Chats About You and Us and the
Other Folks Here in Andover

SEVEN SEVENS.—This one has been going to speed it on its way by letting you all try it. If you know of anyone who's good at multiplication, ask him to try it. If you have several visitors at your house, give the problem to them all at the same time, and see which can obtain the correct answer first. Down at the end of this column, you'll find the right answer.

There's a grove of pine trees. There are seven rows of trees, there are seven trees in each row, there are seven limbs on each tree, there are seven twigs on each limb, there are seven acorns on each twig. And the problem is: how many acorns are there in all?

THE MILLENNIUM.—Superintendent of Schools Henry C. Sanborn was a mighty happy man Tuesday night. He had of course been granted a two weeks' leave of absence by the school committee for reasons of health, but that wasn't what made him feel better than he has felt since he came here over 15 years ago.

And the reason why Mr. Sanborn was so happy Tuesday was that the still-critical public had implied that he needn't have had the no school whistle sounded Monday!

MORE BUTTONS.—Last week we told about the youngster who thought something should be invented to press the mechanical age's button; this week we met a National Guardsman who was firmly convinced that something should be invented to stop the button from being pressed.

ONE OF THE LOCAL N. G.'s (he works out in the moustache room here at the Press, so we'd better explain that N. G. means National Guardsman, and not what you thought it meant) had the rather confining task of acting as midman at the telephone exchange in Lawrence while the National Guard was occupying the city. The telephone at the armory, the headquarters of the N. G., was out of order, and so all calls for the armory were received at the exchange, transmitted by this young man over an army field telephone to the armory.

IT WAS THE major and the adjutant general, as we remember it, who were the 'phoners in this case. Our young man was receiving the major's statements in one ear, transmitting the same to the mouthpiece of the field phone, then receiving the adjutant general's answer in the other ear, and transmitting it to the other 'phone.

BELOW THE desk was a button, the purpose of which was to summon the police in case of necessity, and the young man had been told (Continued on page 2, column 3)

Play New Organ at St. Augustine's

St. Augustine's church's new organ was played for the first time publicly Sunday morning at the 9:45 mass, with Miss Annie G. Donovan, organist for over forty years, at the console. The new organ was donated to the church by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Curran, and during the mass Father Angus, the pastor, thanked the donors for their generous gift. He plans to hold a recital on the new organ after Easter, and at this time a guest organist will be present to provide a varied program which will display the many great possibilities of the organ.

It is a two-manual organ with 50 stops. It is built in two sections, the swell organ being on one side and the great organ on the other. A platform is to be built at the rear of the console, and here the choir will be located, in front of the stained glass windows.

Miss Donovan played the Mass of the Blessed Sacrament by Korman. At the offertory the choir sang Cherubini's "Veni Jesu." Solos were sung by Miss Milly Zalla, Miss Irene McCarthy, Frank A. Robertson and Charles O'Neill.

Andover's new zoning law, approved by the town at the annual town meeting, was approved by Attorney General Paul A. Dever last Friday. Both the map and the law itself received the state's sanction.

The attorney-general changed only one section, and that was but a minor change. In section XVII, the Appeals section, he dropped the words "section 27 and 27A" of the General Laws, Chapter 40, so that the section now reads: "Any person aggrieved by the action of the Building Inspector, or by a decision of the Board of Appeals, may appeal under the provisions of Chapter 40 of the General Laws, and amendments and additions thereto."

The approval of the state legal department removes all doubt as to the constitutionality of the law. Before town meeting the question was raised as to whether or not the agricultural district as set up was constitutional, and at town meeting the matter of constitutionality was indirectly brought into the discussion when the question came up as to when the interim law should be declared out of effect. It was felt that to repeal it immediately was to run the risk of having the town without any zoning ordinance in the event that the attorney-general failed to approve.

The new law will go into effect shortly. The General Laws require advertising the entire law and map three times, and today's Townsman carries the first insertion. On Friday, April 24, the advertising requirement will have been satisfied.

Interesting Talk at Shawsheen Meeting

"Am Still Rich" was the subject of an interesting post-depression talk given by Arthur Rudman of Springfield at the meeting of the Shawsheen Village Women's club Monday evening in Balmoral hall. The comparative unimportance of financial wealth and the real importance of spiritual wealth were stressed by the speaker.

