J. Everett Collins Victor over Frank Hardy in Major Upset in Close Selectman's Contest

Our New Selectman

J. Everett Collins, school committeeman for the past year, defeated Frank H. Hardy for selectman and assessor at the annual election Monday in one of the biggest upsets in the last decade's local political history. The new Town Father had a margin of 63 votes for selectman and 110 votes for assessor. After the election Monday night Mr. Hardy stated that he would not petition for a recount.

Andover's Financial Condition

If the voters of this town who had felt that Andover was in excellent financial condition could see the comparative financial statistics of the various towns and cities in the Commonwealth that were brought into the Townsman office this week, they too would have received a shock that would have set them to thinking very seriously of just where Andover is headed financially.

For years Andover has been going along complacently in the feeling that its financial structure has been more sound than most other towns in Massachusetts, but these statistics reveal that of the 234 towns of over 1,000 population in Massachusetts, Andover is 24th from the highest in net debt per capita and 15th from the highest in the ratio of net debt to assessed valuation.

The Annual Warrant

Monday's annual town meeting is a very serious affair this year. For the last few years the meetings have not attracted as much serious thought as they should have, but this year there is only one course for the voters of Andover to follow, and that is: go in to that meeting determined to vote against every single expenditure that is not absolutely necessary.

Article three this year deals with the establishment of the salaries of elected town officials. There should be no change in these this year, at least no upward changes.

The annual departmental budgets are contained in Article 4 this year. There are very few changes from last year's requests. Again we are promised that the assessors' survey, which is approaching its tenth anniversary, will be completed this year provided we appropriate $5175.65, an increase of $3,183 over last year's donation.

There are several projects included in the Board of Public Works budget which should be treated by the voters as special articles. The Board has prepared a statement concerning its budget which deserves the close attention of every voter.

The board has reduced the finance committee's recommendation for water construction from $20,000 to $12,190, which is a substantial and welcome for this increase.

order that they may circulate about the town more. This was to have been done by the installing of automatic traffic lights in the village square, and the purchase of a new car.

Andover should not be too ready to jump at the purchase of lights as a cure-all for traffic troubles. They have been installed in different places in the town before, and all they really mean is that after the town has paid a large initial cost, it has to pay an annual operating cost to the Lawrence Gas and Electric Company.

At certain times during the day an officer should be stationed in Shawsheen square to regulate traffic, and by "in Shawsheen square" we mean in the center of the square and not in the little lounging box off to one side. But at other times there is no reason why the officers should not be free for duty in covering the town.

The zoning plan was before a special town meeting last fall and at that time the Townsman commented favorably at length on the plan. At that meeting the plan was postponed until the coming meeting on the grounds that people did not have an opportunity to find out what it was all about.

The zoning plan was before a special town meeting last fall and at that time the Townsman commented favorably at length on the plan. At that meeting the plan was postponed until the coming meeting on the grounds that people did not have an opportunity to find out what it was all about.

Article 19, asking an appropriation of $25 to investigate the procedure and cost of installing a municipal light, heat and power plant, is just another indication of an upward movement that has been going on all over the Nation. This matter has been studied for many years, and the conclusion has always been that it is foolish to even think of running a municipal lighting plant.

Article 20 asks that competitive bids be obtained on all expenditures amounting to $50 or over. It is the present practice of all the town departments to secure bids on everything over $100, and this would seem to be as low as the limit need be. It might be well, however, for this matter to be studied by the special committee which it is hoped will be appointed to study all the town departments as recommended by the finance committee in its preamble.

Article 21, asking that all truck hire and materials used on the water system, highways, parks and playgrounds, and other departmental work made by the Board of Public Works, should be inserted in the warrant through any love for the Board of Public Works as much as through the same feeling that prompted the very disgusting tactics used against ERA administrator Dr. J. J. Daly at the October special meeting.

The article might well be passed as far as materials are concerned, but the story is different when it comes to trucks. The truck drivers by federal regulations must be employed by the ERA, while under this article they would have to be under the supervision of the Board of Public Works. A man can't serve two masters. The hiring of the trucks must be left with the ERA.

