Rev. Everett Bradley was rector at the time the Andover branch was formed.

The local society did not have a president until ten years ago when Miss Helen Smith was elected. Up to that time the branch president had taken full charge.

Japanese Issues Topic of Lecture

How far does Japan intend to go in her search for power and security, and what will be the effect of her present activities upon the Western World? These are among the most vital questions in the public news of the day, and it is these topics which George E. Sokolsky will discuss in his lecture at Phillips Academy on Friday, December 14, at 8:15 p.m.

Fourteen years of uninterrupted residence in China and Japan, friendship with the statesmen of the far East, such as Eugene Chen, China's great Foreign Minister, and Dr. Sun Yat-sen, and active participation in Eastern public affairs give Mr. Sokolsky an unrivaled background of knowledge.

After graduating from the Columbia School of Journalism he edited an Allied newspaper in Petrograd in 1917, until he was forced out of the country by the revolution.

Arriving in China Mr. Sokolsky became adviser to the Chief of Police in the Province of Chihli and helped organize a strike of the Shanghai Students' Union against the Versailles Treaty.

He also became associated as editor or correspondent with a number of newspapers in Tientsin, Shanghai, and Tokyo, and helped organize the Chinese Government Bureau of Economic Education.

As a result of his experiences Mr. Sokolsky has become a recognized authority on political and economic conditions in Manchuria, China, Japan, and Russia, and his book, "Finger Box of Asia" is the standard work on Sino-Japanese relations.

Probably no other American newspaper man knows the East in such detail, and he is a brilliant and stimulating speaker.

Phillips Academy cordially invites the boys of Andover to attend. There will be no charge for admission.

Gives Lecture on European Problems

Mr. Dirk Van der Stucken of the Phillips Academy faculty, a frequent traveler to Europe, gave an interesting talk on the European situation at the meeting of the Shawheen Village Woman's club Monday night.

In stating that conditions in Europe were largely responsible for America's problems, he explained how the nations of Europe are a chain, no one link of which can be weakened without having its effect on the rest of the chain and upon America.

Today's troubles he blamed upon the World War.

Mr. Roger Higgins of Phillips Academy explained at length the Adult Study classes which the Academy is sponsoring.

He explained that the idea was not entirely new having been carried out in several towns and cities around Boston.

Mrs. Albert N. Wade, president, also presented Walter M. Lamont of the Andover town planning board who presented the necessity of a zoning law which over sixty towns in the state have adopted in one form or another according to the individual town's need.

Mr. Lamont explained the advantages of such a law in Andover and illustrated his point with several incidents urging the piano duets including Minuet in E Flat by Mozart; Les Sylphes by Bachmann; L'Alert by Behr; The Dragonfly by Nevin; and Friska from the Fifth Hungarian Rhapsody by Liszt.

All the selections were beautifully played and enthusiastically applauded by the audience.

Mrs. A. Edward Knowles, chairman of community service in the club, had charge of the program and she presented the Misses Gwen and Ruth Armitage of Shawheen village. They played two groups of piano duets including Minuet in E Flat by Mozart; Les Sylphes by Bachmann; L'Alert by Behr; The Dragonfly by Nevin; and Friska from the Fifth Hungarian Rhapsody by Liszt.

All the selections were beautifully played and enthusiastically applauded by the audience.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Frank J. Keiferstan, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Leonard Johnson, Mrs. Frank Kenyon, Mrs. A. Edward Knowles, Mrs. William W. Kurth, Mrs. Michael Lane, Mrs. Theron Lane, Mrs. Edward Lawson, Mrs. Eugene Lovely, Mrs. John M. Lynch, Mrs. Frank MacMackin, Mrs. Albert Malley, Mrs. Fred Marcotte, Mrs. Margaret McLaughlin, Mrs. Robert Maxwell and Mrs. William Merchant.

Harvard Club to Hold Ladies' Night

The annual Ladies' night of the Harvard club of Andover will be held on Wednesday at the Phillips Academy log cabin at 7:15.

The speaker will be Professor Samuel H. Cross, Harvard '12, assistant professor of Slavic languages and literature, who will speak on "The American Tourist in the Soviet Union."

