PLAY FAIR WITH THE STREET RAILWAY NOW THAT THEY HAVE PLAYED FAIR WITH YOU

Our Guest Editorial

By J. Augustus Remington
On Wednesday afternoon the trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway decided to grant the request often expressed by many citizens of this town to establish a five-cent fare between the town hall and Shawshin square. It is to be done as a ninety-day experiment, for two purposes: to see if the railway will be losing money on the proposition, and to see also if the people of Andover are sincere in their statement that they would use the buses between Shawshin square and the town if there were a lower fare.

At the end of ninety days the trustees of the railway will again take up the matter, and unless the people of Andover respond to the reduction as they have indicated they would, the trustees will have to restore the fare to its former level. The entire answer to the many complaints about the previous ten-cent fare rests now in the hands of the complainants: if they really want the five cent fare, they can have it; if they don't want it, they won't have it.

The committee which has interviewed the railway officials has found them very courteous and entirely willing to listen to the complaints—and it might be added that they were eager to lower the rate if it were possible without committing financial suicide. A recent check-up showed them that there was a chance that they might break even on the change, given sufficient public response, and they have showed their sincerity by going ahead and giving the new rate a fair trial of three months.

A street railway, set up as the Eastern Massachusetts is, is different from the ordinary public utility such as a power company or a telephone company. Both these other concerns have a real monopoly on their particular field; if you don't like what they charge you, you can read by candle light or get in touch with your friends by walking the oftentimes long distance to their house, and nobody wants to do either. But the street railway has very great competition in the form of the ever-increasing automobile traffic which has cut down its business a staggering amount. That loss has to be stood by private citizens, owners of the railroad. Therefore, any change which might mean a greater loss is not an easy step to take. It means that the owners of that company must have a sincere desire to please the public.

So if ninety days from now you don't want to see the fare from Shawshin to Andover restored to the old rate, ride on these buses. If you've been walking rather than paying a dime, try the bus; it will save you time and energy; if you've been relying on your friends' automobile to transport you between the two places, give your friend a rest and pay for your own transportation; if you've neglected to pay that visit to Mrs. So-and-So in Shawshin village or Mrs. Such-and-Such in Andover, just drop a nickel in the bus register and give your friend a long-awaited surprise; if you've been following the illegal practice of walking to work in the Shawshin mills along the railroad track, try the less dangerous way of riding the bus.

The officials of this railway, with everything to lose, have been very fair with you; it is up to you now, with everything to gain, to be fair to the railway.

EDUCATING PEDESTRIAN TO BE MORE CAREFUL WOULD CUT DOWN FATAL ACCIDENTS

The Townsman Editorial

The Automobile Legal Association issued a statement the other day which goes far to clarify a very unfortunate public feeling in regard to motor accidents, a feeling which tends only to increase the number of accidents. The statement says that an examination of the figures relating to automobile accidents in Massachusetts and other states shows that generally 50 percent or more of the casualties are to pedestrians.

One has only to look at the fatal accidents Andover had last year to realize that that estimate is probably true for the state as a whole. The town had five, and probably six, fatal accidents. Of these one was a child crossing, another was a child crossing the street, two were men walking along the side of the road, and another was a lady crossing the street.

Some of these were probably the fault of the motorist; the majority of them however were the fault of the pedestrian. "In the face of this evidence," says the A.L.A. statement, "the large majority of safety officials persist in spreading the false propaganda that pedestrians always have the right of way."

The United States could go far in curtailing fatal accidents by educating the pedestrian to be careful to drop the cloak of recklessness which so often changes into the cloak of death. It's not smart to cut across the street in front of a car; it does you no good to say to yourself, "I'm a pedestrian, and I've got the right of way—he'll have to stop." It's much easier for you to stay behind on the curbstone than it is for him to bring that car to a stop, and if he hits you, it will hurt you far more than it will hurt him.

Civic Artist Course Not in Conflict with Academy

Townsman Communications

DEAR EDITOR:
May I utilize the columns of the Townsman to make what seems to be a necessary explanation of the purpose of the Andover Civic Artist Course?
I have been deeply wounded by a sort of "whispering campaign" that is being carried on by a few persons who claim that the Civic Artist Course is a direct affront to the splendid evenings of music and outstanding talks given to the town by Phillips Academy. I would, therefore, like to explain the purpose behind this local course.

Now, in establishing a musical career has never been an easy problem and in these depression days musicians of all ranks have had to turn to other sources of income. I, personally, have spent ten years preparing for a musical career and while I feel sure that I shall soon be securely established, I had hoped through a concentrated effort in behalf of the Civic Artist Course to find a source of income which would help me to carry on my study in this crucial year.

