Merchants Plan Harvest Sales

Monday and Tuesday Set as Dates for Service Club Event

Andover's merchants, under the sponsorship of the merchants' committee of the Andover Service club, are holding a Harvest Sale on Monday and Tuesday of next week, with many of them offering special bargains and some announcing a straight ten or even twenty percent cash discount on all purchases made those two days. All the participating merchants are listed in the center pages of today's Townsman, together with their special offerings for the two days.

The merchants are planning to decorate their shops with Harvest Sale pennants, and it is also possible that banners will fly from poles outside the participating stores. Every endeavor is being made by the merchants to inform Andover's residents of the excellent buying possibilities that this sale presents.

The committee has offered the Andover Grange a ten dollar prize for the largest squash. The entries may be left at Playdon's store on Monday or Tuesday.

Engineers Report That In- stallation Would Be Im- practical Here

The Board of Public Works on Wednesday night decided to drop the proposed purchase of two second-hand boilers from a bleachery in Somerville, basing their action on the report from Charles D. Main, company, engineers, that the boilers are too large for the requirements of the pumping station. Secretary Frank A. Buttrick yesterday wrote the finance committee that the matter is being dropped. On the basis of preliminary information last week the finance committee had advised the Board to take out a thirty-day option on the two boilers and to secure additional information as to cost, condition, etc.

The engineers report showed that the boilers were 72 inch, whereas 66 inch boilers are the limit that can be used at the present station.

It was also pointed out that Andover would probably never grow to the point of needing 72 inch boilers. To install them it would have meant enlarging the station, and that would far more than offset the savings made available by the second-hand boilers. It had been estimated that the total cost including installation of the two boilers would have been $13,000, a saving of $7,000 over the cost of new boilers as of the last town meeting. The $7,000 would have been wiped out however, thus making the whole installation impractical.

WHIST NEXT WEDNESDAY

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Ladies Guild of St. Joseph's church was held at the home of Mrs. George Cheyne on Thursday evening.

Final preparations for the monster whist party were made. Mrs. Dumont who is in charge of the prizes submitted a partial list of prizes which includes fifty gallons of oil or one-quarter ton of coal, several bags of flour, a case of assorted can goods and many other valuable prizes.

Roadside Education

What is wrong with the attached diagram, or rather what are wrong with it? It represents a stretch of Andover's own Main street, in front of the Andover Garage. After you drive over the sign in the road that says "SOHOOL", if you take the next left you bump into Punchard high and its satellite, the Junior High; if you take the next right, it's not long before you see the century-old school for girls, Abbot academy; and if you go straight, pretty soon you'll be right in the midst of Phillips academy.

Now if you're a type-setter and you insert the wrong piece of type in a word, it's hard to blame you because the piece of type may be only a quarter of an inch square or less. And if you're setting type on a machine, it's quite easy to hit the wrong key as your fingers speed over the large key-board. But somehow for the life of us, we can't see how it is possible, when you're painting a great big two or three foot letter on a roadway, to paint the wrong letter. And when an "O" is painted for the "C" in "SCHOOL" and a "P" is painted for the "R" in "PARKING" just a few feet away,—well, the road to Punchard, Abbot and Phillips needs a good bit of primary grade preparation.

"Photography: 1839-1937," the exhibition organized by the Museum of Modern Art, New York, and shown there last spring, is being held at the Addison gallery, Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., from October 16-November 14. Some of this exhibition was shown at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, in June, but the Addison Gallery has enlarged the exhibition with a number of technical exhibits, and some additional local press photography, as well as amateur work by the faculty and students of Phillips academy. Beaumont Newhall, who originally arranged the exhibition for the Museum of Modern Art, has also organized and directed the installation of the Andover showing.

The exhibition is planned to show the evolution of photography from the first public announcement of Daguerre's process in 1839 to the present date. Among the rare specimens of photography included are a reproduction of the earliest daguerreotype in existence, the first "candid camera" photograph, the earliest photographs taken by flashlight and Brady's famous documentary photographs of Civil War days. A large portion of the exhibition is given over to contemporary work and here the well-known modern photographers—Bourke-White, Steichen, Stieglitz, Weston, Bouchard, Dumas, Man Ray, and a score of others—are represented.

