To Add Soccer Field, Two Tennis Courts

Present Playstead Facilities to Be Increased by Projects under ERA—Work to Start after Sewer Construction Is Completed

Two tennis courts and a new soccer field, with consequent enlargement of the left field area of the baseball diamond, will be added shortly to the present playing facilities at the Playstead, it was announced this week. The work will be done by the E.R.A. under Dr. J. J. Daly, local administrator. Approval has already been received from the E.R.A. officials in Boston, and work will begin as soon as the Corbett street sewer is finished.

The two tennis courts will be located on the Chestnut street side of the playstead on the left of the first base bleachers as one faces them. They will be made either of clay or of the flexible tarvia which has become very popular in municipal tennis courts. The Board of Public Works will have jurisdiction over the courts when finished.

The soccer pitch is to be located in the far section of the left field area. A banking which has long bothered baseball players will be dug away.

The Corbett street sewer would have been completed this week, had it not been for a ledge which was encountered during the digging. The rock all had to be drilled and blasted, holding up the completion of the job quite a length of time. It is expected, however, that it will be completed in the very near future, and then work will start immediately on the playstead improvements.

The E.R.A. will also improve the outfield in the Ballardvale baseball grounds, it was announced.

Plans for extensive improvements at Spring Grove cemetery are now being prepared. They have to have the approval of the authorities in Boston before any work can be done on them.

Much work is being done on Lowell Junction road. This is possible under a provision of recent legislation allowing communities to make repairs on roads not accepted as public ways, providing that they have been used six years at least by the public. The Lowell Junction road is being straightened considerably. The soccer field and tennis courts have been needed for a long time here in Andover. Last fall the Andover football club of the Boston and District League used the football field, but this spring the turf became so badly torn up that the Board of Public Works had to refrain from granting permits. The soccer club played one game at the old cricket field, and then transferred its activities to the Ballardvale field.

The tennis courts will be the first municipally owned courts that the town has owned. They will fulfill a demand that has been growing very rapidly.

Two Stolen Cars Abandoned Here

Two stolen cars were found abandoned in West Andover this week-end. On Sunday afternoon some blueberry pickers found a late model Chevrolet sedan in an old stone quarry off Chandler road. A checkup revealed that it belonged to Miss Hilda Montgomery of the Aberdeen apartments, and had been stolen on July 24.

Everything of any value had been taken from the car, which had been driven about 200 feet from the road and was completely obscured from view. The berry pickers told George Duemling of their discovery and he notified the police.

On Monday morning while Motorcycle Officer David Gillespie was riding along Beaton street, his attention was attracted to a 1934 Pontiac 8 coupe abandoned in a sandbank. The car, upon checking up, proved to be one stolen last week from the Nevins automobile company. It had never been driven before it was stolen, but when found the speedometer registered 2400 miles. The car had no license plates, and the glass in one of the doors and the rear window were broken. Dust and mud covered the body of the car.

Portsmouth Boy Injured by Truck

John Ross, ten years old, of Portsmouth, N. H., received a serious injury to his right leg last Saturday afternoon when he was apparently pushed in front of a Cross Coal company truck. The youngster had spent the previous week at the home of his uncle, Robert Ross of Essex street, and was returning to Portsmouth on Sunday.

The truck is the one which carries the town children and to and from the Ponds pond bathing beach and was operated by Albert T. Conus, 35, of 80 Greenwood street, Lawrence. Young Ross was waiting with a number of other boys for the truck, and just before it came to a stop he was pushed in front of it. The right front wheel passed over his leg. Dr. Philip W. Blake treated him.

Reading Police Catch Boys in Local Break

Bicycle and Other Loot from Athletic Store Recovered Tuesday Night—Cut Hole in Cellar Door to Make Entrance

Two Malden youths were arrested in Reading early Wednesday morning following a break made in William Poland's athletic shop on Main street Tuesday evening. The two were tried in Woburn district court Wednesday morning for an attempted break in Reading, and then they were turned over to the Malden police who in turn transferred them to the police of Newburyport where they were wanted for a break there on July 29. Yesterday morning Sergeant Saunders journeyed to Newburyport but the boys were held for the Grand Jury on $1000 bail each.

