Rubberizing the B. P. W.
"Mr. Moderator, I move that the Board of Public Works be instructed to purchase all its rubber from local firms."
That's not a report of an actual fact; it's just a peek into the future. It seems that our local Board of Public Works has become interested in the potentialities of rubber, possibly spurred on by Mayor La Guardia's efforts to curb noise in the Metropolis. A short while ago Mr. Oldroyd's de luxe street cleaning pushcart was given a set of rubberized disc wheels, and at that time we thought the millennium had been reached.
But not The B. P. W. is ever ready to please and last Saturday Joshua Paine saw the public works horses toddle up to his front door, with the driver asking for—shoes? No, not just shoes, but RUBBER shoes.
Joshua complied, and now the local P. W. H. (public works horses, abbreviated a la F. D. R.) are musing among the streets with a spring-like step. You can't hear them, for two reasons: (1) the shoes are rubber, and (2) the clatter of the wheels would drown them out anyway. Now there's a suggestion, Charlie.

The one hundredth anniversary of Christ Church is now a memory. Those who shared in the event are well pleased with the successful outcome.
The sunshine of Saturday afternoon was a fitting start for the Centenary. At three o'clock Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, D.D., bishop of the diocese of Massachusetts dedicated the tablets in the Church to the Founders and to Abraham Marland in the presence of many parishioners past and present and of descendants of former Christ Church members from many points. His words to the parish were eloquent. Rev. H. de Witt de Mauriac spoke interestingly of his recollection of his grandfather, Rev. Samuel Fuller D.D., the first rector of Christ Church, telling how as a small boy he was taught "Adeste Fideles" as they together sat on the well-remembered sofa.
The historical address of Scott Hurrut Partridge of Phillips Academy, printed elsewhere, was a splendid sample of study and compilation. The rector read prayers. Rev. H. Usher Monroe and Rev. Arthur Tait both of Andover were also in the church.
Everyone enjoyed the reception in the rectory which had its new shining plate on the door,—"Marland Rectory," and afterward the tea in the parish house, decorated with autumn leaves and flowers.
Historical Exhibition Excellent
The historical exhibition, collected by Miss Alice Jenkins, was beautifully arranged in the Guild Hall and attracted many people for the day and a half of its life.
It consisted of portraits of Abraham Marland and of all the Rectors until the present, furniture saved from the old church, including the communion table, reading desk, two chancel chairs, the magnificent, carved Bishop's chair brought from England by Mr. Marland. In the old records it was learned this chair had been presented to St. Ann's, North Billerica and it was loaned for this occasion. A pew of the old Church and two footstools were also found in Andover. The beautiful silver communion service given by a daughter of Abraham Marland, now used on special church days, occupied the center of the room. Among the memorials were the brass book stand and the large embossed prayer book from the limited edition paid for by the late J. Pierpont Morgan, given by Miss Anne Means; the large silver vase in memory of Mrs. Charles Forbes; a sample of the six new altar service candle sticks, a pair given from the Johnson gift, a pair from Mrs. Harold Abbott in memory of her parents, one each from St. Catherine's Guild and the Young People's Fellowship. Pictures of the exterior and interior of the old church, bells of various sizes cast from the same mold as the old bell, a cup carved from an old church beam, created interest. On a table were Abraham Marland's prayer (Continued on page 2, column 1)

League to Open Season Tuesday

All women of Andover, who are interested in better government, whether they are members of the League or not, are urged to come to the luncheon meeting of the Andover League of Women Voters at Wildwood Inn next Tuesday at 12.45. Tickets for the luncheon may be obtained from Mrs. Claxton Monro, Andover 457-J, who will be glad to arrange transportation for any who may need it. All reservations should be made before tomorrow night.
After the luncheon, the League will present a most interesting speaker, Mrs. Edward K. Nash, whose topic will be "Who Gets the Government Job and Why." Mrs. Nash is the Massachusetts member of the National League of Women Voters committee for the Two Year Campaign for Better Personnel in Government. She is the vice president and legislative chairman of the Western League of Women Voters, and is heading the campaign for better government personnel for Massachusetts. A deep and inherited interest in constitutional and governmental matters has been augmented by many courses in Government and Economics, as a special student of those subjects.
This year, the Andover League has made a special effort to present a program which should be particularly interesting to every Andover woman voter. Plans for the School of Town Affairs and the study groups to be held in connection with it will be outlined at this meeting. The school will comprise the five succeeding meetings of the League and will deal with matters of town administration. The study groups are being arranged to prepare for the meetings of the school and listeners as well as active members will be welcome.