Photography enthusiasts will be greatly interested in the technical displays added by the Addison Gallery. Here an attempt has been made to follow the evolution of the camera itself. At the right of the entrance to the gallery a "camera Ob-seura" has been constructed as well as appliances showing "depth of focus," additive and subtractive color, etc. Different types of modern cameras are exhibited to show the tremendous advance in equipment.

Mr. Newhall in arranging the Andover exhibition, has kept in mind the amateur photographer who wishes to improve his work, and examples of under-exposure, over-exposure, etc., have been shown toward that end. In his pamphlet published in connection with the Addison Gallery exhibition he suggests:

"The taking of photographs is a very simple matter. You press the button, we do the rest" has been for almost fifty years a slogan, yet the very simplicity of photography is a mixed blessing. We can passively point our cameras at subjects that interest us and following a few simple rules, press the button with the assurance that we shall have a recognizable picture-record to paste in our album. Or, aware of the wonderful power of photography, we can actively use our cameras to make pictures which are not only records, but which are expressions of the feeling within us when we clicked the shutter."

Rain Causes Two Crashes

A downpour that clogged sewers, flooded streets, impeded telephone service, and caused many cars to stall had its most serious results early Thursday morning when two local men, George Beaumont of 40 Morton street, and W. Winslow Dunnells, 63 Abbot street, both crashed into a fallen pole on Union street within a short time of each other.

Both were on their way to their separate employments in Lawrence about three o'clock. Beaumont struck the pole, and returned with lights extinguished to Shawshien square to report the fallen pole. Someone else had reported an accident, and Officer David Nicoll on his way there saw the lightless car, and suspecting a hit-and-run gave chase. In the meantime Dunnells ran into the pole.

Red Cross, Seal Drives to Start

In comparing the work accomplished by two active agencies in our county, it is found that the Red Cross provides money for emergency needs—when sudden disasters arise the Red Cross is there to help. War, floods, famine, fire and epidemics are disasters which the Red Cross combats. In normal times the organization is constantly carrying on its work of accident and life saving assistance, public health nursing, Junior Red Cross work and is ever ready to respond to the call of the needy.

The Christmas Seal sale funds are also used for the protection of the public. In Essex county this money fights tuberculosis. The money raised in each town is used to send children in contact with tuberculosis, to the summer health camp to build up a resistance to the disease. Money is also used for health education and case finding.

These two drives will soon be in progress. The Red Cross drive runs from November 11th to Thanksgiving, November 25th, while the Christmas seal sale will run from November 26th to Christmas, December 25th.

The Christmas seal sale chairmen and committees are receiving supplies and making last-minute plans for the campaign.

The local committee includes Mrs. Henry S. Hopper, chairman; Mrs. Jerome W. Cross, Mrs. C. Carleton Kimball, and Mrs. Howell F. Shepard.

Is the Dutch Elm Disease Any Worse to Trees Than the Public Service Companies?

"Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

Joyce Kilmer has made classical the contrast between man-made poems and God-made trees, but if he had had some of the realist tendencies of many of our recent poets, he might have run through a whole gamut of man-made things that suffer by comparison with God-made trees.

One of these things would have been wire, telephone, telegraph, electric wires. A strictly modern development, these wires make it possible for us to talk to the person in a house a block distant or across the ocean. Everyone appreciates the service they render, whether it be communication, power or light.

But why is it necessary, in providing us with these modern conveniences, to despoil the trees that our forefathers and we ourselves have planted along our roadsides, trees that give such towns as Andover a beauty that treeless towns justifiably envy? The New England Council, in its program of promoting the beauties of this section of the country, recently ran in Time a full-page four-color advertisement showing the beauty of the fall foliage in the White Mountains. Our trees are something to be really proud of, and they certainly justify much more consideration from our public service corporations than they get now.

To cut down a tree on a public street requires a hearing and special permission, and no one of course has a right to go into private land and cut down trees. But is there any really very great difference between cutting down a tree and ruining it by hacking away at the branches, cutting out a wide swath for wires to pass through? Why isn't special permission required to do this? Andover spends ten thousand dollars a year for the tree warden to protect our trees. The country is spending money right and left to stop the spread of the Dutch Elm disease which has been spoiling trees. Why make any exception with the public service corporations?

