More Trouble

It is unfortunate that a very small group of persons in Andover do not realize that the citizens of this town do not want to be forced to go to any special town meetings and do not want to even consider spending any more money than has already been spent this year at the annual town meeting.

Now, however, another petition is being circulated to secure the necessary 100 signatures. This one contains the same article as was included in the previous petition, and it also contains a few other proposed articles having just about as much real common sense to support them as the previous article.

The actual sponsors of the petition are not all known, and the ones who are known have requested that their names be not used in the newspapers. Anyone who is ashamed to admit that he is sponsoring a petition for a special town meeting had better withdraw the petition from circulation before the selectmen again have to refuse to involve the town in the unnecessary expense of an unnecessary town meeting.

All the regular expenses of town government should be provided for at the annual meeting, and special meetings should be held only for an emergency. There is not one single article in the proposed warrant which could even remotely be called an emergency. In fact several of them have been presented to previous town meetings and been rejected overwhelmingly.

The first proposed article, for instance, asks the repeal of the interim zoning ordinance of 1927. This same article appeared in the annual town warrant and was thrown out. That happened just about two months ago, and now someone is trying to force the town to reconsider the matter, evidently in the hope that if a special meeting were called, the hall might be packed to overturn the previous vote.

The second article has been defeated at a previous town meeting. It asks $10,000 for the purchase and development as a park of the controversial lot of land in Shawsheen square. This is not an emergency; it is just a desire of a property-owner to rid himself of some property which he bought a few years ago. When the town was first asked to buy the lot a few years ago, the cost was only $8,500. The past few years have not seen any rise in real estate values, and certainly the particular lot mentioned has decreased in value. The lot's value is based primarily on its location and on its attractiveness. Last week several of the beautiful evergreens bordering the lot were chopped down for none except very childish reasons, and this has detracted considerably from the value of the lot. If the town wanted to buy the property for park purposes, it certainly would have wanted the evergreens, too; they made that lot attractive. When the owner cut down those trees, he cut down the value.

Another proposed article asks $10,000 to reconstruct Main street near the Phillips academy campus on a safety island plan which has twice before been rejected at town meetings. This article would have the state and county share the expense, which would mean that the job would have to be let out for bid. This would not help local labor. Furthermore, this project is no emergency; it could have been brought up at the regular town meeting, and just because someone forgot to insert it in the annual warrant is no reason why the townspeople should be forced to act on it now.

The fourth article would force the building committee to adopt metal trim and wood-block flooring. The selectmen threw this out two weeks ago. Evidently the sponsors proceed on the basis of "Three times and out." For an article as ill-founded and as ill-considered as this, two times out should be more than necessary.

The fifth article is interesting. It asks authority to award a franchise for a bus line to operate between Shawsheen village and Andover square on a five-cent fare basis. Andover should certainly do everything possible to secure a five-cent fare, but the method outlined in this measure can well wait for consideration until next March. The townspeople should think it over in the meantime, and if the present railway company still refuses to grant the five-cent fare by next year, this possibility of making a change might well be considered in March.

There is not a single thing in the proposed warrant that is at all pressing or urgent. The sponsors should drop the whole matter and turn their attention to something more worthwhile.

Siftings

"The farmers' and laborers' third party starts off with a bang, which is a splendid sign of virility, anyway." (Boston Globe). Even farmers will find that a third party row is a hard row to hoe.

What Andover needs—a petition to end all petitions.

We've just about decided that the only way to have Saturday's warm weather return again is to start our furnace going again. We let it out a short while before the cold wave started.

Andover's tax rate will be announced later than most of the other towns again this year. If this keeps up we'll be turning Oriental and calling it "tax late" instead of tax rate.

Spring Meeting Held by Andover District

(Continued from page 1) one realizes how small a sum will support a pupil for a year in a school one wonders if the people in this wonderful country of ours can possibly understand. Only when we realize that there is no room for greed and selfishness and that there is great in all nations, men who serve unselfishly, the community, the church and the nation and that these are our brethren, can life bring to us in its fullest measure, the joy of service. The meeting closed with benediction by the pastor.

Shawsheen P. T. A. to Meet Officers for the coming year will be elected at the Shawsheen P. T. A. meeting next Wednesday night. A talking picture "Historical New England" will be presented. Refreshments will be served.

