attached. Almost every home in the Black Forest possesses one of these clocks, but on this continent they are now less popular than formerly, possibly because modern homes have not the right atmosphere. Moreover, the competition of other trick clocks has become increasingly strong.

Satisfied by Figures

You would think that a mathematician who had worked out the position of a new planet would be interested in having a look at that planet, when discovered, wouldn't you? Yet Leverrier, the Frenchman, who did the figuring that located Neptune in 1846, was once in the observatory with Flammarion, the astronomer, who at that moment had Neptune showing in the telescope, and asked Leverrier if he would like to see it. He replied:

"No, I have never seen it."

He had discovered Neptune's position by mathematics and there his interest in it ended. The joy of a mathematician is the discovery of a theoretical truth, or the confirmation of a calculation by experiment.—Kansas City Star.

Ancient Weather Vanes

Its use on famous old structures in England shows that the weather-vane must have been invented at a very early date. On towers, castles and secular buildings its usual form was that of a banner, but on churches it usually took the form of the rooster. This large tail of the cock was well adapted to turn with the wind.

Many churches have for a vane the symbol of the saints to whom they are dedicated. St. Peter's, London, is topped by a large key, and St. Lawrence's, a gridiron. St. Sepulchre's church has four pinnacles, each having a vane, leading to the saying: "Unreasonable people are as hard to reconcile as the vanes of St. Sepulchre's tower."

In Old Nuremberg

Trips on many days can be made in the beautiful old city of Nuremberg, one of the quaintest in the whole of Germany. Most Americans go first to the home of the great artist Durer. It is a Fifteenth century Gothic structure, now owned by the city as a shrine. Here you may see beneath its heavy timbered roof the furniture of his own day as well as many of his works, though mostly copies, as the originals are in the greatest museums and galleries of the world. The modern Durers are toy makers and their products are in the happy nurseries of all nations.

SHAWSHEEN VILLAGE

Wardens Defeat Rivals

The Wardens, leaders in the Andover Square and Compass club bowling, are practically assured of the championship honors of the second half of the season. They won three from their rivals, the Marshalls, this week and knocked them out of running. With only two weeks to go, the Marshalls will have to win all their points while the leaders are losing all to gain the top, an unlooked for occurrence.

The Wardens will be all primed to meet the Marshalls, however, for the season's honors in the roll-off at the close of the season as the latter won the first half of the season championship.

Umbrellas Designed to Ward Off Heat of Sun

The first umbrellas were used, not to keep off rain, but as shields against the sun. Their original home was in hot, brilliant climates, and in eastern countries from the earliest times the umbrella was one of the signs of royalty and power. The Maharrata princes of India had, in fact, among their titles "lord of the umbrella."

The early umbrella was a heavy, ungainly article. It had a long handle and ribs of whalebone or cane. The covering material consisted of oiled silk or cotton, and was very heavy in substance and liable to stick together in the folds.

Gingham was next used as a substitute for the oiled silk, and finally William Sangster patented the use of alpaca as an umbrella-covering material. This was in 1848, only 83 years ago.

Four years later came the invention of one Samuel Fox, who patented the "Paragon" rib formed of a thin strip of steel rolled into a U or trough section, and today all umbrellas are constructed on this principle.

Nowadays the aim of the manufacturers of umbrellas is to get an article that will not occupy much space, and some of the latest patterns have almost doll-like proportions.

There are 80 churches in Charleston, S. C., and they range in age from 223 years down. St. Michael's church, where George Washington and the marquis de Lafayette both worshipped on their several visits to the city, was built in 1752. St. Philip's church, completed in 1723, had for centuries in its spire a light which served to warn ships at sea. In its interesting old graveyard is buried Edward Rutledge, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and John C. Calhoun, the South's great statesman.

Also in Charleston is the Huguenot church (French Protestant), said to be the only one of its kind in the United States. Its architecture and its history are interesting and distinctive. St. Andrew's church, built first in 1693 and rebuilt in 1703, and the Goose Creek church, built in 1711, are in the plantation area, less than ten miles from the city.

Ball Playing Traced to Theory of Resurrection

It is interesting to read in Prof. Elliot Smith's "Human History" that the common origin of ball games may be traced to the fact that the ancient Egyptian theory of the universe depended upon the view that the death and resurrection of the god Osiris was essential for the maintenance of life. In the periodical dramatic representations of this belief, Professor Smith explains, "the conflict of the followers of Osiris with those of his enemy Set was enacted," and not only the bullfighting of Spain, and the cock-fighting of Asia . . . but also the tug-of-war, football, hockey, tennis, cricket, polo, and, in fact, all ball games are the modified survivals of the Osirian competitions in which the representatives of the rival parties struggled for the mummy of the king god or his head, the ball."—Montreal Family Herald.

