Indian Chief Goes Canoeing on Pond

Believe it or not, an Indian went canoeing on Foster's pond, Andover, last Sunday and agreed he liked it "heap much". So far as we know this is a record for canoeing in this town. The pond was entirely free from ice with the exception of one or two coves.

Needabah Great Friend) was the name of the Indian. He has been a member of the Penobscot tribe, at Oldtown, Maine, all his life and for years has been librarian of the tribe. He was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Willard H. Davis who occupy Lone Pine camp during the summer months, and who have been at camp every week-end since October. Mr. Davis is a Boston newspaperman, and has written several radio sketches in which Needabah has been featured.

The "Chief" is collaborating with Professor Speck, of Pennsylvania State college, in writing the history of the Penobscots who were known as a peace-loving tribe and who befriended Washington during his war days. He has travelled extensively, lectured at Universities and colleges throughout the country, is one of Maine's best guides and maintains an Indian village at all sportsmen's shows.

"Of Foster's pond he said, "I never thought that such a beautiful sore visited."

Town Meeting Gets Criticism from Citizens

Last Friday's Affair Kills $15,000 Unemployment Relief, But Is Called "Joke"

Is Called "Joke"

In what has been described by scores of citizens as a "burlesque of town government", and a "meeting which furnished more laughs than a vaudeville show", but what was legally known as a town meeting, a motion to appropriate $15,000 to give work to the unemployed was killed and a committee of five was named to investigate economic conditions in the town. In addition, the meeting was officially adjourned and tunned over to John F. O'Connell, sponsor of the Andover Taxpayers' association, who received an overwhelming majority vote in favor of the formation of his organization.

Outside of these three things, the eight hundred people who crowded the town hall last Friday might were treated to a demonstration of heckling, challenges and wise-cracks for over an hour, and when it was all over, tension had been relieved, spirits were high, and groups of people congregated outside the town hall to compare opinions as to what had happened and why. Nearly five hundred people—all of those beyond the front five rows—complained that they could not hear what was going on and several said they did not know what was voted on because it was impossible to hear.

Their children are not receiving the good food that is the birth right of every American kiddie. They are steadily getting farther and farther into debt. Andover was honored by a visit from George Washington in November 1789. At this time he passed the night at the Deacon Issac Abbott Tavern. The following day, in company with his friend and our distinguished townsman, Lieut. Governor Phillips he reviewed the militia of the town. With its definite and friendly connections with Washington, Andover has reason to feel more than a perfunctory interest in celebrating this fanniversary and should be proud to play her part well. The Historical Society earnestly hopes that both its members and the public will be sensible of the patriotic nature of the plans and will find it possible and convenient to attend this bell and to lend their support to the splendid efforts which the Committees and leaders are so willingly making to achieve a worthy notice of this very important national anniversary.

The only reason Japan is continuing the uggle in Manchuria is to give the people of it territory a strong government which will bale to afford protection in a land now errun with bandits, according to a state-th made in an address by Willis J. Abbot the meeting of the November club Monday ernoon. Mr. Abbot said that the Japan's piple do not want to settle in the disputed untry, because they dislike the cold mate.

Tr. Abbot mentioned at the outset of his r. Abbot mentioned at the same family of that he came of the same family of the that he came of the same family of the that he came of the same family of a war correspondent, and is a cousin of an Abbot, who was for many years on thaff of the "Outlook." Since he has rey returned from extensive traveling in n. China, and Manchuria, he was well fied to speak on the Sino-Japanese dis-

Manchuria Beautiful Manchuria was described by Mr. Abbot as yery beautiful and very fertile land. When it was opened up to settlers, there was a tremendous influx of Chinese who had had rerrible times at home because of the prevalency of banditry. After this great emigration, which Mr. Abbot pictures as one of the greatest teks of history, a tremendous development took place.