There may be a baseball game at the academy, and the local reporter is sent an order to send in a certain number of words and a box score on the game. He files that order with the communication then, and these calls are made right to the Globe city desk clerk. A reporter in there takes the story over the phone, and if he's a good newspaperman, he will ask a few questions—and if he's not, he will know the answers.

Then the Globe has a column in the evening editions for all the important communities in its territory. Andover's appears in the two-star evening edition which comes out here about 1.30 in the afternoon. This material is sent in by messenger on the trains between seven and eight in the morning, and the paper pays him a daily fee when he arrives there.

And that's how your local news reaches Boston. A big city paper is much like an octopus, with legs reaching out in all directions to grasp every story of importance in sight. Usually the telephone is the medium of communication then, and these calls are made right to the Globe city desk clerk. A reporter in there takes the story over the phone, and if he's a good newspaperman, he will ask a few questions—and if he's not, he will know the answers.

Weddings GOULD-FITZGERALD Miss Mary A. Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald of Lawrence, became the bride of Charles A. Gould, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gould of 13 Binney street, at a ceremony performed Sunday afternoon at St. Mary's shrine by Rev. Charles F. Hart, O.S.A.

The bride was attired in a gown of powder blue crepe with a cape fashioned of rows of lace and lace sleeves. She wore a jacket of matching crepe and a blue picture hat, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Her maid of honor, her sister Miss Genevieve Fitzgerald, bore a gown of lavender blue crepe and tulle and a yellow picture hat, and she carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses. Vincent Byrnes was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony and a wedding dinner was served. After an unannounced wedding trip the couple will reside temporarily with the bridegroom's parents.

LONARDO-FETTES Miss Dorothy M. Fettes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fettes of 5 Buxton court, and Waldo Lonardo of Lawrence, were united in marriage at a ceremony performed Thursday evening, April 25, by Rev. Dr. Frederick A. Wilson at his home, 34 Essex street. Mrs. William McLaughlin of High street, the bride's sister, attended her, while the best man was Louis Lonardo, brother of the groom.

Allen-MacLeish Miss Jean MacLeish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas MacLeish of Temple place, became the bride of David G. Allen at a ceremony held at St. Mary's church, 13 Binney street, on Sunday, April 28. The bride's sister, Mrs. Duncan L. Sessoms in Seattle, Washington. Miss MacLeish is well-known here in Andover, having been prominent in the affairs of the Free church and other local organizations. She has been employed in a Boston Insurance office for the past few years.

Arseault-Skulski At a ceremony Sunday at St. Augustine's church, Miss Nellie Helen Skulski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Skulski of 39 Corbett street, was united in marriage to Wilfred M. Arseault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Arseault, of Lawrence. Rev. Leo F. Hart O.S.A. officiated.

Hington-Tierney Miss Verona G. Tierney, teacher in the North school, was the bride at a ceremony held at St. Augustine's church, 1015. Those desiring transportation should telephone Andover 739. Camp 167 C. C. invited. A welcome to all.

NEWS OF OTHER DAYS

Twenty-five Years Ago Harry Ramsdell will deliver a Memorial Day oration on May 30th at North Reading. Mrs. Robert Taylor was a delegate at the meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Degree of Honor held in Boston last week.

The gas tank which the Lawrence Gas Co. has been building on Railroad street is now completed, and it is thought that it will be filled in a few days. The tank will probably be used as an emergency holder at present, supplying Andover and Ballardvale.

Bertram S. Stott of Andover was one of the members of the evening class at the Lowell Textile school which was graduated on May 4. Thieves entered the office of the Cross Coal Co., near the clock pocket on Railroad street last night, and took about three dollars in cash, part of which belonged to Miss Maria Fairweather, who is employed there.

Andover is to have another new and handsome building on Main street. Henry W. Barnard, the owner of the property on Main street from the corner of Park street to the Valpey market, is having plans made for the immediate construction of a modern brick building, 100 feet front, to cover the entire tract.

Ten Years Ago About 800 people attended the annual Abbot Academy Notes

The Advisory Committee of the Alumnae Association are visiting the Academy during the last three days of this week. The school is open for their inspection and there is much interest being shown in the activities of the school. On Thursday evening, Miss Bailey gave an informal reception for the members of the Committee, the Faculty and the Trustees resident in Andover.