I was delighted with the prospect of having a personal interest in bringing outstanding talent in my own field to my own home town and was confident that there would be a deep interest in what he has done for the cause of music in Andover to have in my view prevented the success of the course "on the hill."

I cannot, even now, feel that there is any just basis for this misinterpretation, simply because the musicles and lectures are so very different in their appeal. The musicles would naturally be drawn to both courses. I am sure I need not add that one experience of this sort is quite enough and the Civic Artist Course will cease to function after this season.

I hope that this public explanation of what was started as a purely personal undertaking may "clear the air" for all concerned.

Sincerely yours,
HOWARD HARRINGTON

The Treasurer on Salaries

DEAR MR. EDITOR:
I don't know that a communication from the same individual, two weeks running, is permissible, but, if so, perhaps this will be of some interest. I was recently asked to omit the following paragraph from my forthcoming yearly report as town treasurer, which is perfectly willing to do, as more people will probably read it in the form of a communication.

"In any discussion of the restoration of the town employees' 1933 wage cuts, there should be borne in mind, besides the financial condition and needs of the town, the fact that the cost of living has increased about 18 percent in the state in the last three years."

I have no knowledge of the budgets which the various town departments are asking the finance committee to approve, and should not view the fact that I was once instrumental in having my own salary reduced 20 percent, and have recently opposed the prepayment of the soldiers' bonus, I feel the more free to present this matter for the consideration of the finance committee and the voters.

Sincerely,
THANETER EATON

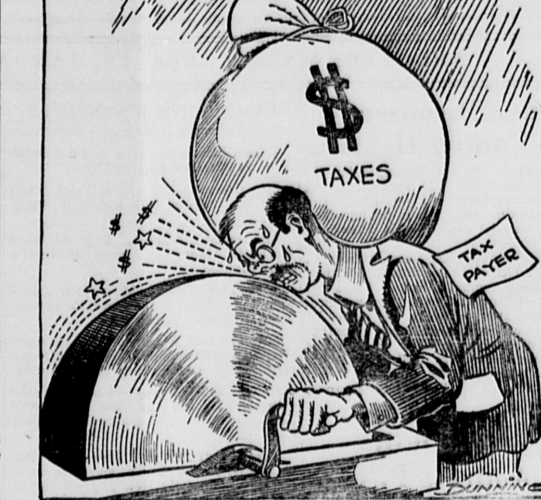

More on the Dump

TO THE EDITOR:
Andover Townsman:
So, the article in your paper of January 24, 1936, written by Mrs. Mary C. Edmunds entitled "The Odorous Dump," made me think I'd better give out some ways of making dumps less odorous than I've learned traveling about hither and yon, in the past.

I know of a place where every housewife has to rinse out all tin cans and receptacles that are thrown on the Public Dump. This helps a lot especially with cans that have contained fish, and other odorous foods.

Then (I sincerely hope the men folks won't squawk) all tin cans, and anything that could be, were flattened down as small as possible before dumping. This made a better appearance of the dump, and all the men folks there were fine experts; they were compelled to take, flattening out these cans. This also helped out the Board of Public Works in handling the material.

EVERY DAY IS "PAY DAY"

—From the San Diego (Cal.) Tribune

Somehow, beautiful things seemed to grow out of these dumps, when they were finished. While the dumps were in process of construction children were discouraged from playing on them there, but I have seen children playing on dumps quite as odiferous as those Mrs. Edmunds mentioned, in another place; not conducive to their good health I should judge.

I'd like to say a word about the garbage collection too; it was a law there that nothing should be put in with the garbage, that could not be eaten by the pigs. Everyone seemed to pride himself on the condition of his garbage container, and they were kept clean. I was surprised at the scarcity of flies and mosquitos but I don't think I need have been, because the flies especially, always collect where filth is.

Kerosene sprinkled on marshy or muddy spots usually eliminate the mosquitos.

Andover is such a beautiful town that it is a pity to have some bad spots in it, and it is a pity because, one section has it, as fine homes as another, one, that it should be neglected. Someone pays taxes on the homes in the poorer sections too.

Some day, all towns will realize that all sections taken good care of, will make for the good of all.

You remember that quotation from Mark Twain about the New England weather "Much talk about it but nothing ever done about it."

Methuen High, with Same Attendance, Makes Hundreds More than Fenceless Punchard

Andover's Town Forum

Two more articles in the annual warrant will ask for $1438 for a wire fence for the playstead and $9500 for a water extension along Boutwell road and Haggetts Pond road, Coach Eugene V. Lovely of the Punchard high school team has written an article on the former proposition and Frederick J. Kearns on the latter.

