Good Old Vanilla

Did you ever wonder which of the many flavors of ice cream that are sold at the roadside ice cream establishments is the most popular? We have often wondered about it, and since it's our nature to be quizzed and our job to satisfy our curiosity, we made a point of asking one of the young men over at Glennie's the other night which flavor they sell the most of.

We were surprised at the answer. We wouldn't have been a few years ago, but when you consider the many special flavors that have sprung up recently, you can hardly blame us for being surprised when the young man answered: "Vanilla." He agreed with us that when you could get vanilla, chocolate and strawberry everywhere, it was rather unusual that so many people would buy vanilla. It is true, just where our favorite, vanilla, comes from, we didn't find out. There are no cans of blueberry, which the young epicurean who waited on us had made a special trip to New Hampshire to taste. He found that they had to use so much sugar to drown out the taste of the blueberries that you couldn't taste the cream.

"One Uses the Handkerchief!"

Several members of the school committee and several members of the public school teaching staff were very much embarrassed in a distressed way at the reception at Mr. Sanborn's the other night, and it was all the fault of Mervin E. Stevens, high school teacher.

Mr. Stevens was down on the program for a reading, and he chose as his subject a little story of a third-grade class in a school whose pupils, all Mexican, were dominated by the one desire to be "the good American." And it seems that one of the requisites of "the good American" is the ability to smother sneezes and coughs behind a handkerchief, an accessory which may be made from worn-out shirts, even in schools with red cloths as one little resourceful "would-be American" but "Talked-Like-Mexican" did.

Standing up before the group was Mr. Stevens reading a story on the desirability of using the handkerchief—on a night that was none too warm outside, on a night, in other words, when the robes failed to exercise the same retentive qualities that they exercise in summer. But what could you do, when

Littering Up Our Yards

Isn't there something that can be done to curb the growing use of our front yards and porches as resting-places for all sorts of cheap literature promoting the interests of merchants, political candidates, so-called charities and numerous other things?

The residents of Andover and every other place like to keep their front lawns and their front porches tidy, and they do not like to see urchins running from one house to another tossing advertising matter carelessly around. They leave their literature under your front door, tucked in between the screen door and the doorframe, lying on the porch floor, or scattered anywhere from the front steps to, and including, the gutter.

No concern really interested in its community will be so negligent as to send out youngsters with a handful of flyers and instructions to leave them at every doorstep. Nor will any concern interested in its own business adopt a practice in which there is so much waste. Very few persons will bother to read such literature, save perhaps to glance at the name of the firm with a resolve to trade elsewhere. Then, many of the circulars so distributed never reach the person that they were intended for, because they are either blown away or discreetly tossed aside by the youngster who finds that he can earn his money just as well by getting rid of the flyers in one place rather than going to the bother of spreading them around at different houses.

If a merchant really wants his store read, he should at least spend a little money on postage and have his literature delivered in an orderly way. To earn the respect of the consumer, the merchant must show a little respect to the consumer, and he certainly isn't doing that when he litters up all the front yards in his territory.

Three Cents to the Vale

Andover residents are still paying three cents for the privilege of sending a letter to their fellow townsmen in Ballardvale, and the residents of the Vale are still paying three cents for the privilege of mailing a letter to anyone outside their little district.

Siftings

One of the reasons we're looking forward to this Christmas is that we've been wondering whether "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town" was just a one-year popular tune or whether it will be a perennial.

The Imperial Type Metal magazine comments: "Much of the President's time is spent in disapproving unwise suggestions for spending the money of the company." Note: the word is "company," not "country."

The new junior high project is half complete. We presume and hope that the second

A man was up in front reading a funny story about the little Mexicans being instructed in the use of the handkerchief. You would feel conspicuous in such a gathering if you whipped out a handkerchief just as Mr. Stevens, in the words of "Ticher," would say, "Alberto, one uses the handkerchief if you failed to take out your handkerchief and a sneeze overwhelmed you just as Mr. Stevens was repeating a pupil's little-tale complaint: 'Ticher, Ticher, Emanuel Pasqual, he sneezed without the handkerchief pulling to his nose.'

