JUST BUST—"The Townsman backing of London is too bluntly and obviously straightforward," was what stared us in the face yesterday when we read a letter from a friend in New York City, a friend incidentally who seems to have forgotten that the word "straightforward" has been on the front page of the Townsman ever since it started, thanks to Phillips Brooks. Since we read the letter, we've been thinking of heading the editorial column "This Straightforward Town."

The letter continued: "Why not be subtle about it like our local Herald-Tribune, which is as rabidly Republican as the Townsman. But it is subtle. A while ago, you may remember, a famous sculptor, whom we will call Gutzon Borglum for short, was elected president. In reporting the story, the Tribune said: Several hundred small statues of the president will be cast and will be sold to raise funds for the Democratic National committee. These statues will be exact re-

Will Hold Baby Contest Next Week

The annual Baby Popularity contest, always one of the best attended programs of the summer playground season, will be held at all three playgrounds next week, Shawshaven Wednesday, Ballardvale Thursday and Central Friday, starting about seven.

There will be five divisions: under one year, under two years, under three years, under four years, and twins. Each youngster must be sponsored by some other child under fifteen years of age. The twins should be entered by only one person. There will be blue, red and white ribbon awards for first, second and third in each division. Both the sponsor and the baby will receive a ribbon. The winners will be decided by popular applause similar to Fred Allen's Town Hall amateur night.

The annual tournaments started Monday on all three playgrounds: sand-building and nine-toss for children under eleven; checkers, jackstones and territory for children eleven to fifteen, inclusive. Great enthusiasm and interest in the contests was shown in all the contests to date, especially in the checkers at Shawshaven where over 200 games have been played in the first three days.

The registration has been very heavy on all three playgrounds. At the end of the first eight days, up to last Friday night, the attendance ran over 1300, with many more expected to come later. The daily attendance is averaging between 700 and 800.

Mr. Coon is continuing his art classes, Monday and Wednesday at the Central; Thursday at Shawshaven and Friday at Ballardvale. He is working with two classes, one with children up to twelve and another with those of ten and over. James Bisset is teaching the making of wooden dogs as lolly-pop holders. James N. Cole has been teaching tennis, volleyball and baseball on all three playgrounds. James Doherty has been instructing in bead-work. Leo Rafferty has been planting iris along the fence at the playground at the end of the main Academy building. He has been assisted by Bruce Fenno as chief gardener, Michael Caruso and David MacCord.

The annual doll show was held at Shawshaven Wednesday night, at Ballardvale last night and will be held at Central tonight.

At Shawshaven the program started with a parade. Matthew Burns of the playground committee welcomed the spectators with a few remarks on playground development in Andover. The judges were: Mrs. L. C. Connor, Mrs. J. N. Cole, and Mrs. Margaret M. Lynch. James Doherty served as announcer. Miss Davis was custodian of prizes.

The winners were: best-dressed, first, Irene Hart; second, Kathleen Eastwood; third, Carol Ann McLean; smallest, first, Sally MacLellan; second, Janet Leurs; third, Betty Jane O'Connor; home-made, first, Nancy Ballantine; most unusual, first, Mary Hall; second, Carol Davies; third, Irene Hart; best natural, first, Barbara Koerner; second, Doris Wilson; third, Charlotte Bowes; best national costume, first, Althea Morris; second, Edith Amby; third, Carol Davies; twins, first, Nancy Schulze; second, Barbara Schulze; third, Elaine MacLellan; stuffed toys, Marjorie Howes; oldest, first, Janet Leurs; second, Carol Davies; third, Janet Gillen; largest, first, Nancy Ballantine; second, Constance Hathaway; third, Mavis Twomey; best decorated carriages; first, Valerie Bredbury; second, Marie Reilly.

BICYCLE CRAZE MAKES IT IMPERATIVE FOR PARENTS TO WARN THEIR CHILDREN TO BE CAREFUL

The Townsman Editorial

Bicycle riding has become a very popular fad this summer, a fad which unfortunately has very dangerous aspects. In the past week alone we have had two bicycle accidents here in Andover, one of them very serious. The craze for bicycle riding is bound to increase, and as it does every motorist must be more careful when driving near bicycle riders and every parent must urge his child to exercise great care when riding on the roadway.

Every motorist hates to see a child ahead of him on a bicycle. It's hard to tell just when the child will turn or start his bike oscillating from side to side, and when he does that, an accident can happen in a flash. Even slowing down and giving the bicycle-rider a wide berth when passing is not an absolutely safe guarantee that no accident will take place, but it does help considerably.

Parents however have the most important service to perform in this connection. They must impress upon their children the absolute necessity of staying off the busy thoroughfares and not taking a single chance on or near any roadway. Automobiles come before the children know it, and lives are snuffed out by one little turn of the handle-bars. If they are in the habit of riding on the roadways, children should be told to stay well on the side and to ride in a straight line rather than wavering from side to side. They should also be told not to cross the road until they are absolutely sure there are no machines coming. If they ride at night, they should be made to install lights on their bicycles, front and rear, so that the motorist may be sure to see them. Simple precautions such as these will save the children's lives; failing to take precautions may result in loss of life or serious injury, possibly permanent.