He emphasized that we must realize that money does not constitute riches, for those who are rolling in wealth may be the poorest in real values, while those who are the poorest financially may be the richest in friendships and other spiritual values. "It is not what things do to us that counts," he said; "it's what we do with things. In time of stress we draw upon untapped reservoirs of strength which we have not known existed within ourselves."

Mr. Rudman gave as his definition of "Happiness" the organization of life directed toward the best. "Our friends are our greatest riches," he said.

The musical part of the program was presented by The Morey School Hill-Billy band and of Lowell under the direction of Miss Helen Hannon and led by Kendall Morse. They gave a program including most of the old Hill-Billy favorites and a "mellodrammer" entitled "No, No, No A Thousand Times No." Their performance was very well received.

GREAT CHANGE IN LIBRARY GIVES TOWN CAUSE TO APPRECIATE EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

By Nathan C. Hamblin
The sudden loss of heat and light which most of us experienced recently, even though we were not in the flooded area, has brought to the minds of the older generation a forceful comparison between the public utilities of today and those of a generation ago.

Fifty years ago many of the public libraries in communities the size of Andover were housed in basement rooms of town halls, poorly lighted, with the books on wooden shelves. The books themselves, all carefully covered with manila-paper wrappers were often unattractive collections gathered from the discards of private libraries.

on the shelves of the library and not in the hands of the borrower.
While Andover, even then, was better off than most towns, yet today's services were undreamed of. Our Memorial Hall Library has over 30,000 volumes, with a thousand new books added yearly.

Much is said and written now of Adult Education and the Use of Leisure. The keen interest shown in the Courses offered at Phillips Academy the past two winters, the great increase in the use of the public libraries during the depression, the facilities for private study afforded by the State Department of Education—all these show that people are realizing more and more that education is not confined to schools and colleges but may be pursued throughout life with untold satisfactions.

ARBITRARY ACTION OF SELECTMEN IN GRANTING GAS STATION LICENSE SMACKS OF CITY POLITICS

The other night the Board of Selectmen came to a decision which looked as if it might have been preface by the statement: "Governor Curley snaps his fingers at the public; why can't we?"

Some fifty citizens, bearing a petition with nearly 100 signatures, appeared at the town house Monday night to protest the granting of a license for a filling station at the corner of Main and Chestnut streets, in between the Savings bank and the Post Office, both beautiful structures of which the town is very proud.

Down in Shawshen square there's a lot of land that has been the subject of considerable controversy primarily because the man who bought it wanted to build a filling station there. There is no more reason why a permit for a filling station should be granted on this corner up here in the center of the town than that corner down in the village. The village is a beautiful spot, and no one in town wants to see its beauty marred by any such eyesore.

There is another, even more important factor, to be considered, and that is the safety of the numerous school children who have to walk by that spot each school day. All the public school children in attendance at the Central Plant who live on the west side of Main street walk by there four times each day, and in addition many of the Parochial school children have to use that corner. Every one of them will be taking a chance when they pass the station; they have been taught to "stop, look and listen," but no one, let alone a child, can look everywhere at the same time.

These reasons were presented to the selectmen by a group of persons sincerely interested in the welfare of the town and its inhabitants. Everyone must admit the validity of the arguments, but that didn't bother the selectmen at all. They went right ahead, as bull-headed as some of our chief executives, and with a Commodore Vanderbilt sentiment granted the license.

It doesn't go well here in Andover. This town doesn't like to have to stomach high-handed tactics.
A Big Step
The last obstacle in the long fight for a more beautiful town was dissipated last Friday when the Attorney General gave his final approval to the new zoning by-law adopted by the town at the annual town meeting. As time goes on the few who objected to the plan will find that their fears were ungrounded, while the town as a whole will realize that it took one of its greatest steps toward insuring a more stable valuation on March the ninth.

These reasons were presented to the selectmen by a group of persons sincerely interested in the welfare of the town and its inhabitants. Everyone must admit the validity of the arguments, but that didn't bother the selectmen at all. They went right ahead, as bull-headed as some of our chief executives, and with a Commodore Vanderbilt sentiment granted the license.

It was out of order. However, when he finished being the mouthpiece for the army officers, he placed both telephones back on his feet, and looked up at the faces of his four policemen and in front of him were two others, a sight to awe anyone, especially when the six are Lawrence officers.

