Chats About You and Us and the
Other Folks Here in Andover

HAY-HAY! The little boy from Carmel road had the man on the train completely stumped. On the long ride from New York the man had attempted to entertain the youngster by talking and playing with him, and had succeeded to a fair degree in doing so. And it really did seem too bad that after all his efforts the man had to finally fall on a simple little question.

"See that animal out there," the man said.

"That's a cow. That's where you get your milk from."

Said the youngster: "But where does the cow get his milk from?"

STILTED LANGUAGE—Those who are habitually of race tracks have probably quite often seen the horse on which their money is wagered run as if he were on stilts. Once we went to a race-track—only once—and since we had saved a dollar by getting in on a newspaper pass, we decided to bet our dollar on a horse who someone assured us was a "hot tip."

"We weren't," however, able to tell whether the horse was on stilts or not, because there was so much dust way back there. That's the reason for the "only once."

But a couple of weeks ago we did see a race in which all the entries were on stilts. It was up at the playground on closing day. Down the track came a bunch of wooden legs, with some of the sky-scraping youngsters toppling to the ground when they got ahead of their stilted. Of the original entries only three neared the finish-line. We don't know what it is about tongues that makes people resort to them in almost every strenuous effort, but as we looked up at their faces, we were impressed by one thing: every one of the three was finishing up that race with his tongue curled out the corner of his lip.

If you'll excuse a very mixed metaphor, the three tongues came down the stretch neck and neck, and the race was so close that the winning tongue won by a nose.

THE LOWLY DOLLAR—Money may be the root of all evil, but we all like that kind of it. When John Edmunds, now with the Pacific Fleet, notified his mother here in Andover that he had won $100.00.

Abbot Academy to Open on Tuesday

Will Be First Year Under Direction of Miss Hearsey—Enrollment Shows Increase

The arrival and registration of the new students on Tuesday, September 22, will mark the opening of the 107th session of Abbot Academy and the first under the leadership of the new principal, Miss Marguerite Hearsey. The enrollment this year is larger than it has been for several years. It has been found necessary to use Sherman Cottage again for students and to make other adjustments in rooming to make place for about twenty additional boarding students. The total enrollment is approximately 150.

Many changes and renovations have been made during the summer. Sunset Lodge, 20 Abbot street, has been redecorated and prepared for the residence of the principal. Sherman Cottage has been redecorated and prepared to accommodate ten girls and two teachers. The cottage will be used for the residence of the young girls in the school so that they may have the advantages of living in a smaller and more personally supervised group for their first year away from home.

Many of the rooms in Draper have been freshly painted and the halls, senior parlors, offices and faculty sitting room have all been attractively refurnished.

Interesting changes are announced in the daily and weekly schedule. The weekly holiday will be Saturday this year instead of Wednesday, as it has been for many years, and the daily schedule is arranged so that nearly all classes will be held in the morning session. After chapel at 8:15 the classes extend until 1:15—with a break of fifteen minutes at 10:45 for "Tiffin." After luncheon will come the regular gymnasium and sports periods and recreation. At 4:30 tea will be served to the resident girls and following tea there will be a study period from 5:15-6:00. A few classes will also be held at this hour chiefly for resident students. The new schedule, making it possible to use the sunny early hours for out of door recreation, is felt to be a desirable change in many ways.

New Appointments
The principal also announces a number of interesting new appointments to the faculty. The new schedule made necessary the resignation of Mrs. Beatrice Van Ness—under whose direction the work in Art had been carried on for a number of years. To succeed Mrs. Van Ness, Mrs. Gladys Ames Brannigan, an artist of distinguished reputation, has been appointed. Mrs. Brannigan has been a student at the Corcoran Art School, the National Academy of Design and the Art Students League. Her work in oils and water color has often been exhibited in Boston and on the North Shore as well as in other cities and art centers. Mrs. Brannigan is a graduate of George Washington University, and also holds an M.A. degree in English from the same University. She was born in Hingham, Massachusetts, but has spent most of her life in Europe, Washington and New York City.

