ABSENCE OF LOCAL MEN IN RACE FOR REPRESENTATIVE AGAIN EMPHASIZES NEED FOR REDISTRICTING

The ballot at the primaries in September and at the biennial election in November will climax ten years of virtual lack of representation in the state legislature as far as Andover is concerned.

Ever since the town's representation was taken away through the redistricting process ten years ago, South Lawrence's numerically stronger voters have submerged Andover's, with the result that whenever an Andover man ran for the office of representative he was snowed under by candidates from South Lawrence.

This is the year for redistricting and some work has already been done by the county commissioners along this line, although nothing definite can be done until the secretary of state determines the number of voters which shall constitute a district.

only a geographical sense it may be possible for this town to secure the representation that it merits. Andover is admittedly Republican; South Lawrence is just as admittedly Democratic.

Three Democrats are campaigning for the nomination at the primaries. Two of these are the present incumbents, and the third has served in the legislature previously.

Let us hope that this will be the last election whose results will show that no Andover man has been elected to the state legislature.

Siftings

This is the time of year when you go to the beaches to see "the fat of the land."

Which makes us think when we read that the potato crop is going to be scarce. "Oh well, potatoes are forthcoming anyway," and who wants to be fat nowadays.

A little friend of ours went to a wedding and said that the "white bride" and the "blue bride" were lovely, the blue bride in this case being the bridesmaid.

After being up in the air for four years over the doings of the Democrats, the Republicans now believe they have a place to "Land on."

How to Figure Board Feet

A board foot is a board one foot square and one inch thick. To get the board measure, express the length and width in feet and the thickness in inches; the product of these will be the number of feet board measure. Thus, a plank 18 feet long, 14 inches wide, 2 inches thick is measured as follows: 18 times one and one-sixth, times two; equals 42 feet board measure. One formula for calculating the amount of timber in a given log is to deduct 4 inches from the diameter at the small end, square one-quarter of the remainder and multiply by the length in feet.

HEALTH NOTES FROM MIDDLETON

This week every boy and girl in the Essex County Health Camp in Middleton wrote a letter saying "thank you" for the privilege of going to camp this summer. As one little girl says in her letter, "Dear Friend: I would like to thank you for sending me to this camp. I am gaining weight by the week. I would like if you would come up and see me. It is very nice up here in the pine trees. Every Friday night we have camp fire and we get a head band and then feathers. They are for when you make a little dog pot holder and a night dress bag. Please come up and see me."

It is a foresighted group of citizens who sent the 75 boys and girls to this camp. Here they are not only building their bodies so as to be able to withstand the advances of tuberculosis, but are by this fact helping themselves so that they will not later spread this disease. The camp's work is one of prevention, and the boys and girls are shown how, by proper care of their bodies, to build the resistance which will help to prevent their developing tuberculosis.

Those who have ever had the opportunity of visiting the camp cannot but be impressed by the great strides that have been made in the course of years in dealing with tuberculosis. Adults who in their younger days knew this to be a common disease, now find a group of children being given systematic treatment which acts against the possibility that they will contract this illness. This is a work which richly repays the citizens who support it through the sale of Christmas Sales.

DOLLAR DAYS IN LOWELL

Tomorrow and Saturday will actually and literally be August Dollar Days in the stores of Lowell. Actually, because they will be the long-established mid-summer sales days and, literally, because the word, August, truly characterizes the dimension of the values.

These days of cooperative selling, when the biggest and best values of the season are offered in appreciation of the splendid patronage given to the Lowell stores have become an institution in the city's merchandising history and are anxiously anticipated many months in advance, by not only the patrons of the establishments but also the buyers of the various stores who, judging from the outstanding merchandise as well as the exceptionally low prices quoted on the same upon semi-annual Dollar Days, must continually have the event in mind and ever alert for the markets' big values with the result that the season's best offerings appear on the counters, in the windows and showcases of the shops on semi-annual Dollar Days tomorrow and Saturday, according to the information which has been given out by the Lowell merchants, will surpass its predecessors not only in the type of merchandise but also in the variety offered and the marked prices.