Island Dwellers

There are only two good ways to come to Stockholm. One is to approach slowly by the canal from Goteborg, and the other is to arrive by sea through the glorious channels between its 73,000 islands.

The rugged sea and landscapes of these rocky islets not only made artists happy, but many families of the city make their summer homes on an island, and the business men commute daily by launch to their work. Everybody has a yacht or some more modest craft and they spend nearly all day on the water.

Valuable Health Rules

Irving Fisher's health rules are: "Ventilate every room you occupy; wear light, loose, and porous clothes; seek out-of-doors occupations and recreations; sleep out of doors, if possible; breathe deeply; avoid overeating; eat sparingly of meats and eggs; eat some hard, some bulky, and some raw foods each day; eat slowly; move the bowels regularly and frequently; do not allow poisons and infections to enter the body; keep the teeth, gums, and tongue clear; stand, sit, and walk erect; work, play, rest, and sleep in moderation, and keep happy."

Bad Telephone Manners

Alexander Graham Bell lived to deplore the casual manners his invention had introduced.

"Nobody," he said—according to Catherine Mackenzie in her biography of Bell—"would dream of coming to one's house and demanding an audience while one dined, or bathed, or slept; but every one made these peremptory interruptions by telephone."

He always made indignant protest when any member of his family left the table to answer a telephone call.—Kansas City Times.

"This Is So Sudden!"

They were strolling in the moonlight, this couple of the Stone age days, she slim and lively, he big, hairy and muscular. The dinosaurs and mastodons respectively slithered out of their way at their approach.

Suddenly, for no obvious reason, he reached over and laid her skull open with a vicious swing of his quartz club. As she sank to the ground, her eyes opened in wonderment.

"O, Oswald," she cooed. "And I didn't know you cared!"—Exchange.

Novel "Change of Air"

Mr. Bata, Czechoslovakian boot manufacturer, is a very busy man, and his time is valuable. When his doctor told him that he must go to a mountainous district for a change of air, he decided that he could not spare the time. Instead of going to the mountains, Mr. Bata bought a balloon, anchored it to his factory chimney, and used it as an office. Thus he was able to enjoy the pure air of the heights and carry on his business at the same time.

Selling Their Tresses

In the countries of Europe it is a somewhat common affair to encounter a hair merchant traveling through the countryside and making bids for the hair of women who would rather have the money than their glory crown. One of the largest hair markets in the world is held in the Soho district of London. Dealers from many foreign countries attend this hair fair, and they can tell the quality of a girl's tresses by a quick look or a moment's fingering.

When they strike a bargain with the owner, a local barber steps forward and crops the hair close to the nape of the neck. Sometimes it is of such beauty that as much as $30 or $40 a pound is paid for it.

Germany and Alsace-Lorraine supply most of the fair hair that is wanted. From the south of France and Italy comes the best dark hair in the world.

Odd Methods of Interment

Upright burial was the recognized and traditional form of interment favored by the kings of ancient Ireland. It was not considered fitting that a monarch should be prone, accordingly they were buried erect, clad in their war panoply, and usually with their faces turned toward their enemies. The ancient Irish believed that so long as their kings remained in this position they exercised an evil influence on their foes. So powerful was the belief in this ability that on one occasion the body of a king was disinterred by those hostile to his clan, and placed in another grave, head downward, in order to break the succession of disasters which dogged them while he rested in his grave with face turned toward them.

Pastimes of the Near Great

"An amusing little trick was shown to me yesterday," writes Peter Simple in the London Morning Post. "You take two matches, make a tiny slit in the match box and fix one of them in it, head up. This is the shell. The other should be provided with limbs by the deft use of a sharp penknife, when it will represent his lady love. Lean it up against the other match so that the heads touch, and then set fire to it in the middle. The result will be a long and ardent kiss such as you see in a Sahara scenario."

I'm sorry, but I still prefer to cut paper dolls.—Detroit News.

Even Dropped "H" Is Silent

In London where quiet is perhaps more esteemed than in other cities, a sound-proof house has been built. The walls, ceilings and floors are of sound-insulating materials, the doors equipped with nonslamming devices, and the windows with silencer ventilators that permit air to enter but exclude sounds. As for the traditional cricket on the heath, it has probably been trained to do its chirping outside.

Be Honest

You may pay your debts promptly and with care, and yet be essentially dishonest. You may, for instance, pretend you are doing something for a good reason, yet know your real motive is selfish. No man is really honest who deceives himself.—Grit.