Winter Is Here

It's had enough to be half-freezing when you stick your toes out from under the blankets these mornings without being told, as we were by Charlie Gilliard last night, that said was being stored in the B.P.W. sheds for the winter's needs and that the snow fences were being put in place. It's good to be prepared but we hope that neither the sand nor the snowfence is needed for a good long while.

Loading a Bullet

If only some of those bombastic orators who rent the town hall air at the time the V.F.W. gun was accepted for the park a few years ago had been up at the park yesterday afternoon about three!

Astirred the barrel of the howitzer was a youngster in a position such as we've seen only in bronco busting motion pictures. He was evidently commander of the gun, for he was shouting orders to his assistant, a cute little blonde in a blue coat who was out at the rear of the gun with her hands on some of the instruments which she knew neither the name nor the purpose of—and neither did we.

How Our Readers Feel

URGES DRIVE SUPPORT

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TOWNSMAN: I wonder if you would be kind enough to print the following information in your paper. It shows conclusive evidence that Andover is benefited greatly by the Community Chest, and I hope, for Andover's sake, that the drive will be heartily supported by those in Andover who have Andover's interests at heart.

"The town of Andover has, besides the services of the other agencies, the facilities of its own Andover Guild, a recreation and character-building organization which is supported by the Community Chest.

"In the past year 749 individuals, 536 of whom were registered members, were served by the Guild during the winter months. Through the summer a fine playground program was given to 1,053 individuals by Guild leaders, employed by the town.

"The City Mission and the Catholic Charities Centre served 10 Andover families, material relief to the amount of $101.73 being given.

"St. Ann's Orphanage and the Protectory of Mary Immaculate cared for three children from Andover besides placing three others with foster parents.

"The Tuberculosis League cared for its health camp.

"The M. S. P. C. C. investigated eight families in Andover, involving 27 children (this included Ballardvale).

"The International Institute aided two Andover families.

"The Boy Scouts maintained six troops in Andover, with 123 scouts, and one pack with 14 cubs.

"The Girl Scouts directed two troops in that town, with 41 scouts.

"The Y. W. C. A. served 150 members from Andover.

"At the Y. M. C. A. 104 from that town were among the registered members.

"I might add that Andover boys and girls are getting $1800 more out of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. than they are putting in, and it is the Community Chest that makes up the difference. The amount that the Community Chest drive has donated to the Andover Guild and to Andover young men and women through the 'Y's' amounts to some 20% more than Andover is asked to contribute.

Be a good neighbor.

Very truly yours,
ROY E. HARDY

In Memoriam

Miss Abbie Spofford Davis

The "passing on" of Miss Abbie Spofford Davis on October 9th, 1935, has saddened the hearts of those to whom she had endeared herself by her gentle, refined, helpful life.

Her parents were Warren and Mary A. Davis. She was born in South Lawrence August 7th, 1864, but passed all of her three score and ten years in Andover except the first three. Delicate health, which Miss Abbie had from childhood, was a handicap to her, but she found much opportunity for usefulness and enjoyment in home duties, friendships and her love of literature and art.

For many years she assisted her mother in caring for table boarders in their home at the corner of Chestnut and Main streets, a house historic to the place where the Free Christian Church was organized in 1846.

When it was taken down to make room for the Andover Townsman Plant, they moved to 29 Chestnut street where they continued their work which many will remember for its gracious hospitality and excellent service.

In the Fall of 1921 they were joined by her sister, Miss Annie S. Davis who for several years had lived in Oberlin, Ohio.

Mrs. Davis died in 1921 and some years later the sisters became members of the Andover Home for Aged People, where Miss Abbie passed her last years in comfort and freedom from care and entered the spirit's home peacefully after only a few days confinement to her room.

Her interest in Art enabled her to serve for twenty years as Curator of the Cornell Art Collection in Andover. Memorial to Miss Abbie where she did valuable service by her knowledge and enthusiasm in interesting visitors in the pictures exhibited there.

A summer visit to Art Galleries in Europe in company with Professor George F. Wright of Oberlin College increased her skill and helped in the place where the Memorial Library for fifty-two years she was a loyal member of the Free Christian Church.