The Editor of the Townsman:
The high school athletic teams are nearly self-supporting. Each year we have to appeal to the generosity of our friends to balance the budget. If we can get contributions from more of the people who attend our games, we are sure that the football receipts will be large enough to support all of our present athletic program. It will not be, then, necessary to call upon our friends so often for donations.

The Methuen A. A. last fall made over eleven hundred on our game; the 1934 game played on the playstead netted us about four hundred dollars—a difference of seven hundred dollars. The attendance at the two games was estimated to have been about the same. The Methuen playing field is fenced.

Most of the schools we compete with play on enclosed town fields, where they can charge admission. Several officials in various towns have informed us that no one has ever questioned the wisdom of fencing their fields, when they are to be used by the high school.

One prominent official told us that the citizens of his town were proud of the fact that their high school teams were self-supporting. He added that they were not doing so well before the fence was put up.

A fence on the west side of the playstead will help us produce revenue enough to pay the expenses of our teams. We feel that it is proper to ask the town to consider the erection of such a fence, as a good business proposition.

EUGENE V. LOVELY

The Andover Townsman
Dear Sirs:
Just a few words to the readers of the Townsman and our voters.

The water extension sponsored by Frederick J. Kearns and others, seems so necessary that a few lines in the Townsman would broadcast to the many voters, a more vivid idea of how much we need water.

In this short distance of 3500 feet there are seven homes with 42 people. Of this number there are 19 children. There are approximately 40 acres of land available for irrigation and a large number of stock and poultry.

There are four of these homes where the wells go dry from 4 to 8 weeks in our dry season. The inconvenience caused by lack of water during this season is a great hardship as it is a great loss of time conveying water, and in some cases it is carried by children.

By approving this extension, it will cause a big improvement in our sanitary conditions and personal welfare.

Yours truly,
FREDERICK J. KEARNS

(Note: In the introduction to the article on Chandler road, Haggetts Pond road and North street in last week's forum, it was stated that Haggetts Pond road would cost $5,070, and after giving the North street cost, another figure was given for Haggetts Pond road. The $5,070 figure should have been for Chandler road.)

The Value of Clubs

Clubs are organized mainly to develop initiative, responsibility, good use for leisure time and to create entertainment. Some have more serious purposes of organizing information.

At Stowe some of our clubs even correlate with our major subjects: for instance, the Library Club helps our English and the Science Club gives much help for social studies. The Nature Club covers a line of work that is not in the school schedule, but is very important. The Hobby Club provides for work in leisure time. The Dramatic Club creates initiative and responsibility. The Art, Needlecraft, Knitting and Handicraft Clubs are mainly for developing good taste and manual skill.

Assemblies

On Monday, January 27, members of 8E and 7A gave an assembly on early means of communication.

Dorothy Christie gave an introductory talk on the general subject. The following pupils developed separate branches of the subject: Gestures and Language—Thomas Dea; Printing and Writing, Peggy Cavallaro.

Signals That We Hear—Richard Simmers. Signals That We See—William Ferguson. Ship Signals—John Collins.

In between the talks, members of 7A, gave illustrations of the topics as follows: Indian Signs—Clifford Stowers, Archie Maclaren, Priscilla Proctor, and Phillip Toohy.

Picture Writing—Frederick McDuffie, Eleanor Gorrie, Madeleine Grout, Helen Brother and Phillip Toohy.

Morse Code—Janet Carter, and Margaret Little.

Semaphore Code—Clifford Stowers and Archie Maclaren.

It was a very interesting and educational assembly.—Bruce Root

Establishing Student Government On Friday, January 24, Stowe was full of excitement, as it was election day for the student council.

In the morning we had an assembly to hear the speeches of those nominated and their campaign speakers. William Ferguson introduced John Nunez as a candidate for president. Nunez gave a very good speech commenting on what our school needs and promised certain things if he should be elected. Bruce Root introduced Warren Richardson, who also gave an excellent speech. John Collins introduced George Nicoll for vice-president and Nancy Eccles introduced Elinor Houston for secretary and Priscilla Moss introduced Barbara Gahn. Everyone felt when the assembly was over that whichever way the election went the interests of the school would be in good hands.

During the home room period elections were held with the following results: president, John Nunez; vice president, George Nicoll; secretary, Elinor Houston.—Frank Koza

In the Classroom

On Thursday, January 23, all eighth grade classes met in the Hall for the last two periods of the afternoon. This was to have all the classes together instead of separately for the presentation of a new unit of social studies work so that time might be saved.