The two boys were John Frisco, 15, who gave his address as Linhurst road, Malden, and William MacDonald, 17, who gave 503 Broadway, Malden as his address.

While making his rounds at 12.10 a.m. Wednesday morning Acting Sergeant William R. Shaw found the grate removed in the rear of the athletic store. Someone had evidently entered through the cellar window, and had gone through the cellar to the door leading into the store. Here he had cut a hole in the panel of the door, put his hand through and unlocked the door. He left the store by unlocking the back door.

Officers Deyermond and Stevens joined the sergeant in searching the premises. Mr. Poland was called but he couldn't determine if anything was missing at the time.

At 1.40 a.m. the local police received a call from the Reading police, who stated that they had two young men down there with articles from an Andover athletic store. The sergeant and Officer Jowett went to Reading to examine the suspects.

The youths had attempted to make a break in a Reading store, but the store owner had remained late in the store. He called the police, but when they arrived, the two thieves had been scared away. The Reading police picked them up later in the woods off the road to Wakefield.

The two youths had with them an Elgin bicycle, and the following loot from the local store: $10.12 in cash, one knee support, two wrist supports, two baseball gloves, one pair men's kid gloves, one silver cigar lighter, three jack knives, five baseballs, one Waterman pen and pencil set, one compact and lipstick, one pair rawhide shoe strings. Frisco had five Yale keys, nine house keys and a gold bracelet, while MacDonald had three Yale keys and two house keys.

Both of the young men it was reported admitted to the local police that they had broken into the local store about 10.30 p.m. MacDonald was on probation from the Shirley school. The Woburn court turned him over to the Malden police and freed Frisco since it was his first offense.

Frank O'Brien, Jr., who was senior division champion last year, is in Ontario, Canada, this summer and so will be unable to defend his crown. Robert Neil, last year's junior division champion, will again compete.

No entry fee is being charged, and the balls will be furnished by James N. Cole and Henry Simmers, who are in charge of the tournament.

Enter State School Suit; Comes Up Soon

The $30,000 suit against Phillips Academy brought by Adam Rennie et al of West Andover as a result of the state school controversy was filed in Superior court in West Andover on Monday morning. It included $286,892.25 in stocks; $185,673.56 in bonds and $16,275.49 in miscellany.

The writ is brought through the office of Edward P. Barry and H. W. Sullivan of Boston and the declaration states that plaintiffs had entered into a contract with David Frye, agent in charge of the department of mental diseases of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for the sale of forty acres of land and buildings on both sides of Argilla road, Andover, for $16,000; that agreement being dated March 4, 1931. The declaration further states that the defendants by their agents and other persons in the department of mental diseases of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts with intent to deprive plaintiffs of the benefits, advantages and profits of this contract, brought influence on the said David Frye or the department of mental diseases of the Commonwealth and its chief executive or other persons in authority to withhold performance of their part of said contract whereby plaintiffs lost the benefits, advantages and profits of the contract all to their great damage.

An estate of $488,841.10 all in personal property, was left by the late Charles L. Carpenter, sugar planter, of Andover, according to an inventory filed in probate court in Andover Saturday morning. It included $286,892.25 in stocks; $185,673.56 in bonds and $16,275.49 in miscellany.

The late Mr. Carpenter was the son of Mrs. C. C. Carpenter and the late Rev. Charles C. Carpenter, of 20 Morton street. ## Beverly Ties National Champions in Contest

Their all-white uniforms lacked the colorful display of other corps, but the drum corps of the Earl T. Wardell post, 12, of Beverly did the impossible at the Legion competition here Sunday by tying the Marlboro corps, state and national champions. Each had 90.3 points. They received prizes of $100 each.

The Beverly corps, which has appeared in all three competitions staged here, has always been a great favorite with local people, and the award last Sunday was well received by the 3000 who flocked to the playstead to witness the competition. The national champions were none the less good even if they were tied; they proved they were champions, but so did Beverly.