Prof. Cross has traveled to Russia twice in the last two years, and with his background of the Slavic languages and literature, the talk should prove very interesting.

All Harvard men are invited to attend with their ladies. Graduates of other colleges are also being asked to attend.

Library Circulation Again Increases

Due to two holidays, the Memorial library was open two days less during November than in October, but circulated more books. The number of 7839 were issued for home use at the Memorial hall, and 702 at Ballardvale, making a total of 8541 books borrowed during November. Again, this is the largest monthly use in the history of the library and represents a daily issue of 350 books.

Discovers Blaze in Time to Save Girl

Miss Helen Sullivan of Ballardvale, an employee in Scanton's tea room on the Andover-Lawrence line, was saved from possible death early Tuesday morning when Officer Arthur Jowett discovered a blaze at the tea room, where Miss Sullivan was lying asleep.

The blaze was discovered before it had gained much headway, and the chemical truck responded to Officer Jowett's call.

The officer was trying the doors about three o'clock when he smelled smoke at the tea room. On entering he found that a partition on the left near the rear door was burning, evidently having started in a pile of rubbish. He awoke Miss Sullivan.

Different Groups Enroll in Courses

"The gratifying thing about the registration for the Evening Study Groups is that it represents so many different groups of people in town. Here, for instance, are some blanks that have been mailed in by people working in the Tyler Rubber company and the Shawheen mill. And there are some from the merchants and store-keepers on Main street and vicinity. Right in with them are many that have come in from such organizations as the Shawheen Woman's club and the Ballardvale Men's club. It looks as though there would be a real cross-section of Andover life represented in these courses."

Such was the information that came this week from one of the directors of the Study Group program that is to be carried out during the winter months at Phillips Academy. Already approximately a hundred and fifty course registrations have been received and each mail brings in several additional ones. With this number already in, the program is sure to be a success although it is hoped that two or three hundred more course registrations will be received before the series of classes is actually under way.

Several organizations in town have taken advantage of the offer made by the directors to send speakers out to explain the courses and to answer questions. Others wishing this same service should get in touch with Alan R. Blackmer, 25 Highland road.

Give Testimony in Manslaughter Case

The case of Otto Hollinger, 47, of Jamaica Plain, charged with manslaughter and operating to endanger following a recent fatal accident here, was continued until December 11 at the request of the defense when it came up in District Court Tuesday morning. The defendant was allowed to go without bail.

Justice Albion G. Peirce stated that he felt he would probably dismiss the manslaughter charge but that he would have to hold the defendant on the other.

Hollinger was the operator of a car which ran into a parked truck early on the morning of November 15, and two days later, his passenger, Stephen Carton of Boston, died as a result of the injuries.

Witness for the prosecution were: Albert E. Foss, who lives near the scene of the crash; George Reno of Manchester, N. H., operator of the truck; Edward Magena of Malden, operator of another truck; Officer Frank McBride; and Motor Vehicle Inspector James French. farther ahead than we were when the committee was meeting monthly during the summer or semi-occasionally last spring.

When architects state that the plans will be ready at a certain time, and then they don't have them at that time, they are either laying down on the job or they are hoodwinking the committee for which they are supposed to be working.

There is a further possibility of delay through the calling of a special town meeting, which now seems inevitable because of the dissatisfaction of many of the voters with the revised plans.

Christmas Seal Sale Officially Endorsed

Dr. Olin S. Pettengill, superintendent of the Essex Sanatorium and president of the Essex County Health Association in endorsing the 1934 Christmas Seal Sale today stated, "Christmas Seals are again being offered for sale in Essex county by the Essex County Health Association to assist in carrying on the winning fight against tuberculosis.

"Tuberculosis is still the most frequent cause of death during the years when men and women should be at their happiest and most productive period of life. It is a determined fight which the Essex County Health Association is making on the disease is an indispensable factor in combating unnecessary illness and death, in making life safer and health more secure for all of us.

"From the proceeds of the sale of Christmas Seals, last year, 79 boys and girls susceptible to tuberculosis, were cared for at the Essex County Health camp in Middleton. At the present time they are being supervised by the local doctors and nurses, who keep a constant check on their condition. Other projects made possible by this annual sale include extensive health educational work which is carried on in the schools, among children clubs, and with the parents of camp children; as well as clinics and examinations.