The country was governed, however, by rar lords, and for this reason many of the arms are encircled by tremendous walls with warlise towers at intervals along the top. There is really no stable government to protect the people from the bandits. The war-ords not only fail in their duty of protecting he people but make matters even worse by profiteering in this way making it quite impossible for the people to have the comforts of life.

If the Mr. Abbot illustrated this point by de-riching a young Chinese war-lord who used plomacy in buying huts from the people du then forced them to sell their soy beans, as staple crop of Manchuria, to him. In this ay, he secured a monopoly of the crop. He aid the producers of the beans in currency om his own bank, which proved absolutely orthless, whereas he received silver and ld from those who bought the beans from im.

worthless, whereas he received silver and gold from those who bought the beans from him.

Want Protection Assurance

The Japanese, said Mr. Abbot, are trying to force the war-lords to abandon such policies. They are seeking to give the people a government which would assure them protection. People should be patient and allow the Japanese and the Chinese to settle their question, and in the end it would be a much happier land, the speaker thought.

Japan itself does not want to govern Manchuria because of the great expense involved. It would be necessary to maintain a large army in the country. The Japanese had been asked to settle in Manchuria, free transportation and subsidies for the setting up of homes and the producing of crops were offered, but no one cared to go because of the climate.

On Monday, January 25, the school assembled in the hall to hear read the prize compositions on "The Surrender of Cornwalls at Yorktown." The composition contest, which for the past fifteen years has been an annual event at Stowe, is sponsored by the Phoebe Foxeroft Phillips Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution.

The program was opened by music from the string ensemble of the school orchestra. James Gillespie of Stowe and Mary Mc-Govern of the North school, prize winners for this year, read their essays, followed by Harriet Sellars of Stowe, who received honorable mention.

John Walker, winner of the medal last year, presented it to James Gillispie. The Regent of the Daughters of the Revolution presented a certificate to John Walker and a medal to Mary McGovern, commenting upon the fact that for three successive years a member of the McGovern family has been a prize winner in the essay contest. The Star Spangled Banner was sung by the school followed by the flag salute. Reverend Frederick B. Noss then delivered an address on Washington's home life at Mount Vernon. The program was closed by the singing of America.—Jane Rice

"A Good Show"

Last Friday's town meeting certainly has earned the disapprobation of a large majority of citizens who attended it. It has been called a disgrace to town government, and a vaudeville show, but a good one. The least that has been said of it has been far from charitable. The most conservative have called the meeting "unfortunate" and "a poorly handled affair not to be held up as a criterion of Andover town meetings."

Yet technically, nothing wrong occurred at the meetings. The moderator was right in accepting the vote against Mr. Kidd's motion, asking an appropriation of $15,000 for the unemployed, as decisive and final action on article one in the warrant, although Mr. Kidd did not word his verbal motion exactly as the article was worded. The speed with which the moderator adjourned the meeting immediately following the seconding of a motion to this effect was not technically wrong, for such is the customary procedure in governmental bodies, from the Senate down. However, if there was any objection to the adjournment such objection could have been voiced immediately and strongly, and the adjournment could have been voiced immediately and strongly, and the adjournment decided upon by a yea and nay vote.

What really was wrong at town meeting was that the moderator did not moderate. At no time was anyone sure who was in control of the meeting, the moderator or the audience. The moderator could not be meeting, the moderator or the audience. The moderator could not be heard beyond the first few rows, and this resulted in his being constantly challenged on points of order. These challenges resulted in opportunities to interpolate jibes and jokes, to the amusement and diversion of all. But in the minds of the large majority of serious-minded citizens who had convened at the special town meeting to dispose of an emergency situation, the whole affair was deplorable. The only satisfaction that interested citizens can feel about last Friday is that the unwarranted levity displayed was the exception, rather than the rule.

Professor Speaks on Washington

Phillips Academy fittingly observed the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of the First President of the United States, by a scholarly lecture given most appropriately at George Washington Hall, Wednesday.

The speaker was Professor Elmer W. Smith, head of the Department of English at Colgate University, who took as the subject of his address, "Washington in the Twentieth Century".

