Chats About You and Us and the Other Folks Here in Andover

"Yours, Will"

We were in the telegraph office last Friday morning when I was talking to a youngster with a mighty solemn face, his muscles held rigidly in a determined struggle to prevent any tell-tale tear from leaking out of his eyes. He was soon to pass on to the messenger boy. "Did you hear the news?" he asked. "Will Post crashed; he's dead." And then came a pause in which we tried not to ask ourselves the question which he soon answered: "And Will Rogers, too." Then as he walked out of the office hoping that he could get turned around before anyone saw that imminent tear, we too felt the muscles in our face become rigid.

Who was the boy? We don't know his name. We just know that he was one of millions of youngsters and millions of adults all over this world who felt a funny feeling down in the pits of their stomachs every time they thought of two broken bodies, lying up there in Alaska—one an aviator of world renown, the other a humorist, actor, commentator, who had spread around more genuinely wholesome pleasure than any other person of our times.

We hoped it wasn't true. It was, though. Wiley had flown his final flight—Will had laughed his last laugh. No more would we be able to experience that thrill of anticipation that we used to feel on seeing Will's name in the radio programs; no more would our eyes hurry to the little bold-face piece at the bottom of the Globe's front page, the piece that needed no more exploitation than the little head: "Will Rogers' Dispatch." And even the knowledge that there were a couple of fellows that he had made which were yet to be released was somehow made a good deal less satisfying by the realization that after those were shown we'd never again see that not overly handsome face with its combination of twinkle and wrinkle that made his laugh go "way, way deep down inside of you to remain for a good long time.

If Will had lived and Wiley had died, down in that little bold-face dispatch the last paragraph would have read: "Wiley, I wish it could have been me. They say I done a lot to advance aviation by writing about it, but Wiley, it's fellows like you up at the controls that have given aviation its really worthwhile boost. Old fellow, you won your wings a thousand times over down here, and I know right well that you've won them once again up there."

And if Will had died and Wiley lived, and if Will could write the way Will did, maybe there'd be a little dispatch: "Will, I sure liked you; guess just about everybody did. It's going to hurt like time not to hear that drawl, or see that grin. You made a lot of money, Will, but you gave a good deal of it away."

Water Carnival at Pomp's Tomorrow

The annual water carnival is to be held tomorrow afternoon at Pomp's pond, bringing the season to a close at both public swimming beaches. The Pomp's pond committee is sponsoring the event this year, since the Legion members are attending the convention at Lowell.

A truck is to stop at Shawshen village at 12.30 to pick up any children who wish to attend.

The feature of the afternoon will be a competitive meet with North Andover, including a 50-yard free style, 50-yard breast stroke, 50-yard back stroke, 50-yard relay race, and diving exhibitions.

The list of events follows:

- 50-yard free style for boys, 14 years and under.
- 50-yard free style for boys, 14 years and over.
- 50-yard free style for girls, 14 years and under.
- 50-yard free style for girls, 14 years and over.

What You and Your Neighbors Were Doing in Days Gone By

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Hardy and Cole have a gang of men at work excavating for an addition at the rear of the Bank building.

Alterations are being made in the office of Tax Collector George A. Higgins.

A little girl on Whittier court had a nightmare the other night in which she dreamed that a man was chasing her through the park. She jumped out of a first-story window in her house in order to elude him, and when she found herself outside, she started shouting, waking the neighbors for a quarter of a mile around.

The Boston and Northern street railway company has a large force of men at work laying the tracks from Chapel avenue to Porter road.

In the September number of Scribner's magazine which has just been issued, there appears a story entitled "The Canal Builders" written by William Hamden Foster of this town.

James P. Cunningham of Andover, a Boston taxi driver, found a purse containing $1500 in his cab last week. He returned it to the owner and was given $10. Later he found that $100 had been deposited for him in a bank.

A godly number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Curtis gathered in Punched hall on Friday evening to tender the retiring principal a farewell reception. Mr. and Mrs. John V. Holt and Mr. and Mrs. Colver J. Stone welcomed the guests. Myron E. Guttererson spoke a few words of appreciation.

Over 300 Andover tax payers are in the list of those who pay over fifty dollars this year to the collector. William M. Wood is the biggest individual payer and Smith and Dove the biggest corporation.

Find Man Lying Underneath Couch

Perley Melanson, 33, of 216 Methuen street, Lawrence, has a very bad habit of sleeping in the couches in homes that don't belong to him. Last Friday morning he was discovered under a couch in the home of Jacob Shlakis on Brundrett avenue by a son, Joseph. A pitchfork and a shotgun helped the Shlakis family extend the hospitality of the house to Perley until the police arrived to extend to him the courtesy of the rear of the town hall.

Perley was taken to district court on Saturday morning on a charge of breaking and entering, and on the suggestion of the court a charge of drunkenness was lodged against him, since he seemed not to know how he became located in the cramped position. Monday morning he was given a suspended sentence of ten days in the House of Correction on a drunkenness charge. He had previously served four months on a forgery conviction.

Framingham Man Overcome by Heat

Joseph Kennedy, 21, of Framingham, collapsed in a bus en route from Portland to Worcester while passing through here about four o'clock on Monday afternoon. Kennedy had been under treatment for mastoid trouble in a Portland hospital, and he was going to Worcester for an operation in a hospital where his sister is a nurse. The intense heat aggravated his condition.

He was treated by Dr. J. J. Daly and then removed to the Tewksbury hospital by Officer David Gillespie.

Charges Filed

Peter A. Iovino, 89 Hulse avenue, Providence, R. I., was arrested Monday night on charges of operating without a license and speeding. He appeared before Judge Stone Tuesday afternoon but the case was filed.

