Felicitates Town on New Gymnasium

Dr. Schrader, State Supervisor of Physical Education, Speaks before P. T. A.

“I'm happy for the new life that is to be opened up for the children of Andover through the new gymnasium,” said Dr. Carl L. Schrader, state supervisor of physical education in opening his talk before the Parent-Teacher association at the high school Wednesday evening.

Leisure, the noted physical educator said, is a prerogative of a privileged few, and the question arises today to what extent the mass is prepared to give constructive use to this new leisure.

Speaking more directly of physical education, Dr. Schrader remarked that play has always been the greatest occupation of the greatest number for the longest time.

“Generosity, Efficiency and Co-operation” in Flood Relief Work Described by Resident Who Took an Active Part in Rehabilitation Program

The following resume of flood relief work in Andover has been submitted by a local resident who has himself taken an active part in the work and so is well-qualified to give an evaluation of it.

A complete story of the devastation caused in this community by the swollen waters of the Merrimack and the Shawshen will never be told. Nor can an adequate picture of the way in which the community responded to the need that followed the flood disaster be painted.

While the waters were still rising those citizens to whom public safety has been officially entrusted were at the scenes of greatest danger and misfortune doing all that was humanly possible to bring relief.

The Red Cross is the organization that one naturally thinks of in connection with any disaster that suddenly strikes a community. The Andover Chapter certainly adds one more illustration of the promptness and efficiency of the national organization.

Crime Precaution Subject of Talk

Charles J. Bailey of the Registry of Motor Vehicles spoke before the Square and Compass club last night on certain phases of law enforcement in connection with motor vehicle violations.

“Swivel-chair” fellows have their idea of what should be done, he said, but in talking to the very people who are serving time in prison, the common answer is: the way to stop crime is to penalize and to do it quickly. He said that 85% of the crimes are committed by ex-convicts of the ages of 18 to 22.

Mr. Bailey compared our institutions and methods with England's. An inmate at Dartmouth prison remembers his confinement to his dying day, he said, and the commission of a crime in England is quickly and severely penalized. Here we go in for “co-operative societies and the like,” whereas the only language a prisoner really understands is the hard-boiled language.

The speaker said the police is some districts are soft-hearted, and in drunken driving cases, as were mentioned where the driver was driven to the station or home to sober up and then let go free.

Exits cited were continuances of cases on pretexts, with the hope that important witnesses would fail to appear, and not passing by certain district attorneys, which is getting to be quite an indoor sport. He mentioned instances where defendants with considerable influence and having several previous charges were not prosessed.

In closing he told of an incident in a court where a man had killed a woman on a slipper highway. In testifying he said he had applied the foot brake first and then the emergency. Not understanding the effect of this, the judge called in a spectator and asked him, “Well, Judge, in applying the foot brake, he locked the wheel so the wheel stopped, and the emergency brake stopped the engine.” The motor vehicle inspector said this was incorrect, the car having skidded seventy feet but on the spectator testimony the judge let the man go free. An old barrister waiting for another case picked up his brief case and left the room, saying “I don't think I was one of those who signed a petition to elevate this man to the bench.” Mr. Bailey concluded by saying that he felt there is much more co-operation than there was.

John W. Stewart, 76, of 10 Bartlett street, well-known, distinguished colored man passed away evening after a short illness. His death removes one of the most picturesque characters from Andover's life.

To Build Filling Station on Main St.

No opposition was registered at the public hearing held Monday night by the selectmen on the petition of William J. Burns for a license to install four one-thousand gallon gasoline tanks at the vacant lot on the corner of Chestnut and Main streets near the post office. The selectmen deferred action for one week, the usual procedure in such cases.

The lot will be sold by Mr. Burns to a party who expressed willingness to buy providing a permit to erect a filling station could be secured. The filling station, as depicted in a sketch shown to the selectmen, is of attractive design, evidently made of yellow brick.

Tech Professor to Talk on Floods

Professor Frederick K. Morris, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, spoke before the Phillips Club in Andover last year so entertainingly that it seemed worth while to present him to a larger audience this season. On next Friday evening at 8:15 he will speak in a public lecture at the Meeting Room. Professor Morris has a vast knowledge in many fields, and with it a most delightful sense of humor and a stimulating outlook on life in general. His subject will be particularly appropriate in view of the experiences we have just passed through.

“The Biography of a Great River,” and he will explain the reasons for the disaster which has just afflicted New England.

