

Gypsies Vacate Store on Judge's Warning

Tried in Local Court Wednesday Morning on Garbage Complaint—Dismissed but Judge Warns Them about Further Trouble—Leave Soon After

Andover's gypsy population again had a busy time with the local police force this week, the high spot being the sudden moving of the Miller family from the store on Essex street late Wednesday forenoon after their king, John Miller, had been warned by Judge Colver J. Stone and Chief of Police George A. Dane that further trouble would mean the tribe's eviction. The warning came during the trial of Joseph Miller, nephew of the king, on a charge of dumping garbage on a public roadside. The case was dismissed.

The charge was brought by Mrs. Lotta Johnson, agent of the Board of Health, as a result of her finding by the side of Lupin road on July 11 some garbage with a ball belonging to the gypsies and a business card of Joseph Miller. Mrs. Johnson had gone to the Lupin road spot as a result of an anonymous telephone call from someone who stated that the gypsies had been seen dumping the garbage there. She and Officer David Gillespie went to the roadside and found the garbage pail and business card.

The evidence being purely circumstantial, the case could not legally be supported. Had the telephone complainant appeared in the court and identified the gypsies, Judge Stone could have meted out a fine. Joseph Miller and the king both denied that gypsies had thrown the rubbish came to visit, and hinted that someone might have planted it to cause the tribe trouble. With an "Excuse me" to Mrs. Johnson, the king stated that she had been trying to get something on them almost every day.

Chief Dane told the Judge that if there was any more trouble from the gypsies, he would contact and ask for a warrant on a charge of disorderliness and creating a disturbance. Judge Stone said he'd give the warrant, and told the two Millers that if anything more happened, they would be put out of town. The king stated that the trouble happened when other tribes came to visit, and he said that if any other came, he would come to the chief and ask him to make them leave.

Shortly after the case was brought to a conclusion, several car loads of material were removed from the Essex street store and the chief was informed that the tribe was moving out and that a few would stay for just two days longer. The South Main street camp still remains, however.

Picnics Enjoyed by Vacation School

This week, the third week of the Vacation school, was picnic week, each department going at the close of their session on different days for an outing. The Juniors on Tuesday took a nature study hike and came back to the lovely big yard at the Kierstead home to eat lunch and have their lesson story. On Wednesday the Intermediates hiked to Prospect Hill where they ate lunch and played games. On Thursday the Kindergartners and Primaries went to Rabbit's pond for their outing.

Today is Open House Day for all departments and each department has sent written invitations to their parents and friends to come and visit the school at its regular work and play.

The school begins its last week Monday. On Wednesday, July 26, the Kindergarten department will go to the Andover Home for the Aged to give a little playlet and sing some of their songs. The closing night's program and exhibition will be on Friday evening at seven o'clock at the South vestry. The program will feature one thing from each department which will be representative of the work done during the school. The exhibition will be open in the afternoon from 3 to 5.

The program follows: Kindergarten—Two little playlets, "Mary's Garden" and "Each Loves His Own Home Best." Primary—A shepherd scene. Junior—A short dramatic sketch. Intermediate—Japan electrically illustrated and selections from the Mikado.

The second week of the Vacation school was a very good one, cool weather, a very even and enthusiastic participation in the work. The week's average was 91 percent of the registration.

In the Kindergarten department the study was on "Birds and Animal Pets" based on the scripture verse "God careth for all creatures." The stories described various phases of animal life, their homes, their food, their characteristic cries, etc. The children dramatized the stories, impersonating the different animals. The final lesson of the week was "The Lost Sheep" or "The Shepherd and His Sheep" bringing out the thought of the heavenly Father's care over the very smallest and helplessly. The handbook was coloring pictures of all the birds and animals, making plasticine nests and birds, making scrap books of animal pictures and completing the miniature garden in the Kindergarten room.

In the Primary division the material presented was to awaken the children's interest in shepherd life found among the desert people by presenting a story each day concerning the life of Abraham as follows: 1. Abraham and Lot (unselfishness). 2. Abraham and the three guests (hospitality). 3. Abraham's sacrifice to God (thankfulness). 4. Abraham's son Isaac and Rebekah (social customs). 5. Review.

In handwork the children made gifts for Mother, drew pictures illustrating the lesson material, and cut out Hebrew word jugs. The Juniors have passed their eighth milestone in their course "Milestones on a Hero's Way." The first five milestones marked the child's advance in self control and self discipline. The milestones following those deal with self advancement and prepare for the social relationships of the child. Handwork has been designed to contribute something of permanent value to the child's character both in its making and use by the child afterwards. Next they are preparing to make gifts for friends or members of their own family. The children have been given a wide variety of articles from which to choose what they want to make.