There are several articles asking road construction highway acceptances, and so forth. None of them should be passed, since it all involves town expenditures which are not necessary or desirable. The Corbett street lights should be referred to the street lighting committee to act upon as they see fit. They know about the situation more than the voters do, that is their job.

The Board of Public Works feels that it needs its horses, and the town should appropriate the $350 necessary for their purchase. Lowell street's water system changes have to be made; this appropriation must be granted. The present contract on River road, of course, must be completed, at a cost of $1,000 to the town, but to do more construction there this year would seem unwise.

office on duty will see that they cross the square safely. Fully one-third of the taxes paid in Andover come from Shawsheen village and residents feel that this property should be protected. Traffic lights do not offer this protection. With our three officers on duty in the square, within hearing of the telephone, we may call on them when the presence of a policeman is required.

Would it not be a better solution to the problem if Lowell, Haverhill and Poor streets were "stop streets"? If our police officers were protected by civil service as they should be, they could enforce the "stop" regulation on these streets without fear of losing their jobs in the strict performance of their duty.

These are not unusual requests, yet residents of the village feel that the presence of our three officers in Shawsheen square spanned four hours a day, is imperative for the protection of our children and our property.

This Sober Town

Perhaps the Townsman correspondent at the Legion rally last Friday night should not have found anything amusing there, for the two candidates who appeared to speak in the interests of their candidacy for the office of selectman both opened their speeches by saying unkind words about Andover's only newspaper.

The telephone operators at the local exchange are ordinarily a friendly group and will usually greet you with a genial smile, but since Monday night we noticed a decided change of attitude on the part of those operators who rule over the switchboards on the evening shift. At first we were puzzled over this change on the part of the efficient, courteous, conscientious, intelligent, and beautiful staff of operators at the Musgrove Building, but further investigation revealed the fact that the phone girls had good and sufficient reasons for being peeved at the Townsman.

Last week the Townsman stated that the only contest on the ballot was between Mr. Collins and Mr. Hardy for selectman and assessor. Since then we have heard of four objections to that remark. The first two came at the Legion open meeting the other night from the two candidates who polled less than 200 votes, while the other two came from Thaxter Eaton and Bill Cheever, sole candidates for town treasurer and tax collector, respectively.

Sometime ago the Townsman had a story relative to the buzzers in the town house, and at that time we stated that Charlie Gilliard, Bill Cheever and Thaxter Eaton had accidentally stepped on the buzzer, thus summoning the police. We were wrong; Thaxter hadn't stepped on it. However, if we had held the story until this week, it would have been correct, for Thaxter, in the payroll rush early this week, stepped on the buzzer. All the available police force rushed in.

much of the credit is due the telephone company and its operators for the very efficient and very courteous treatment given the requirements of extra service.

The Townsman wishes to extend its congratulations to our new selectman, J. Everett Collins, together with the best of wishes for a successful term. Mr. Collins has had a long and honorable record in many phases of the town's life, but none has been so important as the new position which was given him at the polls Monday. He is now in a position to do much good for the citizens of Andover. We feel sure that he will do everything in his power to accomplish everything that a selectman can accomplish for his town.

Siftings

There's a new man on the board of selectmen. No new man on the school committee.

When the new auditorium is built with its folding doors, why not separate the haranguers and the sensible persons so that when the haranguers start haranguing, the moderator could push a button to shut the folding doors on them?

If you don't protest against unwise expenditures Monday, you can protest only against yourself when your record tax-bill arrives.

Is Louisiana really a state—or just a large-scale lunatic asylum?

Communications

Shawsheen Policemen: The recommendations of the Committee on Police Investigation are valuable, but they do not meet adequately the situation in Shawsheen village. Up to the present time this long forgotten section of Andover has enjoyed one privilege from the Town of Andover—that of having three police officers on continuous traffic duty in the square.

Now, with the recommended installation of traffic signal lights at Lowell, Haverhill and North Main streets, our policemen are to be relieved of traffic duty so that they may patrol "up town."