According to the speaker, there have been, and are, three popular conceptions of Washington, namely, the Washington of myths, such as the cherry tree incident, which because they aimed to prove too much, have been dynamited; the Washington who followed and enjoyed the life of a country gentlemen, who liked hunting, fishing, cards, dancing and the theatre; and Washington, who has been called the Britisher, despite the facts that at the age of sixteen he was surveying in the wilderness, that, in turn, he helped cultivate this land, and defend it unselishly against the common enemy, the Redcoats.

Washington, however, despite the various surveying in the winderness, that, in this he helped cultivate this land, and defend it unselfishly against the common enemy, the Redcoats.

Washington, however, despite the various opinions concerning his life and character, will remain on history's pages, as the Father of his Country, a true patriot, a brave and dauntless soldier, and as a statesman of the highest type, free from the desire of personal gain or glory. His ambition was to live the simple life at Mt. Vernon, after he had been of service to his Country, to be a good farmer, and to have "good laws under a free government".

As Professor Smith said, quoting Thomas Paine, "in these times that try men's souls," as in the early days of the republic, George Washington would advise us, "to seek peace in the spirit of peace, to love our homes for they are the bulwark of our nation, for Youth to realize the value of education and that in the final analysis we must educate ourselves, to mind our manners for they are the measure of our civilization, to be careful of our dress, for as a man is in this heart, so he clothes himself, and for young and old, too, to take an interest in our government and in the progress of civilization."

The speaker left as a final thought to his attentive and interested audience, George Washington's Motto which was characteristic of the man himself. The passage from Addison's Cato, is "It is not given to men to command success, we do better than that . . we will deserve it".

Abbot Academy

Miss Ward's recital was greatly enjoyed on Saturday afternoon, January 23.

On Sunday evening, January 24, Mrs. Ellen Emerson Cary, of the class of 1877, conducted the service in Abbot Hall. She spoke of the Abbot and Andover of her school days, making that period seem much nearer to the present, and said that she is planning to be present, and said that she is planning to be present in June at the fifty-fith reunion of her class. At chapel on Monday morning Mrs. Cary addressed the entire school.

Mid-year examinations are extending from Thursday to Saturday, January 28 to 30.

On Saturday afternoon, January 30, the Senior-Middle class (1933) will entertain at a tea dance, under the general direction of Clara Shaw, president. Miss Bailey, Miss Kelsey, Clara Shaw and Betty Weaver will receive the guests.

The Rev. Markham W. Stackpole of Milton will conduct the evening service on Sunday, January 31.

Milton will conduct the evening service on Sunday, January 31.

February first to fourth will include the days of the annual trip to Intervale. Miss Bailey and the Seniors will go to New Hampshire to enjoy winter sports which are, at the present writing, problematical. At any rate, good fellowship and better acquaintance will abound.

Miss Kelsey will be hostess to all of the day scholars on Tuesday evening, February 2, when she entertains them at dinner and for the evening.

Shawsheen P.T.A. to Run Bridge Tonight

The Shawsheen Parent-Teachers' association will hold its second bridge party tonight in the school hall at 7.45 o'clock.

These parties are being held for the purpose of raising money for athletic equipment and other needs of the school children.

The committee in charge are as follows: Mrs. Harold Raiton, and Mrs. Leon Field, joint chairmen; Mrs. Veedham Brown, Mrs. Raymond Howe, Mrs. James Fursman, and Mrs. Frederick Manning.

Tickets are on sale by this committee, the school children, and also may be obtained at the door Friday evening.

If anyone interested in the Association is unable to be present it would be greatly appreciated if he would buy a ticket, as the committee is working hard to make this month's bridge a success.

Insurance Companies Re-elect
All Directors Whose Terms
Were Expiring

The insurance companies held their customary annual meetings on Monday. Financial reports for the year 1931 showed durther strengthening of assets and surplus due to careful underwriting and economy of management.