The rest of the story, as we remember it and imagine it, went something like this:
Officer: Watch that ringin that buzzer for?
N. G.: They told me it was out of order.
Cop: Sez you.
N. G.: Sure, I didn't even know I was stepping on it.
Bobby: Well, yer'd better watch step, or we'll patcha where they ain't no telephones.
N. G.: Sez you. Whodcha think you are, you dumb cop?
(N. B.—The last statement was made after the gendarmes had left.)

THOSE ACORNIS—Acorns are good squirrel food, and so is anyone who went to all the bother of solving the problem up above by multiplying seven by seven by seven by seven by seven by seven to find out how many acorns there are in a grove of pine trees.

John W. Stewart, one of the most picturesque figures in Andover's past, was laid to rest in Spring Grove cemetery Sunday afternoon. Funeral services were held at the Baptist church, with Rev. Lorentz L. Hansen officiating.

The bearers were: William Hazzard, John Jones, Albert Saunders, John Mann, James Kelley, and Richard Talbot.

Mrs. Louise H. Daley

Former School Board Chairman Passes Away
Frederic G. Moore, 58, president of the city council of Pittsfield, a former well-known resident of Andover, passed away suddenly as the result of a heart attack at his home early Saturday morning. He was secretary of the Merrimack Mutual Fire Insurance company here for a number of years. He also served as chairman of the school committee and as organist at the South church.

At the time of his death Mr. Moore had been acting as mayor of Pittsfield, Mayor Allen H. Bagge having gone to St. Petersburg, Friday noon he was at his office in the city hall and Friday afternoon he carried on his usual activities at the Berkshire Mutual Fire Insurance company, concluding with a committee meeting between 5 and 6 o'clock. At four the next morning he was awakened by a severe pain. He called Mrs. Moore, and Dr. Ralph D. Head, the family physician, also well-known here, was summoned. Mr. Moore was dead when he arrived. The doctor gave coronary sclerosis as the cause of death.

Mr. Moore was born in Allston, October 13, 1877, the son of John F. and Ellen Close Moore. After graduating from Boston English high school, he entered the insurance agency of Gilmore and Robbery. He later transferred to Andover, and in 1925 he went to Pittsfield, where in 1928 he became secretary of the Berkshire Mutual. At the time of his death he was president of the Mutual Fire Insurance association of New England.

Mr. Moore was keenly interested in civic affairs. He was active in the Citizens' Chamber of Commerce and in the Citizens' league which promoted a new city charter. In November, 1933, he was elected to the city council, and last year re-elected without opposition. In January he was elected president of the city council. He was acting mayor during flood week and he worked day and night in efforts to bring relief to the homeless.

He was a director of the Pittsfield Rotary club, Mystic lodge of Masons, and Aleppo Shrine, Boston. For three years he was organist at the Christian Science church in Pittsfield.

In 1902 Mr. Moore married Miss Effie Mae Stevens, a native of Waterville, Me. She survives with two daughters, Ruth, a student at Boston University, and Margaret of Springfield; a son, John F. Moore, English instructor at Ohio State; and a brother, Robert L. Moore, of Worcester.

The funeral was held in Pittsfield Monday afternoon, with Archie E. Van Ostrand, practitioner of the Christian Science church officiating. Burial was in Pittsfield cemetery. The honorary bearers were Mayor Bagge, who returned from St. Petersburg for the funeral; Robert A. Barbour, Robert D. Fuller, Lee A. Brown, George H. Cooper, all of Pittsfield, and Frank L. Brigham of Andover. The bearers were: Charles W. Gallup, William E. Magner, Fred D. Retallick, Wallace Gibson, Alston A. Tillou and Robert S. Kenyon.

Engagements Announced
Andover musicians will be interested in the announcement of the engagement of Edna Witt Harrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil D. Harrington of Salem street, Miss Merritt is soloist at the Arlington Street church in Boston and Mr. Harrington sings at the New Old South. Both of these young people, who were heard recently on the Civic Artist Course, have appeared as soloists with the People's Symphony Orchestra. Last summer Miss Merritt sang the role of Amneris in Aida when this opera was given under the direction of Fabien Sevitzky at Mrs. Alva T. Fuller's summer estate at Little Boars Head, N. H. No date has been set for the wedding.

SNOW, SNOW, BEA-U-TIFUL SNOW?