"That this work, which is so vital, may continue in Essex County it is hoped that each and everyone will lend support in the purchase of Christmas seals."

Andover folks who did not receive their Christmas Seals and who are desirous of purchasing some to assist this worthy cause, may procure them from Mrs. Carl F. Patzsch, who is chairman of the Andover Christmas seal sale.

In North Andover, those desiring the cheery stickers may obtain them from Mrs. John Everett.

General Notes

We wish we might restore to the owner a pair of gold-bowed spectacles which were found on Punched avenue and brought to Miss Putnam's office.

We welcome to our membership two new pupils who are living in Shawheen, and have come from the schools of Fort Worth, Texas. They are Mary A. Sleeper who has entered Grade seven, and Sally Sleeper who has entered Grade eight.

After careful deliberation as to what might best be done for the pupils of seventh grade who are not succeeding in their work, it has been decided to try an "afternoon session" for their benefit. Each day there will be a class where pupils whose average was below passing at the end of the first semester may have special help in that particular subject. Thus we hope they may succeed and so save repeating a grade. The time will be from two to three o'clock, to follow the regular session.

Rohrbach Speaks at Club Meeting

The Andover Garden club held its December meeting on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock at Phillips Inn. The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Albert H. Chamberlain, who presented first Miss Fannie Davis, chairman of the Trow Memorial Foundation Book Fund. Miss Davis called the attention of the club to the very excellent collection of garden books at the public library—a collection judged by the librarian of the Horticultural society as the equal of any she knew. Several of these books and magazines were contributed by the Trow Foundation.

Two new members, Mrs. K. M. Pinckney and Mrs. Arthur Hirst were welcomed into the club.

Heinrich Rohrbach, well-known botanist and horticulturist was the speaker of the morning. For three years Mr. Rohrbach had charge of the propagation department at the Kelsey Nurseries and before that was with the noted rose growers Conrad Pyle in Pennsylvania. Mr. Rohrbach gave an unusually interesting talk on "More Fall Flowers for the Garden." His suggestions for continuing the bloom in the garden even in this climate late into November, were full and definite, and his exact knowledge of numerous plants and their habits was most impressive. At the close of the lecture he helped many of the members with their individual difficulties. The club is grateful to have located in Andover a person well qualified by wide experience here and in Europe to whom they may go with their garden problems.

The next meeting of the club will be on January 8 at 8.15 p.m. at the home of the president, Mrs. Chamberlain. This meeting is a guest night for the gentlemen and A. M. Davis will talk on "Small Fruits for the Home Garden."

Local C. E. Union Conducts Meeting

Important business was transacted at the meeting of the Andover C. E. Union executive committee held Monday evening at the home of Miss Jessie Dobbie on Elm court. Robert Domingue of the Lawrence Union gave some very helpful suggestions to the committee.

Plans are underway for the next meeting, the date of which will be announced later.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Miss Jessie Dobbie.

The union decided to attend the Essex County stunt night to be held in Danvers. Plans were outlined for the year and the resignation of Rev. Lorentz J. Hansen was accepted. Mrs. Herbert Otis was elected lay adviser and Rev. Marion Phelps was elected pastoral adviser. Rev. Clinton W. Carvell offered prayer. Arthur Kirk and Mary Lang favored with a duet and refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Jessie P. Dobbie.

The following were present at the meeting: Rev. and Mrs. Marion Phelps, and Mrs. Herbert Otis of Ballardvale; Frances Hall, Isabel Brunette, Jessie Dobbie, Phyllis Zerbe, Robert MacLaren, Arthur Smith, Edward Huntruss of Andover; Robert Domingue of Lawrence Union; Rev. Clinton W. Carvell, Marjorie Andrews, Mary Lang, and Arthur Kirk of North Andover.

Legion Christmas Plans

The Christmas party for the Legion members will be held this year on December 18. The children's party will be December 22, at which time there will be a drawing for turkeys.

To Play Benefit Game

The Andover F. C. soccer team will play an all-star Merrimack Valley League team in a game at the P. J. O'Connell field in Lawrence Sunday for the benefit of Halfback Steele of the Sanford, Me., team, whose leg was broken in a game here earlier in the season.