Third prize in Class A was won by Les Combatants of Malden, and second prize was won by Lowell post, 87, which is performing remarkably well this year considering that it is in a new class and has had to make drastic revisions in its maneuvering, etc. A loving cup donated by the Essex county commissioners was given this prize to Wilbur Comeau post, 4, of Haverhill.

Lynn post, 6, won first prize of $25 for straight marching in its first year of competition. The Walpole corps received a cup donated by Rep. Thomas J. Lane as second prize.

Major William H. Finn of the Marlboro group was adjudged the best drum major and received a cup donated by the district attorney.

The Big Green corps of Lawrence has made great strides since a year ago, and another year may see it among the state's leading corps. The Stoneham post, one of the smallest seen here, was warmly applauded for its performance.

Miss Hill Retires from Teaching

Miss Carrie Grace Hill, a grammar school teacher in Andover since 1900, retired from teaching on July 25. Miss Hill was principal of the Bradlee school at the time of her retirement.

The school board, not having met since July 25, has not taken any official action. It is probable that no new teacher will be appointed to take Miss Hill's place. At the time of the resignation of Miss Bessie Carter at the Indian Ridge school, it was suggested that Miss Fitzhenry be transferred from the Bradlee school to the Indian Ridge, since the enrollment in the Vale had dropped off to a point where one teacher could be dispensed with.

At the special July meeting it was voted to leave Miss Fitzhenry in the Vale, and Miss Dorothy Kyle was appointed a new grammar school teacher. Miss Kyle may be given the Indian Ridge position.

Play Director in Lowell Hospital

Miss Katherine Sullivan of Elm street, who has been directing the Little Theatre Guild at Westford, has been confined to a Lowell hospital as the result of an injury received while the group of players was travelling to Boston in a bus recently. The bus operator applied his brake suddenly, and Miss Sullivan injured her back when she was hurled back against her seat. It is uncertain whether she will be able to continue her work this summer.

The Guild will present Emily Bronte's "Moor Born" on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pop Concerts at Symphony Hall, and originator of the "Gay Nineties" nights is honor guest at the opening of "Gay Nineties Week" on Wednesday evening. "Ten Nights in a Barroom," an old melodrama familiar to many older theatre-goers, was presented by the Lake Shore Players as the feature attraction of this week, one of unusual entertainment and mirth for drama lovers in this vicinity. The production was repeated Thursday and Friday evenings. The audience was invited to appear in costume, giving the true atmosphere of the 1890 period.

This sterling American drama depicts a series of truthful scenes in the course of a drunkard's life. Some of them are touching and extreme, and some are dark and terrible. Step by step is portrayed the downward course of the tempting vendor and his infatuated victim, until both are involved in hopeless ruin. The play is marred by no exaggerations, but exhibits the actualities of life with a severe simplicity and adherence to truth that gives to every picture a graphic vividness. The large audience seem to be in full sympathy with the moral of the story, and laugh at Samuel Switcheel, sympathize with poor drunken Joe Morgan, and weep at the death of little Mary.

Among those appearing in the production are: Alan Merrick Fishburn, Donald Towers, James O'Rear, Sanford Bickart, Edwight Arlington, Frederica Frederick, Berilla Kerr, Helen H. Munns, Rosalind Poulston, Nelson A. Powers, and Sinesy P. Marland.

Another feature of the "Gay Nineties Week" will be the presentation of Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women" in a special children's matinee on Saturday at 3.00 p.m., and an evening performance at 8.00 p.m.

Zoning Andover

All those who are proud of Andover and who want this town to enjoy a reputation of being attractive will be very glad to learn that the planning board, which has been more or less on the shelf for the last few years, has once again become active.

Municipalities have the very unfortunate habit of paying too much attention to the present and forgetting the future. Officers elected for a short term give no thought whatsoever to what their successors may have to do, and for this reason most of their work has been purely makeshift in character.