Republican Voters to Be Solicited

A two weeks' drive will begin tomorrow in which every Republican voter in Andover will be called upon to contribute to the solicitation of Mrs. Beatrice Van Ness—under whose direction the work in Art had been carried on for a number of years. To succeed Mrs. Van Ness, Mrs. Gladys Ames Brannigan, an artist of distinguished reputation, has been appointed. Mrs. Brannigan has been a student at the Corcoran Art School, the National Academy of Design and the Art Students League. Her work in oils and water color has often been exhibited in Boston and on the North Shore as well as in other cities and art centers. Mrs. Brannigan is a graduate of George Washington University, and also holds an M.A. degree in English from the same University. She was born in Hingham, Massachusetts, but has spent most of her life in Europe, Washington and New York City.

Hickey Hurt After Making Arrest

Injured in the line of duty was Officer Ray Hickey last Saturday night when the police cruiser in which he was transporting an alleged drunken driver to the local cell-block was struck by a truck on Main street near Winter street in North Reading. Treated at the Lawrence General hospital for a contusion of the forehead and upper lip, severe contusion of the chest and right knee, Officer Hickey was removed to his home where he has been confined this week. He hopes to be able to return to duty in time for a court case Monday morning. He was up for the first time Wednesday, but doctors have advised him to exercise caution since the knee injury is very serious.

The officer had chased Arthur B. Orme of Stoneham from the Square to the Reading line. He caught up to him in North Reading shortly before a group of Reading police arrived on a telephone call from the local police. On the trip back a truck operated by an Arlington man swung out of line and with the operator apparently losing control, hit the front of the police car. Hickey was unable to swing further right because of a Curley curbing along the roadside. Orme sustained a laceration of the forehead and abrasions of the leg. The car was badly damaged and will be replaced by a new one.

Orme's case was continued until next Wednesday. The truck driver was taken into custody by State police and will appear in Woburn court Thursday.

Centennial Exhibit at Local Gallery

An outstanding exhibition of the work of Winslow Homer—considered by many to be America's greatest artist—will be held at the Addison Gallery of American Art, Phillips Academy, from September 24-October 25. This is the last of the New England exhibitions commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Winslow Homer, and will include examples of his work in water color, drawing and prints. In quality and comprehensiveness, it would be difficult to surpass this exhibition, which has been arranged to show the development of Homer's style through the various periods of his career. The division of the water colors into these periods makes this exhibition clearer than any printed description, and emphasizes again that the artist's growth was not accidental but the result of consistent observation and hard work.

This exhibition, which is held under the auspices of the Museum of Fine Arts, will be shown subsequently at Dartmouth and Smith College. While the majority of the objects are from museum collections, there are several choice items belonging to private owners.

Winslow Homer was born in Boston in 1836. He was apprenticed to a commercial lithographer at the age of nineteen, and for twenty years devoted himself to commercial illustration. After the Civil War broke out, Homer was commissioned by Harper's Weekly to make a series of drawings from the front. A number of these Civil War drawings will be shown in the exhibition at the Addison Gallery. In the years following, the illustrator became increasingly the artist, and the years 1880-81, which Homer spent abroad, mark the transition point in his career, when he began the development as a painter of the sea. In the latter part of the 1880's, Winslow Homer settled at Prout's Neck, Scarborough, Maine, and, except for occasional trips to Bermuda and the Bahamas in the winter, and to the Adirondacks for fishing in the summer, the rest of his life was spent on the coast of Maine. It was here that such great paintings of the sea as "All's Well" at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, "Eight Bells" and "West Wind" at the Addison Gallery were painted.

Lodge Landslides in Andover Primaries

Curley Edges Greenwood—Lane, Donnelly, Butler, Mitchell, Tuckerman, Hennessey, Cahill, Callahan Lead Here

Sweeps the State

The town of Andover, with a small percentage of the voters visiting the polls, threw most of its support to the candidates who led throughout the whole state. On the Democratic ticket Curley led Greenwood by 275 to 103 for the senatorial nomination, while Henry Cabot Lodge scored a landslide victory over his opponents for the Republican nomination. Lodge polled 1118 votes, Cook only 71 and Gray received ten. Despite the fact that the Republican ballot had no contests, a large Republican vote was out.