The number of Andover's unemployed working on Federal local projects will reach a new low point during the next few weeks when the E.R.A. will be working under a grant of only $675 per week. Last fall at this time the grant was $2,000 a week. Dr. J. J. Daly, local administrator, announced last night that he would have to curtail the working hours as well as the number of men.
There are no local men working on W.P.A., since only one local project has been approved, and work cannot be started on that until the town or finance committee votes the necessary money. The P.W.A. project is progressing rapidly, employing a considerable number of local men. Three positions in the C.C.C. are available for Andover residents, but no one has applied at the town house yet.
Dr. Daly stated that despite the curtailment the local employment conditions are excellent, there being very little demand for work. The E.R.A. at present is working on the Bradlee lawn, the Ballardvale playstead, sewing and on library research.
W.P.A. Grant Announced
Andover's first W.P.A. grant was announced Tuesday. It was for $492 to be spent on labor for the construction of a tennis court, 66 x 120, at the playstead. It would employ 18 men.
The town's share is $324.90, which will have to be raised by special appropriation or by a transfer from the reserve fund.

Italian Carnival and Street Fair Very Successful

Italy—without its war and without its warmth—was transplanted on Locke street Wednesday afternoon and evening when the November club staged one of the most colorful carnivals Andover has seen in years. The cold weather during the afternoon, especially during the latter part, served to keep down the numbers of those making the pilgrimage to Andoverized Italy, but even despite this handicap the street fair was a big success.
The laws on either side of the road were the loci of the gaily colored markets presided over by November club members in even more gaily colored costumes. On the porch of one of the homes was a little girls' paradise, a doll shop which was patronized as extensively by adult men and women as it was by the youngsters for whom the dolls were intended. The November clubhouse itself was the scene of a puppet show, a tea dance and a cabaret dance.
Balloons, candy girls, street-singers, and most unique of all a motorized advertisement concocted by three youngsters paraded up and down the street. Off to one side, a puppet show and a tea dance in the clubhouse. Furnishing the motive power and the guiding hand were Donald Look, Philip Crowley and John Avery, Jr.
Miss Jean Crayke served as fortune teller. The puppet show proved so popular that several repeat performances had to be given.

Andover Fireman Commits Suicide

Louis Kibbee, 46, driver in the Ballardvale fire department, was found dead in bed at 7.25 o'clock Monday morning the victim of a self-inflicted shotgun wound according to police and medical examiner Dr. Victor A. Reed. Local police reported that dependency over ill health was probably responsible for his death. Mrs. Kibbee stated that he had been despondent since the death of his brother Charles during the summer.
Mrs. Kibbee, according to police, evidently was sitting on the side of the bed and placed the gun on the floor, with the barrel end up against his heart. In this position it was easy to reach over and pull the trigger. The gun was pressed close against him, for there was no scattering of shot on the outside.
Mrs. Kibbee found the dead man when she went up to call him about 7.30. No one had heard the shot.
He leaves his wife, Mina, two sons, Norman and Arthur; a daughter, Eva; two brothers, Bert and Kenneth and two sisters, Annie and Mrs. James Nicoll.
The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the late home on Clark road. Services were held in the Methodist church, Rev. Ellsworth Ewing conducting.

The specifications would go to Boston after the meeting, and it is hoped that the P.W.A. there would handle them speedily. Then proposals for both equipment and hardware would be advertised at the same time, so that bids could be opened on the same night.

Tells Story of Abraham Marland, Who Came to America in 1801 Resolved to Establish Mother's Church Here

One of the feature addresses of the Christ Church observance last Saturday was the history of the church delivered by Scott H. Paradise of the Phillips academy faculty. A work of real historical interest, it is given in its entirety below.
It was September 17, in the year 1801. The good ship Two Polies was lying in the river at Liverpool. On her deck was a young man with his bride and his brother-in-law, looking forward with some trepidation to the arduous voyage to America. It was the start of the great adventure for young Abraham Marland, and he hoped, the beginning of success in life. For he had known hardship and poverty in plenty. Born at Ashton, Lancashire, on February 22, 1772, he had, at the age of eight, a mere child, left school to learn the weaver's trade, and for several years three shillings a week and his board had seemed like affluence to him. He had later worked in Shrewsbury and in London with increasing but very moderate success, had enlisted in the East India Company but deserted before his ship sailed, had married Mary Sykes in 1800, and now the time had come for a bold gamble with the future. Putting all his savings into woolen cloth to be sold in America, he started out alone in spite of the opposition of his wife and her family. But the prospect of separation from his bride was more than he could endure. He returned from Liverpool to tell her, "I cannot go alone. I have come back for you."
To outward view Abraham Marland was no more than a young textile worker going, as thousands of others had gone, to the New World to seek his fortune. But underneath that may have been a somewhat hard exterior was an almost passionate devotion to the Church of England, to which his mother had belonged. Though Mrs. Marland had died when Abraham was only four, and he had lived with his uncle, whose family were