Just when the traffic is heaviest at this point, the village children are on their way to school. Their mothers have sent them out with confidence, knowing that the police

NEWS OF OTHER DAYS

Twenty-five Years Ago: Mrs. Joseph W. Smith and Miss Mary B. Smith have gone South for several days. James Gillen, who it is said figured as best man in the recent election of the son of Secretary of State Knox, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gillen of Washington avenue. Fred Westcott has left the employ of J. P. Wakefield and gone to work for the Stanley Machine Co. in Lawrence. George D. Lawson, Jr., has been appointed head of the dyeing department of the Merrimack Print Works, Lowell. The school committee met Tuesday evening and organized for the ensuing year, with Colver J. Stone chairman and George A. Christie, secretary. The new members are Messrs. A. E. Stearns and Thomas Rhodes. There has just been placed in a new mortuary chapel in the West Parish burial ground, erected by William M. Wood, one of the largest collection of art glass windows ever brought together under one roof in New England. John V. Holt was elected president of the Punctured Alumni Friday evening. George A. Higgins and Fred Cheever are vice-presidents. The annual spelling match for the Varnum Lincoln prizes will be held in the town hall on Thursday, March 31.

Ten Years Ago: Mr. and Mrs. Everett M. Lundgren and son, Donald, left Tuesday for St. Petersburg, Fla. Chester W. Holland and John C. Angus left town this week for Florida, where they will spend several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Deyermund and family have moved into their new house on Washington avenue. A radio has been installed in the Stow school hall and the pupils listened to the inaugural address of President Coolidge. Miss Agnes Dugan of Maple avenue spent the week-end at her home. She is a member of the faculty at the new Commercial High school in Providence, R. I. The drugstore of Daniel A. Hartigan was entered by thieves Sunday night and money and other articles to the value of $100 was stolen. Entrance was gained through the transom over the front door. Thomas E. Rhodes and Arthur T. Boutwell won the B.P.W. contest, E. Burke Thornton the tree warden contest, and Andrew McTermen the selectmanship Monday. The school committee members elected were: Mrs. May D. Folk, Eugene M. Weeks, William D. Walker and R. S. Bartlett. Miss Irene Topping, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Topping of Lawrence, became the bride of Leo Allison, son of Mrs. Herbert Allison of 10 Chapman court Sunday evening.

Abbot Academy Notes

On Wednesday afternoon of this week, Mrs. Lyle Phillips gave an informal tea for the Abbot girls who are interested in horse-back riding. The girls have already started their spring riding and held the bridge paths near the C.C.C. camp admirably suited to this sport. Miss Butterfield acted as hostess at the Thursday tea with Lucia Nunez and Elaine Eaton of Andover as pourers. The Friday chapel exercises, under the leadership of Anne Russell, president of Les Beaux Arts, were given over to an exposition of "Color." Miss Gertrude Tingley presented her pupil, Miss Mildred Jenkins, in an informal song recital on Friday afternoon in the McKee rooms. The students in English I and English II are to give scenes from "Twelfth Night" and from "Penrod and Sam" at Hall Exercises on Saturday afternoon, March 9th. The scenes are being adapted and presented as a part of the class work and the school is much interested to see what can be produced by these younger classes. Miss Rummy is their coach. On Tuesday evening, March 12, the senior play, "Dear Brutus" will be presented in Davis hall at eight o'clock. This is the most ambitious dramatic work of the year and the seniors are hoping for a large audience.

Observe Lent

Lent began with Ash Wednesday March 6. The tradition of this period of the year calls for penitence and prayer. The churches extend a special invitation to church members and non-church members to attend church. Whether one denies himself some social activities or restrains his diet, he should spend more time in meditation and prayer. He should attend the services of the church regularly. The period of Lent is having more significance in all the churches and among all Christian people. This is the time for the consideration of motives and ideals of deeds.