In the local representative contest, with three Democrats trying for the two positions and one Republican entered, the present representatives Thomas J. Lane and James P. Donnelly won out locally and in the entire district. Lane was expected far ahead, but Donnelly defeated Ganley in Andover by only 18 votes. Both candidates for state senator were unopposed.

Through a queer quirk in election procedure, two Republicans were elected as the G.O.P. nominees for representative from this district despite the fact that no one had filed nomination papers for the Republican contest. They were Gordon R. Cannon of Andover and Charles Cote of South Lawrence, enough voters having written their names in to make the election possible.

The two contests on the local ballot were the Governor's Council and the County Commissioner. As was to be expected the local county commissioner and moderator, Frederick Butler, was far ahead in Andover and also won in the county. Mr. Butler polled 1065 here, with the other commissioner Robert Mitchell of Haverhill second with 528. The rest of the large field was far behind. On the Democratic county commissioner slate, Cahill led with 245, and Callahan was second in Andover with 157.

For Governor's Council Bayard Tuckerman was far ahead in Andover. He had 674, Gaunt was second with 281 and Fraser third with 184. On the Democratic ticket the present Council member William G. Hennessey, led by 186 to 130 over his nearest opponent, Michael Conway.

For county treasurer Lewis Carey of Lawrence led locally with 228, his opponents not being in the running. The present treasurer, Harold Thurston, led for the Republican nomination by a good majority.

For register of probate William F. Shanahan, Democrat incumbent, was unopposed, and Hawthorne was ahead of Ingalls for the Republican nomination, 530 to 469.

Record Enrollment at Phillips Academy

Phillips Academy began its 159th year on Tuesday, with the largest student body in its history, the enrollment being close to 600. Twelve new men have been added to the teaching staff. Thus, with a faculty of seventy for less than 700 boys Phillips Academy is approaching that goal of all modern schools—small classes and plenty of individual instruction.

Work has been started on the remodeling of Bulfinch Hall so that it may accommodate the entire English department. There will be fifteen classrooms, six individual reference rooms, and a beautifully equipped debating room. Each class room will be designed to accommodate a group of boys, not more than fifteen in number. Each room will be furnished with a round table or movable chairs, as the teacher desires, and will contain a carefully chosen classroom library.

The Townsman Editorial

Next February the citizens of Andover will be urging the town officials to do everything in their power to reduce taxes, to cut down expenses, to ask for smaller appropriations at town meeting. In the meantime the citizens of Andover, a great part of them at least, will be doing things which will make it impossible for the town officials to cut down their expenses.

There's probably not a single town official who has not at some time or other said to one of his friends: "That's just the trouble. You fellows keep asking us to do things, to spend money, to improve our service to you, but when town meeting time comes, you wonder why it costs so much to run your town. I'm an average town official. I don't have any intention of wasting the town's money; I want my department to run on just as little money as possible and to give just as good service as possible, and I'd feel safe in betting that practically every single town official in all the other departments feels the same way."

"We don't like to keep asking for more money, but you fellows force us into it. Down in Boston and Washington it's different; they waste plenty of money down there for varying reasons. But up here we're too close to the voters to waste any money. We're taxpayers, too, and we don't want to have to pay high taxes. Yet one of the most important reasons why our taxes have mounted and mounted is that you citizens of Andover have demanded it."

"For instance, take snow removal as an example. Everyone complains about the high cost of snow removal, but when there's the lightest snow they wonder why the plows aren't out. And when there's a heavy snow and the horses are unable to keep up with the sidewalk work, the residents of the houses sit in their houses and wait for the shovellers paid by the town to come along and clean the sidewalk off rather than going out and doing it themselves.

"Or take the schools. Everybody exclaims at the high cost of running the schools, but if the school board can save money by combining a third and fourth grade under one teacher, you complain if your child happens to be in that room and you decide that the committee is lax in not hiring an extra teacher. In March you'll say: 'What does that committee want so much money for?'"

"And there are a hundred other things. Some of them are small, little requests for a department to come around and do something which you might well have done yourself. It mightn't cost the town more than ten dollars, but it's all those little ten dollar requests piling up into hundreds and thousands of dollars in a year's time that have been a big factor in boosting our tax rate. A lot of little bills against the town departments soon mount into a big bill against the taxpayer."

