The "Fun" of a False Alarm

Three false alarms sounded here in Andover last Thursday night at about the same time a fire engine in Draeut was answering a needless alarm. The fact that two of the Draeut firemen were killed answering this alarm should impress everyone that ringing the fire alarm is no joke.

It takes only a momentary loss of control to send the truck and all its riders into a crash that may and usually does mean death and serious injury to the firemen.

Editorial Cinders... Someday we hope there will appear an article in a town warrant asking an appropriation for the purpose of erecting respectable-looking quarters for the fire department.

The recent decision of the police department at the request of Judge Stone to curb the "thumbing" here in town by calling offenders into court has had a very encouraging effect.

Tyer and Town Team Meet Again

The third and perhaps final game of the series for the baseball championship of Andover is to be played at the playstead Sunday afternoon at three o'clock when the Town team and the Tyer Rubber Co. will again clash. The first two games have been won decisively by the latter team. The series is a best three-out-of-five affair, and if Tyer wins this Sunday, they will be the 1934 baseball champs in Andover.

The showing of the Town team in the first two games has been disappointing, but they are expected to try all the harder on Sunday in order to get back in the running. Lefty Fay Stickey is Jim Ryley's choice in the box, while Henry Porter will probably send out Ballardvale's Jimmy Bissett, Fran

When Punched Free School Was Opened

At the suggestion of the Andover Historical society we are re-printing in part an article of "timely" interest which appeared originally in the Andover Advertiser September 6, 1856. This paper was published every Saturday at the office of Warren F. Draper, opposite Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

The inaugural exercises of this Institution occurred on Tuesday last. All nature seemed to smile in approbation of the occasion; the day being exceedingly delightful, the throng crowded the spacious hall of the beautiful edifice to its utmost capacity. The order of exercises was as follows: 1. Singing by the Boston Quartet. 2. Invocation and reading portions of the Scriptures by Rev. J. L. Taylor. 3. Prayer by Rev. C. E. Fisher. 4. Singing. 5. Addresses by Gen. H. K. Oliver of Lawrence, Hon. Asahel Huntington of Salem, Francis Cogswell, Esq., of this town, J. W. Perry, Esq., of Salem, Rev. Asa D. Smith, D.D., of New York City, and Rev. James Means of this town. 8. Prayer and Benediction by Rev. Dr. Packard of Lawrence.

An extract from the will of the donor of this munificent gift to the people of the Andovers, Benjamin Hanover Punched, Esquire, was then read. The character of the school, its effect upon the common schools, and the advantages to be derived from it by our community were among the topics discussed. His address should be published and circulated broadcast over both Andovers, that the inhabitants may understand and appreciate more fully the liberal bequest by which a free school of a high order is secured to the present and future generations of the children and youth within this territory.

The remarks of all the gentlemen were pertinent, the vast assembly listening with unflinching attention for four consecutive hours. Gen. Oliver was in his happiest vein, and his frequent sallies of wit and humor relaxed the muscles of even the gravest persons present. Messrs. Oliver and Huntington prepared for college at Phillips Academy, between 1811 and 1815. In the course of their remarks many early reminiscences were related of a very interesting character; the former referred to the longest prayer he ever heard, lasting several hours, as he supposed, but on waking, he found he had slept over two hours after the prayer was over; and the latter to a patriotic act of himself and nine other members of the Academy, who travelled to Boston in the night, and worked to help to fortify the harbor against the attack of the British. Josiah Quincy, Senior, still living, who was then one of the Trustees of Phillips Academy, went down to the wharf and addressed the youthful patriots, calling them young Romans. Messrs. Smith and Means referred to their Theological education in this town, and their strong attachment to it on account of the beloved recollections which cluster around it. Mr. Perry spoke of his experience in this town as a teacher, and touching referred to the late lamented Peter S. Myers, first appointed principal of the school, and urged the importance of a well spent life in its influence not only on the present but the future. Mr. Cogswell, in a most affectionate and appropriate manner addressed the children, impressing those now admitted to the privileges of the school with the importance of improving their advantages, and uttering words of encouragement and cheer to those who were unsuccessful in their application for admittance.