On Saturday of this week, Visitors' Day will be observed with a general reception to guests of the school at one-thirty, a gymkhana at three o'clock, and a tea at four o'clock. Student guides will show people about the campus and there will be exhibitions of the work of all departments throughout the afternoon. If the day is fine, between three and four hundred guests are expected to come to see the school.

As has been previously announced, Miss Sophie Chantal Hart of the Department of English at Wellesley College, will speak in Davis Hall on Sunday evening, at 8:00 o'clock. Her subject will be "Echoes from Some of the Modern Dramatists." This lecture will be in the nature of a birthday celebration as May 6th is the date on which the school was opened in 1829.

A clipping from a Worcester paper announces that Walter Howe, Director of Music at Abbot Academy, has been made conductor of the Worcester Philharmonic Orchestra. Mr. Howe is also assistant to Albert Stoesel, director of the Worcester Music Festival.

Square and Compass Banquet The annual bowling banquet of the Square and Compass club will be held next Tuesday at the club. Another banquet is to be held in the near future for club members and their wives and Thimble club members and their husbands. Edmond E. Hammond is chairman.

Lester Utley showed stereoscopic pictures of the Canadian Northwest and the Upper Hudson Bay region and also moving pictures of the recent stream-lined train trip to Portland at the meeting last night.

Haircut

By ELSIE F. WILSON. McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WCU Service.

CLARIBEL BRUNKE'S chauffeur ceased to the curb in front of the most famous of Fifth avenue's beauty temples, Claribel's gracious entrance into the salon was greeted by a careful bow from the wax-mustached manager himself.

"Ah, Mademoiselle Brunke—good afternoon. We shall be pleased—" "I'd like to have you personally do my hair, Seixas," she smiled. "It's rather important today."

"But yes, Mademoiselle." "I'm going to put myself in your hands, Seixas," she said. "I want a haircut entirely different from anything I've ever had. Something suited to my type and personality. You know what I mean?"

"But yes, Mademoiselle." Seixas draped a snowy sheet around Claribel's shoulders. "For you, mademoiselle, the smooth close cut is the best. Then to bring out the natural piquancy of your face, a fluffy bang across the forehead—yes?"

"I'll leave it to you, Seixas," she smiled. "Only make me as beautiful as you can."

Claribel hoped that tonight Rick Hollimore would ask her to marry him. She had known Rick for a year. Late in the year she had fancied that there had been something new in his eyes; something more personal when he looked at her.

"There, mademoiselle!" "Perfect, Seixas," she sighed. "You couldn't have done better." "Now a shampoo and wave, mademoiselle?" "Please."

art and imagination. I wonder who her hairdresser is? He certainly knows his stuff. Funny, the difference a haircut makes to a woman, isn't it?" "Yes, isn't it?" echoed Claribel bleakly. As Hollimore excused himself and strode off in the direction of the red headed girl, Claribel retouched her lips and ran a slim finger through her fluffed bangs. Her hands were cold.

Ellie's reflection in the mirror above the kitchen sink gave back her vivid smile. Her crisp red-gold curls were almost completely obscured by the inverted pewter bowl.

"Don't cut off too much, Mom," she warned. "Just enough to smarten the edges."

"Haven't I cut your hair enough times to know how to do it?" returned Mom Bailey brandishing her shears above the bowl. "Keep still and don't fidget."

"A man in the restaurant offered me a part in a play last night," said Ellie. "He said he liked my haircut." She laughed.

"You mean you're goin' on the stage?" asked Mom. "No," said Ellie. "I'm going to marry Tommy. He asked me last night."

Ellie's hair released from the confining bowl, crinkled and glittered as if each hair were individually endowed with vivid life.

"Gee, Mom," Ellie leaned on the kitchen sink and admired her radiant mop. "Gee, Mom, that's swell." She turned to her mother. "The man in the restaurant said my hair was a masterpiece of art and sophistication. Tommy says it looks like a sunburned dandelion. You should've seen the dame with the man who offered me the job. Marcelled and sleeked and shelled until she was afraid to move her neck for fear she'd throw a hair out of place. Swell looking, too, except for a scared look in her eyes. I guess she was afraid of spilling that classy headress."

"Funny, isn't it, the difference a haircut makes to a girl?"

Double Bass Is Larger Than the Player Himself

The double bass, which stands beside its player at the rear of the orchestra, is larger than the player himself. Like the cello, it has a spike which rests up on the floor. Owing to the thickness of its strings and because of the great size of the instrument, exceptional strength is required to press down the heavy strings. The bow is very sturdy.