"You can do one of two things. Either continue to ask departments to spend more money because of something that affects you personally, and blame yourself for the resulting high tax bill, or stop making such requests of the departments and rest assured that the tax bill will come down."

LODGE vs. CURLEY

The results of the primary election, while very encouraging to the Republicans, show that the fight is only beginning. A very large number of Democrats disowned Curley, but a larger number of them yielded to his blandishments, verbal and otherwise, and betrayed their state and their party by voting for him. The Republicans elected overwhelming Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., a young man of great promise, and every single Republican and all the justly dissatisfied Democrats should fight between now and November to see that he is chosen to represent our state in the Senate at Washington. It would be a catastrophe to the good name of Massachusetts if it ever had to be represented by a man like Curley.

VICTORY FOR MAINE AND ALF

The Republican victory in Maine took place more on Saturday night than on Monday. Saturday night saw a man from Kansas stand up in a stadium at Portland, Maine, to espouse the Republican cause, the American cause, in words that removed whatever doubt there may have remained in the minds of Maine's voters, in words that nullified the vote-seeking promise of the President to see that the Quoddy project went through, in words that swept a Republican Senator in despite the tremendous popular appeal of his Democratic rival, Governor Braun. The victory was Landon's, a victory in which he proved able to impart to his listeners the sincerity of his feelings toward the New Deal. Despite his excellent record as Governor of Kansas, despite his pleasant personality, despite his straightforwardness he had lost some ground since convention days because of his radio voice, his lack of speaking ability, but Saturday night he demonstrated that he has the required sincerity so that now he will be able to broadcast his statements of basic facts just as well as the President broadcasts his glib if untrue "assurances" that the country is in a bright and rosy financial condition.

Siftings

The main topic of discussion in the Presidential race this week was the Maine topic of discussion.

As Landon goes to Maine, so goes Maine to Landon.

Note to school children: Cheer up, Columbus day's on a Monday instead of a Saturday this year.

Are footballs more expensive now that they've stopped growing so many pigskins?

Answer to query: The Democratic vice-presidential candidate is named Garner.

Andover last week that he had passed the exams for entrance to the Naval Academy Prep school, a step on to Annapolis and thence to a commission, he imparted the information in the following significant order of importance: "I'm a happy man today. I've just been paid $11 and I've been told that I've been accepted by the Naval Academy Preparatory school."

It would be nice if some day in years to come his mother would receive the following message: "I'm a happy man today. I've just received $77 pay, and let's see, what was the other thing I was happy about? Oh, yes, President Lodge has just named me an Admiral."

The Social Security Act

Following is another of the series of articles prepared by Martha E. D. White of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and released in conjunction with the Andover League.

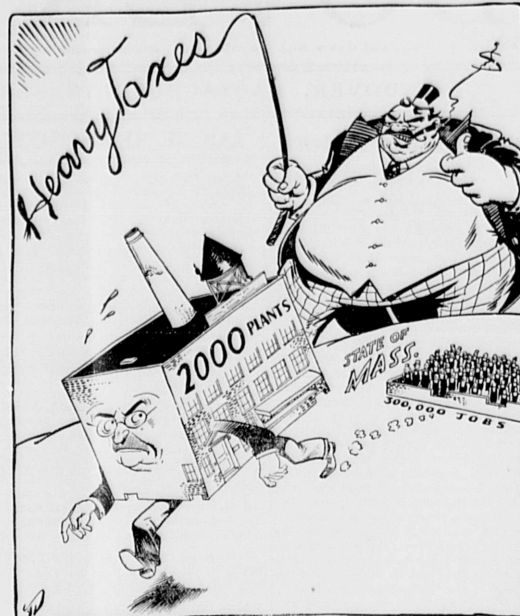

Massachusetts is now eligible to receive funds from the Federal Government for all but one of the 10 separate benefits created by the Federal Social Security Act.

What does this mean? It means that the Federal Government has approved of Massachusetts laws setting up the social security program, its type of administration and ability to meet its part of the program. What are the nine benefits under the Act? Assistance to needy aged, aid to needy blind, unemployment compensation, maternal and children health services, service for crippled children, child welfare services, vocational rehabilitation, public health services and federal old age benefits (this to begin in 1937).