Reorganized for Economy

The present reorganization of the Andover Taxpayers' association is welcome news to those who for the past few years have wished that there were some effective method to combat the small organized minority which has controlled the spending of our money, whether it be local, state or federal taxes. One of Andover's greatest needs is organized action on the part of those who have the interest of the whole town at heart and not merely their own selfish interest, or the interest of their own little section of the town.

A few years ago we had a very militant taxpayers association which died, possibly because it was too militant in its efforts to cut the tax rate. Since that time other groups have sprung up, and they have influenced enough voters to change the character of our annual meetings from the same, dignified sessions of the past into meetings in which little more than the rantings of demagoguery is heard. Consequently, many things have been done which shouldn't have been done, and we now have a tax rate five dollars higher than it was during the reign of the old Taxpayers' association.

The policy of the new association should not be so much to reduce the tax rate regardless of the town's needs, as to ascertain the needs of the various departments and see that the necessary money, but not a cent more, is appropriated. Efficiency in government is what the taxpayer wants today; he wants the best service at the least cost. He knows that he can't get all the municipal services that modern life demands without paying for them; he is very willing to pay his share for those desired services, but he is not willing, and should not be willing, to pay for many of the extravagances which have been foisted on the people of this town in the past few years.

The majority of Andover's voters have been against the semi-crazy policies of the past few town meetings, but it has been of no use because the advocates of sensible spending have not been organized. There have been plenty of speakers for the unnecessary, undesirable proposals, but few if any have risen to speak against them. Naturally, those who come to the meetings undecided on a particular point are swayed by the words of those who have advanced arguments for or against the proposal. Silence is not golden at a town meeting.

The reorganization move should have the unanimous support of every single person who pays taxes in the town of Andover, and with every commodity being raised in price because of taxes, it would be mighty hard to find any sensible person who doesn't realize that every time he buys something, he is paying taxes. If this movement receives the support it deserves, the headlines in the Townsman following the next annual town meeting should read: "Three Dollar Drop in Tax Rate Forecast as Result of Town Meeting Action."

Siftings

That "dictaphone" act of the Governor and his secretary snacked very much of something that a certain late senator might have done.

The President should either tie his sons up or establish another N.R.A., "no railroad accidents."

They're going to have to cut the E.R.A. working hours here; pretty soon it'll be more profitable to get private work.

"President Roosevelt catches 110-pound sail fish, lunches on Cocos Island." After catching that much, you'd think he'd lunch on fish.

The world's vocabulary is increasing; it now knows another definition for "sanction."

IN MEMORIAM

Elizabeth Cushing Goodhue

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Cushing Goodhue brings to an end the life of one who, in her quiet way, has been for half a century a potent force in the lives of the boys and teachers of Phillips academy. We who have known her and enjoyed the hospitality of her home salute her memory with affection and gratitude.

The door to her home was open wide to us, both teachers and taught. There was always a welcome which sent each visitor home with a fresh confidence in himself; she seemed to make each of us feel that his arrival had been the one thing needed to make the day perfect for her; her questions encouraged even the shyest to make his contribution to the conversation. Many an old Phillinian holds in grateful recollection the vivid picture of her sitting room: the gracious hostess, the children, the teachers and boys occupying every chair and crowding every spot on the floor, even overflowing into the little music room beyond, merry jest, sober talk, all distinction of age or position laid aside; truly a haven in our lives.

Requiescat in pace!

Mr. Waterman's address at Abraham Marland's funeral; a book full of Christ Church sermons reported for her father by Mrs. Hannah Flint; the confirmation card given Mr. Horace H. Tyler in 1861; old wedding invitations to Christ Church; a volume bound by Rev. Samuel Fuller containing missionary papers and the first issues of the "Spirit of Missions."