We want light, we want 'phone service, we want power, but we also want our trees. We want them to grow as God makes them grow, not as a lineman lets them or refuses to let them grow. The heads of our public service corporations would be doing a truly great public service if they would give some thought and take some action toward protecting our trees.

"I'd Rather Not Balance the Budget"

"Mr. President," Frances Perkins says, "I know how we can balance the budget. There are a lot of government buildings, the Capitol, the White House, post offices all over the country that are tax-exempt. Now if we tax the government for all these buildings, we'll raise enough money to take care of the deficit."

"I have an idea," says Secretary of State Cordell Hull. "Why not put a tax on shaving?"

"No," answers the President. "Then everyone would look like Chief Justice Hughes. I'd rather not balance the budget."

Budget-balancing isn't the funny matter that playwrights Kaufman and Hart picture it in their new satire, "I'd Rather Be Right" which opened in Boston recently, but the statement "I'd rather not balance the budget" made by George M. Cohan in his role as President is particularly interesting in the light of the statement made this week by the real-life President: "The budget can't be balanced this year."

The Republican party in the last Presidential campaign made much of the failure of Mr. Roosevelt in his duty of balancing the budget, and evidently mindful of this well-founded complaint the President in his recent swing through the West frequently promised to balance the budget this year. But when he came home and looked at actual facts, he had to admit that he will be unable to balance the budget. Expenditures have gotten way beyond him, and because taxpayers' incomes have dropped off during his administration, income taxes are off in proportion.

If a manager of a corporation said to his directors: "I just can't stop this firm from losing money," the chances are that the directors would find someone who would see that expenditures wouldn't exceed income. If a family found that its expenditures couldn't be taken care of by its income, it would probably decide to cut its expenditures. And that's what the President must do. It does the Nation no good to have its leader sit by his fireside and say in substance: "My friends, as a financial executive I'm a failure." What he's got to do is to forget the smile, grit his teeth, and cut, cut, cut.

Maybe some of the favored heads will fall by the wayside in the cutting process, but when the President does balance his budget, OUR budget, businessmen will find it possible to start employing the number of men they used to employ before the government decided to take most of their money, at the same time leaving the threat over their heads that the rest of it might be taken, too.

So, President Roosevelt, don't say "I can't." Change the "You must" that you've been handing out to Congress to "I must," even if it means that all the supernumeraries feasting on plums throughout the land will have to put an end to their feast. And if you don't start cutting, there will be a very sad element of truth in George M. Cohan's portrayal of you, saying: "I'd rather not balance the budget."

Cinder

"Mah Frans." You've heard that salutation from the President many times in the past few years as he told you of his air-castle plans for spending your money. But last Monday night, speaking on the program for the mobilization of human needs, he omitted the grin-accompanied greeting. Evidently "My friends" are only those for whom he's spending, and not from whom he's collecting, money.

Siftings

We thought it was an October, 1936, headline when we read: "Landon Denounces F.D.R." on Wednesday morning.

Those who are most adept at juggling the people's money are least adept at balancing the budget.

A headline this week read: "Man with Two Wives Jailed for Six Months," and the cynical husband is apt to say: "What do you mean, six months?"

They say fall foliage is colorful only in New England and China, which gives us for all practical purposes a monopoly.

Tax Ass'n Plans Redistricting Move

The matter of a redistricting under which Andover would have separate representation from South Lawrence was brought up last night at the initial meeting of the new Board of Directors of the Andover Taxpayers' association, and it was decided to have the legal sub-committee interview the county commissioners on this matter in an endeavor to see what can be done. The redistricting is already over a year late. The legal committee consists of Fred H. Eaton, chairman; E. Barton Chapin, Alan T. Polgreen and Arthur Sweeney.

Edmond E. Hammond and J. Augustus Remington were re-elected president and vice-president respectively. Mr. Hammond will have the appointing of the association representatives at the department budget meetings, according to a motion passed at the meeting.