Exhibit of Glass Attracts Interest

The exhibition of modern glass from France and Sweden and the posters by Cassandre, announced last week, opened Tuesday at the Addison Gallery and already has excited considerable interest. Included in the exhibit are Swedish glass from Orrefors, Swedish Weavings and wall paintings, French glass by Lalique and by Baccarat, and the posters.

The glass industry of Sweden was completely revolutionized by one epoch-making event. In 1917, a new owner purchased the little-known, and quite insignificant factory of Orrefors, makers in ink bottles and window glass. The new proprietor procured the best workmen available, and then had the good fortune to hire two artists of established reputation, Hald and Gate, as designers, whose names today are almost synonymous with Orrefors.

More and more these designers have turned to practical needs. The present exhibition, with its predominance of table glass exemplifies the contemporary spirit of restraint, simplicity, and a great emphasis on form. The interest is first in shape, since the function of the object is always a primary consideration. Often devoid of decoration, there is infinite variety in the glass surfaces. Solid color, or accents of color for contrast, contribute a decorative quality, again, the glass texture alone with its resultant highlights and shadows is sufficient. The human figure is still a subject for the ornamentation of the engraved glass, but is often used singly, while the arabesques are less intricate and on a smaller scale than formerly.

The individuality of Lalique glass is due in large measure to the technical researches in the glass medium made by Rene Lalique. Although he was a master goldsmith, in 1902 he bought a small glass factory where his first commission was a series of perfume bottles. Rather heavy creations in crystal were alone in this field until Lalique introduced a great variety of shapes and imaginative ideas of decoration, thereby establishing himself in the front ranks of French glass manufacturers.

The factory of Baccarat, while continuing to follow its traditional styles, recognized the necessity of creating objects of modern design. Baccarat continues its production to a pure, bright and luminous crystal, which is perfectly polished. In spite of the solid quality of crystal, it adds richness to often light and graceful forms. Baccarat divides its efforts in the decorative field between prismatic forms and a broad, smooth style.

SPORTS—Wednesday morning, April 8, during club period Mr. Sherman invited the boys of the school to the assembly hall to run over the plan for sports this spring. He announced that arrangements had been made with several sporting goods firms for the purchase of equipment. The arrangement this spring will be entirely different from that of last fall. The boys of the school will be divided into four parts and will meet in intra-mural competition. From these four teams will be selected the varsity team. Track work will be developed later in the season.—JOHN NUNEZ

On March 27th all home-rooms voted to adopt the constitution as presented. Again Miss Stevens gave us valuable assistance by drawing up a splendid final copy to keep on file.—JOHN NUNEZ

AMATEURS—On Thursday, April 9, a Major Bowes amateur program arranged by Phyllis Campbell was presented by pupils of SF. This program was the last in the series for the promotion of good posture and voice in Stowe. The performers were: Robert L. Wood, Graham MacNamee; Edward Schultz and Bruce Root, whistling duet; Jean MacLeish, piano solo; Anne Hathaway, poem; Maroy Dunn, poem; Jack Mudge, Major Bowes; Marjorie Crosby read the scripture. At the end of the program all pupils were given an opportunity to vote for the persons of their choice for the best posture in Stowe.—FRANK KOZA

BOY SCOUTS—What is a boy scout? A real boy scout is not just a member of the organization. He is a boy who believes in his country and who is eager to get ahead. He believes in his law, oath, and motto. He is in scouting to get all he can out of it. A scout sets examples for younger children, who admire him. The aim of this organization is to make a good citizen of him, and it usually does.

A few days ago, when the rivers overflowed with seemingly mad waters, and many families had to leave their homes which were destroyed, scouts notified people of the drinking water conditions, scouts brought food to weary soldiers who were trying to keep roads open; and scouts saved lives. The true scout doesn't learn the various tests just to get merit badges, but he masters them and lives up to their qualifications that he may be of service to all others.—WILLIAM FERGUSON