The Federal Government is not participating in aid to dependent children in their homes. Did this accomplishment all take place at once and now? No. It has been a step by step adjustment going on since the Social Security Act was passed, August 1935, by Congress. Massachusetts has already received nearly $3,000,000 from the U.S. treasury for various of these benefits.

How large are the Federal benefits? The Federal Government in case of Old Age

300,000 Jobs Wiped Out

Heavy taxes on Massachusetts industries helped drive 2,000 plants from the state since 1929, causing the loss of 300,000 jobs. Will yours be next?

Order Achieved at New School

Following is an account of the opening of the new junior high school, contributed by school authorities:

A week and a half of school in the new junior high building are over. Excitement due to the newness of things still runs high, but an amazing degree of order already has been achieved.

Immediately after eight the locker game begins! Teachers and pupils alike seem to enjoy it, but more important, most of them have memorized their locker combinations and can make them work.

Then, almost before we realize it, lunch hour has come—11:25 to 11:55. Mr. Taylor, arrayed in spotless white cap and jacket, presides over the lunch counter in the cafeteria. His student assistants—John Skea, Richard Simmer, Robert MacMackin, John Collins, and Tom Davies—give splendid service, while Priscilla Moss and Warren Richardson as cashiers display their mental arithmetic skill. Menus have variety enough for every taste and purse, thanks to Mr. Taylor and to Miss Kimball of the home economics department.

Sports are well under way. Mr. Dunn has already organized eight football teams among the boys. He will have Mr. Blanchard's assistance in carrying on games through the football season. Mr. Dimlich is working with soccer teams. Very soon a horse-shoe tournament will be carried on.

Miss Collins reports that eighty-four junior high girls have reported for field hockey, under Miss Trott's supervision. Sixteen girls are participating in a tennis tournament. In the one match game already played Judith Hardy was the victor. This activity is under the leadership of Ruth Hardy of Punched.

The football squad includes: Norman R. Whitaker, Manager; John Erving, Assistant Manager.

Tigers—R. Burnham, Captain; W. Deyer-

Two Representatives "Good" on Oath Law

The two local representatives have "good" records and the local state senator has a "bad" record on the teachers' oath law, according to a tabulation made by the Massachusetts Society for Freedom in Teaching. Mr. Lane and Mr. Donnelly voted "yes" on the Curtis amendment, eliminating provisions of the law which would have required foreign teachers, exchange professors, to take the oath. They both voted "No" on the Bigelow amendment, postponing operation of the Teachers' Oath Law until 1975. They were against engrossing the bill, in favor of throwing it out. In 1936 they were both for ordering the third reading on the repeal of the law. Mr. McArece voted "Yes" on ordering a third reading.

Cockeyed Tax Law
"This (The Surplus Tax law) is the most cockeyed piece of tax legislation ever imposed in a modern country and if I am elected I shall recommend the immediate repeal of this vicious method of taxation. . . . Actually it has no relation to 'soaking the rich'. What it does is to protect the big fellow who still has a reserve, and tie a millstone around the neck of the little fellow."
Alf M. Landon at Buffalo, N. Y.

Andover Girl Weds Lowell Business Man

At a largely attended ceremony in St. Augustine's church last Saturday morning Miss Mary Margaret Fallon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Fallon of 83 Park street, and John Henry Sullivan, son of Mrs. Cornelia J. Sullivan of 388 Lincoln street, Lowell, were united in marriage by Rev. Thomas B. Austin, O.S.A. The church was decorated with white asters on the pews and baskets of white roses on the altar.

The bride was gowned in chiffon brocaded velvet, princess style, her veil of tulle being crowned with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses.

Her attendants all wore the same style outfits, consisting of chiffon coats, redingote style, with double Peter Pan collars, over accordion-pleated skirts. The bride's sister, Mrs. Albert F. Perrault of Methuen, acting as matron of honor wore orchid with yellow accessories—hat, slippers and lace mitts—and she carried a large rose.

The bride's cousin, Miss Alice May Brine of Dorchester, was maid of honor. Her costume was a pastel green, with deeper green accessories, and she carried yellow tea roses.

