European Peace Problems The Polish Corridor, one of the prob-lems of European peace, and one of the polits of German Irritation, is a strip of land running from Poland proper to the free city of Danzig. Gaoline Mixture Gasoline requires to be mixed with order to make it explode. According to an authority, from 1.4 to 6.4 per cent of, gasoline makes an explosive mixture with air; a greater percent-age of gasoline burns without explo-sion. To burn gasoline completely, about 16 pounds of air is needed for each pound of gasoline. The force or power of the explosion depends on the amount of compression of the charge of gasoline vapor and air. It is usu-ally compressed to a third or a quar-ter of its former volume, say from 15 pounds per square linch at the end of the compression stroke of the plston. During the hundred years required for its construction, civil wars and revolutions alternated with depressions and lack of funds in preventing an early completion of the work, and its walls have seen more history during the construction period than many other completed cathedrals have seen in their entire existence. Indians from the surrounding moun-tains contributed some of the most precious carving, both in wood and stone. Indian labor raised the glant dome, piece by piece, in this rarefied atmosphere until it towered 215 feet above the remainder of the building. To walk endlessly to get to the next house. After waiting quite a while the door was opened and there appeared a very warm-looking young man holding a frying pan in one hand and a broom under his arm. "Good morning," said Justine, using the most ingratiating tone of voice. "May I have just a word with your wife?" American History Picks

The Hebrews, Greeks and Romans, Britons and Gauls invested it with a sanctity which in-spired reverence. The Romans dedi-cated it to Jupiter and gave wreaths of oak leaves, called "civic crowns" to citizens for unselfish deeds. In one of the oldest books of the Bible we find this reference to the oak: "And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their earrings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them underneath the oak of Schechem."

American History Picks April for Big Affairs Just why American history has a ga-laxy of its major events in April is a question for the astrologers to ponder. All but one of our wars, for instance, began in that month. The battles of Concord and Lexington occurred April 19, 1775. The first bloodshed of the Mexican war took place April 25, 1846. The Civil war began with the attack on Fort Sumter, April 12, 1831, and ended with the surrender of Lee at Appomattox April 9, 1865. Five years later, Lincoln was assassinted. War was declared against Spain on April 25, 1898, and against Germany on April 6, 1917. Marines landed at Vera Cruz on April 21, 1914. Other landmarks of the month are: opening of First congress, April 6, 1789; signing of Lon-don naval treaty, April 28, 1906; 360 Francisco earthquake, April 18, 1906; Jefferson's birth, April 18, 1743; Ponce de Leon's discovery of Florida, April 8, 1513--81, Louis Post-Disnatch. Watch for Any Victims Spiders are small gods, living soll-tary, unsocial and predacious lives. They sit in their webs or near their webs, watching for the innocents of the insect world. They contemplate their surroundings with eight or twelve eyes and enmesh their victims with in-numerable strands of slik from thy spinnerets beneath their abdomens. Most spiders have seven principal slik glands with which to weave, the vic-tims and go ballooning. In the contests between bull and dog, it was the dog's duty to seize the bull by the nose and hold him, for the bull would gore his adversary if pos-sible. The nose of the bull, when seized by the dog, had a tendency to swell, thus shutting off the dog's breath, making him lose his hold. The nature of the sport, therefore, made the hereders of the dogs which participated develop animals for the following points: First, low-set dogs that were hard to gore; second, cour-ageous dogs that went far and fairly in; third, dogs whose up-turned noses enabled them to breathe comfortably while the bull's flesh swelled, and fourth, dogs whose teeth were so short that no unnecessary damage was done to the bulk.—Boston Herald.