As Professor Morris says—All rivers have histories, very like the histories of men—development, readjustments to many changes in their surroundings, and inspiring births of energy when new tasks and opportunities are laid before them. We could justify the writing of a river's biography, as convincingly as the author of “Rats, Lice and History” has denoted writing the biography of a plague—and the story itself a prettier one.

Professor Morris chooses the Hudson River, chiefly because he is very familiar with it, and has just written a book about it. Abundantly illustrated with colored lantern slides, including many of his own drawings, the tale shows the surprising changes in the river, its valley and the surrounding lands during the last thousand million years; and how every one of these events—even the oldest of them—affects our life today.

With the clue which this story gives you, you can begin to interpret your river which flows through your town, understand why it occasionally goes on a rampage as it has done occasionally goes on a rampage as it has just done, and weave stories for yourselves from the facts which the river tells.

Poll Tax Bills Mailed This Week

Poll tax bills were mailed out this week, being received by most of the poll tax payers on Wednesday. Tax collector William B. Cheever asks that those receiving the bills pay particular notice to the notice printed on the bills, stating that under Chapter 60A, Section 2, G. L., collectors must collect poll taxes within thirty days from the date of the bill.

Real estate taxes for 1934 must be paid by June 1st, 1936, or the collector will be obliged to proceed according to law.

The April sewing meeting of the Lawrence General hospital will be held at the South Congregational church on South Broadway, Lawrence, Tuesday from two to five. Sewing for the hospital. Tea will be served.

CLAN MEETS

Revised Schedule of Contractors Calls for Completion Then—Doubtful if Auditorium Available for Graduation

The revised schedule of the contractors on the new junior high school project calls for completion on June 1, although it is doubtful now whether the auditorium will be available for graduation. It might be completed to a point where it would be usable, but it is felt that it would be unwise to allow its use until it is finally accepted by the town.

Of the three buildings the junior high is nearest completion. The gymnasium and auditorium are far enough along to afford the visitor a good idea of what the finished product will look like. The contractors are now ready to lay the floor on the gymnasium. The ceiling is all set, and the lighting fixtures are in except for the lamps and globes. The grills for the windows and skylights are yet to be put in, as are the folding doors. The locker rooms, except for a few small details are practically ready.

The proscenium arch in the auditorium was finished Wednesday, and all the ornamental plastering, an excellent job, is practically complete. About six more working days are estimated for the plastering. The side walls are complete except for the skin coat. The balcony ceiling is done, leaving room for the lighting fixtures, which are to be flush with the ceiling. In the auditorium proper there are to be eight chandeliers, and 24 lights concealed in the sky light.

The foyer has an arched ceiling, with indirect lighting. There is also a big showcase, to be used for flags, etc. Two checkrooms flank the entrances.

AUDITORIUM FRONT IMPOSING The granite steps at the front of the auditorium are all set, with the exception of the lead filling. The brick paving at the top of the steps is now being put in. The front of the auditorium is practically complete, except for the coat of paint on the big pillars. High up on the wall in between the pillars are diffusion lights which will light the whole front of the building.

In the whole group of buildings there are 1400 lamps, running from 15 watts to two 500's.

The junior high classrooms are practically complete, except for a few minor details and the installation of the equipment. Most of the lockers have been placed in the hallways, while the tile floor still remains to be laid. The cedar floors in the classrooms are all laid. The painting is complete except for a stripe separating the light colored paint up above from the darker dado. Some waxing is necessary on the woodwork.

The lighting fixtures in the rooms are complete. In the ordinary classroom there are six large globes, the three nearer the window being on a separate circuit from the others so that they may be operated independently. The blackboards and the tackboards are in. Each room has a cupboard, with glass doors, for the teacher's supplies. Unit ventilators in each room take the air from outside, purify it and heat it and then send it into the rooms. They are regulated by thermostat. The windows allow no-draft ventilation. The bottom part of both upper and lower window swing out simultaneously, but for the no-draft ventilation the top part of the bottom window and the bottom part of the top window spread apart to allow the air to come in above the heads of the youngsters.

The doors leading to the principal's office, and several of the doors in the other rooms, notably the library, are of quarter-inch veneer, with a beautiful grain. There are two large combination rooms, with folding doors to cut them in half, and the manual training room has the same arrangement.

There are two toilet rooms on each floor. The general science room has a plaster picture screen inserted in the wall. The music room is a masterpiece. It will seat 100 persons, the chairs being portable. There is a small stage, flanked by two storage rooms for instruments, music, etc. The windows will have draperies.