The people of the Andovers may well congratulate themselves upon the auspicious opening of this school of learning for their children, free of charge, and they consider themselves, as they really are, under obligations to the gentlemen who have devised and executed their plans so wisely and successfully in furtherance of the will of the honored donor of this liberal benefaction. During the exercises it was stated that a library, maps, philosophical instruments, globes, minerals, etc., were needed, since a single individual has furnished the means to erect the beautiful edifice and sustain the teachers, there should be no lack of means to supply the fixtures and apparatus. "It is more blessed to give than to receive," is a luxury to be enjoyed by those on whom fortune has smiled, and whose hearts are touched by expansive and generous impulses. — The cause of education, elevating its standard, diffusing its benefits, and consecrating it to the service of God and the good of men may well engage the attention, enlist the sympathies and elicit the liberal contributions of the benevolent. While one literary institution after another is established in our midst, let us not grow unmindful of the benefits they confer, nor suffer ourselves to withhold from them the continued sympathy and support which their just claims impose upon us. It is no small privilege to live in a community enjoying such superior educational advantages, and every parent's heart should be glad at each successive development and exhibition of new resources of intellectual culture for his posterity.

The music by the Boston Quartet, composed of Mr. Mozart and lady, Miss Jennie Twitchell, and Mr. Adams, assisted on the piano by Professor May, was performed in the interest and pleasure of the exercises; and although it was listened to with entire silence, except a very long breath at the close of each piece, there were many present who felt like "bringing down the house." In another section of the paper appearing the following names of scholars attending the Punched Free School: Boys—Francis G. Sanborn, George H. Farnham, R. Augustus Rowley, James G. Merrill, William F. Merrill, John H. Flint, William H. Millett, Henry M. Greene, Edward T. Strong, George S. Richardson, Isaac Carruth, Elbridge G. Manning, George E. Chickering, Charles B. Pray, Peter D. Smith, Joseph A. Abbott, Albert N. Holt, George H. Greene, Charles W. Greene. Girls—Hannah A. Harding, Helen C. Abbott, Sarah M. Gray, Marguerite E. Ross, Sarah E. Burt, Abbie J. Chandler, Frances S. Shattuck, Olive F. Moore, Maria H. Ellis, Sarah P. Lamson, Annie Abbott, Chloe Abbott, Caroline L. Baker, Frances E. Chandler, Mary H. Holt, Eliza A. Barnard, Charlotte Bailey, Ellen Spoford, Sarah Jones, Sarah M. Farnham, E. M. E. Sanborn, Sarah J. Swan, M. Emily Cummings, Mary E. Worcester, Eliza A. Farnham, Nancy G. Hamden, Anna H. Tucker, Mary A. Winning, Charlotte H. Abbott, Isabella Donald, Sarah E. Pray, Mary E. Burr, Mary F. Clement, Catherine R. Clough, Caroline G. Spoford, Laura H. Bailey, Mary E. Trull.

"Trial of Mary Dugan" at Lake Shore Theatre

Undoubtedly the most interesting event of the theatrical season is the appearance of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" at the Lake Shore theatre, Westford, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, August 22nd, 23rd, and 24th. "The Trial of Mary Dugan" marks the eighth production staged this season at the Lake Shore Playhouse, America's largest summer theatre and promises to be one of unusual entertainment to Andover lovers of the mystery drama. The story of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" is a thrilling one. It deals with the accusation of Mona Tree, a "Follies" star, of murdering the man who has been studying in California. He takes over her case after a disagreement with her lawyer who, apparently, is not conducting it as sincerely as he might. How the boy prosecutes the case in spite of tremendous handicaps, and how he discovers the actual murderer makes a play replete with heart interest and thrills throughout its three acts. One of the most novel features of the melodrama is the fact that the curtain is not used except at the very end and then only for the purpose of taking curtains calls. The scene represents an actual setting from the Supreme Court of New York and remains undisturbed throughout the three acts of the play. The Lake Shore Players appearing in "The Trial of Mary Dugan" include: Sanford Bickart, Louise Lee, Nelson Powers, Anita Hoof, Frederick, Frederick, Douglas Arnold, Howard, Unkelbach, Hilda Tate, Nathan Dysken, Alan Merritt, Fishburn, Berilla Kerr, Don Tenoris, Edith Hanson, and Bella Gisser. The production is under the direction of Malcolm Beggs, technical director at the Lake Shore theatre, at Lake Nahasset, Westford. The Lake Shore Players will offer George Kelly's "Torchbearers," a satire on the Little Theatre Movement Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the week of August 27.

Mildred McGlynn Wins Swim Mildred McGlynn, local swimming star, won the 50-meters free style open event at Rangleys Lakes, Maine, Saturday. Miss McGlynn was competing for the Boston Swimming Association. No time was taken for the event.