We are glad to honor the pupils of Stowe who are Boy Scouts by printing their names in our column. They are: Troop 1: R. L. Wood, R. Simmers, H. Proctor, F. Reilly, F. Goebel, S. Lindsay, R. Flanagan, P. Johnson, J. Boardman, M. Ball, T. Davies. Troop 2: H. Bishop, T. Dea. Troop 3: L. Dearborn, W. Ferguson, R. M. Wood, B. Root, P. Crossley, G. Elliot, C. Stowers. Troop 4: P. Beck, E. Briggs, G. Brown, J. Collins, F. Doucette, R. MacMackin, H. Hadon, B. Morgan, J. Carmichael, J. Anderson, R. Stocks, G. Steadman. Troop 5: R. Ferrier. Troop 6: W. Edmunds, W. Wrigley, E. Lacon, C. LOWELL 1-ANDOVER 0
The Lowell soccer team won a 1-0 victory over the Andover F. C. in the opening spring game at Lowell Sunday. Ferris scored the only goal for Lowell after officer John Dreymond, Andover's goal guard, had sustained a broken finger. Campbell, McGrath, Smith, Simes and Wilson were good on the offense for Andover, with Dundas and Densvitch playing their usual fine game before the goal. The halfback line, Simes, Hunt and Milne, kept the Lowell attack in check.

This By-Law shall be administered by the Building Inspector. He shall approve no application of any kind, plans and specifications and intended use, which are not in all respects in conformity with this By-Law.

Applications for building permits shall be accompanied by a plot of the lot in duplicate, drawn to scale, showing the actual dimensions of the lot and the exact location and size of the buildings already upon the lot, and of the building or structure to be erected, together with the streets and alleys on and adjacent to the lot. A record of such applications and plans shall be kept on file in the office of the Building Inspector.

SECTION XVI

CONFLICT OF LAWS

In general this By-Law is supplementary to other By-Laws affecting the use, height, area and location of buildings and structures and the use of premises. Where this By-Law imposes a greater restriction upon the use, height, area and location of buildings and structures or the use of premises than is imposed by other by-laws, the provisions of this By-Law shall control.

SECTION XVII

Gas

By ALFRED WELCH, McCutture Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

MORE than one of Curt Braswell's friends have probably wondered what it was that turned him from a dashing lady killer into a perfectly good husband. How it came about is kind of funny.

I was kind of surprised the first time she went out with Curt. I'd never been able to persuade her to go on a date. We both worked at the Biltmore hotel dining room. Nancy was hostess and I waited tables.

I can't see any harm, myself, in letting a good looking customer date you. But Nancy was different.

"What say to a little party, kid?" I'd suggest. "Handsome Harve of the Keeneidge Cutlery is in town with a pal."

She refused till I got sort of impatient. She wasn't a prude; but she'd sooner go home and read or to a movie alone.

Curt Braswell dived like a lead brick the minute he saw her. He kept after her for a date till he got it. Curt was tall, blond and handsome, and he had an air. Nancy was little 'n' slim with curly black hair and blue eyes. They made a swell looking couple; but—

Far as I could see Curt was all right. But he was what they called a drummer when I was a kid. Nowadays they're sales engineers or sales representatives, but that don't keep them from being worse than sailors for having a girl in every town. I tried to make Nancy see it.

"You should talk!" she laughs. Nancy in love was like a bud unfolding. She was standing in front of the mirror one morning, slim and cute, fixing her hair and slinging like a lark. "Somebody leave you money, kid?" I asked pretending to be dumb.

She gives a little gurgling laugh. "Better than that! He'll be here tonight!" Her voice had a slinging note and her eyes were shining. But they weren't at nine o'clock that night when she went off duty and Curt hadn't shown up.

Did you ever watch a flower die? Two weeks passed without Nancy hearing from him. She didn't say much. I didn't either. It was what I had been expecting. You wouldn't have known Nancy was the same girl. All the light was gone out of her.

It happened on a Saturday morning. The day Curt used to reach town. I'd taken the cover off the two-burner we disguised as a radio and lit the gas before I found we were out of eggs. Nancy was still sleeping. There were dark circles under her eyes and even asleep she looked like the little girl who'd been told there wasn't a Santa Claus.

"Darn Curt Braswell!" I thought. And slammed the door. I got the eggs at the corner store and who do I run into as I come out but the devil himself!

"Hello yourself," I said shortly. "Where you been?"

"At hard labor!" he grins. "The company's transferred me to another territory. Going to miss me? I was going around to say goodby to Nancy."

"Yeah," I said bitterly. "You bozos are best at saying goodby. Aren't there enough girls like me who don't take you crows seriously, without picking on Nancy's kind?"

"What do you mean?" he asks surprised. "Come along," I said, "and see—if you ain't too dumb."