In all there are thirteen regular classrooms and the room for the special class. There are nine special rooms. One of the best things about the building is the large amount of storage space, a necessity in the modern school.

NOVEMBER CLUB NOTES Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor will speak to the November Club the morning of April sixth at ten o'clock. Guest tickets for the lecture will be fifty cents. Members and guests are asked to bring basket luncheons. Ice cream and coffee will be served. The annual meeting will be held immediately after luncheon at one o'clock.

ANDOVER HAS TAKEN IMPORTANT STEP FORWARD IN RECREATION, REV. MR. BALDWIN STATES

By Rev. A. Graham Baldwin
The Movement by the American people toward more adequate recreational facilities is one of the significant social trends of recent times. This statement taken from the report of the commission to study social trends appointed by Mr. Hoover during his presidency ought to interest the citizens of Andover. At our last town meeting we voted an additional thousand dollars for more adequate playground facilities and for supervision of play for children in two sections of the town whose needs along these lines had hitherto been practically ignored.

very qualities that are all too often undeveloped or underdeveloped when children are left to their own devices and afforded inadequate opportunities for wholesome play. As Professor Hugh Hartshorne has said in his book entitled "Character in Human Relations," "It is abundantly proved that adequate play facilities reduce crime and increase health and happiness," and he adds, "All who seek to improve the general environment of children in the interest of their moral and physical growth must take account of the opportunities which these children have for play and recreation."

I think Andover has taken another definite step in the right direction. In all probability it will take others in the same direction as the years go by and as more and more people see both the need for and the great advantages of a well-planned, well-integrated and well-run program of play activities for children of all ages. Aside from the human values involved it is good economy, for the money spent for these things means money saved through the cutting down of the destruction of property, through the prevention of accident and ill-health, and through the substantial reduction of juvenile delinquency.

ANDOVER'S REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD NOT FOLLOW THE GOVERNOR'S RECOMMENDATIONS BLINDLY

The Townsman Editorial
Last week Mr. Henry G. Tyler submitted a guest editorial in which he urged Andover residents "to make known in no uncertain terms to our representatives our will and desire for the best interests of our community."

which will imperil the high standing of this Commonwealth.
It is up to the voters of this community to remind our local legislators that we, and not the Governor, elected them. Through various means, not all as reputable as we'd like our Governor to use, he has managed to remove most of the administrative state officers, but there is no way in which he can remove the legislators. We are the only ones who can do that, and we will do it if the legislators don't show more than a jelly-fish backbone when the Governor tells them what to do.

politicians cannot give any good answer to an argument they adopt the tactics of attempting to belittle their opponents. Our local representatives are Thomas J. Lane and James P. Donnelly of Lawrence and our local state senator is Charles A. P. McAree of Haverhill. Let us tell them what we want. They know what the governor wants. They are representing us, not the Governor, and if they obey the Governor's wishes, they are forgetting the people who elected them and who alone can remove them. Massachusetts must have a lower tax; the legislators can give it to us by listening to us and to their common sense and not by listening to the Governor and his nonsense.

Siftings

It was June and January in March and April this week.

The only thing that was done quickly in this Lindbergh case was the murdering of the baby.

The Vale and Village will have their supervised playgrounds this year, but for a while it looked as if it might be P. T. A. vs. T. P. A.

That new school looks like something worth waiting for; it also looks like something we will be waiting for.

playgrounds on a permanent basis are more free of delinquency according to statistics, he said.

The purpose of a physical education program is not a matter of health alone, but more a matter of proper utilization of leisure time, leading to finer men and women with the spirit of good sportsmanship being imbued in their characters.

Concluding Dr. Schrader said: "We are never too old to play; too often we grow old because we don't play."

OFFICERS NOMINATED

In the business portion of the meeting Mrs. Francis K. Murray presented the report of the nominating committee, to be acted on at the next meeting. Officers nominated are: president, Mrs. E. Dean Walen; vice-president, Harold C. Dunn; recording secretary, Miss Catherine Barrett; corresponding secretary, Miss Clara Putnam; treasurer, John Irving; and new member of best of directors, Arthur Cole.

Miss Barrett reported on the work of the Student Aid committee.

The by-laws were waived to permit the holding of the meetings on the third Wednesday of the month next year. Another proposed amendment to the by-laws, allowing a contributing membership as well as a regular membership, will be discussed at the next meeting, which is to take place on May sixth. An exhibition of work will be held in the separate rooms from 7:30 to 8:30, and at 8:30 the annual meeting will be held in the library.