With a national election upon us; talk of possible inflation in actuality, the drought and other things that can affect the costs of the manufacturing and the wholesaling of merchandise, the wary consumer should guarantee himself and herself at least temporary relief from higher prices, if not a positive scarcity of some commodities by anticipating their wants for sometime to come and purchasing the same either tomorrow or Saturday in the stores of Lowell. The Merchants' Division of the Lowell Chamber of Commerce under the supervision of which these Dollar Days are promoted suggests that you afford yourself protection in all purchases made by patronizing the stores displaying the authorized orange and black signs. In such stores stylish, seasonable and satisfactory merchandise at Dollar Day prices will be displayed.

Where Is Unemployment? On Farms, Says Survey New York.—An unemployment survey reported here shows the following comparison between industrial Connecticut and agricultural Mississippi:

"There are 16,000 less unemployed, on a WPA basis, in Connecticut today than there were in April, 1930, when the depression had scarcely started.

"There are 47,500 more unemployed, on a WPA basis, in Mississippi today than there were in April, 1930, when the depression had scarcely started.

"Mississippi paid $661,125 in individual Federal income taxes for 1934.

"Connecticut paid $15,129,000 in individual Federal income taxes in 1934.

"Connecticut has reduced unemployment at least 30 per cent.

"Mississippi's unemployment has increased 270 per cent.

"Has $34,579,868 paid to the cotton planters made Mississippi three and a half times worse off than she was in 1930?"

Wife (at breakfast): Could I have a little money for shopping today, dear? Husband: Certainly. Would you rather have an old five or a new one? Wife: A new one, of course. Husband: Here's the one—and I'm $4 to the good.

HUDSON AIDS VISITORS TO MEXICO

Friendly Texan greetings await tourists passing through San Antonio enroute to Mexico City over the new international highway. At the official opening of the highway, this Hudson was the official car of the San Antonio Automobile League. At the left is Jack Edgecomb, San Antonio manager of the American Automobile Association, and at the right, Ward Orsinger, Hudson and Terraplane distributor for the San Antonio territory.

Furthering its policy of rendering every possible aid to tourists, the Hudson Motor Car Company announced today additional service designed to assist Americans traveling to Mexico City over the new Pan-American highway connecting the Mexican capital with the United States.

Realizing the interest that was bound to focus on this new route, Ward Orsinger of the Orsinger Motor Company, Hudson and Terraplane distributor in San Antonio, made several trips over the new highway, familiarizing himself thoroughly with it and making himself somewhat of an authority on the trip.

With the opening of the new route the first of July, Mr. Orsinger announced special service for international tourists, inviting them to call at the Orsinger Motor Company in San Antonio for any assistance or

SALE OF WORKS OF ART

To most people, the idea of purchasing an original work of art is an extremely remote one. In the public mind, the art collector is a very wealthy gentleman who having satisfied all his demands for such tangible luxuries as motor cars and swimming pools, amuses himself by paying fabulous prices for paintings to embellish his costly estates. The home owner of modest means is obliged to content himself with reproductions for the adornment of his walls, or a water color painted by Aunt Lettie when she was sixteen, unless he is fortunate enough to have inherited portraits of his stern and god-fearing ancestors. A contemporary painting, however, he expects to find on the walls of an art gallery, and seldom for a moment considers its acquisition for his home.

With the hope of suggesting a partial remedy for this situation, the Merrimack Valley Art Association has organized this year a "Collectors' Gallery" in which original works of art are priced from $1 to $25.00. This Gallery forms an integral part of the third annual exhibition of the Association held this year at the Addison Gallery, Phillips academy, Andover, from August 1 to September 6.

This reviewer was impressed by the number of paintings of quality which are to be found in this exhibition and by the number of capable artists whose work had hitherto been unknown to him. A newcomer to the Merrimack Valley exhibitions is William Liepse of Concord, N. H., who is represented in the Collectors' Gallery by two landscapes and a still life. These paintings stand out among the others for their freshness and vigor, and their sensitive use of brilliant color. William Bryant of Haverhill has a fine still life, and Frances Dalton of Andover is represented in this Gallery by two well-modeled heads of negro children. Helen Weld of Lowell has a very able landscape of considerable charm. Also unknown to Merrimack Valley exhibitions is Arne Hanninen, a youth from Amesbury who has had no formal training in art, but whose paintings show remarkable technical dexterity. It seems reasonable to believe that with training, his future might be promising.