The theme of the second week in the Intermediate department was "Child Life in Japan." A group dramatized "The Doll Festival" on Thursday. Mr. Green from New York visited the department one day and gave some stories of his visit to Japan which were very interesting and instructive.

Interest Aroused in War Memorial

The question of a war memorial for the town of Andover is again coming to the front, with the V. F. W., Legion, and British Vets interested in the idea. The V. F. W. has appointed a committee to discuss the matter with the two other organizations, but nothing definite has been arrived at as yet. The V. F. W. committee consists of Frank R. Pette, chairman; John M. Erving, Charles W. Bowman, George A. Abbott, and James J. Dugan.

In the fifteen years that have elapsed since the close of the World War, there have been several attempts made to provide a suitable memorial for the town's World War dead, but all the propositions were turned down, though they all received hearty support. It has been felt that the town as a whole is willing to vote for a memorial, but the question of just what kind of a memorial should be provided split the votes so that the actual count was against a memorial.

The V. F. W. met at its meeting Monday night to sponsor an Independence Day celebration again next year and plans are already underway to make the 1934 celebration more extensive in scope than the recent one.

To Widen Morton, Chestnut Streets

No big projects are now being undertaken by the Board of Public Works, although a few minor jobs are being taken care of. A group of men are now working on Dascomb road, where the finishing touches are being put on the gravel roadway. It is being rolled, and later it will be given a touch of tar. The gravel part of Chestnut street was scraped Tuesday, and possibly later a tar application will be given to it. In the near future Chestnut street from Main to Central street will be widened. At present there is almost more roadside between the road and the walk than there is roadway itself.

Morton street to the east of Bartlet street will also be widened and rebuilt soon. A new drain pipe will also probably be put in. The Central road and Ferndale avenue jobs provided for in special articles will be done later in the season.

Work on Schools Nearly Finished

The work provided for at the June meeting of the school committee is coming along rapidly, with some of the projects already finished and others well on their way to completion. The first floor of the high school building has been almost all painted and by the end of next week the basement should be nearly finished. The walls are being painted this year instead of calcimined and as a result they will not have to be done over so often in the future.

The work on the five chimneys on the various school buildings is well along. The three on Samuel Jackson and John Dove have been finished, and the ventilator shaft on the old Punched building is now being rebuilt. Following the completion of this work, the brick layers will go to the Indian Ridge school where there is another chimney in bad shape.

The wall in front of the Bradlee school has been reset as have the steps near the street. These steps had held the water draining from the sidewalk above and as a result they were very dangerous in the winter. They have been all reset; a new step has been laid at the top; and two drains have been put in at the side of the top step to carry off the water. The wall has been reset.

The boiler inspectors from the state found the boiler boiler in bad condition, and something will have to be done about that this summer. The boilers in the Central plant were in better shape than usual. The roof of the new Punched building has been gone over very carefully and all the leaks patched up. In addition the roof over the girls' entrance to the Stowe building has been repaired.

A new water pipe has been laid by the Board of Public Works into the Stowe building from the hydrant between Stowe and John Dove. This is a two-inch line, and should help solve the pressure difficulty which has been bothering for years.

Advance Plans for Corps Competition

Plans for the Legion bugle and drum corps competition which is to take place here August 6 are progressing rapidly with many corps already entered. Last year's winners, the Earle T. Waddell post of Beverly, including Frank L. Smith, former Andover boy, were the first to forward their entry application, and will be on hand to repeat if possible their success last year. The colorful Malden corps, which lost the 1932 championship by an unfortunate accident, and the Lowell corps, one of the largest in the state, will renew their old rivalry. This year Malden has proved a consistent winner in the various competitions held throughout the state.

These corps, together with the newly uniformed Lawrence unit, are among the favorites to rank high in this year's Class A championship event which is to be held at Holyoke in September. The Lawrence Corps is the largest now competing in the state with three sections of 24 men each.

The corps will wear for the first time its new West Point type uniforms of green and silver. Under the leadership of Leo Murphy, drum major, and William A. Barry, Commander of the corps, Lawrence's 72 men led the parade, will offer a thrilling spectacle.

Selectman Frank H. Hardy is honorary chairman of the committee, and Andrew McTermen and Dr. Jeremiah J. Daly are honorary vice-chairmen. Other non-Legionnaires assisting are: Competition committee: Henry C. Sanborn and Alvin J. Zink; grounds committee, Charles T. Gilliard; ticket committee, Lester Hilton, William R. Shaw and Matthew Burns; parade committee, Charles R. Scott, Henry S. Hopper, Chief George A. Dane, Chief Charles F. Emerson, Howell F. Shepard and Charles S. Buchan.