Add Five Teachers to Academy's Staff

Faculty to Number 71, Highest Ever—Former Andover Boy, Whittredge Clark, to Be Instructor of Music—Opens September 17

Five new teachers have been appointed to the Phillips academy teaching staff, bringing the faculty up to 71, its highest peak to date. The school will reopen for the coming year on September 17.

A former Andover boy, Whittredge Clark, whose father was a prominent official at the Tyler Rubber company, is to replace Luther Noss as instructor in music. Mr. Noss is to teach at Cornell this year. Mr. Clark graduated from the academy in 1931 and from Yale in 1935. Recently he has been studying at the Juillard school of music. He will reside at America house.

James Hooper Goo, master in French at the Middlesex school for the past three years, will come here to teach French. He is a graduate of Harvard and has also studied at the Sorbonne in France. He will live at Williams hall.

Donald Percy Ling will teach mathematics. He graduated magna cum laude in 1933 from Amherst, and in 1933-1934 he was a Simpson fellow at Cambridge university. He taught last year at the Lake Placid school.

Frank S. Di Cleneti, a graduate of the Springfield Training school this year, will serve as an assistant in the chemistry department. He will also coach basketball and will have charge of the physical education for the younger boys.

Dr. William Westgate, a tutor in the classics at Harvard recently, will teach Latin at Andover. Dr. Westgate graduated from Harvard and this June won his Ph.D. there.

British Veterans' Outing Enjoyed

Nearly 250 attended the annual outing of the local British War Veterans and auxiliary at Howard's Grove, Big Island pond, on Sunday. Swimming, sports and luncheon were enjoyed.

"Casey on Parade" was the most popular event of the outing, with James and Henry Batty being the winners for the men and Irene Ken and Mrs. John Young for the women. Alex Duke, dressed as a woman, created much amusement in the ladies' club.

The Canadian and the British tug-of-war teams fought to a draw, with the Canadians winning the cup on a toss-up. The Canadians won the first, the British the second, and the third was declared "no contest."

Monkey Selected Most Popular Pet

"Oscar" was the big hit at the annual pet show held last Friday evening at the summer playground. "Oscar" is a monest monkey owned by M. Laurence Shields of the Phillips academy faculty and entered by Irene Hoyer.

The summer playground season will close on Friday, August 30 with an afternoon and evening program of races and novelty events.

Last year a Wellington boy, Richard Stoker, studied at the local academy and made an enviable name for himself. He was elected to Cum Laude and he received more senior honors than any member of his class. He also achieved something unusual when he made a hole-in-one at the Andover country club.

Griffin was a member of the student council, and was also one of the swimmers on the championship team which either smashed or equaled every record in its victory over Exeter this winter. At graduation he won the Headmaster's prize, awarded to the senior who exhibits most fully the qualities of cooperation and leadership.

Plan Centennial at Christ Church

Plans for the observance of the 100th anniversary of Christ church were discussed Wednesday evening at a meeting of the anniversary committee held at the home of Mrs. James R. Fuller on Central street.

The design for the founders' tablet to be placed in the church at the anniversary was accepted. It is a reproduction of the old tablet used fifty years ago at the fiftieth anniversary celebration. It was lost when the church burned down in 1885.

At the anniversary special honor will be accorded the late Abraham Marland, one of the principal founders of the church, and often termed the "father of the church."

When he left his home in England, he promised his mother he would found an Episcopal church in his new home, and he kept his promise.

Plans Progressing for Italian Street Carnival

Plans for the Italian Street Carnival are going on through the hot summer days. Under the direction of Miss Alice Jenkins, members of the November club have been organized into different committees and are busily at work.

The Art department is in charge of the decorations.

The Dramatic department is responsible for a vaudeville show in the November clubhouse. This will be followed by general dancing.

The Literature department will have a book stall. A large and delightfully miscellaneous collection of used books will be on sale at most reasonable prices.

Andover Boys Win Tech Scholarships

The award of freshman competitive scholarships to two students of Andover was announced Monday at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The recipients are Winthrop B. Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Reed of 3 Hidden road, and Avedis P. Saribogian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Saribogian of 15 Cassimere street.

The freshman scholarships are granted annually by the Institute to a group of entering students of high scholastic standing and personal qualifications, selected from several hundred candidates from all parts of the country.

Reed and Saribogian attended Punched high school.

Sons of Veterans Auxiliary Whist

County Council Meets Here

The Essex county council of the V.F.W. and its auxiliary will meet in the Musgrave building Sunday afternoon, with the rooms being open at 1:15.

Sportsman's Club Holds County Meet

The Andover Sportsman's club skeet shooters figured prominently Sunday in the prize awards in the shoot held at the annual field day of the Essex county league of sportsman's clubs at the local traps. Dr. Joseph W. Fenton of the local club won the county championship with a perfect score of 50. John Elliott of Andover won second and James Henderson of the local club won third.

Harold F. Kent of Methuen won the county rifle championship with a score of 186 out of 200. Kent also won the individual prone rifle match, 99 out of 100, with Alfred Butterworth of Haverhill second, 95 and Alwyn Greedy, Haverhill, third, 94. Kent captured the individual offhand match, 87 with F. H. Fernald, Haverhill, runnerup, 82.

Frank Traynor of the Lawrence police department won the Essex County revolver championship, 191 out of 200. L. J. Chase of Concord, N. H., was second, 190 and E. Vernon Sanborn of Methuen, third, 189.

William Cooper, with 98 out of 100, won the county junior rifle championship. The turkey shoot was won by William Lawlor of North Andover.

Results in Class Band Class C of the skeet shooters follow: B—L. Curtis, first; R. Souter, second; O. Mitchell, third; C—W. Snow, first; E. Durivage, second; E. Elliott, third.