In larger municipalities the city officials can justifiably be blamed, but in small New England towns where the town meeting itself has had an opportunity to accept a forward-looking plan, it is the voters of the town who are to blame if in the future many sections of the community are unsightly.

Not all of the United States Constitution has been forgotten since March 4, 1933, and the section is still in effect that makes it much harder to make a man tear down an undesirable building than it is to deny him the privilege of erecting an undesirable building.

The Gloucester Chamber of Commerce, which recently had a nude drawing removed from a jewelry store window, evidently acts on the old principle: "no nudes is good nudes."

An Associated Press dispatch which appeared in the Boston papers told of a horse drawing a wagon of the town sanitation department running wild on Whittier street.

As we remember the word "nationalize" from the gold nationalization, it means "to take away from," doesn't it?

They nationalized our gold; they nationalized our silver; and pretty soon when we don't have anything else left, they'll nationalize our coppers.

Headline: "More New Deal, Says Roosevelt." Does "More New" mean "newer" or more of the same old new deal?

We feel sorry for the B. P. W. about those tennis courts. Imagine having to decide which player out of a hundred or so are to use the courts at a given time.

and support of the townspeople. Andover will be a far better place to live in if it will listen to its planning board.

Editorial Cinders

At a town meeting two years ago the town voted to petition the director of accounts of the State Department of Corporations and Taxation for an annual audit of the town accounts. In 1932 two auditors were sent out from the state house to examine the local accounts in response to the petition, but last year the books remained unaudited and to date this year there has been no indication whatsoever that the 1933 books will be audited.

The news from the local E.R.A. administrator that two tennis courts and a new soccer field are to be constructed on the playstead without in any way interfering with the other playing fields is most welcome to all lovers of athletics in Andover. This town has never had any municipally-owned tennis courts, and this has impeded the development of a very fine healthful sport here in the center of the town.

The next day I had liberty at 8.00 in the morning so a bunch of us took a trip to Pompeii. I sure had a swell time seeing the ruins. There were a lot of vendors in the streets near the entrance to the old Pompeii who were selling beads and carnos. A man wanted a dollar for a string of beads that I wanted but I wasn't going to pay a dollar when I could get him down. After a few minutes when the bus started to leave he agreed to let me have them for 75c.

We had to be back on the ship at 1.30 p.m. that day to practice manning the rail to receive the Prince of Piedmont. At 2.00 he came aboard and inspected us and then left. Tuesday, 17 July, I came to Rome on a C. I. T. tour. As you can probably see part of our gang came to the Ludovisi hotel. We all went to see the ambassador that afternoon.

Then we drove around the city and saw the old Roman Forum, etc. Then at 5.00 in the city we went to see Mussolini. He gave us a speech which was much like all the rest of the speeches he told us of the friendly relations that existed between the U. S. and Italy and of the fine young men that we were and what good officers we would make.

Yesterday morning we went through the Vatican and saw the museum which must be the greatest in the world. When we went into St. Peter's they were pulling up the floor which was made of granite. The granite was from the original church that was built about 200 A.D., and I have a piece of the deck. We also had audience with the Pope and had his blessing on a Rosary that I had bought for that purpose.

The fellow I was with said, "Let's get a donkey to ride so we hired one for an hour after understanding that the 5 francs we paid apiece was that only took care of the donkey. The man wanted 5 francs for himself so after much arguing we had to cough it up. On the donkey trip we were with some of the filthiest streets and dwellings that I have ever seen—local color. The Sultan's palace was old and pictured in mosaic. Nothing impressive. When we came back to Gibraltar I spent my last dollar on a silk bandana and a pair of earrings. I shall close now and go find a place to sleep where no working party will come along and grab me.

Barbers, Bootblacks with Champion Drum Corps

Do national champions travel in style? We'll say they do; at least they do if their position as national champions depends on keeping all their equipment spic and span to the very minutest detail.

The Marlboro post Legion bugle and drum corps won the national championship last year, and a glance at their retinue as it appeared here in town last Sunday will show just how careful our Legionnaires are to keep everything just right so that the keen eyes of the inspection judges will be unable to find anything out of place.