Other committees are as follows: Program: Kenneth Mozeen, chairman; F. Leo Sullivan, W. Winslow Dunnells and Arthur L. Coleman. Tags: Arthur L. Coleman, Thaxter Eaton, Deputy Fire Chief Lester Hilton, C. LeRoy Ambye, Thomas P. Dea, George Beaumont, Harold Wood, Harold Livingston and John Campbell.

Tickets: Thaxter Eaton, Harold Livingston, George Beaumont, Thomas P. Dea, C. Leroy Ambye, John Campbell, Joseph Dagdigan, Lester Hilton, William Shaw and Matthew Burns.

In addition to the non-members mentioned above, Charles S. Buchan, John A. Anderson, Joseph T. Kemmes, and Paul M. Rice are serving on the parade committee. The entire membership of the Legion and corps has been divided into teams, to distribute tickets.

More supplies are needed for the children, such as tennis balls, golf balls, checkers, jackstones, handwork supplies and sand tools, etc. The playground will appreciate any help in this line, and any donations. Those wishing to donate any article are asked to see Miss Davis or Mr. Bissett and Miss Abbot.

The entire playground was invited to a wienie roast at the farm of John Schermer of Salem street, Wednesday. Those attending dinner, or in case of a tie, a competition will be held between 4 and 5 o'clock. A small sum was charged for each child.

Shrinking Violets

The courts of America have been flayed on many occasions for allowing suspected criminals to be dismissed without sentence or fine. At times the criticism has of course been entirely justifiable.

Wednesday the man whose name appeared on the card was brought into court but he and the king both denied that gypsies had thrown the rubbish there. What was the judge to do? The police had only a torn business card as evidence, and the judge was faced by seemingly sincere denials by the gypsies.

Appearing in a court with a charge against a person is nothing to be ashamed of; in fact, it is something to be proud of. It is assisting the public authorities in prosecuting wrong-doing; it is fulfilling a civic duty.

Morbid Curiosity

The gypsies moved out of their Essex street abode Wednesday noon, much to the gratification of the many who had been bothered by their presence there. It is better for the town that they are out, for no community can house in its midst a group of people who are continually getting into trouble without a certain amount of disrepute attaching itself to the community by virtue of their residence there.

There is another side to the story, however, that is one is apt to overlook in censuring these people. Part of the blame for the trouble—a small part probably but a part nevertheless—belongs to those people, children and grown-ups alike, who let their morbid curiosity fall prey to the gypsies' desire to attract attention—who congregated around the Essex street store evening after evening to watch the goings-on.

The gypsies are not actually pleasant to look at. Their clothes are original but not what could be called exactly clean. Their way of living does not meet today's standards. Their business dealings it is reported are not very scrupulous. They showed a decided, and often handy, ignorance of the law. The Essex street home was rather unimpressive with its window shades made of circus posters. Yet they are human beings, just as you and I.

Wednesday afternoon a young man of the tribe was confined to the local jail on a charge of driving a car without a Massachusetts registration and without insurance. A group came down from the gypsy camp to see what could be done about bailing him out, but $600 is a little too high, and the young man had to remain in the town hall overnight.

It is hoped that gypsies never come to live in the town again, but if they do come, no matter how much they like to be sideshow attractions, let us treat them as human beings.

Communication

The State School Question Editor of the Townsman. Due—ahem!—to the limitations of verse, so-called, the writer would like, with your kind permission, to amplify his views somewhat on the above-named subject in just plain prose.

No doubt, the topic has become rather threadbare to some. But there seems prevalent certain misapprehensions which in the interest of truth and fair play it appears to this humble one of your correspondents, should be cleared up, if possible.

Not altogether without design, one fears, on the part of the "opposition" the site selected by the state, in West Andover and Ballastine for the proposed school for the town of Andover, which comprises nearly two square miles of contiguous territory, with the buildings thereon) has been saddled with the stigma of having been obtained by the authorized state real estate agents at exorbitant prices—or certain tracts thereof, at any rate—whereas, although the writer is not an expert—the facts indicate that quite the contrary is the case.

The then head of the Mental Diseases department, the late Dr. Kline, was, it appears, disposed to be fair and equitable both to the land-owners and to the town of Andover itself, in his dealings of proposed dealings, therewith; and it is the expressed opinion of those who should know, that the farms as grouped and the buildings which were held under option, would compare favorably, as to price, with any other situation which they could have acquired. Dr. Kline, as he termed himself, as stating that the site was ideal for the purpose intended, and the best that the state could find anywhere!

Why not give things a fair appraisal? As for the locality itself, Dr. Kline is again quoted as having declared that "geographically"—i. e., taking into account the density of population—the point of preference seemed to light on West Andover, or near it; and to enlarge Belchertown to capacity "at one fell swoop," as has been proposed, would be to throw the whole scheme out of balance—or so it seems.