Announcement of a garden tea to be held at 68 Salem street on Wednesday, May 27, was made. Mrs. Derrah's room was awarded the attendance banner.

TEACHER RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

Two resolutions were adopted by the association. They were as follows:

1. Resolved that the Andover Parent-Teacher Association should support the Superintendent of Schools and the School Committee in appointing the best qualified teachers to fill vacancies.

2. The Parent-Teacher Association has full confidence in the ability and judgment of the School Committee in making appointments. However it is believed that individual committee members, when making appointments, is harmful to the best interests of the schools. Be it therefore resolved, that discussions pertaining to appointments should not be made public and only the decision of the Committee should be announced.

John W. Stewart
John W. Stewart, 76, of 10 Bartlett street, well-known disheveled negro passed away last evening after a short illness. His death removes one of the most picturesque characters from Andover's life.

Many of the older residents of town remember Mr. Stewart, dignified by the title Professor Stewart, with Mrs. Stewart riding around on a bright phaeton, seated atop a high seat. The horse he used to check so that its neck was arched back, giving it a high-spirited look. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart were garbed in the height of fashion, with the "Professor" wearing a tall silk hat. The horse grew old and automobiles began to replace the equine population, and before long the unusual sight had disappeared from the streets of Andover.

He was a familiar figure at the old-time athletic contests with Exeter. He was wont

STUDENT OFFICERS-We flatter ourselves at Stowe that we are really quite keen, else how could we have such fine student-government officers? We nominated them; we elected them. And now with pride and pleasure we introduce them to the public: President, John Nunez; vice-president, George Nicoll; secretary, Elinor Houston. Having done so well in choosing officers, let us support them wholeheartedly in their efforts to make ours the best junior high school we can make it.

PLAY PRESENTED-A play, "Silver Knight," a story of medieval days, written by Marguerite Richards and Pauline Peters of 8C, was presented before the school during the home room period today. The play was directed by Miss Marshall. The leading actors were Marguerite Richards, as the "Silver Knight," Pauline Peters, Pauline Dufresne, Dorothy Scifridge, Muriel Porter, and Ruth Porter.-John Nunez

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES-The dancing class of April 1 concluded the series of three sponsored by the Parent Teachers' Association for Stowe School. The great increase in the attendance at the second class indicated the growing interest in the plan shown by the students of the school. Excitement ran high around the school, for the last class in the series was to conclude with a party. Ar-to appear in a broad-brimmed felt hat, Prince Albert coat, light colored trousers and cane. The atmosphere he created by his clothes he emphasized by his very dignified bearing and his gracious manner.

Horn in slavery at Hanover county, Virginia, he became free at the age of three through President Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation. He lived here for fifty years, conducting a tailor shop in which he did considerable pressing and cleaning work for the Phillips academy students. Mrs. Stewart died several years ago.

He leaves no immediate survivors. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon from the Lundgren funeral parlors. Services are to be conducted at the Baptist church at 2:30 by Rev. Lorentz I. Hansen, pastor, and Rev. Julius Mitchell, of the Third Baptist church of Lawrence. Burial will be in Spring Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Louise H. Daley
Mrs. Louise (Hayden) Daley passed away Thursday evening at her home, 14 Bartlett street, after an illness of less than a week. She was born in Bedford, N. Y., 74 years ago, and had lived here since her marriage 45 years ago. Her husband was the late James E. Daley.

OBSERVES 80TH BIRTHDAY

Miss Georgiana Chase was eighty years young on Monday, and her family celebrated the event by gathering at her home on Sunday for a turkey dinner. Three birthday cakes graced the board and flowers were everywhere. Everybody seemed to know how Miss Chase loved flowers. Monday Miss Chase entertained six friends, four of whom were schoolmates of hers at Osgood School and these four all had celebrated their eightieth birthdays. They were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burt, Charles Livingston and Miss Lizzie Comptois of Lowell. The other two guests were Miss Ella Holt and Miss Clara Boynton. Two more birthday cakes, greetings and calls from friends made the day a very happy one. Miss Chase has led a very busy life and she has time to enjoy her friends and they her. She has the distinction of being the first woman proof-reader on a daily paper, serving the Traveler for twenty-five years, twenty-four as proof-reader. She also worked for the Lawrence American. During all this busy life she still found time to keep in touch with church and community life and today friends wish her health, happiness and many more birthdays.
