Which School Should We Build?

A week from the coming Monday night the town of Andover goes to another special town meeting to act on its new school proposition. Last Monday night the bids were opened, and it took eight large sheets of paper to record the figures, with each sheet containing as many as 75 figures.

If this is not done, there is the possibility that someone will arise in town meeting and move postponement on the grounds that there has not been enough of an opportunity to study the matter just as was done when the zoning-by-law came up last October.

The bids were asked on several different propositions, with the lowest bid on the least expensive proposition being $262,900, submitted by Louis Cyr of Lawrence, and the lowest bid on the most expensive proposition being $283,000, submitted by a Cambridge firm.

Siftings

Wonder how many of those people who voted to postpone zoning last fall because they hadn't had a chance to study it, have looked at the proposed plan since?

Better not have any more bids on the school proposition. If they go much higher, someone's going to score a grand slam the wrong way.

Have the police investigating committee been invited to the policeman's ball tonight?

Musicals Enjoyed by November Club Under the auspices of the November club a delightful musical followed by tea was held at the home of Mrs. Horace Poynter on Friday afternoon.

The spontaneous applause after each number of the program evinced the enjoyment of an appreciative audience; and the enthusiasm during the social hour was a satisfaction to the committee who wish to thank every one who so graciously assisted in making the afternoon, not only successful financially, but a pleasant break in the monotony of a bleak winter day.

The program, which was arranged by Mrs. Willet Eccles, follows: Minuet and Finale from Mozart's Symphony in E Flat Major—arranged for eight hands. Mrs. Philip Ripley, Mrs. Roy Spencer, Mrs. Poynter, Mrs. Roger W. Higgins.

Milfoning minnelied Zügnung Romance Apris un Rene Le Miroir Songs by Mrs. Eccles Mrs. Higgins, accompanist

Bethoven Sonata in D Major (theme and variations) Romance—Swenson arranged by Kreiser Minuet—Porpora arranged by Kreiser Miss Susan Ripley, violin Mrs. Philip Ripley, accompanist

Farce and Songs at Old-Time Party

In addition to Howells' farce, "The Garretters," which is the piece de resistance of the Historical society's "Evening in the Eighties" on February 21, Miss Helen Moody will sing certain not unfamiliar words to a new tune written especially for the occasion, and Mrs. James Eaton will sing to a not unfamiliar tune words that have never been heard in Andover before. There will also be an old-time Virginia reel, with a member of the society superintending an old-time fiddler. After supper, lead by Leroy's orchestra, the company will revert to the more solemn dances of the present day.

Misses LeBlanc and Thomet are at work on new evening dresses of the eighteen-eighties for the young ladies of the cast. A goodly number of the older members, both men and women, have already unattacked authentic garbs of the period. Tickets at $1.00 are now on sale at the Society's home, 97 Main street, and at the Andover Bookstore.

Punchard Dance on Holiday Night

The senior class of Punchard high school will sponsor a dance in the town hall on the evening of February 22nd. The class has the use of the hall through the courtesy of the selectmen, and Punchard pupils, past and present, are urged to support the seniors in this first school dancing party since the old Punchard hall was demolished. Tickets may be obtained from members of the social committee: Doris Collins, Marion Hilton, Elizabeth Jenkins, Dorothy Swenson, Antoinette Thiras, Allan Chadwick, Harry Mackenzie, and Joseph Whittier, or through any member of the senior class, and must be purchased before the evening of the dance, since no tickets will be on sale at the door.

A Lady Short

By WILLIAM DE LISLE © McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

THEY both behaved splendidly. No body in the room could guess that the introduction was not that of two strangers.

He wondered as he drank his soup what could have brought her to this house; what she could possibly have in common with fat, vulgar Mrs. Bowman, her hostess. He eyed her askance, and thought of the first time they had been sent in to dinner together, fifteen months before.

"I heard someone say this morning that you were engaged," he said, turning to her. "May I congratulate you?" She shot him a hostile glance. "It is not true. Once is enough." She broke off; then continued frigidly, "My fortunate escape from what would undoubtedly have been an unhappy marriage naturally prejudices me against matrimony."

There was a silence. Finally he said reproachfully: "You haven't asked Aunt Laura."

"How is Miss Glendon?" "Very well, thank you. She's never had another attack since that one. Strange, isn't it? If she hadn't been ill we wouldn't have quarreled, and we'd have been married by now."

Aunt Laura lived alone on her beautiful place in Maine in close proximity to some splendid trout fishing and a good golf course. When she heard of the engagement she wrote and asked them down for a visit. They jumped at it. They meant to fish in the morning, play golf in the afternoon, and take long moonlight rides in the evening. But nothing happened as they had expected. It was raining when they arrived, and Aunt Laura, complaining of a chill, went to bed.

But the rain, the confinement, and the prolonged tete-a-tete got on their nerves. What led to the explosion neither could say now, but the engagement terminated at precisely thirty-three. Shortly afterward he had been sent abroad by his firm, had never just returned, and had never seen nor heard of her till Mrs. Bowman introduced them before dinner.

"Perhaps," she said presently, "I ought to congratulate you." "It would be premature," he confessed. "Though I must admit an announcement is not far off."

"How nice!" The conversation lapsed again. He studied her. Their eyes met. He said hastily, "Have you dined here before?" "No."

"How did Mrs. Bowman manage to rope you in?" "A faint blush dyed her cheeks. "If it comes to that, how did Mr. Bowman rope you in?"

"He's one of our best clients. But I had no idea"—his voice dropped to a whisper—"I would meet a gang like this. I repeat—how did Mrs. Bowman ever get you to come?"

"I happened to have no other engagement." "Well, of course, it's none of my business. Let's change the subject. How's your austere guardian, Mr. Hopkins?"