At any rate, considering the magnitude of the proposed state school, as it would be when fully developed, such coercive measures as, it is alleged, have been adopted to prevent the carrying out of this project, to date, savor somewhat of the tail attempting to waggle the dog.

Were not to "live and let live" a better policy; and let progress take its course? It seems that altogether too much of a "bugbear" has been made of what, after all, is merely an educational institution, of a kind, looking to aid those (while yet young) of retarded mental development. And what motive more worthy? THINK IT OVER

Book, Trees Mementoes of Late Pastor's Years Here

Rev. Frank Barrows Makepeace, who died of pneumonia in Hartford, Connecticut on July 7 after a short illness, was pastor of the Free Congregational church from 1881 to 1888. During his seven years here he established a pioneer career in popular lectures out of which grew his book, as incisive as its title, "Fresh Breads for Fishers of Men."

The funeral of the late Rev. Mr. Makepeace was held on July 10th at the South Congregational church in Granby, Conn. Many of his former parishioners being present. Floral tributes were also sent by several churches of which he had been pastor.

Mr. Makepeace was born on February 16th, 1848, at Attleboro, Massachusetts, and was the son of Lysander Otis Makepeace and his wife, Esther Otis Granby, Conn. He established the now famous memorial service for fishermen lost on the Banks. In 1876 he went to Champlain, N. Y., where he was installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church. After five years service there he was called to the pastorate of the Free church.

From Andover he was called in 1888 to the pastorate of the North Congregational church in Springfield, Massachusetts, a church rich in traditions of strong ministers, including President Soley of Smith College and Washington Gladden. Mr. Makepeace remained there for ten years and after a short interval as acting president of the Bible Normal college, went to Trinity Congregational church in New York City where he served seven years. He then decided to retire and took up his residence at Granby, Connecticut, but was persuaded to take the pastorate of the South Congregational church where he preached eight years before his final retirement. Until quite recently he acted as supply pastor for two winters preached at Tryon, North Carolina. His record of sixty years in the ministry was unusual and his success is shown by the fact that in many years of active ministry no communion passed without some new member being added to the church. He was a most diligent pastor, an able preacher and a winning friend. His mind was fresh and constructive and, next to the ministry, his greatest interest was in anything that grew, plants, flowers, and children.

Mr. Makepeace leaves surviving him his widow, who lives at 250 Columbia Boulevard, Waterbury, Connecticut, and three children, Judge Walter D. Makepeace of Waterbury, Conn.; Helen M. Lillie, wife of Professor Ralph S. Lillie of Chicago University, and Frank B. Makepeace, Jr., of Greenwich, Conn. He also leaves nine grandsons and two granddaughters.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon. Services were conducted at the late home at two o'clock by Rev. Newman Matthews, pastor of West Parish church, assisted by Rev. Robert S. Hall, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church of Lawrence. Interment was in Spring Grove cemetery. The bearers were: Burke Thornton, Fred Whittier, Rudolf Nessler, Harry Foster, David May and Frank Holt.

Clan Johnston Notice. Clan Johnston No. 185, O. S. C., will hold its meeting at 7:30 tonight in Fraternal hall. All members are earnestly requested to attend as business of vital importance is to be discussed. The drawing for the candlesticks will also take place.

NORTH PARISH CHURCH. 10:30, Sunday, Rev. R. J. Raible of Greenfield will preach in exchange with Mr. Beane. This is the closing service for the summer. Services will be resumed as usual on the Sunday following Labor Day, the second Sunday in September.

Camp Andover Girls Leading Busy Life

Local Girl and Sister of Rev. Mr. Noss Among the Counsellors—Also a Japanese Girl—All Enjoying Interesting Program

The past two weeks have been active ones for 66 girls, now sun-tanned and rested, after a vacation at Camp Andover on Poms pond. From seven o'clock in the morning, when the young ladies arise to take a morning dip in the cool water of the pond until nine at night when "Taps" is sounded, there is not a single idle moment for the campers. Swimming, boating, and canoeing, as well as other athletics, are enjoyed daily, and instruction in handicraft, nature, and first aid forms an important part of the camp program in the afternoon. No two days, however, are alike on the hill at the northern end of Poms pond, as the girls adopt the nomadic life of the gypsy and on the next they become jurors, witnesses, or attorneys as one of their numbers is tried on criminal charges in a mock trial.