There were four bridesmaids: Miss May Elander of Andover, Miss Frances Quinn of Everett, and two cousins, Miss Florence Reinhardt and Miss Grace Reinhardt of Rosindale. Miss Elander wore pastel pink with blue accessories, Miss Quinn pastel blue with pink accessories, Miss Florence Reinhardt pastel pink with blue and her sister pastel blue with pink. Miss Elander and Miss Florence Reinhardt carried tallismans roses and Miss Quinn and Miss Grace Reinhardt deep pink roses.

The flower girl was Miss Barbara Dressall, niece of the bride. She wore a dress of yellow tulle, princess style, with hat to match, and she carried a basket of rose-buds.

Edward Joseph Sullivan of Lowell, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and the ushers were Spencer F. Sullivan of Lowell, Spencer F. O'Leary of Winchester, J. Burns Sullivan of Lowell, Paul Andrew Sullivan of Lowell, and Joseph E. Fallon and Arthur J. Fallon of Andover.

The bride's mother wore a midnight blue chiffon velvet gown with hat to match and a corsage of Talismans roses. Mrs. Sullivan wore a gown of King's blue with a black velvet hat and a corsage of yellow tea roses.

Miss Annie G. Donovan, church organist, provided the wedding music and solos were sung by Mrs. Roland A. Parisian. The double ring service was used.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Willowood Inn, with a six-piece orchestra furnishing music. After a wedding trip to Washington and Shenandoah Caverns the couple will reside in Andover.

The bride graduated from Punchedard in 1927 and later from Burdett Secretarial school for the past few years she has held a position with a Boston brokerage firm. Mr. Sullivan is in the real estate and insurance business in Lowell.

To be trusted is a greater compliment than to be loved.—George MacDonald.

Mrs. Brannigan will not only teach the required class work in art but will also direct the individual work for private pupils. It is the plan of the Trustees to provide at Abbot increasing opportunities for advanced work in the Fine Arts, and with the appointment of Mrs. Brannigan to the staff they feel that the work in the plastic arts will become one of the distinctive advantages of the school.
To the great regret of the Trustees, the resignation of Miss Esther Omegey, who had been dean of the school and teacher of Mathematics for five years, was accepted last winter to allow Miss Omegey to pursue her graduate work toward a Ph.D. in Mathematics. Miss Omegey has accepted a position as head of a dormitory at Bryn Mawr College, and graduate assistant in Mathematics, where she will devote half time to her graduate studies.
Miss Isabel Hancock of Lynchburg, Virginia, has been appointed to teach Mathematics. Miss Hancock, A.B. Hollins College, 1927, M.A. in Mathematics, University of Virginia, has had several years of successful teaching of Mathematics in preparatory schools.

To take the work in Chemistry, formerly taught by Mrs. Irving Sargent (Miss Bertha Grimes) Miss Eleanor Tucker of Iliou, New York, has been appointed. Miss Tucker, a graduate of Smith College, 1934, received

THE BRIDGE BUILDER

Schools Have Peak Enrollment

A new record total enrollment of 1607 students reported at the local public schools on opening day Monday. The highest previous enrollment was in 1933 when 1576 attended on opening day.
Both high and junior high schools are near their capacity. At present the three junior high grades, including what would have been this year's freshman class, total 492, and the three high school classes with seven post graduates total 341, an increase of 28 over opening day a week ago Wednesday. Capacity for the new junior high is 500. The senior class at Pynchard, numbering 98, is the largest on record. Nine more juniors and ten more sophomores were present Monday than there were when school opened.
The total junior high and high registration a year ago was 788 and this year it is 833.
The Central Grammar schools, now occupying rooms in Stove, John Dove and Samuel C. Jackson, have jumped from 330 to 387. There is ample room for expansion in these grades however.

Gratifying to the North district residents was the enrollment in the North school. For the past two years the temporary end at the closing of their school and the transportation of their children to the West center school because of the small enrollment, varying from nine to twelve, the residents at school board hearings had stated that there would be more pupils within a couple of years. Opening day saw 17 present as against nine a year ago, thus putting to a temporary end at least the agitation for closing the school.
The West center school was the only other to make a gain, jumping from 47 to 57. Indian Ridge dropped off five, from 70 to 65. Bradlee lost 22, going from 105 to 83 and Shawshen dropped from 185 to 165.