Miss Marshall wrote and coached a dramatization of the Annapolis Convention. The characters were as follows: George Washington, William Ferguson, James Madison, John Nunez; John Jay, Thomas Dea; Alexander Hamilton, Andrew Hamilton; Benjamin Franklin, George Nicoll.

Miss Atkinson explained the need for a plan of government and the important points evolved by the delegates to the Constitutional Convention of 1787.—Gloria Field

In their Wednesday class period, the 8F social studies class had a debate, the subject of which was: "Resolved, That the American worker lost more in the Industrial Revolution than he gained."

The debaters were: for the affirmative side, Warren Richardson, George Brown, and Bertram Morgan; for the negative side, Maroy Dunn, Phyllis Campbell, and Jean MacLeish.—Emily Ruth Poynter

Ski Enthusiasts

Saturday, a group of students from Stowe accompanied by their principal went on a skiing party to Prospect Hill.

They left the school at ten o'clock, and the party broke up after watching the Phillips Ski Meet that afternoon. A number of students attempted Boston Hill Trail with encouraging results.

This, we hope, is the start of a ski club or team, which as it stands is composed of seven members.—John Nunez

Former Instructor Issues New Books

Mr. Lawrence V. Roth, Instructor in History at Phillips Academy, 1918-1933, has been working on a new series of books in the Social Studies. Since the death of Professor Brigham in March 1932 Mr. Roth and Dr. Brigham's book partner, Dr. Charles T. McFarlane have edited a new series of school geographies called "Our World and Ourselves." Before Dr. Brigham died he had largely finished the new series which are not a revision of the old books but entirely new text. The old two book series which were so popular and are still extensively sold are called the "Essentials of Geography." During the process of editing the new series over the last three years many changes have been made in the text. The old Essentials follow what is called the one cycle plan. Children study the geography of North America in the fourth grade, the rest of the world in the fifth grade, and then cover these same regions again in more advanced form in the sixth and seventh grades.

The "Our World and Ourselves" series follow what is known as the one cycle plan. Book I for the fourth grade is called "Our Neighbors Near and Far." Book II, "Our Home State and Continent," Book III, "Our Continental Neighbors," and Book IV "How the World Lives and Works." The American Book Co. have published Book II, "Our Home State and Continent" in many state editions. The state treatments are not found in the back of the book as formerly but each state edition is a separate book. For instance in the New York State edition children begin with the geography of their own state, then study the state of Florida as a contrasting state, and then the other states of the Atlantic Coast etc. In the far western states such as Idaho and Washington the text includes a historical treatment of the Westward Movement before the children study the geography of their home state.

State editions of Book II which have been published are: New York; New England; Maryland; District of Columbia and Delaware (taken as one region); Ohio; Michigan; Illinois; Wisconsin; Minnesota; Missouri; Iowa; Nebraska; North Dakota; South Dakota; Tennessee; Idaho; Wyoming; Washington; Hawaii (special edition for our Pacific Territories).

Since many schools wish a new two book series the authors prepared such a series which have been published. Book I is called "Our Home State and the New World" and Book II is called "Our Old World." Book II contains a historical account of the expansion of the British Empire. There are state editions of Book I also. These now consist of: New England; New Jersey; Michigan; Ohio; Illinois; Wisconsin; Minnesota; Missouri; Iowa; Nebraska; and Utah. The American Book Co. have published some thirty-five books in the new Brigham and McFarlane series known as the "Our World and Ourselves." All of these books have been put on the market since the death of Dr. Brigham. Some of the books have already had their fifth edition printed.

Sports on the Hill

Those swimmers up at the academy are still making the old records look effeminate. Last Saturday the 150-yard medley relay team sped through the water in 1 minute 23.3 seconds to clip a full two and two-fifths seconds off the new World's Inter-scholastic mark established at the academy a week ago. Joseph Burns, Jr., son of town counsel Burns, Metcalf and Shand were the record breakers, Shand having taken Ryder's place.

For Burns and Metcalf it was the second record-breaking performance of the afternoon. Burns swam the 100 yard backstroke in 1:04.3-5, one and four-fifths better than the 1935-5, old mark and one and one-fifth better than the pool mark. Metcalf who had broken Fletch Nye's old record in the breaststroke the week before swam the distance in one minute 10.3-5 seconds to set up a new school record again.

The result of the meet was Andover 48, Gardner high 17.

The hockey team also went on a spree, defeating Middlesex school 8 to 0. John McDonald played on the Andover defense. George Curtis was the individual star of the game.