It is a coincidence that the Merrimack Mutual, he oldest of the group of four companies was incorporated in 1828 in the middle oft the depression of 1826 to 1830. The corporation has weathered many ups and downs of general business.

The Lynn Manufacturers and Merchants Mutual, 1907, and the Bay State Mutual, 1921, are still confirming their business to New England.

The Andover fleet of companies draw their business from the offices of nearly a thousand agencies many of whom have policy holders that have insured with the Merrimack or the Cambridge for over half a century, and whose property has, in many case, been covered by the companies for nearly 100 years.

During the election period at the annual meetings all directors whose terms were expiring were reelected.

A Word

to the Wives

By YVONNE RAMAUT

At this time of urgent need for economy on a limited budget, many homemakers go over their household and food expenses with the hope of cutting down of eliminating some things entirely—and usually one of the things cut out is desserts. Please don't eliminate them entirely, unless you want your meals to be drab and uninteresting. There are now on the market, most tasteful puddings and gelatine deserts that cost very little, but can be served in various ways, and if combined with bananas, which are most inexpensive, can be made interesting. Apples are also very cheap—and what man doesn't like apple pie for dessert. No need for expensive berries, or rich cakes or puddings. Serve plain deserts—if you will, but serve them.

And, of course, we must save time as

And, of course, we must save time as well as money—and here is our favorite time-saver this week. For washing windows and mirrors, use a piece of chamois wrung from warm, soft water to which a little denatured alcohol has been added.

Left-over vegetables may be combined and served as a salad to give variety to the meal

At the moment the column seems to run to economies—so we may as well have another one. The best way to use the last bit of a cake of soap is to put a new case of the same kind in water until it slightly softens. Then press the old pieces also wet onto the new and when they dry they will be as one. In this way there is no waste, and there are no unsightly small pieces about the sink waiting to be used.

A little sugar added to vegetable salad will mprove its flavor.

And incidentally, here is a salad thet may be made from some left-over raw vegetables that you may have. Cut in very small pieces, a carrot, celery, cabbage, and lettuce. Add to this two tablespoons of vinegar, a teaspoon of sugar and pepper and salt. Let this stand for an hour or two before serving. Then pour off the vinegar, and add mayonaise to the salad according to taste.

Ditt may be removed from gilt picture frames by using a little warm water to which a little household ammonia has been added.

And now that I have told you of a few ways of saving time and money, here is one that may save you a little labor: A roll of paper toweling kept in the kitchen near the sink and used in place of a linen towel for wiping hands, sink or stove, will save much washing.

A ROMANTIC STORY

By Rev. Lorentz I. Hansen, Pastor Andover Baptist Church
No life story in history of literature is more romantic than that of Moses. Born in Egypt the son of a slave in a day when the ruling class fearing the creasing power of the slaves, slew their boybabies, Moses spent his babyhood in a slime daubed castet, steathilly hidden on a canal. Discovered by the queen, he was brought up in royal surroundingsas king's son, educated in Heliculars, trained in the fineness of royal manners by tutors. Lowly birth combined with the luxury and temptations of wealth and power has ruined most participants in any priod of time, but Moses turned everything to good account. He espoused the cause of his disheartened race and challenged the heartless royalty. He won, for "he endured as seeing Him who is invisible".

Group of Fossils Attracts Attention

The loan of a collection of fossils by the Natural History Society of Andover, has proved to be of much interest to the Junior Library young people. This collection was originally the property of Miss E. W. Neal, who was a former resident of the town. The fossils came from the Mazon Creek Grundy Co., Illinois, where many of them were found. A display of this type is both interesting and instructive for girls and boys.

Culled from Sunday Sermons

A Townsman weekly feature devoted to passing on to our readers the gist of those sermons of general interest deliv-ered last Sunday from Andover pulpits.