Solo playing on the double bass would seem at first sight to have all the delicacy of an elephant dancing. The double bass harmonics are of little value, yet there have been great solo players on the double bass, such as the Italian Dragonetti, (1763-1846).

The double bass, then, may be used for the most part as a humble drudge, giving the foundation of orchestral music. But it has capabilities, and the great composers have given it passages that are of the utmost significance and importance.

War Weapons of Romans Hurled Rocks and Spears

Many of the modern weapons of war are based on improvements which have been made on ancient arms. This is revealed by two weapons used by the ancients. The chief armaments used by the Romans, for example, were the onager and ballista, the former comparing to light field artillery, the second to longer-range guns.

The onager, says the Montreal Herald, consisted of a throwing arm of very hard wood to which was attached a sling which held a stone ball about the size of a man's head. The ballista was a much heavier wooden framework upon which was mounted a crossbow of enormous power, the tension of which was obtained by windlass and cogwheel arrangement. The ballista threw long spears of hardwoods a distance of nearly half a mile.

Armored elephants with scythes fastened to their trunks were used as "tanks" by the ancient Persians. Their airplanes were flocks of fierce falcons trained to fly into the face of enemies, clashing at eyes and feathers. The Babylonians and Carthaginians had liquid fire similar in deadly effect to the modern poison gas.

Walter Raleigh at Guiana

The coast of Guiana was first visited in 1499 and 1500 by Ojeda, Vespucci and Pinzon. The Spaniards planted a few settlements in the region, none of which seem to have had any long existence. Missionaries visited the interior during the sixteenth century. Sir Walter Raleigh, however, first made the name of Guiana widely known when he began his search for El Dorado, in 1595. He described the city of El Dorado as on an island in Parima lake, in Guiana, and it was placed on the maps. For two centuries he confined his explorations almost entirely to the river, although the sailing masters in 1500 and succeeding years carefully explored the coast to the east.

To Hold Exhibition for Disabled Vets

An exhibition and sale of work of handicapped veterans of the World War will be held at Phillips Inn on Wednesday May 8th from eleven until six o'clock. The articles on display will be from the Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Exchange, Inc., whose shop is at 355 Boylston street, Boston. The exhibition is made possible through the courtesy of John M. Stewart, Manager of Phillips Inn. The exhibition will be the first held in Andover and is creating considerable interest among those who would give an encouraging helping hand to disabled men of the World War confined in hospitals and at home with a view to making them "self-respecting through self support."

The organization has been in existence since 1922 and its purpose is to take consignments of articles made by disabled soldiers and sailors of the World War and sell them at reasonable prices, thus enabling these handicapped men to become self-supporting. The articles made express creative effort on the part of trained craftsmen who are constantly striving to improve the quality and desirability of their work. The organization is national in scope in that it is accepting for sale the work of disabled men in twenty-eight states.

The following patronesses are lending assistance to the success of this sale: Mrs. Claude M. Fuess, Miss Anna Kuhn, Miss Mary Byers Smith, Miss Bertha Bailey, Mrs. Cornelius Wood, Mrs. Charles E. Abbott, Mrs. Juliet Blackburn, Mrs. Henry C. Sanborn, Mrs. Charles D. Thompson, Mrs. Arthur Sweeney, Mrs. Chester W. Holland, Miss Fannie Davis, Mrs. James C. Sawyer, Mrs. Lester E. Lynde, Mrs. Ralph M. Barnes.

Wide Diversity of Local Industry Shown in Gallery Exhibit

It is difficult to believe, in the peaceful town of Andover, with its great trees, spacious houses and quiet streets, that one is in the center of one of the largest industrial areas in the world. But such is the case. Within a radius of ten miles lie Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill whose looms and spindles have played such an important part in the history of American industry. For some time now, New Englanders, in picking up their morning papers, have been accustomed to the tales of war connected with their industrial situation, and to the tragic sight of great mills left empty and neglected by the depression. While it is obvious that such evils exist, the present exhibition entitled "Design in Local Industry" at the Addison Gallery of American Art, Phillips Academy, Andover, Massachusetts is definitely encouraging. This exhibition, which represents a cross-section of the products manufactured in Lawrence, Lowell, Haverhill, Andover and North Andover, proves that the wheels of industry are still moving.