Silk Square in North Tewksbury Town's Tribute to Man Who Was Killed in France in Hole that Andover's New Selectman Had Just Left

J. Everett Collins, who became the proud Town Father of 10,542 persons last Monday, came near losing the privilege of serving as selectman in 1918 that he did Monday. If it hadn't been for a miracle from his point of view, Jerry Silk might not be selectman of Tewksbury and a square might have been named after Ev Collins, instead of Ev being selectman and a square named after Jerry. Jerry and Ev were both members of that sterling Battery F of the 102nd Field Artillery which went across to help "make the world in peace" in 1917. Ev came back alive, while Jerry was left over there in an American plot at Bezu-le-Guey. On the morning of July 18, 1918, the new selectman and a group of his buddies were off sniping in the Chateau-Thierry offensive, while other members of the Battery had been ordered to "dig in" in the woods. Jerry Silk had dug a little hole for himself, and had then gone off to repair some wiring. When the snipers returned, they did not have time to "dig in," and Ev lay down in the hole Jerry had dug. Soon after, as shells were whistling all around, Jerry returned, and Everett relinquished the hole, then going over to lie down in a path through the woods. He had no sooner got settled than a shell screamed overhead, and crashed into Jerry Silk, who was instantly killed on the spot that our new selectman had just left.

Tewksbury Honored Silk

On the way up to Lowell as you pass through North Tewksbury you will see a square named after Jerry Silk, who according to Mr. Collins was as fine as they make them and a very popular young man with the residents of Tewksbury. He died but Everett lived, and came back to finally win the highest honor the town has to bestow. Everett Collins had another near disaster while he was "Over There," but again he came out safely with Charlie Bowman, who was very nearly elected town clerk three years ago, being wounded. It was at Mandros on May 30, 1918, and Everett and Charlie, both well-known in athletics for many years, were both standing beside the same piece. A bullet turned out to be a free ticket to the hospital for Charlie, but Everett escaped unscathed.

Everett enlisted with his brother George, who is now foreman at the Andover Press, on April 16, 1917. They went across at the end of September and landed on October 15, 1917. With Battery F, they took part in all the major engagements, including Chemin-des-Dames, the Toll sector, Seicheprey, Xivray, Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel, the Second Battle of the Marne, and Argonne-Meuse. Everett served for a while under Sergeant Joseph Daley, brother of Leo Daley of the local building committee.

Singing Cheerful Comrades

Athletics were not an unknown quantity while Battery F was across "Andover in the World War" states that "Andover boys, among them the Collins brothers, the Larkin brothers, Carl Lindsay, Edward Lawson and Warren Hart were prominent as battery athletes. Several members having musical or dramatic ability had from time to time entertained their comrades throughout the year and a half in France. Singing like that of Everett Collins, heard in the open air and sometimes in desolate places, did much to soothe or cheer the spirits of the boys." Everett was distinguished earlier in his life for his musical and athletic career rather than his political career. His musical career still is continuing with ever-mounting public interest, and he is still actively interested in athletics. He was educated in the local public schools, attending John Dove, Stowe, and Punched. For a short time he also attended Boston Latin. For four years he was very prominent in athletics at Punched, capturing the baseball team in his last year. He played football on the football team during his four years there, and also played cather on the nine for four years. After he graduated from Punched in 1913, he played on the old Royals, the best semi-pro team that Andover ever had. Among his teammates were Charlie Bowman, Ted Lawson, now assistant superintendent of the Board of Public Works, Walter and Eddie O'Connell; Fred Dunham of the local post office staff; James Shattuck, later captain of the Bates football team; and Jimmy Welch, now a foreman at the Tver Rubber company. Most of these boys, chums in high school and chums after high school, answered the call to arms. Abroad Ev served as quartermaster on the 102nd field artillery team.

Still Leading Batters One of the most important duties of the head officials of any community is that of starting every baseball season by tossing out the first ball. Two years ago the Andover Recreational League's season was opened with the three selectmen participating. Before the initial game began, Mr. Hardy stepped into the pitcher's box while Dr. Daly acted as catcher and Mr. McTernan as umpire. James E. Greeley was at bat and connected with Mr. Hardy's delivery for a single. The game then began with arm Greedy. Market team opposing the Veterans of Foreign Wars. In the catcher's box for the latter team was Everett Collins, who this year will be called upon by the same league to toss out the first ball in the new year's opening ceremony. Mr. Collins will be better prepared for this task than his two colleagues, for he has continued to play organized baseball right up until last summer.

Three years ago Everett caught for the V. F. W. team which won the first championship of the Recreational League, which was then called the Industrial League. The following summer he caught for and managed the same team which again won the championship, and this time in spite of the fact that the school committee, leading the ticket for the three-year term by a total of 2222 votes. He served during the past year on the sub-committee on teachers' and curriculum. This year, after an early period of hesitation, he decided at the last minute to enter the contest for selectman, and after a very keenly fought but cleanly fought campaign, he won out.