One new phase of association activity may develop out of a round-table conference to which the association is inviting all town departments. At this conference the directors will endeavor to secure the opinion of the departments on the possibility of long-range planning of extraordinary expenditures, such as replacement of equipment, unusual construction work, etc. The plan as sketchily outlined would have each department compile a list of all the special items that it can foresee for the next five years, with the necessary replacement dates, estimated costs, etc. Then an endeavor would be made to level off all these appropriations over the five years so that no one year would have a huge appropriation for these non-operat-

The plan arose from a statement by Selectman Shepard at a recent meeting to the effect that the selectmen try to arrange their equipment replacements so that no one year is flooded with them. In Memoriam

Miss Rebekah Chickering

The death of Miss Rebekah Chickering in Paris August 18 was a shock to her friends in Abbot academy and a larger circle in Andover and beyond. Her long term of teaching at Abbot had made a deep impression on successive classes, where her unusual qualities both as a woman and as a teacher were felt by all her students.

Her early years spent in Milton, followed by four inspiring years at Bryn Mawr gave her a fine tradition both social and academic. She came to Abbot academy in 1898, and after some years spent as a resident in Draper hall, she and her sister formed a home on Central street, where the old colonial house with many books and fine old furniture made the fitting background for the spiritual aristocrat that she was. That house has for years been a centre of fine taste and hospitality to many in Andover and outside it.

Her work as a teacher, which was her absorbing preoccupation, was remarkably fresh and individual and made her an inspiration to her students for nearly forty years. She was remembered long after their schooldays by hosts of Abbot girls who found her teaching had given them the needed something, which is more than mere college preparation. Her genuine enthusiasm for all beauty, more particularly in literature, was enough to inspire even the dull-witted. And the devotion to the individual student, the countless hours spent in personal interviews could only have been given by a true teacher and a generous heart.

But to her friends, as well as to her students, there was a very rare spirit perceptible in her shy and dreamy presence. Her passionate pursuit of the true spirit of the person or the book, her remarkable insight into their deeper characteristics gave her an extraordinary power, of which she seemed largely unconscious, but which was often felt even by those who knew her only slightly. She gave herself unstintedly and her little gifts and attentions to lonely people, known only to themselves, created a wide circle of friends, whose affection grew with the years. That affection she greatly valued and it was the only reward she ever asked. She would have been surprised to find how large was the circle of those who miss her fine spirit, high culture and gentle ways. And to the close circle of intimate friends she was an unforgettable personality, and an abiding comfort and inspiration.

Andover Playhouse Opens Tuesday

Old Colonial Theatre Transformed into Entirely Up-to-Date Picture House

The Andover Playhouse, on the site of what was once the Colonial Theatre, will open on Tuesday evening after several months' rebuilding which has left no stone unturned to give Andover a modern, comfortable, healthful and attractive theatre. Manager Samuel Resnik is making no change in prices, although there are several matters of policy that he is changing. The evening show, instead of starting at 6.15 as heretofore, will not start until 7.30, except on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Children at evening performances must be accompanied by an adult. Attendance at the Sunday evening performances will entitle a person to be eligible for the bank night award on the following night.

The most important physical change to the theatre patron are the seats and the heating and ventilation installation. The theatre has been lengthened at both ends, and there are some 200 more seats available now. Reputed to be the roomiest theatre seats made, they have velour backs and leather seats providing the maximum of comfort.

The new heating and ventilating system is found only in the most recently built theatres. It is automatically controlled. In the two lofts at the rear of the stage are huge fans which force the pre-heated air into the auditorium whence it leaves through grills at the rear. This means a continual change of air at a constant temperature. Oil is to be used in heating the building.

The latest Super-Simplex Projectors have been installed to guarantee clear visibility and eliminate any danger of eye strain.

The lay-out of the building has been entirely changed. At the front is a marquee extending over the sidewalk. The box office will be at the outside, with a door at the right for entering and at the left for leaving. Then there is an inner lobby, to be entirely carpeted. Three double doors double doors admit to the auditorium. The ladies' room is located at the left as one enters, and it will have dressing tables, lounges, etc. The men's room is at the right, as is the manager's office.

The building is protected against fire by a sprinkler system, and there are several exits.

The space to the rear and at the left of the theatre on Essex court will be used for parking.

The first bank night drawing for $125 will be held on Monday evening, November 1st. The new policy will make it possible for persons attending the Sunday night performance to be eligible to receive the award without being present on Monday night. An attendance card will be given them with their ticket Sunday evening, and they are to leave it with their name and address with the ticket taker.