Speaking on "Sacred Callings", basing his emphasis on First Corinthians three, twenty-three, "Ye are Christ's", Mr. Hansen said that more important than the choice of a vocation is the plane on which any life work is undertaken. To a Christian all honorable callings are "Sacred Callings" provided they are carried on with God in constant consciousness. Often life is entered upon at adolescence with out aim, guidance, thought.

Schooling is looked upon as a tedious job which should be shunned if possible—the boy said "Mother can be thankful if 1 get through the eighth grade"—the choice of a life partner a random whim and the consideration of a job just a financial one. On the other hand many who plan their lives well are overwhelmed by the disappointments, disasters,

Theme: When Are We Defeated?
Text: Be not overcome by evil.
It has been ordained by our Creator that our life should be a struggle. We have no choice in the matter. It is something appointed for us. There are no exceptions. It is just the same for all. We can win the battle or lose it, can overcome or be defeated. That depends upon ourselves. Winning the battle does not wictorious life without any outward success. There can be a truly heroic and victorious life without any outward success. There are thousands of instances. None of us want to lose our battle. It is a sad thing to be defeated. We raise the question, When are we defeated?

We answer, first and most obviously, when we give way to evil. The nature of our battle is defined; the winning of the good through the overcoming of evil. For purposes of thought we distinguish two forms of evil: the evil that injures us physically and indirectly mentally. The struggle against

Theme: "Influence in the Growth of
Text: St. Matthew 13:13 "It was all leavened."
Whenever and wherever Jesus went we find him preaching and teaching in parables. The Parable of the Leaven was told by Jesus as he sat in a boat upon the Sea of Galilee, with the multitude gathered upon the shore. Jesus never symbolized the spiritual ideals by the use of gold or diamonds. He used common figures or symbols to show Christian Character, such as salt, light, and leaven.
Gold is a standard of value; a emblem of purity and worth; sought by men for its use in coinage and ornamentation. Diamonds are gems of priceless value and unrivaled in a beauty. For ages untold diamonds and gold have lain buried in the deep rock and sand, with the gold or diamonds has not made with the gold or diamonds has not made with the gold or diamonds has not made them the least bit better. Does not this well represent our churches? Some are pure as a gold, but without any influence in the world, as cold and exclusive as they are pure and refined. Jesus' ideal of Christian character was not like this. Jesus said: "The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal until it was all leavened."

Leaven is any substance which produces fermentation. It is a transforming force. No true character can exist among men with-fix and the character can exist among men with-gent character is the greatest of all moral forces. No true character can exist among men with-gent character is the greatest of all moral forces. No true character can exist among men with-gent character is the greatest of all moral forces.

Character is the greatest of all moral forces. No true character can exert so at ransforming influence upon men. In the annuals of history we find men whose influence has been felt down through the ages, they have refined and established better business and friendly relationships. The influence of a good believing man is worth more than a thouand who are without character. Cities and states differ in their make up; morally, religiously, intellectually and socially. This is caused by the spirit and enterprise which their founders gave to them. It is the influence of personal character perpetuated.

The influence of Character may not always be clearly traceable, nevertheless that influence days were sufficiently and socially of the control of the c

Two-Piano Recital at Abbot Academy

Beatrice Ward of Abbot Academy, and Mary Atwood Anderson of Providence, R. I. gave a very charming two-pianoforte recita at Abbot on Saturday afternoon to a responsive audience.

The two-pianoforte recital, made popula as well as distinguished, by Meyer and Patteon, has been adding advocates to it.

"T've come," said the man who had just been shown into the editor's room, "to ask you why you referred to me in your paper today as a political jobber."
"My dear sir, it was a mistake, and I assure you I regret it as much as you do."
"Ah, then you didn't mean to call me that?"
"No, sir; I wrote 'robber' very distinctly.'
"Sponsive audience.
The two-pianoforte recital, made popular betterson, has been adding advocates to its charms. Both Miss Ward and Miss Anderson music transcribes effectively for this combination, but the Mozart Duettino proved very successful. Of the modern group, the Cassella pieces met with instant success.