His Home Life Mr. Collins was born April 27, 1894, in Andover, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Collins. His father died on May 26, 1923, but his mother is still living at 13 Bartlett street. Just two weeks ago she observed her 68th birthday. She was keenly interested in the campaign, and when her son came to her after the final returns were received Monday night, she was overwhelmed with joy. A reporter visited the household shortly after Everett left, and at that time she was beaming all over, not so much at the thought that her boy had won out as at the knowledge that "it was a clean campaign."

There were three brothers and one sister: Fred L. Collins is now head janitor at the Central schools, and Everett Collins is in charge of the bag and burp division at the Washington mills, and George M., is foreman at the Press. A sister, Mrs. Lynton R. (Florence) Newhall, died a few years ago in New York. A cousin, Gordon H. MacIntosh of Florence street, was brought up with them.

On October 16, 1920, Mr. Collins married the then Miss Elizabeth A. Abbott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Abbott of 119 Andover street. They have four children, all boys. Three of them, John B., 13; James E., 11; and Roger W., 9; are pupils in the local public schools. The youngest is G. Raymond, aged 3.

The new selectman now resides at 35 Summer street, in the old Parker house which he bought recently. It is the house in which Charles F. Parker, selectman from 1885-1888, and later tax collector, resided.

Public Works Board Recommends Changes (Continued from page 1) proximity to the Square, it would offer better fire protection to this area.

Article 4—For Sewer Maintenance $5,700 is asked, the same amount as in 1934. This sum is necessary, and a lesser amount would not suffice to do the work required.

Article 4—For Park Department work $3,700 is asked, which is the same as in 1934.

In the past years sports at the Playstead ceased in cold weather. Today, your Playstead is being brought into use 12 months of the year, as skating for children has created a demand for a safe, flooded area.

Our experiments of the last three years with the making of skating rinks by spraying the ground with water at the Playstead have been most gratifying. We have also been called upon to beautify many unsightly street intersections in the past few years.

The above amount asked for is barely sufficient to properly care for all the demands made for Park and Playstead activities.

Increase for Snow Article 4—For Snow $40,000 is asked. This item covers street and sidewalk snow plowing, snow removal from the streets, and street and sidewalk sanding.

This appropriation has increased considerably since the days of the horse-drawn vehicles due to the demands of the public for well-plowed streets and sidewalks and the sanding of both sidewalks and roads during slippery periods.

Automobiles are now used 12 months of the year and many of our citizens are dependent on them, not only for conveyance to work, but for the hauling and delivering of produce and food supplies to market and to customers.

Furthermore, the children in the outlying districts are now conveyed by buses to the centers schools.

One has but to be in the office of the Board of Public Works during a snow or ice storm and listen to the demands from our citizens for immediate snow plowing and sanding to realize the importance of this service to many. We are of the opinion that this expense from a safety standpoint is warranted.

We are entering a character of service which we believe is wanted by our citizens. However, we would appreciate your suggestions and will be guided in the service we render by the amount of money appropriated.

The next article that concerns the Board of Public Works is Article 14 (asking $25,000 for a water extension along Greenwood road).

This extension would care for eight houses, 25 people, 19 cattle, poultry and hogs. This extension has been approved, and the water extension on Chandler road approved for $3,900 to be raised to $6,700 to include the regular town labor in the event that the E.R.A. labor is not available.

In these changes we have effected the following: Additional amount asked for under Water Construction, Article 4, for replacing water mains on School, Central and Florence streets $10000

Revised amount to include water changes on Florence street only 2190

Difference Less 8780

To reinstate original amount for construction of River road, not approved, Article 32 3740

To reinstate difference between your recommendation and ours on Chandler road, Article 15 2800

Difference Additional 6540

A saving of $1270 If E.R.A. labor is available on Florence street and Chandler road it will effect an additional saving of $3895

Total saving to the town $5165 We believe this set-up will offer the town a better return for the money spent and at the same time co-operate with your committee in keeping the tax rate under $30.00. If these changes are approved we will expect your support in town meeting relative to same.