The rain of Sunday morning kept down the attendance at the eight o'clock service when Rev. Mr. de Mauriac was the celebrant. But apparently the moist weather had little effect later when congregations filled the church at 10:45 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

Bishop Lawrence Reminiscences

Bishop Lawrence, so comparatively vigorous in his long span of life, made a striking address. He dealt with characteristics of English character, saying it was a brave step to establish the old church in the Puritan stronghold of Andover. But the appeal of English temperament has constantly come out and has attracted followers. He spoke of

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Beer of Summer street were pleasantly surprised by a party in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary held last evening at the home of Mrs. William McMahon on Elm street.

Mr. and Mrs. Beer received many attractive gifts including a 75 piece set of silver.

A mock marriage took place with the characters dressed in costumes of twenty-five years ago.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Beer, Mrs. William McMahon, Patrick J. Hannon, Miss E. B. McMurray of Mills, Misses Ames and Catherine McMahon, Helen, Mary, Anne, and Elizabeth Beer, Arthur Beer Jr., Peter J. Myers, Alexander Campbell and John F. McMahon.

Home from France

The inquisitors were "inquisited" Tuesday. Having heard that Alden Brooks had returned from Europe after a long stay there, off and on for twenty-five years, we went up to his home on Porter road for a little story. He left his unpacking long enough to volunteer us a little information and to ask us a lot of the questions about America that he had intended to ask him about Europe.

Mr. Brooks was interested in conditions in Andover, Lawrence and the United States in general. He wanted to know what people seemed to think of the President, and since we're rock-ribbed Republicans and since the gentleman with us was—a Democrat, the answers were varied. (We tried to think of a little alteration to go with Democrat, but we could only think of just one word.) As compared with Lowell and Lawrence. The growth of the chain store interested him, as did the football prospects for Phillips and Harvard, his two alma matres. He also wanted to know what was the best paper to read—being asked, we didn't say the Townsman, but being circulation-minded, we didn't say any other paper.

When we weren't answering questions, we were listening to his story of affairs abroad. To those who feel that France is all worked up about a war, the statement will be interesting that the French people, and so the government, are no more concerned about a war than we are. They of course still have, probably always will have, their dominating fear complex of anything that Germany does, but what Mussolini is doing to Halle Salsesse bothers them but little.

Mr. Brooks returned to Andover Tuesday morning with Mrs. Brooks, their daughter Valerie and their son Joel. Valerie is going to Abbot, but Joel's schooling is a real problem, for being born and brought up in France, he speaks only French. Mr. Brooks is now writing a book on Shakespeare, which he says is rather a hopeless task.

Couple Observes Golden Wedding

Fifty years of married life were happily observed on Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. Darwin M. Johnson of Ward Hill, formerly of Andover, were guests of honor at the home of their son, Louis Johnson of 24 Riverina road. Members of the Johnson family sat down to a beautifully decorated table at dinner which was heavily laden with turkey and all the fixings. The decorations were of golden hue, a large bouquet of yellow roses making a most attractive centerpiece. Place cards favored of golden swans were at each place and a large wedding cake was the crowning feature of the feast.

In the evening a reception was held when neighbors, friends and relatives gathered to wish Mr. and Mrs. Johnson many more happy years together. Some lovely gifts were received by the "golden wedding" couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were married in Deerfield fifty years ago by Rev. John F. Moores of Greenfield. Mrs. Johnson's name was Nettie Boyden. The best man at the ceremony then, C. Henry Johnson, was present at the 50th anniversary of the wedding as one of the honored guests.

La Argentina, who needs no introduction to American audiences since she is on her sixth triumphant American tour, is of course, Spain's most distinguished dancer. Her appearance in Andover immediately precedes her Symphony Hall, Boston, engagement. Fresh from new triumphs in Europe, South America and Mexico, La Argentina returns to this country with new dances and new costumes. She is freely granted to be the world's greatest castanet player. Although born in Buenos Aires, Antonia Argentina is a pure blooded Spaniard, her mother an Andalusian mother and a Castilian father. It was from her father, a professor of the bolero, that she had the advantages of early individual training, so that, at the age of nine, she made her debut in the Ballet of the Royal Opera, Madrid.

Boutwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop S. Boutwell, 75 Shawshheen road. Rev. Dr. J. Edgar Park, president of the board of trustees of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony. Miss Winona Boutwell, sister of the bridegroom, played the wedding march. The house was decorated with palms, chrysanthemums, gladioli and asters.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace made princess style and a long veil of tulle trimmed with lace and a lace cap edged with seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley.