Camp Andover attracts most of its campers from Boston and vicinity, with many more from the North Shore. The Boston girls are under the personal direction of Miss Dorothy Bourne of Bourne, Mass., assisted by a council of 12 school and college girls. Among these are Miss Helen Ripley, a local girl and a student at Bryn Mawr, and Miss Barbara Noss of Lancaster, Penn., and Japan, sister of Rev. Mr. Noss, who is in charge of the camp. Miss Ripley is musical director and conducts the hiking parties.

Tomorrow afternoon the camp is to hold a field day, which will be attended by parents and friends in addition to many specially invited guests from Andover. The country club will be in charge of the day, and all the girls will be dressed in appropriate rural costumes. In the afternoon there will be country dances, stunts, and amusing skits about country life. During the fair, Poms pond will drop its old, historic name and become merely the "Old Swimming Hole." A country supper will be served in the evening, and to conclude the program an old-fashioned barn dance will be held in the Lodge.

Last night a mock trial was the special evening event and on Monday there was a play tournament. Tuesday's program will probably leave the most lasting impression in the minds of the 66 campers. This was a gypsy camp, and the girls, all dressed in gypsy costumes, the counsellors opened the day by singing gypsy songs. The campers then hiked to the bank of the Shawsheen river, where breakfast was cooked. Further gypsy rites and ceremonies were held in a grove near the river. Following this, the girls and campers had a swim in Foster's and were then ready to eat a tasty dinner prepared on the beach. After a period of rest, the hikers returned to Poms, on whose shores a gypsy supper was served in the evening.

Next week will be the final one for many who are leaving on Thursday for their homes upon the termination of the Mount Vernon camp. About fifteen are staying in the month, and on Thursday seventy more girls will arrive to benefit from the health-giving benefits of the outdoor life on the hill. On Monday a canoe trip is planned, to be followed by an overnight hike to Prospect hill, while on Tuesday the counsellors will entertain the campers with skits and stunts. Sometime during the week there will be a treasure hunt. The concluding event for the present group is to be held Wednesday evening. This is the "Farewell Feast," a dinner with many guests present and plenty of singing and vaudevilles.

Religion is an important part of the camp curriculum. Each morning a service is held, and on Sundays special speakers conduct the services. Last Sunday Rev. Ralph Rowse, superintendent of the City Missionary society, preached and this Sunday a pilgrim service will be held with Rev. Carl Kopf, non-church of Boston, speaking in the evening.

Miss Dorothy Bourne, who is director at the camp, is a graduate of Boston University and Columbia. She lives in Bourne, Mass., and has served at Camp Andover for several years. Each year a foreign counsellor is appointed. In recent summers an Austrian girl and a Yugoslavian girl have assisted at the camp. This year Miss Tamayo Nishimoto of Honolulu is serving in this capacity. She is an assistant in handicraft instruction and graduated from the University of Hawaii.

In addition to the ladies are members of the camp council: Pauline Starks of Hartford, a Wellesley girl and the swimming instructor; Clara Marchacos of Lowell, a graduate of the Lowell state teachers' college and instructor in handicraft; Maria Moores of Everett, the camp nurse; Janice MacDougall of Boston; Patricia Dabney of Newton, a Smith college girl who is a general counsellor; Elizabeth Rogers of Dorchester, another general counsellor and a student at Wheaton; Jessie MacNeil of Roxbury, the bursar, who attended the Hickox Secretarial school in Boston; Jean MacDougall of Jackson, college; the counsellor in charge of dramatics; and Marie Gebauer of Alston, dietitian at the Brookline high school, who is cook. E. Ben Rand of Danville, Vt., is superintendent of the grounds and instructor in nature study, and graduated from the University of Vermont.

"Burning the Clavie" Is Sacrifice to "Fire God"

"Burning the Clavie," a sacrifice to the "god of fire," which, according to tradition, dates back to the sacrificial fires which Druid priests offered in their stone circles over 2,000 years ago, was observed some time ago by the fishermen of Burghard. The clavie is an Archaic tar barrel affixed to a salmon fisherman's pole by a specially prepared nail, and was driven home, in the days of the Druids, by a stone. This ceremony is almost the last public survival of many superstitious practices which formerly ruled the lives of the fishing folk around the Scottish north-east coast. The rites are supposed to put to flight for the ensuing year all the evil spirits which haunt the mastheads and rigging of fishing vessels, and while little faith is attached to the powers of the modern ceremony, it is no less fascinating than formerly, when great solemnity marked the occasion. It is interesting to record that a member of the same family held the position of "clavie skipper" for nearly a century. The charred fragments are looked upon as lucky tokens, and many pieces find their way to the uttermost parts of the world.—Montreal Herald.

Some Cheese in History That May Be Recalled

Lucullus, whose feasts were the talk of Rome, topped off his parties with goat's milk cheese. Napoleon learned from his saddle to kiss the peasant girl who first introduced him to Camembert. Edward the Seventh found Roquefort an ideal aftermath to mushrooms and patekes de luxe.