Very truly yours, BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS By F. A. BUTTRICK, Secretary

Lecturer Talks on Period Furniture

The meeting of the November club, held on Monday afternoon, was most interesting, instructive and enjoyable one.

After the formal opening of the club and the disposal of the regular business, the meeting was turned over to the Art department which had arranged the program for the afternoon. Mrs. F. Tyler Carlton, chairman of the department, charmingly introduced the speaker of the afternoon, George Francis Dow, president of the Topsfield Historical society. As the Art department has been studying "Period Furniture and Decoration" this season, Mr. Dow's illustrated lecture, "The Furniture of Our Ancestors" was a very fitting climax.

Mr. Dow began his lecture with a bit of history, turning back to the times of the "Mayflower"—reading a list of household articles that the early settlers were requested to bring with them from England. Very little furniture was brought over, chests being the most important articles. Mr. Dow also read excerpts from two inventories of residents of Ipswich and Lynn dating back to 1633 and 1639 which gave a good idea of the meager furnishings of the first homes of New England. He showed pictures on the screen of some of the first homes which were

Three New Shows at Addison Gallery

Three excellent exhibits, featuring the first one-man show of a 22-year-old artist, a graduate of Phillips Academy in 1929, are included in the March group of exhibits at the Addison Gallery. The one-man show represents the very promising works of Dudley Morris, another exhibition includes wood engravings by the noted American artist, Winslow Homer, while the third, which will open this week-end, is an exhibition of classical art.

Dudley Morris, Vermont's first representative in the present series of exhibitions by New England Artists, is a recent graduate of Phillips Academy, and of Yale University. He took a prominent part in undergraduate activities, served the art boards of various student publications, and studied for two years at the Yale School of Fine Arts. He continued his studies in New York at the Art Students League, under George Picken, Harry Platt and Alexander Brodie.

Mr. Morris has been represented in several Vermont exhibitions, including an exhibition by "New England Artists" at the Fleming Museum in Burlington, and with Henry Holt and Horace Brown in an exhibition of "Three Vermonters" at the same Museum. He makes his home at present in Burlington and Underhill, Vermont, where the majority of paintings in the present exhibition were executed.

Engravings by Homer

A collection of wood engravings by Winslow Homer will be shown at the gallery from March 4 to 25. These prints include rural, Civil War scenes and the famous "Gull Net" set. Royal Cortissoz, who spoke at the annual alumni luncheon at the academy last June, in reviewing the collection in the New York Tribune on December 24, 1933, wrote:

"The artist, who is here made, declares his aptitude early in his career. Winslow Homer the painter was to travel far from the status of Winslow Homer the black and white delineator of scenes from the Civil War, but even in these products of his young hand, he had a certain mastery over the instrument. They are admirable above all for their faithful realism, their intimate expression of an attitude, a movement. When he draws a sharpshooter lodged in a tree, with his canteen swinging from a convenient hook, he has a certain mastery over the instrument. He knows, too, how to put his sometimes crowded groups together. They have order, balance, of the true pictorial sort.

It would be idle to overestimate the aesthetic value of these early compositions. They do not forestall the grandeur of the pictures. They do proclaim an artist of parts, one with a note of his own. It was a good idea... to put them before the public as an interesting reminder of the deep roots from which the strong, Americanism of a great artist developed."

The collection is circulated by Blanche A. Byerley, 687 Lexington avenue, New York City through the courtesy of A. Sheldon Penoyer.

The most important exhibition of the month is scheduled to be installed this week-end. This is an exhibition of Classical Art, made up of loans from important museums collections and arranged to show the uses to which objects of Classical Art may be put in courses in the Classics and Ancient History. This will be at the gallery from March 9 to April 5.

Collins Defeats Hardy in Selectman Contest

taken until well along in the afternoon when the objecting official withdrew his objection. In Precinct one a counter voted against counting, but Precinct two, where the objecting official within the meaning of the law. This opinion was sustained by the secretary of state's office.

The reason for the objection was that formerly it was felt that information on the count was leaking out, thereby giving some candidates an opportunity to make a last-minute campaign to get the votes in. This was not possible Monday.