The comforting funeral service was held in the Meeting House of the Church at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, October 11th and was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Alfred C. Church. At Miss Davis' request a favorite hymn of hers—"Still, still with Thee" by Harriet Beecher Stowe was read. Mrs. Mary C. Harris sang "Under His Wings" and "The Old Rugged Cross" and the organist, Mr. Ernest Thorquist, played old familiar hymns preceding and following the service.

The bearers were William A. Allen, Archibald MacLaren, David M. May and George W. White.

After cremation of her remains, they will be

More cigarettes are smoked today because more people know about them—they are better advertised.

But the main reason for the increase is that they are made better—made of better tobaccos; then again the tobaccos are blended—a blend of Domestic and Turkish tobaccos.

Chesterfield is made of mild, ripe tobaccos. Everything that science knows about is used in making it a milder and better-tasting cigarette.

We believe you will enjoy them.

Punchard to Go After Second Victory

A green team representing Amesbury high will meet the Punchard high team tomorrow afternoon at Amesbury. The home team has not scored a point yet this year, and in two games had a total of 103 amassed against it.

Coach Lovely plans to start practically the same line-up as he did last week, with Whiting replacing Cederberg at left guard, and Sanders switching around with Lynch in the back-field.

Comes from Behind to Tie, 12-12, with Reading

Punchard high, after three periods of sloppy playing, came back in a whirlwind finish in the last quarter to score a 12-12 tie with Reading high last Saturday. Hackney scored both touchdowns, the first on a 15-yard run after Punchard had taken the ball on downs, and the second on a nine-yard dash around left end after Mal Lynch had intercepted a pass on Reading's 21-yard line. Reading had scored one in the second, the first being scored on a straight march down the field after the opening kick-off.

A glorious opportunity for Punchard to score was snuffed shortly after the second period opened. Hackney had returned a punt to Reading's 44, and later had run for 75 yards. Then a pass from Hackney to Lynch brought the ball to the Reading five-yard stripe, and after ten-yard losses, Hackney threw a forward wild over into the end zone. In the third quarter after successive first downs the ball was brought to the Reading six-yard line, first down, and on the next play a fumble by Lynch was recovered by a Reading man, and Reading punted out of danger.

The local line-up: Bisset; le; West; Boynton; lt; Whiting; Cederberg; lb; Sparks; c; Wilson; rgt; Pomeroy; rt; Brown; r; Haggarty; Platt; qb; Dushame; Hackney; lb; Sanders; Thompson; Noyes; rb; Lynch; fb.

O'Connell, 57 years ago in the old wooden Catholic church in Andover by Father Murphy.

The home of Mrs. Callahan, daughter of the elderly couple, was very prettily decorated for the occasion and a bountiful supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. O'Connell received many gifts, flowers and cards from their many friends. Music and dancing were enjoyed.

Tells of Rescue Trip to Antarctic

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, Admiral Byrd's second-in-command who led the tractor-party out to meet the isolated Admiral at Advance Base, gave a graphic description of life in the Antarctic at George Washington hall last Friday, exactly two years after the expedition sailed from Boston for the South Pole. Dr. Fuess introduced the speaker, who illustrated his talk with moving pictures taken in Little America.

Among the interesting facts brought out by Dr. Poulter was that temperatures of 80 below were not infrequent, the average for one month being 61 below. He told of the four and a half months of darkness and of the 8,000 icebergs seen in a single day, some of them nearly 25 miles long. He devoted considerable time to a description of the rescue trip to Admiral Byrd.

Stowe School Notes

Home Room Notes

Although pupils are assigned to home rooms by an alphabetical plan, impersonal arrangements end there. The home room is not just a place where the pupil hangs his hat and later reports to eat his lunch; it is intended to be what its name implies—a school home. It is a place where personal problems of conduct, of scholarship, of health, of citizenship, or any sort that may arise in a student's school life receive the sympathetic attention of the faculty advisor.