Doctor Johnson, whose life Boswell celebrated, had his companions drink a toast to the gorgeous cheese set on the dining table. Melted cheese, mixed with sugar and spice, spread on toast, whetted the appetite of Louis XVI in the dining room of the Grand Trianon. Marie Antoinette played at creating Neufchatel cheese, known as Saint Gervais in her day, on her Versailles farm.

Liederkrantz, a cross between Camembert and Limberger, was named by its inventor, an American, after a singing society to which he belonged.—Cheese Reporter.

"White" on Moths Ultraviolet

Butterflies and moths, as seen by each other, are very different from the way they appear to human beings, because they see ultraviolet radiations and reflections beyond the range of the eye of man. The American Museum of Natural History has demonstrated this by taking photographs of butterflies, moths and flowers in which only the ultraviolet patterns were visible. It was found, for instance, that all patches and spots on butterflies and moths which appear to be Chinese white to the human eye were in reality a deep ultraviolet in hue. Other white shades were also found to be ultraviolet when seen by the insects.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Brought No Crops

The first people to settle the American continent brought nothing with them but the dogs that trotted at their heels. Their agriculture did not come from Egypt or the valley of the Nile, according to a member of the division of historical research of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, which wheat, rice, barley and millet, the staples of Egypt, Mesopotamia and China, did not appear in the Mayan and Aztec civilization until after the arrival of Columbus. Hence, they developed their own crops—Indian corn, lima beans, tobacco and cotton.

Gypsy Tries to Dodge $100 Fine

Nick Demetro, 22, a gypsy was fined $100 in District court yesterday morning on a charge of operating an uninsured automobile. His attorney immediately decided to appeal the case, but after some time he tried to persuade Judge Albion G. Pierce to let it go for the court costs, but Judge Pierce, refused to, having had gypsies in court before. The $100 was finally paid.

Demetro was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Officer Arthur Jowett in conjunction with Inspector Perry of the Registry of Motor Vehicles who was operating a speed trap in Shawsheen. The car had Rhode Island plates, but the address on the registration was 126 Valley street, Lawrence. The car was purchased in Boston and registered in Rhode Island, possibly to dodge insurance. Jowett testified that Demetro said he had been residing here since May.

Romance and Ann
By ALICE DUANE

ANN DUGAN was young and romantic. She couldn't help being young, for she had lived only nineteen years. She couldn't help being romantic either. Ann was part and parcel of her age and generation.

Spring and Ann had possession of the Dugans' garden.

In the garden, but not in possession, was a youth of about Ann's age. He was never in possession, so far as Ann was concerned. He was the first, after Ann, to acknowledge that fact. He had been in love with Ann, perhaps since their first year together in high school. He had known the fact, and declared it, the day they were graduated. Now, after three years at college—he was home for a week-end—he was surer than ever of his feelings toward Ann. But he was no surer of Ann.

"But Carl," she said, looking pathetically at him out of the corner of her long eyes, "how on earth can you expect me to tie myself down to a promise to marry you after you have finished college—another whole year—and then get established in business?"

"But hang it, Ann," said Carlton Pratt, "I don't see why you can't. It isn't as if I was far away. I've been home every week-end this winter just in the hope of getting a date with you, and I've been left high and dry most of the time, too. And it isn't as if you'd come to college like most girls, though goodness knows I'm glad you didn't. I like you best just as you are. Only—"

"Only you think I ought to stay away from parties and just sit here and think about you and wait for you till you come bravely, romantically back from college to claim me. Now, Carl, wouldn't that be silly? If you were going away to a crusade or something, some sort of exciting adventure, I'd wait for you."

"You would? Do you love me, Ann?"

"Oh, Carl, how can I tell I mean, it would be so exciting to wait for you to come back a hero and claim me. Don't you see? Nothing ever happens to you—nothing exciting to me. Oh, don't get peeved." Ann straightened up and leaned forward in the long chair. "I mean, you make a good frat and we all get steamed up over that. And then you take honors in psychology, and we get all steamed up over that."

"I worked hard for you, Ann." There was a dogged, hurt tone in Carl's voice.

"Oh, of course, Carl," said Ann impatiently. "I know that. I appreciate all that. But it isn't exciting, Carl." Carl rose from his position on the grass at Ann's feet.

"Well, I guess I'll be running along Ann. My news today won't thrill you."

Six or seven hours later Ann, and the spring night, were in possession of another garden. The only other person in that dreamworld was the good looking young man beside her.

"Listen Ann," he said; "dear little Ann." The man's lips brushed her cheek. "To think this is the third time we've met. But you'll marry me, won't you, Ann?"