Two button shiners, two barbers, and two bootblacks, a custodian of hats, and eight orderlies accompany the Marlboro group on its prize-seeking ventures. Their clothes are contained in five large wardrobe trunks and a huge hat case, in which each hat is individually packed.

The Marlboro corps travels in busses which are similar to little French box cars with compartments. The trips for all these reasons prove very expensive, but in drum corps competitions as in everything else you have to spend money to make money.

The inspection judges are very particular, as the Old Dorchester corps found out Sunday when it was docked a half-point because one of its members had a little hair on his neck. A barber could have shaved the hair and saved the point. The Old Dorchester corps had a barber with them, but the point-lifter evidently was too much in a hurry. Inspection judges unfortunately do not hurry.

The boys must all wear black stockings, and there are no garterless fads prevalent in any corps that wants to win a prize. The ties must all be the same. One large corps wearing blue ties once had a member who was unable to secure a tie quite the same shade as all the rest. The judge shaded them off a point.

The rules are strict not only on appearance. Even whispering will bring a reduction in point scoring, if you're caught.

Visit to Rome Told in Letter

The last part of the cruise which Midshipman Allan C. Edmonds has taken this summer, is described in a letter to his mother, given below.

Here I am in Rome and I sure like it. We arrived in Naples on the 14th and the first leave party showed off for Rome on that date. I had an Officer of the Deck watch that night and that morning too. They also put me on a reception committee to receive Italian Midshipmen who would visit the ship at an appointed hour that day.

A Friend of the Governor

By RUFUS M. REED

By McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service

STUBBY JOE and Bill Williams sat huddled over the crackling fire that had kindled beside the drab little tool house in the junction railroad yards. Bill was hunched against the building, and he felt deeply grateful for the protection it afforded from the bitter wind. His clothes, though thin and threadbare in spots, gave him an air of distinction not evinced by the shabby appearance of his buddy—Stubby Joe. Bill had known better days.

Adding bits of ties smelly with creosote to the flames, Stubby Joe cursed his luck, as usual. He was a down-and-out because the other guys always got the breaks.

Bill felt weak, and he craved a drink. He was watching Stubby Joe in the detached way he had. Presently, as if to shut out the painfulness of the scene, he closed his eyes, sighed, and sank back against the tool house. Bill was a down-and-out because he was always trying to escape reality through the phantasmagoria of day dreams. Whisky had been his greatest aid. But how is one to get whisky when one doesn't even have two bits?

They had just been kicked out of Sirm Pinson's. Tired, Hungry, cold, they staggered down through the railroad yards to the shelter of the tool house. If they couldn't have food and whisky they could at least have a fire!

"Other guys—dey always git de breaks!" Stubby Joe said bitterly. He was thinking of the scene he had glimpsed through the window of the Busy Bee restaurant back at the junction. The railroad men had been eating sumptuously of roast beef, brown gravy and mashed potatoes. Yes, there'd been cake and pie, and coffee, too!

Stubby Joe drew out something from his pocket—something wrapped in a piece of soiled newspaper. He spread the paper out on his knees, picked up a dirty piece of corn bread and began nibbling at it, stopping now and then to glance at the worn face of his buddy.

Bill had scorned his offer to share the bread with him. He sat, his eyes shut tight, his thin face lit up with a wan smile.

Stubby Joe's jaw sagged. He was staring transfixed at Bill's face. It was handsome—the face of a dreamer, an artist. Bill was always acting strangely, though, always shutting his eyes and imagining he was in some fine mansion where the fire glowed, and there were servants to do one's bidding, and all the Scotch one could drink. Always, Stubby Joe was his valet in these dream-pictures.

But Stubby Joe was cursing now. He was good and sick of this make-believe! He scowled as Bill went on painting the picture of an imaginary ball given by the governor to a number of delightful guests, of which he was one.