Steele was removed to the General hospital and then home because of financial conditions. When the cast was taken off it was found that another bone had been broken. He has a family of six children.

Speaks to Fellowship

"A true Christian acts naturally at all times," John Philbrick of Boston, student at the Cambridge Theological school, told the Christ church Young People's Fellowship in a talk on "Being Yourself!" Sunday night.

Following the talk a one-act comedy, "Not Quite Such a Goose" by Elizabeth Gale was presented by a group of members.

The cast follows: Albert Bell, Kerr Sparks, Jr.; Sylvia Bell, Barbara Smith; Mrs. Bell, Gertrude Taylor; Hazel Henderson, Dorothy Babk; Philip Flick, Edward Sorrie.

The Fellowship will hold a dance in the parish house this evening.

Santa Starts on Journey to Andover Urges Residents to "Buy in Andover This Year"

Stops Off for Rest at Greenland

GREENLAND, En Route from the North Pole, Dec. 6.—I approve most heartily the Andover Service club's endeavor to have Andover people buy in Andover this year," Santa Claus hale and hearty in spite of his long vigil at the helm of his flying six-deer powered sled, told the Greenland correspondent for the Townsman in an interview here tonight. Heavily laden with mail and parcels his feet ship on its annual mission of cheer and good will, came gracefully to earth here about six o'clock, and while refueling his deer on specially prepared oats, Santa sat down to chat with the Townsman representative.

"How do you like my bag of toys this year?" Santa asked the reporter. "I have quite a large supply, but there are many more things I need, I'm waiting to see next week's Townsman in which the Andover Bookstore is going to have an advertisement telling about all the lovely dolls, toys and games that they will have on sale, and I'm going to be one of their best customers."

"Before I start my trek back to the Arctic," Santa declared, "I'll have to drop off at the Andover Cafeteria and have a little bite to eat. An army can't march on an empty stomach, nor can a Santa fly, and the best place I know of to fill my stomach is at the Andover Cafeteria. They have high quality food, all at reasonable prices, and I'm looking forward to my visit there."

"I hear you have a new jewelry store in Andover since I was there last," Santa remarked. "Well," the reporter answered, "it's not a new store—it's an old store made new by a new owner, John H. Grecoe." "So that's it," Santa said. "Well, I've heard he's done a fine job of it, made the store better-looking, put in new stock, and done excellent repair work."

As Santa shook the snow out of his whiskers, the reporter noticed a fine-looking tie previously hidden by the beard. "Why, I didn't know you wore ties," he said, and Santa laughed as he replied: "Oh, yes, this is one my wife gave me last Christmas. She bought it from Carl Elander's, Andover, a fine-to-date haberdashery, where every woman who wants to please her husband will go this year for her gift."

"I was glad to see that the Andover school committee gave the milk contract this year to Sid White," Santa remarked. "He's well-known in Andover—has his dairy in Andover, with all his cows grazing on Andover land—and he uses one hundred percent Andover labor. So it's no wonder Andover people like Sid's milk; because in addition to its purely Andover character, it is excellent milk."

"Gosh, what boots you have on," exclaimed the reporter. "That's a funny thing," said the jolly-faced old gentleman. "I bought these in Andover at H. E. Miller's, but they've stood up fine in our Arctic weather. I was mighty pleased to get good-looking shoes at a reasonable price that would wear well. And I brought Mrs. Santa a pair home last year, too, and she tells everybody what a fine pair of shoes she has."

"How's your igloo?" the reporter queried. "Igloo?" said Santa. "Why, we up in the north gave up igloos long ago. Our contractors know how to make houses which will keep the cold out just as well as igloos will; down in Andover for instance, there's the J. E. Pitman Estate, which can put up a fine house at the same cost as big city contractors, and with Andover labor, too. Their roofs are especially well constructed."

"The Andover Savings Bank has been in business one hundred years and is proud of the fact that during all this time it has endeavored to meet the needs of the people along its line of business. Dividends have never failed. Depressions have occurred repeatedly but the bank has always withstood them. It extends to Andover citizens its best wishes for the merriest, happiest Christmas in years and for better times and brighter cheer in the years ahead."