Barbara McInnes of East Boston won a prize of $25 on a drawing, and five prizes of $5 each were also awarded.

Frenzied Mother Saved—About to Jump into Well

Peter Casperian, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Casperian of Greenwood road, West Andover, was the object of a widespread search last Wednesday afternoon, but he finally showed up about half a mile from his home. At that time his mother, another boy and her boy had fallen into the well near his home, was on the brink of the well ready to jump in when she was grabbed by Winslow Dunnells, who with the assistance of officer John Campbell carried her to safety. She made repeated attempts to go back to the well, but the officers prevented a repetition of her attempted jump.

About five o'clock Box 52 rang at the engine house after a call had been received to the effect that a youngster had fallen into a well on Greenwood road. When the department arrived at the scene, Gordon Coult went into the well twice. All he could find was about three feet of water and a pail which the mother had mistaken for the inert form of her boy. Despite the department's search, the mother kept insisting that the boy was in the well, a fear which was not stilled until he was brought back to her.

Shortly afterward the scout call was sounded and some twenty scouts were soon at the scene. They were split into groups of four with one leader in each group, and they went off into the woods. However, they had not gone very far when the siren on the fire truck called them back, the youngster having been found. He had walked out of the woods in the corner of Mrs. Elizabeth Sanders' lot on Greenwood road, about half a mile away, and Mrs. Sanders brought him immediately home. His mother at that time was out touring the neighbors' homes in the car of Clifford Dunnells, but she soon returned and nearly collapsed when she found her only child safe again.

Peter and his mother went down to the mail box, but he had failed to return.

Among those who assisted in the search were: officer David Gillespie, Gordon Coult, selectman Howell Shepard, John Campbell, Winthrop K. W. Lewis, Rev. Frederick B. Noss, and several others.

Recreational League Series Starts Tonight

Andover's World Series is to start tonight on the playground at 5:45 when the Miller team, winners of the second half title in the Recreational league, will meet the Laundry, winners of the first half.

The Miller team annexed the title this week when it defeated the Laundry 7 to 6. The series will be a two out of three affair, with the second game scheduled to be played on Sunday afternoon.

Award Contracts on School Repairs

Several repair contracts were awarded at a special meeting of the school committee last Friday night, the most important being a contract of $890 for the waterproofing of the walls in the Shawshen school. This is expected to complete the work necessary to remedy the results of poor construction in that school. The Waples company of Boston was awarded the contract, the method being to chip out the mortar from between the bricks and replace it with more and better mortar. Much of this work has been done on the east wall of the auditorium a year ago, and there have been no leaks from that source since.

Only five members were present, the other four being absent on vacations or elsewhere. Miss Mary E. C. Geagan presided in place of Chairman Frederick C. Smith, and Arthur R. Lewis served as secretary pro tem in place of Elmer J. Grover. Mrs. Annie S. Angus and Dr. Nathaniel Stowers were also absent.

The contract to install an oil burner at the West Center school was let to Amby Bros. at the low figure of $375. The bid also includes some changes in the ventilating system.

Under a motion passed at the meeting, the superintendent and chairman of the buildings and grounds committees are to investigate a steam-piping system in the Samuel Jackson and John Dove buildings. Specifications and estimated costs of repairing or replacing this system are to be ready for the September meeting of the committee.

The porches of the two grammar schools are to be painted. The superintendent was empowered to sell any surplus desks of high school size to the Marist brothers at a nominal price to be mutually agreed upon.

The meeting was short, lasting but 25 minutes.

Pastor Greets Congregation

Rev. John A. McElrain, O.S.A., new pastor of St. Augustine's church, greeted his parishioners for the first time Sunday morning at all the masses.

Smashes Swimming Record

Donald Burns, son of Town Counsel and Mrs. Joseph L. Burns of South Main street, smashed a swimming record at Camp Lawrence Sunday by swimming between Dollar Island and the camp in ten minutes thirty seconds. The old record was 14 minutes.

Academy to Send Student to England

For the first time in its history Phillips academy will send a student to England to study this year. Wellington school of England will send a student here in exchange.

Frederick Welby Griffin, of Manchester, N. H., manager of the track team last year, will have the honor of being the first exchange student. Peter Stericker of Wellington will come here for a year.

Last year a Wellington boy, Richard Stoker, studied at the local academy and made an enviable name for himself. He was elected to Cum Laude and he received more senior honors than any member of his class. He also achieved something unusual when he made a hole-in-one at the Andover country club.

Griffin was a member of the student council, and was also one of the swimmers on the championship team which either smashed or equaled every record in its victory over Exeter this winter. At graduation he won the Headmaster's prize, awarded to the senior who exhibits most fully the qualities of cooperation and leadership.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Mary B. Manning of High street announces the engagement of her daughter, Doris Ruth, to Alexander Petric Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Black of Burnham road.

The wedding will take place in October.

Lounge Rooms for All at Academy

Considerable work has been done at Phillips academy this summer. For the first time in the school's history, every class will have a lounge room. The second floor of Peabody house has been made over into a commons room for the lower middle, and the west basement rooms in the dining hall have been remodelled for use as a lounge room by the seniors and upper middle. The juniors have a commons room in Rockwell house and in Williams hall. Pool tables, radio, piano, etc., have been installed.

The grounds around Rockwell house and the addition to the infirmary have been graded, and the baseball field has been rebuilt. The old bindery on Highland road near the baseball cage has been entirely rebuilt. Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Brien are to occupy this residence.

Appointed Notre Dame Dean

A former Andover boy, Rev. Francis J. Boland, C.S.C., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Boland of 9 Richard street, has been named dean of the new department of politics at Notre Dame university. He was ordained in 1923, having studied at South Bend after attending Punched here.