In this Machine Age, where mass production and efficiency are important goals, the individual may occasionally feel that he does not figure very largely in the scheme of things. This may happen in the school as well as in the business world. Under our home room plan one teacher assumes the responsibility of contacting certain pupils and making them feel that they have a place to fill, a work to do which is valuable to themselves and their school.

All are needed by each one. "Nothing is good or fair alone." Madeline Groot of Room 5 borrowed from the Memorial Hall Library two animal exhibits which are now displayed in Miss Hill's room. These are of special interest to the literature classes as they are reading animal stories.

A robin's nest has been contributed to the Nature Club by Mary Brothers, Room 2.—George Nicoll.

Student Council Organized

The student council held its first meeting Thursday October 10, in the principal's office. Each home room in the school was represented by a council member chosen by the pupils. Mr. Sherman presided.

During discussion of the point was emphasized that any group of people receives the right to govern themselves as soon as they show that they have the ability. As Stowe school affairs they will be given increased responsibility.—George Nicoll

Club Notes

At the third meeting of the Hobby Club the members of the club discussed plans for a marionette show. They plan to get work on it sometime in the near future. Mary Coolidge is in charge of this work.

One member of our club has made several scrap books for the children at the Lawrence General Hospital.

Last week the Needlecraft Club, which is under the direction of Mrs. Derrah, held elections. The results are as follows: president, Margaret Gordon; vice-president, Eleanor Gorrin; secretary, Jeanne Fish; treasurer, Helen Gahn.

The Nature Club spent the club hour studying the trees on the Stowe campus.—Dorothy Christie

Assemblies

On Monday there was an assembly called by the principal. A fire drill was practiced from the hall. After the assembly, time was provided for the writing of the prize essays on fire prevention. Following this classes were conducted as usual.

During the Monday morning assembly our attention was called to the beautiful fall of the trees on the Stowe school campus. The maples along the front and northern side of our school grounds display every variety of lovely autumn coloring.—Bradford Holt

Boys' Sports

There has been a great interest shown by the boys of Stowe School in football. Twenty new jerseys have been purchased for the football team. The color scheme selected was blue, with bright yellow shoulders. There is a game scheduled for today against a team from Phillips Academy. Mr. Cole, during the physical education period, has been weighing the boys of the school.

The members of the Stowe School Sports Club were treated to several boxing bouts last Wednesday. Each match consisted of three one-minute rounds. The first bout was between John Skea, 115 lbs., and Frank Collizi, 112 lbs. John Skea won this bout and became champion of the class. The best bout of the day was between Darrell Sprague, 70 lbs., and Donald Doucette, 70 lbs., which ended in no decision. There were several other bouts but with no outstanding results. The gloves were big and fairly soft so that no one was really hurt and those taking part enjoy the sport immensely.—John Nunez

Girls' Sports

The results of the girls' volleyball contest are as follows: Room 1 and Room 3 are tied for first place, each having 15 points. Room 1 however with 96% had the highest percentage.

age of girls playing. Room 5 did well in evening in second with 10 points.

Every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from two to three the girls of Stowe have outdoor sports, basketball being the most prominent. The girls enjoy this very much. They hope to play the Punchard basketball team in the future.—Dorothy Christie

Best Paragraph on Experience

The seventh grade English classes have been writing short paragraphs describing one topic, choosing personal experience. From the A1 class the following by Janet Carter was chosen as the best work.

A burglar. The clock had just struck twelve, and I was still awake and lying in bed with my eyes and ears open to all suspicious sounds. All at once I heard steps upon the stairs. I made matters worse, I had finished a detective story before retiring and I had visions of masked men with guns stealthily ascending the stairs. Without further thought I pulled my head under the bed-clothes. After lying in this position for what seemed ages, something heavy landed on my pillow. I thought the burglars must have thought that I was asleep and so that they had hit what they thought was my head with a club. I thought I ought to breathe, I lay there, planning what to do next. At last I decided that I would slam the burglar (or burglars) on the head with a book. After waiting for some time, I cautiously peered from under the bed-clothes and saw, curled luxuriously upon my pillow—our cat. Here after I will never read detective stories before going to bed.

P. T. A. to Hold Card Party Next Friday