Suddenly Stubby Joe lost interest in his companion. His eyes had become fastened upon a fragmentary column in the newspaper.

"Say, Pard!" he cried sharply. "Git an earful of dis!" He was holding his crooked finger under the words he had just read.

"Dis shows how de big guys always git all de breaks!" he rasped. But Bill didn't open his eyes. "What does it say, Stubby?" he asked.

"It—tells here about a guy who must a-been a mighty good friend of de gov'nor. He—de gov'nor—sent dis guy a quart o'—whut does dis spell, Bill—'b-o-u-r-b-o-n'—"

"Bourbon," said Bill. "Gee, that's fine whisky, Stubby!"

Stubby went on, laboriously. "John Flynn—dat's de guy's name—"

"Lucky guy," Bill intoned. Stubby read: "'—was given a quart of bourbon whisky by the governor last night—"

"Ah!" Bill tried to swallow, but his throat was dry. "Go on, Stubby," he cried.

Stubby traced out the dim words. "Flynn seemed to be in fine spirits—"

"I would, Stubby, with a quart of bourbon!"

Stubby squinted at the words. "Flynn took two glasses of whisky—straight—"

Bill interrupted with a smack of his lips. "'—without benefit of chaser—"

"I always like them straight, Stubby!"

Stubby resumed: "He lifted his glass in a toast to the governor—"

"Ah, let's drink to the governor, Stubby!" Bill cried, his face diffused with ecstasy. In every fiber he was Flynn, friend of the governor. He held out his quivering hand, as if clutching a glass. He recited a toast, then pretended to drain off a glass of the bourbon.

Stubby watched him, cursing. "You ain't no lucky guy!" he said, and spat in disgust.

"Read some more, Stubby!"

But there was a deep silence. Bill emptied breathlessly; then "Flynn emptied the bottle of half its contents; then, replacing the cork, he handed it to his guards, and was led back to his cell to await execution!"

"Say, Stubby," Bill cried savagely, "gimme a piece of that corn bread, will you?"

Quite So!

Irate wife: "No, I didn't sew a button on your pants. I was to tired. Which is more important, anyway—your wife or your pants?"

Henpeck: "Well, there's places I can go without a wife, but I gotta have my pants."

Annual Baby Show to Be Held Tonight

The summer playground this evening will be the scene of its biggest annual attraction when the annual baby show will be held. The program, which will be held in front of the bleachers on the football field, will start at 7 o'clock.

Babies will be entered in five divisions: under one year, under two years, under three years, under four years and twins of any age under four years. Blue, red and white ribbons will be awarded as prizes in each division as in former years and the selections will be made by the popular applause of the playground children. William C. Crowley will serve as referee.

Dollar Days in Lowell

Semi-annually, through Dollar Days, which are to be held tomorrow and Saturday, when exceptional values are offered, the stores affiliated with the merchants division of the Lowell Chamber of Commerce, give most definite evidence of their appreciation of the splendid and unflinching patronage given to them by the shoppers of the Greater Lowell district.

The Dollar Days of this week-end will further demonstrate that desire and give additional proof, should the same be necessary, and offer some of the greatest money-saving opportunities ever noted in the stores of the city in the past during a similar event.

These mid-summer Dollar Days are known as the value-giving days of the season. In procuring merchandise for the Days, the recognized ability of the buyers of the Lowell stores has been given a most severe test. All of them, it is said, have come through and have given the assurance that their respective establishments will offer purchase-inducing items for tomorrow and Saturday comparing most favorably with those of former Dollar Days, the extreme value of which built up for the merchants a reputation that has been steadily maintained throughout the period of years that such cooperative events have been promoted by the merchants.

The operation of the various codes now controlling the manufacturing, jobbing and retailing of merchandise presented the greatest obstacle to the buyers, but this was mastered with the result that, without evading any of the requirements or regulations of the codes, it has been found possible to procure merchandise for Dollar Days, which in quality, style, attractiveness and price can be depended upon to bring from the patronage of the participating stores a purchasing desire the equal of that of past Dollar Days.