County Council Meets Here

The Essex county council of the V.F.W. and its auxiliary will meet in the Musgrave building Sunday afternoon, with the rooms being open at 1:15.

Jurors Drawn

Three jurors were drawn Monday night at the meeting of the selectmen. They were: David A. Forbes, Sweeney court, Superior court, Newburyport, September 9; John A. Swenson, 193 North Main street, criminal session, Superior court, Lawrence, September 18; Leonard A. Johnson, 22 York street, criminal session, Superior court, Lawrence, September 18.

More Bluff

Will Rogers has gone, but you still see many funny things in the paper similar to the headline we noticed the other day about Governor Curley's calling a conference of registry, insurance and police officials in an effort to reduce the number of accidents along our highways.

It's just another example of the Governor's attempting to gloss over some of the mistakes he has made. It's purely politics, just the same as his numerous visits to Washington. He returned this week from another trip to the Capital, and announced that Massachusetts is to receive millions of dollars, and administrator so-and-so had assured him that Massachusetts would receive the best of treatment on the projects which it submits.

Governor, don't waste the taxpayers' money by making useless trips to Washington just to try to fool the people of this state into believing that you're actually doing something. And don't waste our police officials' time by calling them into Boston when they might better be staying at home waiting to stop our high state officers when they speed through at 60 miles per hour. A bluff will last just so long.

Tendered Shower

A grocery shower was tendered Miss Catherine A. Broadbent of Lawrence on Monday evening at the home of her aunt, Mrs. William McMahon of Elm street. Miss Broadbent is to become the bride of Robert Miller of North Andover on September 2nd in St. Mary's church.

The many gifts for the bride-to-be were arranged in a very attractive wishing well. Games were played and refreshments served. Those present were Mrs. John R. Broadbent, Mrs. Eveline Fletcher, Mrs. William McMahon, Mrs. Arthur Beer, Mrs. Margaret Myers, Mrs. Stanley Hurrell and Misses Annie Pendlebury, Julie Sullivan, Catherine Broadbent, Anne Broadbent, Josephine Broadbent, Vera Broadbent, Rita Pothier, Louise Pothier, Rita Lawlor, Margaret Miller, Mary Brouder, Catherine McMahon, and Mrs. Mary Loftus.

Plan Whist Party

Plans for a whist party and a penny social were formed last night at the meeting of the Legion auxiliary. The whist is to be held next Friday and the penny social on Friday, the thirteenth of September.

Mrs. Carl A. Wetterberg is chairman of the whist party committee, and she is assisted by Mrs. Harry Wrigley and president Miss Ethel Hilton.

The penny social committee includes Mrs. Kenneth MacDonald and Mrs. Richard Terry.

WEDDINGS WOLFF—DANIELS Miss Emma Lillian Daniels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Daniels of Methuen and a former resident of Andover, was married on Saturday, August 3, to Dr. John S. Wolff, Jr., of Detroit, at the home of the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Sue Wolff of Chambersburg, Pennsylvania.

The bride, attired in blue crepe, was attended by Mary Gimblett of Detroit, and Thomas D. Wolff, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Michigan and received his medical degree from the University of Rochester in 1934. For the past year he has been an interne at the Jersey City Medical Center, Jersey City, N. J. He has just been appointed a resident doctor at Westchester hospital, Mt. Kisco, New York.

The bride is a graduate of the Massachusetts Memorial hospital, Boston, and is now supervisor of the ward of contagious diseases of Grasslands hospital at Valhalla, New York.

CASTLE—RILEY Two well-known Ballardvale young people were united in marriage last Saturday morning when Miss Lola Riley became the bride of Stephen J. Castle at a ceremony performed by Rev. Leo Hart, O.S.A., at St. Joseph's church. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, Lawrence F. Riley.

The bride wore a gown of white satin en train with inserts of lace, and the bride veil carried the bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Helen Riley, the bride's sister, wore a gown of blue lace over tulle with matching accessories, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium.

Best man for Mr. Castle, the ushers were: Francis Riley, brother of the bride, and Dr. John F. Murphy of Boston, a close friend of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Teresa Mahoney Donovan, organist, rendered the "Ave Maria." "Mother at Your Feet I'm Kneeling," and "Jesus I Adore Thee." The altar was decorated with cut flowers, gladioli and palms.

A reception was held at the Andover country club following the ceremony after which Mr. and Mrs. Castle left on a southern cruise.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Castle are well-known in Andover. The bride was a member of the teaching staff of the Francis M. Leahy school, Lawrence. Mr. Castle is connected with the Boston office of the Loose-Wiles Biscuit company.

WALLACE—BURTT Grace church in Lawrence was the scene last Saturday afternoon of a delightful wedding ceremony in which Miss Pauline Burt, daughter of Mrs. Paul Burt of 9 Avon street, became the bride of Frederick John Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wallace of Ontario, Can. Rev. Archie Crowley performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her uncle, Professor Carl D. Burt of Oberlin college.

The bride wore a white gown and hat in harmony, and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Madeleine Kimball, wore cornflower blue and she carried American Beauty roses.

The couple will reside in Andover after a wedding trip to the Great Lakes and Canada.

ROGERS—FARNSWORTH Miss Beatrice Farnsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Farnsworth of 147 Elm street, and Harold Bernard Rogers of Haverhill, were united in marriage at a ceremony performed in Christ church last Thursday evening by Rev. John F. Hull, cousin of the bridegroom who is rector of the Church of St. John the Evangelist in Haverhill.

The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Farnsworth, sister of the bride. Miss Gene Carol Farnsworth, the bride's youngest

Many Children Accident Victims

DRIVE CAREFULLY!

WE LOVE OUR CHILDREN!