Andover's first experiment with a sticker campaign proved more of a joke than anything else, with Mr. Holmelund receiving 25 scattered votes for other offices than the two he was seeking. He received six votes for moderator, one for tax collector, six for constable, seven for the five-year term of planning board, one for the four-year term, two for the three-year term, and two for the one-year term. One voter cast a vote for him for each of the terms on the planning board and for nearly every other office except the two that he was running for.

Other scattered votes were cast as follows: moderator, Vincent Hickey, one; school board, Henry Peatman, two; board of health, George M. Squires, one; planning board, five years; David Burns, one; Franklin B. Collins, one; William F. Barron, one; and John Lewis, one; four years, Thomas Dea, one; three years, George F. Robbert, one; one year, Harold L. Peters, one.

Boy Scout Doings

Troop 3 held "Parents' Night" on Friday, March 1. Games and inter-patrol contests were held and second class badges were awarded to Ted Hammond and Donald Cole. A talk was given by Harvey H. Bacon, scout commissioner, on the Scout Jamboree to be held in Washington. Toward the end of the program a short play entitled "Mac Decides" was given by the following scouts: Ted Hammond, Donald Cole, Robert Wheeler, George Zink, Donald Spinney, Charles Sellers, Charles Lovely, Bruce Gesing and William Pomeroy. Due to the coaching of Edward Weeks, the play was a success. Refreshments were served.

Troop 1 of Andover held its regular meeting in the basement of Shawheen school Tuesday.

A first aid contest, in which every scout was asked a question about first aid, was held. Sherman Karr was a visitor. Games were played.

Troop 74 The regular meeting of Troop 74 was held last Friday evening in the vestry of the Baptist church. Scoutmaster Clare Norton asked the scouts questions on first aid. A Troop Court of Honor will be held Friday, March 8. The scouts of Troop 74 will meet at the Baptist church at 9.30 on Saturday, March 9, to go on an exploration hike.

Private School in Charity Program

On Tuesday the meeting room in the South Church was packed with over 230 guests as the Briggs-Allen School gave an entertainment for charity. The money collected will buy clothes for the Andover baby that the Briggs-Allen School is helping to support. The proceeds will also be used to buy milk for needy families and to help to provide a trained nurse for a family not otherwise able to afford one.

One of the chief features of the entertainment was a clever play, "Buried Treasure," acted by children from the higher grades. Miss Elizabeth Weaver took the part of Mrs. Winslow with much grace. Miss Muriel Wood acted quite naturally the perfect lady in the part of Mrs. Benton. Miss Carol Murray was very amusing as the colored maid, Lindy. The other cast parts were all children's parts and each played with originality and distinction by the Misses Gisela Bolton, Sally Cole, Anne Selden, Joyce Curran, Helen Bars and Sylvia Harris.

The only performers were the children of the school. Their thorough training, under the competent direction of the regular teachers of the Briggs-Allen School, was in evidence. Mrs. Thaxter Eaton was the hostess and Mistress of Ceremonies. Mrs. J. A. Burt directed the play and wrote some clever lines into its text. Mrs. F. K. Murray and Miss Lucretia Love had charge of costume and make-ups.

Miss Vena Taylor helped with the lower grades of the school who entertained for nearly half of the time with a musical program, under the artistic supervision of Mrs. Morse, who also played accompaniments as necessary. This part of the program was introduced by an entrance march, including the entire school. This was followed by songs by Grades I, II, and III. These, in turn, were followed by a Toy Orchestra rendition with Master Lawrence Bars as leader; then a few more songs, succeeded by another Toy Orchestra selection with Miss Renate Sides as leader. A duet came next, "The Tin Soldier and the Doll." Miss Annette Curran took the part of the Soldier very prettily, and as the Parisian Doll Miss Eleanor Cole, aged 8, was perfect also.

Mrs. Thaxter Eaton, in a speech of thanks, acknowledged contributions of one sort or another from friends of the school that added much to the success of the afternoon. Those mentioned included: The New England Tel. & Tel. Company, for the loan of telephone equipment; Mr. John S. Bars for mimeographing the programs; Mr. Malachi Lynch, Mrs. W. T. Rich, Jr., Mrs. C. Carlet on