The wide diversity of products is at once evident on entering the galleries—baby blankets and auto horns, shoe laces and Pullman seat covers, kitchen curtains and potato chip boxes—all arranged, however, not in the jumble which the list indicates, but with great attention to the proper setting for each object.

Most in evidence, as is to be expected, are the textiles. There is a wide variety of men's and women's suitings and dress materials, many of which show a fine sense of design and an interest in texture. Some of the most successful coating materials have been contributed by well-known local mills. Mills in Lowell make corduroy for baby carriages and book bindings as well as for garments and a Lawrence firm makes fine corset materials. A Lowell firm specializes in the production of sport wear and the terry cloth pajamas which we see on beaches in the summer are one of their products. An important cotton mill in Lowell used to manufacture cotton toweling almost exclusively. Now it makes over one hundred different products—ranging from U. S. Army suiting to a fabric for tires. Cotton blankets are manufactured by a Nashua concern, one very light blanket being made entirely for export to South America. In contrast to these blankets are those of a Lowell Weave Shop. These are handwoven in a variety of soft colors and interesting designs, and are the only handwoven articles exhibited.

Haverhill, which has long been known as the "Shoe City" of New England, is represented by displays of four different types of shoes—the Goodyear welt, the turned shoe, the McKay sewed, and shoes made by the stitchdown method. In the shoe room also, one finds industry, leather, kid for shoe linings, chamois, shoe laces and shoe buckles.

Paper and rubber goods fill another gallery. Here we find coated papers made for magazines such as the National Geographic, paper boxes from Lowell which include everything from cigar boxes to perfume containers, and paper boxboard used in the construction of boxes, as well as fine stationery. A Lawrence Rubber company makes three-fourths of the world's supply of rubber combs, and the Tyler Rubber Company products range from an anasthesia base to a baseball core.

The purpose of this exhibition, as stated in the Addison Gallery leaflet, is "to acquaint the public with the diversity of products manufactured in this locality, and to reveal the present day trends in industrial design." Exhibitions of this type have been held in a number of large cities. The present exhibition, which will remain at the Addison Gallery until May 19th, is further evidence of the growing interest of museums in the possibilities of art in industry.

British Veterans in Annual Banquet

Over eighty members of the local British War Veterans and auxiliary were present at the annual anniversary banquet and dance in the town hall last Friday night. At the banquet remarks were made by a number of especially invited guests. Following this general dancing was enjoyed.

Library Notes

The number of books issued for home use at the Memorial Hall Library during April was 6436. At Ballardvale, 729 were borrowed, making a total use of 7165 volumes. This is an increase of 418 books over the use for April, 1934.

Ministers to Meet

The Ministers' meeting scheduled to have been held yesterday was postponed until next Thursday, when it will be held at the home of Rev. Mr. Dishrow on Porter road at 10.30. Edward Kelley will lead.

Gun Operated by Sun

A time gun operated by the sun, and which has been out of use for a number of years was recently brought into action in Paris. The famous little bronze cannon in the gardens of the Palais Royal, which had been silent for years, was fired to inaugurate a Paris charity fete. The cannon is fired by the rays of the sun which, on reaching the meridian, ignite the black powder on the touchhole and so explode the charge. Up to a few years ago the cannon was fired every day on the stroke of noon.

Tree Space

The plots of ground, rectangular in shape, which line the curbs of some city streets are referred to as tree spaces whether there be trees in them or not. When, instead of a series of such rectangular plots, there is an unbroken space along the curb it is called continuous tree space.

NO matter where you use trucks in New England, you're probably "from Missouri" when it comes to buying them. So Ford dealers are giving you an opportunity right now to be "shown"—or better still, to show yourself just what the new Ford V-8 truck will do.

Ask any Ford dealer to lend you a new Ford V-8 truck. Not just for inspection. Not just to drive around. But to work for you on a regular job where you can judge its performance on the spot.

Give the Ford V-8 your toughest job. Observe its remarkable ability—check up on gas consumption and oil—note the efficiency of the heavy-duty rib-cooled brakes,—and you will then know why experienced truck operators are swinging to the new Ford V-8 in record numbers after giving it an "on-the-job" test.

Go to your Ford dealer or phone him for a "Show Me" test today. It won't cost you a dime and it may save you hundreds of dollars—there is no obligation.