Out of the total of 36,000 persons killed last year in automobile accidents in this country, nearly 1,500 of the victims were under five years of age and around 3,800 others who met death were between the ages of five and fourteen, according to figures on the results of automobile accidents compiled by the Travelers Insurance Company.

Nearly 80 per cent of all the children killed under the age of five were on the streets as pedestrians, the total of such casualties amounted to almost 1,200. Slightly more than 75 per cent of the children between the ages of five and fourteen were also on the streets as pedestrians.

Although many children are killed because of playing in streets, the records for last year show that out of a total of approximately 5,300 child deaths there were only 1,800 that resulted from playing in the streets.

FARNUM—PEARL Miss Clara Maude Pearl, teacher in the Indian Ridge school here for the past few years, was married Wednesday evening at her home on Lake Shore road, West Boxford, to Benjamin A. Farnum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin W. Farnum of 442 Farnum street, North Andover. She is the daughter of John Myron Pearl.

The bride was gowned in white satin en train and she wore a tulle veil with cap of lace. Her flowers were roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Rosamond Boyce, was matron of honor, and she wore a gown of blue transparent velvet. She carried Turkish roses and larkspur.

John C. Farnum, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were: Simon S. Pearl, Raymond Pearl and Richard W. Pearl. The first two are brothers, and the last a nephew of the bride. Her niece, Miss Phyllis Pearl, played the wedding marches.

The home was decorated with palms and cut flowers including asters, zinnias and calendula. A reception was held directly after the ceremony, with wedding guests numbering over fifty in attendance. Following the reception the couple left on a wedding trip through Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Upon their return they will make their home at 397 Farnum street.

The bride is a graduate of Framingham Normal school. Mr. Farnum is a graduate of Wentworth Institute.

Infernal Prospect A patient in a hospital awoke after an operation and found the blinds of the room drawn. "Why are those blinds down, doctor?" he asked. "Well," said the physician, "there is a fire burning across the alley and I didn't want you to wake up and think the operation had been a failure."

Lucky A young man walked breezily into the doctor's surgery. "Ah, good morning, sir!" he said. "I've just dropped in to tell you how greatly I benefited from your treatment."

More Modern Sunday school teacher: "Why in your prayers do you only ask for our daily bread instead of asking enough for a week?" Boy: "So we can get it fresh every day."

Mulligan Does His Duty

By FRANK EVANS, McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

"TIM, old timer, what's the matter? You haven't been acting like yourself for weeks, Sick?" Officer Tim Mulligan continued to shine the badge on the front of his coat with his sleeve.

"Spring fever, mebbe, Lieutenant. Besides, I'm gettin' old." The men gathered in groups about the police station looked up and laughed. Lieutenant Murphy, at the desk, shook his head.

"You old, Tim? Never! Just as young as the day you joined the force—31 years ago . . . a bridegroom of two days."

"N' Molly 'n' me didn't take a honeymoon for eight years . . . when the little tad was just a year old."

He sat down heavily and refused a proffered tin of tobacco. As Mulligan was about to leave, Lieutenant Murphy called to him:

"Better see a doctor, Tim. We can't afford to lose Tim Mulligan after 31 years of duty. You don't think about Molly too, and the little tad."

Tim Mulligan smiled and swung his night club jauntily. "Just you quit your worryin' about me, Faith, and I'm younger than all the rest o' you, 'Night."

Murphy laid down his pen and strolled over to a group of officers.

"I say, fellows, have you noticed anything wrong with Mulligan? He's been actin' queer lately."

"We noticed it—but he won't talk about it. Says he's all right. I met Molly in the grocery store yesterday and she looked as if she had been cryin'." But when I told her she looked younger than she did 29 years ago, she said I'd been kissing the blarney stone. A fine woman, Molly Mulligan."

"What's the kid doing now?" asked Koesting as he bent over and tied his shoe. "Hope he makes them proud of him. They sacrificed a lot to give him an education. Tim said one thing that boy must have was learnin'! He certainly was proud of those report cards . . ."

"I'm told he isn't all Tim and Molly would have him be," said Jones over his evening paper. "Don't keep jobs . . . regular sheik and dance hound . . . and Tim wanted him to be a real man! But the kid is young, not twenty-five yet. He should turn out all right with folks like Tim and Molly."

The night lengthened. One by one the men left headquarters. Two detectives drowsed in an adjoining office, chairs tipped back against the wall. Outside, Cohen, the driver, whistled softly as he sprawled on the front seat of the patrol wagon. Then came the harsh ring of the bell, and everyone was galvanized into action. Cohen came to the door and awaited orders.

"Mulligan calling," announced Lieutenant Murphy swiftly. "Fairview Oil station; Fairview and Edgemont . . . holdup . . . one got away . . . attendant injured . . ."

It was scarcely ten minutes before the reverberating clang of the bell announced the return of the patrol wagon. The men grouped themselves about the desk as the prisoner was brought in, Cohen on one side, Mulligan, strangely old and white-faced, on the other.

He was scarcely more than a boy—the prisoner—dressed in clothes of the latest mode, a tweed cap pulled at a rakish angle over his ear, a cigarette between his fingers. They stationed him before the desk.

"Take off that hat!" snapped Tim Mulligan. The young man looked up quickly and obeyed.

"One got away," said Mulligan shortly. "I was patrolling Fairview when the machine ran into the oil station. I heard the attendant call out once, as this one," with a jerk of his thumb towards the prisoner, "got out. They were there last week, y' know. He plugged him . . . through the leg . . . hospital." He was speaking jerkily. "The fellow in the car . . . yelled as I ran up . . . then drove off. This one turned . . . 'n' I beat him to the draw. He . . . he . . ." Tim Mulligan leaned heavily against the desk, his hands fumbling at the buttons of his coat.