Confronted as we are with the possibility of a rising market in apparel, food and household necessities, the shrewd shopper should try and foresee his or her wants for many months at least and take advantage of the money-saving items that are held out in the Lowell stores for the next two days.

The official stores, in other words, the participating stores that will offer you serviceable, stylish and seasonal merchandise at great savings, during Dollar Days, can be readily identified by green and white streamers and strips and you are advised to seek them out if you want to be assured of satisfaction and savings in your purchase.

Anyone who can loan a sewing machine for this purpose is asked to communicate with Dr. Daly or the town clerk's office.

To Form Soccer Team

A meeting will be held in the court room Monday night at 7.30 for the purpose of forming a soccer team to represent Andover in the Merrimack Valley league. All interested are asked to attend. William A. G. Kidd, former president of the Andover United, will preside.

Andover Man in Accident

Six persons were injured Saturday when a car driven by Leo Blanchette of 81 Beacon street, West Andover, collided with a car operated by Armond J. Pitre of Fitchburg at Nourse's corner, Bolton.

Mrs. Pitre was rendered unconscious and had to be removed to the Clinton hospital. Five others were cut and bruised.

Will Battle for Local Championship

A series to decide which is the best baseball team in Andover is to begin on Sunday afternoon when the Tyler Rubber company team of the Lawrence Industrial league meets the Andover town team at the playstead at three o'clock. Throughout the present season the local diamond fans have been arguing over the merits of these two teams, and Sunday's game along with the others which are to follow will definitely decide the question.

Some very capable baseball men have been directing the destinies of the two teams. James Ryley, director of club baseball at Phillips Academy for many years and well-known as an umpire, is the manager of the town team. Coaching the Tyler nine is Henry Porter, for twenty years a baseball star in his own right and the manager of many well-known local teams of other days, and managing the Tyler team is James Welch, one of the fastest ball players ever developed in Andover. He scintillated for the old Andover Royals, with which Porter also played, and more recently with the Hardy and Ross team, which Porter managed. The players which these three men have been coaching during the season have benefited greatly.

The rivalry between the two nines is intense, and therefore some very good ball games may be expected during the series. Fran Sweeney, a sophomore at Villanova, will pitch the opening game for the Tyler Rubber team, and he will be opposed by either Jim Ronan, Barney O'Neill, or Lefty Fay Stickey for the town team. Russell Blunt will catch for the rubber workers while Joe Davis will do the backstopping for the Townies. In the infield the town team will probably start with Buff Hurley at first, Sammy Deyermund at second, Al Dimlich at short, and Gus Assian at third. The Tyler team will have Bill White at first base, Bunny Porter at second, Bill Benson at short, and Tommy Low at third. In the outfield Bill Burbine, Fred Sullivan and Ben Dimlich will play for the town team, with Bud Skea, Drum Bissett, and Lester Hilton representing the Tyler outfit.

The umpires who have been chosen to work in this series are Joseph "Red" Stack, another star of other days, and Eddie Lefebvre, who is well-known in local baseball circles.

Pythian Groups to Enjoy Outing

A joint outing will be held by the local Pythian Sisters and Knights at Cannon's way, Raymond, N. H., on Sunday, August 19. The group will make the trip by bus.

The temple held a successful whist party last Monday night at the home of Mrs. Thomas B. Gorrin. Five tables were played.

Beach Party on Next Saturday

Another beach party will be held at Revere next Saturday night, August 18th, by the British War Veterans, according to a vote taken at the meeting last night. This party will be public and will be for men and women.

Competition Notes

The Big Green Corps of Lawrence was neither as big or as green as a year ago.

The most astounding thing about the whole competition was the fact that the announcing system, unlike most announcing systems, actually worked.

Andover's corps were business men rather than musicians. This is the first time they did not give an exhibition at the competition.

Drum Major John Anderson was present, without his sky-scraper hat.

One young lady did not enjoy part of the program, but after her father had responded to the announcement that she was lost and waiting at the announcer's table, the sunshine again peeped through her tears.