Coach Carlson's wrestlers lost a heart-breaker to North Quincy high for the second year in a row 15-14. Jock Baras's swordmen took a 6 to 3 decision from the Peabody house of Boston, and the academy outing club held its first local ski meet, losing to Cush 25 to 19, before a large crowd on Prospect hill. The boys used their new ski jump and the snow trails.

Wednesday found the academy basketball and hockey teams again victorious, with both teams being given scares in the last period. The basketball team led the North-eastern fresh aggregation all the way, but the score was only 37-33, the Boston team having crept up slowly on the local boys. Anderson and Zilly were again the sharp-shooting stars for Andover. Out at the hockey rink the Andover sextet had an easy time the first two periods, at the end of which they were leading 4 to 1. In the last period Lawrence academy's pucksters scored two more, but captain George Curtis came through with his third goal of the game to make it 5-3.

TOMORROW ON THE HILL

The basketball team of the academy will meet Worcester academy tomorrow, the hockey team will stock up against B.U. fresh, the track team will meet Bridgton academy, and the fencers will match up against Governor Dummer. Another track meet will be held between Medford high and Lawrence high.

Coach Duke's record breakers will journey to Cambridge to try to win the Harvard Interscholastics for the second year. The wrestling team will go to Taft school. The basketball team will meet New Hampshire fresh Wednesday.

ENTERS TRAINING

Miss Elizabeth Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Jenkins of South Main street, left Wednesday to train at the New England Baptist hospital in Boston.

On Saturday evening Miss Jenkins was tendered a party at the home of Miss Doris Collins, 36 Summer street. At eight dinner was served by Mrs. Collins, and after dinner dancing and games were enjoyed.

Guests were present from Lowell, Reading, Greenwood, Wakefield and Andover. Miss Jenkins was presented with various lovely gifts.

DISTRIBUTING FORD ALMANAC

Publication of a "Farm Almanac and Facts Book" which will be distributed to the rural population in all parts of the country was announced recently by the Ford Motor Company.

The book is of a convenient pocket size, containing 48 pages. It is unusual in makeup and content, presenting an extensive array of handy tables, statistics and charts for the assistance of the farmer and business man. Other sections are designed to aid the farm wife.

This first Ford Almanac is published for 1936 and is now being distributed. It carries a readily available calendar on the back cover and contains tables showing the time of rise and set of sun and moon in all parts of the country every day of the year. Other helpful and interesting astrological and astronomical information is included.

Be critical-of yourself. When reason fails, use your nerve. In three days a good story is an old story. Is anything worse than a vase of dusty artificial roses? Few "good times" are worth the loss of four hours' sleep. For good work good tools are as necessary as good workmen. We like to help those who are not so well off as ourselves.

BIRTHDAYS OBSERVED

The ninth birthday of William Ross, Jr. of the Argyle street apartments, better known to all his friends as "Bunny", was celebrated by a small party given in his honor by his sister Elizabeth last Friday afternoon. Those present to enjoy the good time were John Hathaway, Andy Lindsay, and Billy Smith. On Monday Elizabeth Ross celebrated her birthday by inviting a few of her friends to the movies and luncheon at her home.

ESCAPE INJURY

Mrs. Percy J. Dole and her son Kenneth escaped serious injury Sunday when their car overturned in Salem. Young Dole had been driving when he turned sharply to avoid hitting some girls walking along the road. Skidding across the road to a snowbank, the machine turned on its side and then righted itself.

ANDOVER AGAINST NEW DEAL

Seven to one against the New Deal policies is the way Andover stands, according to the Literary Digest poll. Of 257 voting, 224 were against the administration and 33 for it. The change in sentiment has been very marked in the past year. A year ago of 151 voting 81 were against and 70 for.

CUB PACK MEETING CHANGED

Cub Pack No. 1 will meet to-night in the Baptist Church Vestry from five to seven o'clock. The Cubs will rehearse for their Parents Night program, to be held in February. For two weeks the boys have been working on handicraft. These articles will be inspected at this meeting. The six point contest started last week is being met with great interest. This contest covers attendance, dues, behavior, achievements, badges of rank, and elective badges. The boys leading in this contest are Donald O'Connor, Arthur Manock, Richard MacDonald, and David MacCord—300 points each, and Duncan Cairnie, 200 points.

SEMI-FORMAL DANCE

The local Council of Catholic Daughters will hold a semi-formal dance next Friday evening at the November clubhouse. The patronesses are: Mrs. Frank McDonald, Mrs. John Fleming, Mrs. William J. Doherty, Mrs. William H. Welch, Mrs. Thomas F. Kendrick, Mrs. Charles J. Bailey, and Mrs. Joseph E. Fallon.