The boy had been watching him closely, twisting the dapper tweed cap between his hands. Koesting brought a glass of water but Mulligan refused it.

"I've been layin' for these fellows. Knew I'd get 'em sooner or later. This one is a bad one . . . he don't care . . . for nobody . . . but himself. He'd kill his . . . own folks . . . to get away . . ."

He turned and walked slowly to the detectives' office and let himself down into an arm chair.

Lieutenant Murphy opened the book on the desk, and pecked up his pen. "Well, Tim," he said slowly, "anything to say for yourself? I've been in the force many years but this is the hardest thing I have ever done . . . to put Tim Mulligan's little tad behind the bars. You have killed the spirit in your father's snappy lieutenant. I've got it comin', I guess, but I didn't think the old man would take me in. I swear I didn't . . ."

"Tim Mulligan has never flinched at doing his duty . . . for 31 years . . . and he never will as long as he's on the force . . ."

The tire-makers are discovering that there are more miles in their tires than they ever claimed.

"Highs" and "Lows" Mean Much to the Weather Man

Locations of regions of high and low pressure are vitally important to the weather man. When he reads his own barometer, which is an instrument for weighing air, he can see at a glance whether its mercury column or indicator is rising or falling. A falling barometer indicates that the air about it is becoming less dense—lighter—and that an atmospheric disturbance, quite likely a storm, is on its way. The old mariner's barometer was his best friend, writes John A. Menough, in the Chicago Tribune, as it is the weather man's constant adviser. Areas of high and low pressure are ever on the move over the surface of the earth. These movements are the cause of winds, and the winds, coupled with other factors, such as temperatures and humidity, bring about the atmospheric disturbances. Winds affect temperature. Temperature creates winds. Variations of air pressures cause air currents. Air currents shift areas of high and low air pressure. All factors are combined in one way or another to create changes. And back of the whole natural business of the weather are the rays of the sun, only one two-billionth fraction of which reach the earth.

Beware of Worn-Out Cars

It has been said that "the proper place for an antique is in the home," and that "a car, like a dollar bill, should be retired from circulation before it is down to the last shred." That many owners of automobiles are falling to heed such sound advice is shown by the great number of motor vehicles that are found to be in poor mechanical condition when they are subjected to tests. Figures on the inspection of automobiles as gathered by the Travelers' Insurance Company indicate that three out of every four cars examined are in poor or even bad mechanical condition. Such inspections show that 29 per cent of the cars require brake replacements or adjustments; that tires are in fair or poor condition on 56 per cent of the cars, and that car lamps require replacement or adjustments in 63 per cent of the vehicles. Testing the mechanical condition of cars seems to be necessary because of the apparent unwillingness of owners to keep their cars in safe operating condition. In an emergency, the good condition of brakes, tires, and other safety appliances may be the only difference between a serious and a minor accident. Better too much vigilance than a lifetime of regret.

Flying Fish Can Claim No Title to Real Flight

Fish can fly out of fresh water just as readily as from salt water, but do not travel near so far. While all of them are considered to be flyers because of their remarkable power of sustaining themselves in the air, the passage of the marine species through the atmosphere can lay no just claim to the title of flight, for they do not have any specialized muscles for flapping or buzzing their large winglike pectoral fins which hold them up and do not, upon leaving the water, possess the power of changing their course.

What they actually do, says a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer, is take long leaps or glides, holding their expanded pectorals rigid, which, on this occasion, serve at least as a parachute and derive their propelling power from strong strokes of the caudal (tail) fin as they leave the water.

Practically nothing is on record about the flying ability of the Pantomon, or butterfly fish, which is a native of west Africa, but it is known that the flying Caracaras, in spite of their small size (the smallest being about 1 1/2 inches long), take skips, or flights, of 10 feet or more and rise several inches above the surface of the water.

Rare Russian Instrument Gives Orchestra Effect

A rare stringed musical instrument, centuries old, recalls the wild romantic age of Russia 350 years ago, with its lively music of carefree gypsies and fiery Cossacks. This instrument, which is called a tar, closely resembles a ukulele.

The tar for hundreds of years has been the favorite musical instrument of the inhabitants of old Russia and Georgia and the wild-riding Cossacks of the steppes. It has 13 strings and is played in the manner of a banjo. When played very fast it gives the sound effects of an orchestra consisting of 30 and more stringed instruments, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stringed musical instruments, which are now divided into five different classes, according to the manner in which the strings are set in vibration, are all developments of the Aeolian harp. This very crude instrument first consisted merely of a frame across which wires were stretched. Wind blowing across the taut metal strings produced various musical sounds.

Color Psychology

Psychology is a wonderful thing. It has much to do with our success or failure. It has always been with us, but by another name. Now comes a professor who tells us that the color of the necktie has much to do with one's sparkling success. Doubtless many a fellow has wondered why he got heart failure just as he was about to "pop the question." But it was due to the wrong necktie. This sparkologist says that an orange-yellow tie is necessary to put courage into the timid soul at that moment when a fellow needs every ounce of courage he can muster. He suggests that the girl wear the same colors, to help him along. Orange-yellow will inspire confidence. Green seems to be the usual color for bashful suitors, and that's the reason they are bashful. But it doesn't seem that color would have much to do with it, since love is blind.—Ohio Farmer.

Wettins Now Windsor

Queen Victoria was the last of the Hanoverian line. She married Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, whose family name was Wettin, and these became the house and name of King Edward VII and George V. During the World War, because the name was German, it became objectionable to the English people and on July 17, 1917, King George issued this proclamation: "We, having taken into consideration the name and title of our royal house and family, have determined that henceforth our house and family shall be styled and known as the House and Family of Windsor."