Then too bicyclists must be careful when they are near pedestrians. Riding on a sidewalk should not be allowed, for serious injury might result from a knock-down by a bicycle onto the hard pavement. In one case this week a little girl was cut when the bottle she was carrying smashed after she had been knocked down by a bicycle. Broken bones could result from this just as they do when a person falls on an icy sidewalk in the winter time.

Let's have no more bicycle accidents in Andover. Bicycling is a great sport, an excellent form of exercise. Let's not allow its dangers to overbalance its good points.

Siftings

At last we've found out what those fences along the state highways are for. They're for the W.P.A. farm to market sidewalk "workers" to sit on.

Farley claims 48 states and Hamilton claims 42. Must be a lot of repeaters somewhere.

Maybe it's because there's no Capital left that the old Labor vs. Capital strife has changed to Labor vs. Labor.

We had thought that a newspaperman could find a better subject for assassination among the rulers of Europe than the King of England.

What Is a Platform?

A more serious attitude toward party platforms is indicated in a study of American Political Methods written by Martha E. D. White of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and released in co-operation with the Andover League. The study answers important questions as follows:

Is a party platform to be taken seriously? During the last administration its critics have preached fulfillment of platform pledges as the sober duty of a chief executive. This is a strong current toward a new platform significance; another is found in the demand made by party women that party platform pledges shall be binding. Whether these attitudes will effect the change that means translating platform pledges into political programs remains still a political nut to crack. One thing is fairly clear, the platforms of the two major parties this year were framed under pressure of these attitudes. They are short, concise, sometimes, definite and fairly understandable.

Are voters likely to be influenced by platforms or only by candidates? In the case of one candidate, the platform was underwritten only after he had added postscripts to make it conform to his personal views. This is a case of the meeting of minds between candidate and platform. Another platform was manifestly acceptable to the candidate before his nomination. It "fitted him" and thus became the philosophy of his party accepted by unanimous acclaim.

Where can voters get the platform? They have been published in full in the newspapers of the country. Later they will be printed as campaign literature by the National Committees. They will be distributed at campaign headquarters and by State Committees of the parties.

Do other parties putting candidates in the field have platforms? Yes. The Socialist's is already accepted. The Union Party has announced the outlines of its program. Other party groups may enter the field.

Who decides finally upon what the platforms shall be? Theoretically the delegates at the National Convention. In practice the platform is prepared by the Resolutions Committee made up of a delegate from each of the various states. This Committee after holding public hearings for the presentation of platform requests, and after consultation with party leaders and possible candidates, decides the platform to be presented. This may not be a platform agreeable to the entire Committee; in that case a minority report may be made. This platform is presented in due form and with impressive oratory to the delegate body for its acceptance, modification or rejection. There is seldom much change made as differences are ironed out in advance; but the final responsibility rests on the delegate body and therefore should be in all seriousness just as much the doctrine of the respective parties as are the choice of candidates to high office.

WANTED—A BICYCLIST—There's a local business man who would like very much to get in touch with any other businessman who wouldn't mind riding a bicycle to work. Like most of us businessmen he is rapidly assuming a disproportionate abominable abdominal size, and from what the ladies say, bicycle-riding helps ward off those extra pounds. The particular businessman said he'd ride to work on a bike if he would. We tried it out on a beach a few weeks ago. It was low tide, but still we couldn't steer the thing well enough to keep out of the water on one side and the soft sand 'way up on the beach. So we had to turn down the businessman's offer; they haven't made the local highways wide enough for our two-wheeled meandering. And as for him, his chief worry is that, if started riding to work, his fellow-businessmen would also start riding—him.

Distribution of Unemployment

New York.—In an unemployment survey conducted by a newspaper here it is shown that New Hampshire has more wage earners in manufactures than Nebraska, Oklahoma and North Dakota combined.

Yet these three states have 12 times as much unemployment as New Hampshire, get 11 times more federal relief money and 2,400 times as much AAA money. The newspaper declares that its survey shows industry is not to blame for continued unemployment, there being more workers employed by the large firms now than there were in 1929.

River Road Grant 25 Percent

A twenty-five percent reduction in the money to be spent on River road this year has been made by the state, it was learned when the allotment was received this week. The town had appropriated $6500, but $1625 of this will not be used.

The state has allotted $9750 instead of the $13,000 which would have been allotted had not Commissioner Callahan sliced all the grants twenty-five percent. The town has to appropriate half as much more or $4875 and the county equals the town's contribution. This makes a total of $19,500, instead of the $26,000 which the state engineers estimated would be needed to cover the mile stretch now ready for stone. Another appropriation will probably be sought next year to finish this stretch and also 3000 feet more which has not yet been done.

Work will probably start within a few weeks, the regular B.P.W. help to do the work.

Convalescent Home Meeting with Success

The new Convalescent Home recently established in the Town Infirmary building is meeting with great success—three of the four available beds now being occupied.

One patient was admitted on the opening day and is still there, recovering from a very serious illness. Two other patients have recently been admitted and are gaining health and strength in this airy, cheerful home.

The results in so short a time show plainly that just such a place is needed in Andover.