A. P. C. to Present Play November 18

Plans for the showing by the A. P. C. of "She Can't Do That to Me" on Thursday, November 18, are underway.

Mrs. J. Albion Burt, A. P. C. member and coach, has started rehearsals and prophesies a play to surpass all previous A. P. C. plays.

The chosen cast consists of: Mrs. Frank Crawford, Robert Cowen, Miss Gladys Hill, Mrs. Norman Pitman, Mrs. Kenneth Bergstrom, Arthur W. Bassett, and Roger Davideit.

MORE INJURIES CAUSED BY VILLAGE TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Two more injuries were reported Wednesday from the traffic lights at Union and North Main streets, the scene of many accidents since the light installation. The Wednesday accident was a rear-end collision between two trucks, one of which had stopped for the red light. The two drivers reported head and back injuries.

Women Voters Plan Program

Over eighty members of the Andover League held their first meeting for the season at Wildwood Inn Tuesday. After a tasty luncheon the meeting was called to order by the President, Mrs. Harold R. Rafton who spoke in general of the plans of the study groups and extended a cordial invitation to all league members and friends of the League to join these groups either as participating or non-participating members.

Mrs. A. Graham Baldwin, the leader of the study group on Government and Economic Welfare, which is meeting Monday evenings in November, discussed the study of Collective Bargaining and how it operates in Industry, here in Massachusetts. The Federal Laws to do with Collective Bargaining and the Labor Relations Act. Mrs. Baldwin also stated that someone representing management of industry also someone who is organizing workers in the textile industry will speak at one meeting of the group.

Mrs. Cleveland Gilcreast, Leader on Government and Child Welfare, meeting in December and January, outlined her course on the chief health problems of Massachusetts, specifically of Andover in regard to the prevention of disease and promotion of health, also the care of handicapped children. She spoke of the reference to maternal and child hygiene which will be of interest to the group.

Mrs. John S. Barss, who will lead the group on Government and Foreign Policy meeting in February and March spoke on the subject of, "America's Stake in the Far East, and our relations with the nations of the Pacific considered in the light of the present conflict and our rapidly shifting international policy."

Miss Helen Chickering, who leads the group on Government and its Operations with meetings in January and February stated that the specific questions to be studied by the group will be announced later.

Announcement was made by Mrs. Rafton of the Voters Hour which will be heard over station WEEI on Wednesdays from 4.30 to 4.45 beginning October the 20th. The finance chairman, Mrs. Horace M. Poynter, discussed the advisability of more annual members becoming supporting members, in order that the league's program may be carried on more effectively.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the hobby show, whose chairman Mrs. Henry G. Tyer, gave a detailed report on the numerous exhibits to be shown.

Following the business meeting, Dr. Fritz Marx, Assistant Professor of Government at Harvard who was introduced by the President, Mrs. Rafton, spoke discernibly on the subject of Veterans Preference and the effect it has on personnel in public service, especially in Massachusetts. Dr. Marx placed particular emphasis on the fact that persons entering public service should have in mind making it a career and follow specialized training in their early years. He also stated, that it seemed to him, that the veterans received, in some cases, more preference than they should receive, since their qualifications were much lower than certain other applicants for the position or job.

World Navigator to Give Lecture

To circumnavigate the world in the tracks of the sailors and discovers of old, and to do it under sail as they had, was the ambition of Alan Villiers who will speak at George Washington hall Friday evening, October 29, at 8.15. When he found a little, square rigged ship, only 100 feet long at the water line, but with "the lines of a frigate of 100 years ago, the strength of a sperm whale in the ocean, and the grace of a swan," his dream became a reality.

Naming her the Joseph Conrad, Alan Villiers sailed from England in October, 1934. With a small crew he voyaged on past South Africa, around the Cape of Good Hope, through terrific Indian Ocean storms, to Bali, Singapore, Australia, Cape Horn, and so to New York. In two years the Joseph Conrad had covered some 57,000 miles of seas, a voyage which will probably never be made again under sail alone.

Mr. Villiers has spoken before at Andover and the audience was thrilled and delighted by his exquisite photographs of square rigged ships under full sail. His new lecture and his new pictures of this voyage around the world should be even more interesting.