The Jay Bird

To fully describe the gaudy markings of the Jay bird one must use the detailed plan of the scientist: Upper parts, including crest, light purplish blue; wings and tail, bright cobalt blue; some wing and tail feathers barred with black and tipped with white; side of head and throat white with purplish cast; breast and sides light gray, fading into white on the belly and beneath tail. Beak and feet, grayish black. Collar black with black figuring between eye and white at base of the beak.

A Primrose Path

By GEORGE GULLOCK, JR. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"VERY neat ankles," thought Hans Brunn, as he glanced at the young lady preceding him up the stairs. Then abruptly one of the neat ankles twisted and Fate in a flower pot landed at his feet.

"Oh dear, my poor Primula Vulgaris," said the girl a little tearfully, as she came down to view the scattered remains of pot and plant.

Hans stooped to rake the dirt and injured flower onto his evening paper. "Primula Vulgaris! Say, if you bought this for a Primula Vulgaris, you were gypped. It's a primrose. My mother raised lots of 'em."

The girl seemed amazed. "You mean—but the florist told me it was a Primula Vulgaris. Surely he should know."

"Maybe he does," Hans admitted—"and maybe he doesn't. I'd swear it's a primrose. However, it might be a good idea to let the argument go till later and get this into something before the roots die of exposure."

A smile starting somewhere back in her eyes came softly down to her lips. "Silly," she said, and looked so sweet that Hans knew he was going to like her even better than his mother's apple strudel.

They walked to her door. She hesitated, but finally threw it open.

Hans stopped—looked. "To think, you, Hans Brunn, have lived five doors from Heaven for months and never guessed, never realized—Miss Jones, on behalf of the Amalgamated Furnished Room Haters, I wish to congratulate you on your ability to brighten your corner."

They laughed. "I work in the curtain department and I've always loved flowers—maybe that accounts for it all," said Miss Jones.

"The twisted ankle was swelling. Hans noticed. She'd better do something for it right away. He turned to go. "Let me know how the primrose—and your ankle make out," he ventured, and closed the door.

In his room Hans warmed a can of beans and a strip of salt pork over the gas. And ate ambrosia. Lit his pipe and dreamed of a smiling eye, the girl who loved flowers and fussed with curtains all day.

Hans liked curtains and flowers, too. Four years in big city printing plants had him yearning for little Jersey print shops. Letter after letter found their way into country newspaper offices. Always the same answer: no help wanted.

A timid knock woke him from reverie. It was Miss Jones.

"Your evening paper," she said. "It made an admirable stretcher. Thank you so much." She started away, hesitated, then: "My ankle's a lot better now, Mr. Brunn," and was off down the hall.

"Hey, wait—" Hans dashed over the door sill, tangled his feet, and felt the floor collide with his face. When his vision cleared, he saw Miss Jones flicking a handkerchief at his nose and looking alarmed. "Ah-h-h-h!" he moaned, and found his head in Miss Jones' lap. "I wanted to know," said he, entranced by her eyes, "if you could leave that convalescing primrose long enough to go to the movies with me. I'm lonesome."

"Primula Vulgaris, not primrose," she dispersed.

The Primula Vulgaris, or primrose, thrived. So did Hans. He couldn't have told you why—men are like that. Miss Jones learned to make apple strudel. She ate it sometimes, too.

And just when cupid began to oil up his bowstring, Hans got a letter from home. Mr. Nabb, publisher, wanted Hans to return to Galeton as assistant editor to his newspaper.

Stairs are no hindrance when you get such news. Hans went up them like a runaway car on a roller coaster.

"Guess what, Helen—Miss Jones!" he roared, bursting into "Heaven." "I've got it!"

Miss Jones let a perfectly rinsed stocking sink back into the sluds. "Got what? A fit?"

"Nope. A job. A good job! I'm gonna help run a hick newspaper! Back home where I can take a deep breath. What a break! What a job! What a life! Whoopie!"

"You mean—you'll leave the city?" Somehow she didn't feel much like dancing around in circles but Hans was running the show.

"Leave it and be glad of the chance," Hans rejoiced. "In two more days Hans Brunn will be back in sunny southern Jersey. Home, Sweet Home!"

Hans didn't sleep very well. He blamed it on his excited happiness. But you and I know that wasn't the reason. That wouldn't account for the empty feeling near his heart. He couldn't understand himself, so he sought explanation five doors down the hall.

"I got to wondering how the primrose is getting along," he said lamely.

"Primula Vulgaris," she corrected, a little savagely.

"Not so good, eh! Needs more sunshine, I guess. You know I'm gonna miss that darn flower when I go. I'll miss these curtains, too, and—Helen—," he whirled, grasped her and hugged her hair, "but not now. You're gonna marry me. Say you will, darling, say—"

"Oh, yes, Hans... yes."

"I'll take you back to the sticks with me. We'll start another little 'Heaven' together, with these curtains, that primrose—"

"Primula Vulgaris," she tried to say, but his lips covered her mouth.

Jackson Chose Site for U. S. Treasury Building

It is said that the architect of the Treasury building at Washington wished it to be set amid grounds commensurate with it in dignity and beauty. Instead of placing it upon the Capitol's busiest thoroughfare, the story goes, however, says the Washington Star, that President Andrew Jackson, becoming impatient at the long delayed choosing of a site, finally stuck his cane into the ground one morning and said, "Build it here!"

It is the world's greatest depository of money and the government's "pin money" vault.

Objects of interest are shown in the corridors entered from Pennsylvania avenue. Among these are:

Keys used before the invention of combination locks; mutilated currency restored by Mrs. A. E. Brown, who spent 40 years in this work; Presidential, army, navy and other medals; illustrations of the process of making notes and coins; specimens of the mace and scepter; warrant and draft for payment to Russia for Alaska, with the famous Spinner signature; three warrants for payment for Panama canal strip, $40,000,000, $1,000,000 and $9,000,000, and the flag that draped Lincoln's box in Ford's theater on the night of the assassination.