"But Stephen," breathed Ann. "I don't—I mean, you don't really know me. How can we be sure?"

"A thousand years, Ann—or a few seconds. What does it matter?"

"Excuse me," said an excited, rather harsh voice behind them. "Oh, Ann! Is that you? Sorry to disturb you—but this dance is mine."

"Why Carlton Pratt! How dare you?" said Ann.

What happened then happened so quickly that Ann never quite knew how it all came about. But Carl, a moment later, had Ann in his arms and the dapper Stephen Van Dyke was prone on the ground where Carl had thrown him. Excited dancers were crowding from the house, and two strangers were fastening handcuffs on the prostrate figure. One of them showed Carl a string of pearls. "Here they are, mister," he said.

Explanations, of course, Carl was the hero of the hour, and Ann blushing shared the hour with him. Later, when they were alone, she said, "But how did you know he was a crook, Carl?"

"I didn't exactly," said Carl. "But I've met him a couple of times and I hated him because you seemed to like him. And I'd heard of these robberies, of course. He'd get acquainted with people and then steal their jewelry. And tonight I had a hunch the thief would be at the dance, he was a sort of Raffles, you know, a gentleman burglar. And I saw Van Dyke going into the garden with you. The detectives had come with me. I followed you, and what I heard him say to you about a thousand years and all that rot made me see red, so I told the detectives I thought he was their man. Well—he was. Can you forgive me, little Ann?"

Ann shuddered in Carl's arms. "Don't call me that, just say Ann, rather crossly, as you usually do. Only now, Carl, I'm in love with you, you know."

"Ann darling."

"Carl," said Ann softly, "what was the news you were going to tell me this afternoon?"

"Well—" Carl hesitated. "Ann, it isn't very exciting. Only I've been offered a job at college after I am graduated, teaching in the psychology department. It means we could get married next year at commencement. Could you wait, Ann?"

"You silly," said Ann. "Of course."

When Steamboat Trade Boomed

Steamboat trade on the Mississippi reached its highest peak in the 50s and on the Missouri between the years 1855 and 1860. Fifty-nine steamboats were operating on the lower Missouri in 1858. Before the Civil war most boats paid for themselves and yielded good profits as there was practically no competition. The whole aspect was changed by the war. Many boats were taken over by military authorities and the war activities on the river interfered with trade. Later the building of the railroads took away most of the river traffic and after 1887 steamboats were practically useless.

President's Salary

The salary of the President is $75,000 a year. President Hoover made a voluntary cut of 20 per cent in his salary, making it $60,000. An annual appropriation of $25,000 is made for his traveling expenses, but in most years this is not spent and a large balance remains in the treasury. There is also a large annual appropriation made by congress for the upkeep of the White House, apart from the President's ordinary household and personal expenses. His salary as President is not subject to income tax; any income from outside investments, etc., is subject to taxation.

Elements Recognized

Eighty-eight elements are generally recognized by chemists and claims have been made for the discovery of four more, for which places can be assigned in the periodic system, namely, elements of atomic numbers 43, 61, 85 and 87. There is some uncertainty about each of these.

Creatures of the Veldt Are Afraid of Hunters

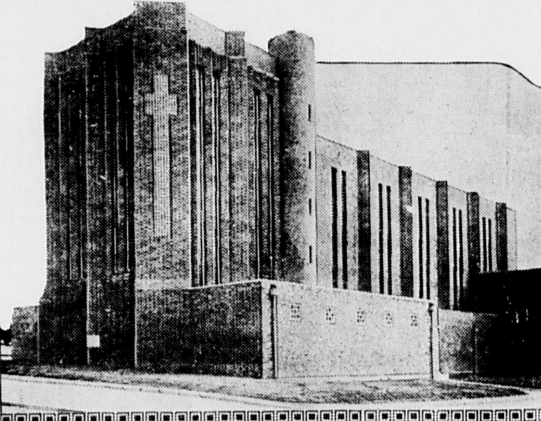

Antelopes, zebras, pigs, and smaller creatures of the veldt, such as wild dogs, jackals, little cats, and others, are wildly afraid of man. They have been hunted, trapped, chased by dogs, and shot at so consistently by both whites and natives that they know they have no chance. Therefore it is not surprising to find mother animals of these species apparently deserting their young when a man finds their hiding place. At times, in their anxiety, they have come so close that I have had the greatest difficulty in restraining my natives from going after them, writes a correspondent in Tit-Bits Magazine. But these mothers could do nothing against us, and knew it.

Lions, buffalo, elephants, rhinos, and leopards can and do fight furiously and recklessly in defense of their young. Elephants will track a party which has captured a calf and attack a camp in an effort to rescue. Lions always keep a watchful eye on the lair where their cubs lie hidden, and woe betide any man who attempts to carry the cubs away.