I smelled the gas before I opened the door. It was thick as fog in the room and on the bed was Nancy, white and still.

We got her into Mrs. Sewell's next door. In the course of time an ambulance clanged up with a pulmotor and pretty soon Nancy stopped being sick and smiled at me.

I said, "Curt's outside," and that quick the light came back into her face. I went out in the hall. He was walking up and down twisting his hands.

"How is she?" he asked hoarsely. I told him Nancy was all right. "I been an idiot, Jennie," he burst out. "I was going away. I wanted to be free. I never dreamed Nancy cared so much. And I didn't realize how much I loved her till I saw her lying there—do you suppose she'll forgive me?"

"How do I know, goof?" I demanded. "Why don't you ask her?"

"Course I knew what had happened. The punk gas we'd been getting would hardly burn. When I slammed the door the light went out. Curt thought Nancy'd done it for his sake."

War History

A sum of £100,000 is being spent by Australia on compiling a history of her part in the Great War. Several volumes of the work have already been published and two more are now ready for issue.

The Waterloo is a native of tropical and southern Africa, from which it was introduced into Asia and southern Europe and then America.

Mark Twain's Prayer for War

Mark Twain's satirical prayer for wartime is as follows: "O Lord our God, help us to tear their soldiers to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale flowers of their patriot dead; help us to drown the thunder of guns with the shrieks of our wounded, writhing in pain; help us to lay waste their humble homes with a hurricane of fire; help us to wring the hearts of their unoffending widows with unavailing grief; help us to turn them out roofless with their children to wander unfriended through wastes of their desolated land—for our sakes, who adore Thee, Lord, blast their hopes, blight their lives, protract their bitter pilgrimage, making heavy their steps, water their way with tears, stain their white snow with the blood of their wounded feet! We ask of one who is the spirit of love and who is the ever-merciful friend of all that are honest and contrite hearts. Grant our prayer, O Lord, and thine shall be the praise and honor and glory now and ever. Amen."

Flaws in Stamps

Small white dots occasionally found in United States stamps, it has been explained, "may be caused by dry spots in the paper or failure of the ink roller to fill in the plate thoroughly. They also may be caused by tiny lumps of sizing or pulp on the paper when received from the mill, which, after the printing operation and after handling of the stamps, flake out."

"What say to a little party, kid?" I'd suggest. "Handsome Harve of the Keeneidge Cutlery is in town with a pal."

She refused till I got sort of impatient. She wasn't a prude; but she'd sooner go home and read or to a movie alone.

Curt Braswell dived like a lead brick the minute he saw her. He kept after her for a date till he got it. Curt was tall, blond and handsome, and he had an air. Nancy was little 'n' slim with curly black hair and blue eyes. They made a swell looking couple; but—

Far as I could see Curt was all right. But he was what they called a drummer when I was a kid. Nowadays they're sales engineers or sales representatives, but that don't keep them from being worse than sailors for having a girl in every town. I tried to make Nancy see it.

"You should talk!" she laughs. Nancy in love was like a bud unfolding. She was standing in front of the mirror one morning, slim and cute, fixing her hair and slinging like a lark. "Somebody leave you money, kid?" I asked pretending to be dumb.

She gives a little gurgling laugh. "Better than that! He'll be here tonight!" Her voice had a slinging note and her eyes were shining. But they weren't at nine o'clock that night when she went off duty and Curt hadn't shown up.

Did you ever watch a flower die? Two weeks passed without Nancy hearing from him. She didn't say much. I didn't either. It was what I had been expecting. You wouldn't have known Nancy was the same girl. All the light was gone out of her.

It happened on a Saturday morning. The day Curt used to reach town. I'd taken the cover off the two-burner we disguised as a radio and lit the gas before I found we were out of eggs. Nancy was still sleeping. There were dark circles under her eyes and even asleep she looked like the little girl who'd been told there wasn't a Santa Claus.

"Darn Curt Braswell!" I thought. And slammed the door. I got the eggs at the corner store and who do I run into as I come out but the devil himself!

"Hello yourself," I said shortly. "Where you been?"

"At hard labor!" he grins. "The company's transferred me to another territory. Going to miss me? I was going around to say goodby to Nancy."

"Yeah," I said bitterly. "You bozos are best at saying goodby. Aren't there enough girls like me who don't take you crows seriously, without picking on Nancy's kind?"