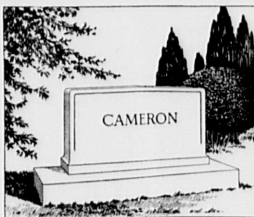

The water colors this year do not live up to the bright future which the exhibition of two years ago seemed to promise for the medium. There are a few high lights, however. Nelly Littlehale Murphy's very capable "Zinnias," Harry Sutton, jr.'s "The Road" and "Interrupted Sunlight" by Arne Parker of Fitchburg, which is particularly interesting for its design.

In the room of drawings and prints, Abbott Cheever of Andover has a fine pencil portrait of a child, which is well drawn and modelled, and illustrates the advantages of sound academic training. Cheever has not allowed technical facility to be an end in itself, however, but has handled this portrait, as well as an oil painting of Mrs. J. H. Woods in the general exhibition, with strength and dignity and an appreciative understanding of his subject.

The group of sculpture is small, and this reviewer was particularly impressed by the work of James McClellan of Andover whose training in art is as yet very limited, but whose "Damascus" executed in bronze, has the force and vitality so often lacking in the work of more experienced artists. The "Cat" and "Golf" by George Miller, also of Andover, with their emphasis on design and rhythm, are good examples of modern technique.

The general exhibition of larger paintings is somewhat less interesting than the Collectors' Gallery—perhaps because the smaller paintings are less pretentious and represent the artists in their less guarded and more spontaneous moments. There are, however, paintings of distinction in this Gallery, notably "Green Island, Maine" by Philip Little of Salem, "First Settlers" by Gertrude Fiske of Concord, "An Italian Miscellany" by Zaydee Dejonge of Fitchburg, "Pewter Pitcher" by Omer Lassonde of Concord, N. H., and "Landscape" by Rosmond de Kahl of Nashua.

That the Association has been right in its assumption that there is a public only too anxious to buy contemporary works of art, has been proved by the number of sales already made and the stream of visitors who continue to visit the exhibition.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL WEDS IN CAMBRIDGE

A very lovely mid-summer wedding took place Friday evening, July 31, at the First Congregational church, Cambridge, when Miss Irma Coolidge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Coolidge of Oakland avenue, Arlington Heights, formerly of Shawshen, and Robert Franklin Thompson, son of Mrs. Robinson Newell Thompson of Cambridge, were united in marriage by Rev. Alfred C. Church of Andover, assisted by Rev. Clifford O. Simpson of the Park Avenue Congregational church.

It was an all-white wedding, the bride's attendants wearing white mousseline de soie and carrying cascade bouquets of gladioli in colors to match their deep sashes. Miss Doris Coolidge, maid of honor, and Mrs. Ethel Coolidge Ambye, matron of honor, both sisters of the bride, carried cascade bouquets, which reached to the hem of their dresses.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Price of Cambridge and Wilton, N. H., and Miss Winifred Cline of Boston. Both carried bouquets of fingertip length. The bride wore a gown of white satin of simple classical style, and wore a tulle veil with Juliet cap of white satin. The groom's attendants were Joseph Thaxter, Jr., of Brookline as best man, and Melville Chase of Dorchester, Robert Price of Cambridge and Alden Coolidge, brother of the bride, were ushers.

After the ceremony nearly one hundred and fifty persons, relatives and friends, gathered at a reception held at the bride's home. Miss Mildred Culver, cousin of the bride, had charge of the guest book.

Mr. Thompson attended Boston University School of Business Administration, and Miss Coolidge studied art under Roy A. Davidson of the School of Practical Arts, Boston. Mrs. Coolidge is a member of the John Alden Association at Duxbury, also a member of the Thompson Family Association of Watertown. She is a graduate of Pynchard high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside at Lowell Manor, Prescott street, Cambridge.

Lincoln, Landon

Have Same Initials

Mrs. Wilma D. Hoyal, assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, isn't superstitious, but she points out that Abe Lincoln and Alf Landon have the same initials.

"Abe Lincoln," says Mrs. Hoyal, "brought our country through its greatest crisis in the 19th century. If there is any significance in this repetition, Alf Landon surely will be elected to do the same for us in the 20th century."