Pronghorn a Native American

The buffalo is given the credit of being a real native American, but the bison is no more so than the pronghorn antelope which is not so widely known. Fossil remains of prehistoric mammals closely related to the comparatively few living pronghorn antelopes have been found only in western North America and in Mexico. It therefore seems reasonable to consider the American pronghorn as distinctively American, both in its origin and habitat.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

The Veterans looked great as they blanked the Greeley outfit 7-0 on Tuesday. Henry Porter and Red Stack were hitting the ball hard; Ev Collins was laying down perfect bunts and catching foul balls nonchalantly; John Welch was pulling down balls labelled for extra bases in left field; and Barney O'Neil was doing well on the mound. The other players, too, were trying for everything and playing heads-up ball. The ball Dodge just missed in center field any other player in town would have waited for on the first bounce. With Petty and Welch in there the Vets could have taken any team in the league.

The Greeley's, too, tried hard. Fred Westcott held tenaciously to the ball thrown by Platty to get Riplee stealing, while Joe Hanson in center field made a beautiful stop to hold somebody's triple to a single. Joe Hughes was the other victim in addition to the Greeley team. Twice the Veteran right fielder went down for the count of nine. Stickney's throw to first hit him behind the ear, and as he was scoring he hit on the shoulder. Next time Joe plans to wear a helmet and shoulder pads.

The schedule for the remainder of the season follows: July 25, Pioneers at Veterans; 26, Greeley's at Post Office; 27, Townsman at Homestead; August 1, Veterans at Townsman; 2, Post Office at Pioneers; 3, Homestead at Greeley; 8, Greeley at Pioneers; 9, Post Office at Townsman; 10, Homestead at Veterans; 15, Veterans at Post Office; 16, Greeley at Townsman; 17, Homestead at Pioneers.

After receiving harsh criticism and scathing denunciations on all sides for giving so much praise to the Townsman team in our weekly write-ups, we vowed not to commit this crime this week. But what can we do? The Townsman went out Wednesday night and became the first league team this year to defeat the Pioneers, who were winners of the first half honors. The team completed two double plays and almost made a triple killing. One of the double plays came after a nice banded catch of a hot drive by Bobby Deyermund. And the victory was due to good fielding, for Bobby, who usually fans ten men a game whiffed only half that number, and 14 Pioneers reached first base. Bob did pitch a swell game but his support if we may say so, was not bad either. Jerry Winters had a dandy time burning up the bases, having two thefts to his credit.

It is the dawning of a new era for the Press, no doubt, and we would not be surprised to see the Vets beat the Pioneers next week if they play as they did Tuesday. Or would that make it look as though it were in the bag? We cannot pick out any individual stars to laud, for they were all good on both teams.

The Pioneers played an excellent game, but the Townsman just had its one big night. And may it have another one next week when they meet the Homesteaders.

The Post Office pulled a surprise last night when they trimmed the Homestead association 8-1 at the bumpy Balmoral ballpark. Fran Daly had the situation well in hand throughout the game and kept the six hits he gave well scattered. Fran also drove out a single and a double in two trips to the plate.

Thus it seems that the Industrial League race is going to be a hard-fought one in the second half. The Pioneers and the Shawshen group have already been defeated, and the two teams were the favorites. The Post Office, Vets, and Townsman have shown new power, and the Greeley team cannot yet be counted out of the running, for they are to add a couple of new players the coming week. It may be that the race will end in a tie.

Sunday afternoon the Medford Tigers, an all-star colored aggregation, will oppose the Trojans at the Playstead in an exhibition game. Nearly all the players starred for college teams in Dixie, and many of them have been playing exhibition ball for several years. The catcher formerly played for the famous Philadelphia Colored Giants and caught at North Carolina college for four seasons. Two of the colored boys were members of St. Paul's college in Virginia. The shortstop, a fellow named Burksdale, batted for .523 and made only one error in the field, while the pitcher, Robinson, won every game he twirled for this team.

The second annual junior tennis tournament for juniors at the Balmoral courts is to be held a week from next Tuesday, August 1. Prizes will again be awarded to the winners. Last year the champions were Frank O'Brien, Jr., in the older division and Robert Neal among the younger children. The tournament will again be under the direction of Henry Simmers and James N. Cole. It is expected that many entries will be received, as the first tournament last year interested many other children in the sport. Those who competed in the matches last August have been practicing diligently since then, and a real first class brand of tennis should be played at Balmoral on the first of August.

Other details concerning the tournament will be announced soon, and those who plan to enter should watch the press during the coming week in order to learn the age limits, place of entry, and the list of prizes.