"What do you mean?" he asks surprised. "Come along," I said, "and see—if you ain't too dumb."

I smelled the gas before I opened the door. It was thick as fog in the room and on the bed was Nancy, white and still.

We got her into Mrs. Sewell's next door. In the course of time an ambulance clanged up with a pulmotor and pretty soon Nancy stopped being sick and smiled at me.

I said, "Curt's outside," and that quick the light came back into her face. I went out in the hall. He was walking up and down twisting his hands.

"How is she?" he asked hoarsely. I told him Nancy was all right. "I been an idiot, Jennie," he burst out. "I was going away. I wanted to be free. I never dreamed Nancy cared so much. And I didn't realize how much I loved her till I saw her lying there—do you suppose she'll forgive me?"

"How do I know, goof?" I demanded. "Why don't you ask her?"

"Course I knew what had happened. The punk gas we'd been getting would hardly burn. When I slammed the door the light went out. Curt thought Nancy'd done it for his sake."

War History

A sum of £100,000 is being spent by Australia on compiling a history of her part in the Great War. Several volumes of the work have already been published and two more are now ready for issue.

The Waterloo is a native of tropical and southern Africa, from which it was introduced into Asia and southern Europe and then America.

Mark Twain's Prayer for War

Mark Twain's satirical prayer for wartime is as follows: "O Lord our God, help us to tear their soldiers to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale flowers of their patriot dead; help us to drown the thunder of guns with the shrieks of our wounded, writhing in pain; help us to lay waste their humble homes with a hurricane of fire; help us to wring the hearts of their unoffending widows with unavailing grief; help us to turn them out roofless with their children to wander unfriended through wastes of their desolated land—for our sakes, who adore Thee, Lord, blast their hopes, blight their lives, protract their bitter pilgrimage, making heavy their steps, water their way with tears, stain their white snow with the blood of their wounded feet! We ask of one who is the spirit of love and who is the ever-merciful friend of all that are honest and contrite hearts. Grant our prayer, O Lord, and thine shall be the praise and honor and glory now and ever. Amen."

Flaws in Stamps

Small white dots occasionally found in United States stamps, it has been explained, "may be caused by dry spots in the paper or failure of the ink roller to fill in the plate thoroughly. They also may be caused by tiny lumps of sizing or pulp on the paper when received from the mill, which, after the printing operation and after handling of the stamps, flake out."

"Recreation Way to Reduce Crime"

"Before the cost of crime suppression becomes an insupportable burden it is important to develop playgrounds and athletic fields and community centers for music and drama and crafts as a program of crime prevention," stated Jerome W. Cross in a communication this week to many local citizens.

Mr. Cross is sponsor here for the National Recreation Association.

"Every expert studying crime prevention mentions recreation as one of the means which society can utilize in lessening crime," the letter continued.

Recently a New Jersey judge stated, "Those who love music never pass by our bench." This judge made the additional comment, "In six years on the bench covering 15,000 cases only three of those were children who loved music or played musical instruments or were members of a musical organization."

As a result of new police methods of dealing with troublesome youngsters and a constructive program worked out between law enforcement officers, municipal playgrounds, and other organizations interested in child welfare, juvenile delinquency has decreased 35% in Los Angeles in four years, it was reported to the National Recreation Association.

This drop in junior offenses, as told by Lieutenant E. W. Lester of the Police Department's crime prevention bureau in a radio talk, has had a noticeable effect in reducing crime in Los Angeles, since a survey conducted in one district showed that from 64% to 75% of the crimes committed in one section of the city was the work of juveniles.

"Experience has taught law enforcement officials that leisure time in danger time insofar as crime and delinquency are concerned," Mr. Lester stated. "When the leisure time of the child is filled with interesting recreational activity he does not turn to crime for adventure and excitement."

EXIT SHERRILL CLUB

For three years one of the live institutions in Andover was the Sherrill Club. In athletics and entertainment it held a high place. At one time it boasted even one hundred young men as members. Prizes still exist for their athletic victories. Many speakers addressed the club, and the musical side of life was of interest to the members. The Club gave up activity about a year ago when its leading spirits left town or were married and the C.C.C. came into existence. About $10 remained in the treasury which the executive committee has now turned over to the Red Cross Fund. Six exit the Sherrill Club. * * *

Village P. T. A. Has Teachers' Night

The annual Teachers' Night at the Shawshen Parent Teacher Association Wednesday night was a most successful affair. Miss Harnedy welcomed the parents and friends in behalf of the teachers and then introduced Miss Mildred Schruender who in turn presented the children from the different grades in their various drills, games, wrestling matches, and dances. Miss Sweeney was at the piano.