"I must place a great deal of credit for the success of this trip to the foresight of Mrs. Santa who very wisely stocked my larder with foods from Greeley's market. She tells me that she would find it impossible to keep within her budget without the economy that Greeley's makes possible—and it's an independent grocery hiring Andover clerks, too."

"Looking at his watch Santa said: 'Five past six. You know it's a God-send to have a watch you can depend on. I bought this last year at Billings' Jewelry store near the Andover town hall, and I haven't had a bit of trouble with it. And doesn't Billings have a dandy store; he has such a fine reasonably priced stock that there's no reason for Andover people to go out of town to buy their gifts of jewelry.'

"When the reporter asked Santa for a picture, and old St. Nick passed him a fine clear portrait, which prompted the Townsman representative to ask: 'Where did you get this?' 'At Huntress's studio at Punchedard avenue and Main street,' he answered. 'And incidentally,' he continued, 'there's a fine idea for a Christmas present—a portrait. To please your friends, go to Huntress and have a portrait taken. Better not delay.'

"I understand that the Andover Coal Co. has moved back into larger quarters because of the expansion of their business. Andover residents like to buy coal and oil from this concern because it is a real Andover company—it has its office in Andover square—and it employs a good deal of Andover labor."

"Last year when I was in Andover, I was attracted to Morin's, now Carter's, Candy Shop, and I determined that this year my bag would contain candies and goodies from Carter's. They have real old-fashioned peppermint sticks and chocolate imitation of me, to say nothing of really beautiful gift boxes, which anyone, no matter how old or how young, would be glad to receive."

"Women are funny," Santa mused. "No matter what I bring Mrs. Santa, she's not completely satisfied unless there's some flowers, too. So when I'm in Andover, I'll stop at Playdon's and send a bouquet or plant. It will please her tremendously. It sure is a mighty important item for Christmas, because Christmas isn't Christmas without floral decorations, and Playdon has the best."

As Santa took out a list of Andover children who were to receive presents, he put on his glasses to read it. "How'd you like my specs?" he asked. "I bought them at Billings', where the best of optical work is done."

"That new market, Dehullu's, that you have in Andover is quite an addition to the town's shopping facilities, isn't it?" Santa asked. "An Andover man visited me up in the Arctic a while ago and told me about the excellent meat that he'd been buying at Dehullu's. Andover's mighty lucky to have a shop that stresses quality, and you certainly get the best of quality at Dehullu's."

"These clothes look just as good as they did the day they were bought, don't they?" Santa said. "I bought them from Burns Co., Inc., because I knew that I could do better in fit and fabrics than to select my clothes there. And they have some mighty fine gift selections, too, the best of ties, the best of stockings, the best of shirts—the best of everything."

"I've got to drop into Hill's hardware store this Christmas," Santa continued. "Working all year round as I do, I need plenty of tools, and Hill's always has the best. Besides I know I can find some mighty fine presents there to take home for Mrs. Santa's Christmas. She, like every woman, is always glad to receive something for the house, and Hill's is a dandy place to get such things."

"My trim whiskers and smart appearance have long been the envy of the north. But everybody's hair can look neat if they'll only make regular trips to John Bell's barber shop in the Musgrove building. There are three

"I'll bet you're wondering what to give your sweetheart for Christmas," Santa said, and the reporter stammered: "Well, er, er—" "Look here, son," old St. Nick said, "Why not drop into the Harbor shop next to the National Bank? If you don't know what to buy for her now, you will when you go in there, because they have heaps of things that she'd like."

"Mrs. Santa is a sly old fox, like most women. She sort of hinted just before I left that she hoped someone would give her a Governor Winthrop desk, a sewing cabinet, a gate-leg table, an end table, or a coffee table from the Colonial Furniture shop on Park street. I made believe I didn't hear her, but I'm going to get them all for her, because I know they'll be good."

"I'll bet you're wondering what to give your sweetheart for Christmas," Santa said, and the reporter stammered: "Well, er, er—" "Look here, son," old St. Nick said, "Why not drop into the Harbor shop next to the National Bank? If you don't know what to buy for her now, you will when you go in there, because they have heaps of things that she'd like."