"She flushed. "He is abroad," she said, turning slightly away from him. "For a moment neither of them spoke. Then, "Do you know," he said suddenly, "that your Mr. Hopkins had a lot to do with our engagement going on the rocks?"

"She was genuinely surprised. "How could he?" "You remember I saw him the day before we went to Aunt Laura's? Well, he implied that I was after your money. That was really what started it. I began the visit in a bad temper."

"But she had risen. He watched her going out with the other woman—a swan among a brood of waddling geese. And again he wondered what she could be doing in that house. He moved toward Mr. Bowman.

"Mr. Bowman," he began, "the girl I took to—Miss Dodd—" "Say, I'm sorry about that," Mr. Bowman interrupted. "It's the wife's fault. She got you mixed up with Mr. Goetz and gave him your lady, Miss Miller. Then we were a lady short, so she called in Miss Dodd, our governess."

Sports on the Hill

The Andover relay team and the Exeter hockey team brought joy to their respective schools last Saturday, with the relay team, minus the services of track captain "Jake" Wolfe, who had been called home because of his father's serious illness, winning an easy victory over the Exonians at the B.A.A. meet in Boston, and the local academy's hockey team losing a close 2 to 1 game to the Red and Gray at the Arena. Somerby Chase, a local hot, scintillated for the Blue in the hockey game. Chase is another name to be added to the long string of local boys who have won letters in hockey on the hill. Others are Walter M. Lamont, Jr., Benjamin Cutler, James Brewster, George Temple, Francis Adams, David Thompson and Harry Holt.

The basketball team provided the real excitement in Andover Saturday. Bill Moody, the academy right guard, who has shown considerable improvement in his shooting lately, won the game in the last minute of a five-minute overtime period by scoring the prettiest basket of the season, a long shot which never even touched the rim of the basket, giving Andover the game 23 to 21. The score had been tied at the end of the regulation periods 19 to 19, but Bob Peeler made a long shot soon after the overtime period to put Andover ahead; then Urbanski tied it up again, and finally Moody clinched the game as the final gun was fired.

The swimming team had an easy time in defeating Worcester 44 to 21, with the medley relay team setting a new school record of 1:29 4-5. Pringle of Worcester copped the 50 and the 100 to win Worcester's only firsts.

Coach Carlson's grapplers tied 14 to 14 with Harvard's lighter wrestlers. The Blue early, but the heavier boys were outclassed though not outfought by the Harvard wrestlers.

Falkland Islands Lonely British Empire Outpost

Among the lonely outposts of the British empire, the Falkland Islands are among the most southerly; situated about three hundred miles off the east coast of South America. The stormy waters which wash around Cape Horn, beat against the southwestern shores, and few indeed are the mariners who visit these islands.

Two large islands, known as East and West Falkland, and a cluster of about one hundred smaller ones, make up the group. They were discovered in 1592 by John Davis. A French colony was settled there in 1763, and the islands were later held by the English and then the Spanish. They have been held by Britain since 1833.

The British population is comparatively small, and the colony's chief contribution to the British empire is the service it renders as a coaling station for the British warships of the South Atlantic squadron.

The chief city is Stanley, which is situated on East Falkland Island; and the seat of government is located there. Attached to the colony are the South Shetland Islands, the South Orkneys, the Sandwich group and Grahams land.

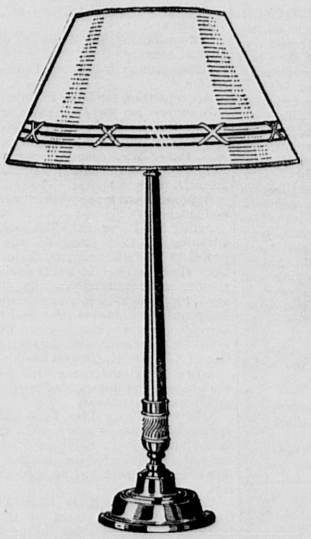

A STUDENT'S LAMP
designed to keep your child's nose "out" of his book

Often, when children have their noses in their books, they're risking their precious eyesight. But with these scientifically designed Students' Lamps, they will have perfect light and the danger to their sight will be reduced to a minimum.

And the protection of children's eyes is a paramount duty. We all know that, but unfortunately, many of us do nothing about it. Here's the opportunity because these lamps not only give PERFECT LIGHT but are inexpensive to buy, inexpensive to operate, and are beautiful enough to grace any room.

Investigate today. Ask us, or your lighting dealer about the new student lamps and for information regarding better lighting and how to test your lighting scientifically.

USED CARS WITH PLENTY OF UNUSED MILEAGE

FORD dealers offer many late models—low prices—easy terms

AS predicted, the new 1935 Ford V-8 has met with a splendid reception in this community. Every day more and more people are turning in their cars and taking deliveries of new V-8's.

This demand, which accounts for the rapidly increasing number of 1935 Ford V-8's you see around town, has created a rare opportunity for the motorist who is looking for an exceptional value in a used car.

Right now, Authorized Ford Dealers are offering one of the largest and most attractive selections of used cars in years—and at prices to fit practically every pocketbook. Many 1933 and 1934 models to choose from. All are in good running order, and many are almost like new.

And when you come to examine these values, remember this: Your Ford Dealer has his reputation at stake when he offers you a used car—a reputation for fair dealing and good service which he can't afford to sacrifice for the sake of a few dollars. That's why it pays to buy a used car from an Authorized Ford Dealer. The value he places on your good-will alone is a personal guarantee of satisfaction in the car you buy.

Inspect these values now. This is the best time of year to pick up the kind of used car you want. Spring demand is sure to raise prices and clean out the best buys quickly. Visit a Ford Dealer now—and take your choice of the cream of the used car crop!