The children entered enthusiastically into their various numbers and much praise is due Miss Schruender for the good work she has done among the children during the past year. After the entertainment the teachers served ice cream and cake to the young performers.

Miss Leary's room won the banner. Following is the program:

Appointments Made by School Board

Two men teachers, one woman teacher, and one man cadet teacher were appointed Tuesday night at the meeting of the school committee. In addition four teachers were elected to tenure and fourteen teachers not yet on tenure were reappointed. Three reappointments were made for health work, and two clerks were reappointed.

Donald D. Dunn, now teaching in Fairhaven, and Miss Frances Collins, teaching in Everett, were appointed to take charge of the new program of physical education in the junior high and senior high schools. Milton Calvin Blanchard of Needham was appointed general science teacher in the junior high and Benjamin Dimlich of Salem street was appointed cadet teacher in general science. The two general science teachers will assist in junior high athletic work, and for this reason the committee failed to reappoint James N. Cole who has carried on this work for the past ten years.

Mr. Dunn took his first degree from Springfield college in 1931 and his B.S. degree in 1932. He has also done work in connection with Colby college. He was director of physical education at South Hadley Falls in 1928 and 1929, and has been in Fairhaven, as director of physical education from 1931 to the present time. He is twenty-nine, married, with two children. He came highly recommended by Dr. Schrader, state supervisor of physical education; authorities at Springfield, and the school officials at Fairhaven.

Miss Collins is now director of physical education at the Parlin Junior high in Everett. She graduated from Sargent school in 1923, and has done one year, part-time, of post-graduate work in the Massachusetts General hospital. She has a certificate as physiotherapist from Boston City Hospital. She has been in Everett since 1923. She was well recommended by Everett authorities, and Sargent school officials regard her very highly.

Mr. Blanchard graduated from Wentworth institute in 1929 and has taken additional courses at Boston University. He began his teaching in Tilton, N. H., in 1929, and in 1930 he went to Needham. He is twenty-seven and married. Tilton and Needham officials recommended him highly.

The superintendent and some members of the sub-committee visited these three teachers at work. There was no opposition to the appointments.

Benjamin Dimlich, the new cadet teacher, received his B.S. degree at Bates last June, and he is now studying at Springfield. He is 23, and has shown considerable interest in athletics.

The committee voted to limit physical education work under the new supervisors to junior and senior high schools for the coming year. It was also voted to limit varsity teams to football, baseball, and basketball for the high school boys and to basketball for the high school girls.

ELECTED TO TENURE

Joseph Doherty and Miss Ida Grover on the high school staff were elected to tenure, and Miss Mary Burke and Mrs. Margaret Tate of the John Dove staff were also elected to tenure, all having served the required three years.

Teachers re-elected were: Marion Macdonald, Dorothy Trott, Mabel Marshall, Florence I. Gates, Kenneth L. Sherman, Beatrice Stevens, Edna Marland, Etta Carlskin, Irene Wells, Eleanor Ward, Mabel Lamb, Dorothy Kyle, Mrs. Lena Dodson and Mary Collins. Miss Marland and Miss Ward are entering their second year of cadetship. Miss Collins was elected in the event that the North school remains open, or in the event that another grade school vacancy occurs even if the North school were to close. The superintendent reported that there are twelve pupils there now.

Miss Trott, Miss Gertrude Berry, Miss Grover and Miss Macdonald were transferred from the high to the junior high staff for next year, since the freshman class will become the ninth grade in the new building. The vote carried the implication that if vacancies occur in the high school, these four teachers will be given the opportunity to return if they so wish.

Other employees elected were: school physician, Dr. Philip W. Blake; nurse, Edith M. Moreton; dental hygienist, Margaret Cronin; high school clerk, Mary Winkley; and superintendent's clerk, Marion Harley.

Alfred P. Wright and Rudolph Johnson were reappointed as bus drivers, with Mr. Johnson being given a three-year contract since he intends to buy a new bus.

It was voted to have the junior high and high in session next year from 8.15 to 2, the