Negroes Not Only Black or Dark-Skinned People

Negroes are by no means the only black or dark-skinned people, nor even the only black people of Africa. The Nubians and Hottentots are darker than some of the negroes of the elevated plateaus of Central Africa, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

But taking the term in its popular sense in this country, it may be said that the negro race is as old as history. Negroes were apparently unknown to the Greeks before the Seventh century B. C., but they were known to the Egyptians at least 2300 B. C., and are represented on Egyptian monuments of 1600 B. C., with all the distinctive features of the true Guinea negroes of our own times.

The importation of slaves to the United States was abolished by Constitutional provision in 1808. Slaves were smuggled into this country in a few instances after that time, the last cases occurring shortly before the Civil war. Since then there has been a considerable migration of negroes to the United States from the West Indies.

House of "Thousand Fears"

A house is still standing at one corner of the marketplace at Rotterdam, Holland, which bears the inscription, "The House of a Thousand Fears." The story is told that in 1572, when the Spaniards sacked the city, having gained admission by treachery, an order was issued not to allow a single man, woman or child to escape the general massacre. In this house, it is said, 1,000 people took refuge, and to mislead the Spanish soldiers, the master took a kid, killed it, and smeared the floor with its blood. Then, throwing the furniture into confusion, the people hid themselves in the upper rooms. In the cellar, and in the garret. The soldiers entered, but concluding that their comrades had done the work before them, passed on, and the people, "shivering with a thousand fears," at last made their escape.

Vegetation in Mountains

On ice-covered mountains it is impossible for plants to grow, except on the moraines of the glaciers or on slopes that are free of snow for a brief period in summer. In northern Siberia plants are known to survive temperatures as low as 75 below zero. Green plants must expose their chlorophyll or green coloring matter to the light, hence most water plants grow near the surface. In the case of the large marine kelps anchored in deep water, their working bodies are floated up toward the light by air bladders.

Red Cross Building

The national headquarters of the American Red Cross in Washington is the first in the architecturally related group of three buildings forming the complete Red Cross unit, built of white marble in Grecian style, and dedicated in 1917. Adjoining headquarters is the memorial building dedicated to the heroic women of the World War, whose cornerstone was laid in 1928 by the late President Taft. The third building is a white marble office building.

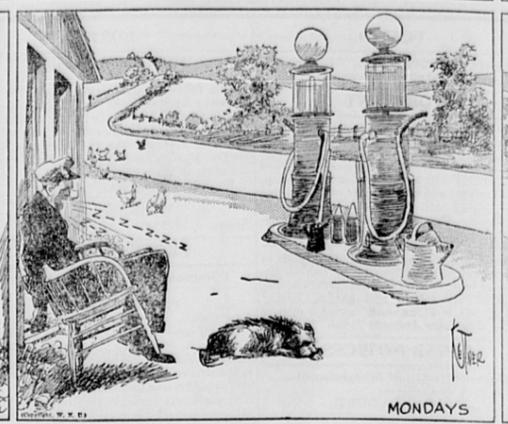

Have You Seen This Oasis?

Dry as the season may be, an unusual tree growing in Madagascar and Borneo always is prepared to refresh thirsty travelers. It is called the Traveler's Palm. From the trunk extend fan-like leaves, each with a sheath at its base where water is stored. By piercing a leaf at its base, therefore, passers-by may drink from nature's own water fountain. The leaves also are used extensively in building native huts.

Russian Gems in London

While the tragic Russian jewels attracted much attention when displayed recently in London, they did not specially appeal to the British taste. The 2,000 gems, once the property of the czar and czarina, were declared to be magnificent and elaborate, but of a heavy nature which went out of style after the death of Queen Victoria.

Along the Concrete

Thrill Act at Topsfield Fair One of the greatest "thrill" acts ever booked by the Topsfield fair will be performed twice daily during the fair on August 30, 31, September 1 and 2 by Bud Hamilton, "The human plummet," who will leap off a 70-foot tower on a motorcycle into a 20-foot tank of water.

The feat, which promises to be even more spectacular than the famous diving horses at the fair a few years ago, has never been done in this country, although a group of renowned French daredevils have been thrilling European crowds with "the dive of death."

Hamilton, a veteran of the stunt world, notwithstanding he is only 28 years old, will set himself afire when he plunges at night and the water in his sunken tank will also be ablaze. Bud in his comparatively brief but exciting career has been connected with big circuses, has performed with noted vaudeville troupes and has done a number of hair-raising acts as a movie stunt man.

The coming fair is being hailed as the most brilliant entertainment and educational exposition in the 116-year history of the society. On opening day, Friday, Children's Day, there will be a pet show, model airplane contest, stepladder race, five running horse races, vaudeville and fireworks. Saturday, Orange and Legion day, will feature a wrestling with Jack Sharkey refereeing a battle royal, a monster drum corps competition and a Boy Scout rally, will hold the spotlight. It will be Shriners' day Sunday with concerts by the 150-piece Aleppo Shrine band, a 12-mile Marathon for the New England 20-kilometer championship and an entirely new stage show, as the best attractions. The final day, Labor day, will be Evrybody's day. A gala program, starting with amateur track sports in the morning, championship motorcycle racing and stunt riding in the afternoon, an amateur radio stage contest in the evening and concluding with a final grand display of fireworks, will bring the fair to a close.

Change of Subject

A preacher, at the close of one of his sermons, said: "Let all who are paying their debts stand up." Instantly every man, woman and child, with one exception rose. The preacher scolded them, and said: "Now, every man not paying his debts, stand up." The exception noted, a careworn, hungry