There will be no charge for admission and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Story of Ten Weeks' Vacation in Trailer Told by Local Resident

When I leave my typewriter and take my manuscript to the office of the Townsman, gone forever will be that feeling of smug virtue which has been mine in the past for successfully overcoming that urge to share with the world a unique or interesting vacation.

We own a trailer—one of those intriguing, compact homes on wheels which rolls merrily along behind a car ready to provide food and shelter de luxe, at a moment's notice—and for ten happy weeks this summer it served the family well.

That my husband might share the pleasure of camping with us, our choice of a camp-site was somewhat limited. After scouring the available territory, Pillings Pond, in Lynnfield, seemed to offer the happy combination of water, woods and accessibility we desired. As soon as school closed, we hitched our wagon to our car (but in our minds it was a star) and rolled along in a pouring rain for our summer camp-site, a good-sized lot on the shore of the pond. Arriving, still in the pouring rain, with a sickle we cut down ferns and grass, jacked up and leveled the trailer, put up our 9x12 awning and proceeded to make ourselves at home. Boating, swimming, rambles alternated with lazy hours of rest to make the days pass rapidly.

The long week-end of the Fourth was an excuse for adventure and once again our little brown home was on the road, this time to the state property at Salisbury. Knowing exactly how high the tide would rise and that having reached its height it would immediately begin to recede, we were gaily nonchalant at supper to find water almost as far back as the wheels and so deep in front of the door that removal of shoes and stockings was necessary if one wished to go out. July 5, meant an exchange of ocean bathing and boating, hot sun on white sand and clear cool sea breezes for the soft green of lovely trees and the mild still water at Pillings. Followed two weeks of quiet contentment and enjoyment.

Heading North

On July 17, our little brown home was again on the road, the last two weeks in July being our vacation and the high-spot of the summer. Our first night was spent at Wilder, Vt., then straight north along the Connecticut to Groveton, N. H. Still heading north, we held open house for old friends at West Stewartstown, N. H.; from then on we traveled over new roads. The roller coaster road across northern Vermont with occasional side trips into Canada made our third day amusing and interesting and brought us to the outstanding adventure of that day. Night was approaching and we were looking for the ideal spot only to be unexpectedly rewarded. Just a few miles west of Enosburg Falls, a sign "Riverside Camp Grove" attracted our attention. To all appearances, it might be a deserted camp ground or a town or county picnic grove. We decided to investigate. As we drove in we came to camps, some really fine ones, others more humble; there were also larger buildings apparently all deserted. However we kept on and came upon a small group so suddenly it seemed as though they had sprung out of the ground. Riverside Camp Grove on the banks of the Missisquoi is a religious camp ground and we were just a week before a large Institute was to be held. We were cordially welcomed and spent the night in one of the most beautiful spots imaginable.

We were heading for Fish Creek Pond, on the upper Saranac, but it was with regret we left in the morning. Crossing Lake Champlain at Rouses Point by ferry over new bridge caused us not the slightest inconvenience with our trailer. Our journey through Plattsburg, Lake Placid and eventually to our destination was accentuated with a visit to Ausable Chasm.

Fish Creek Pond, with its nearly five miles of shore, in a setting of white birches, might truly be called a campers paradise. About 460 campers might be accommodated, each with 50 feet water front, a large fireplace, plenty of firewood, a picnic table and admirable sanitary convenience. During our week, there were at least 400 outfits, trailers, and tents in camp. Men selling groceries, meat, milk, ice and bakery products came through every day. Entertainments made up of talent in camp were held twice a week in the large amphitheatre, a nature lodge was interesting, a large bathing beach and picnic grove catered to the needs of the picnickers. Huge camp fires at night, moonlight on the water, music, story-telling and the delightful French folk songs of the little French girls camping next to us are unforgettable memories of our delightful week at Fish Creek Pond.

At Lake George

Leaving the upper Saranac region our next camp was made at Lake George. The outstanding feature of our visit here aside from a visit to the historic Battle-ground was the band concert given one evening by the pupils of the public schools. Most amazing was the information obtained from a young lady. This band of about 75 is made up of pupils from the public schools of Lake George and Warrensburg. The school population of Lake George is about 300 and of Warrensburg even less. This band gives two concerts weekly during the summer, one at Lake George and one at Warrensburg. Our last night out was spent at Cold River Camp in Charlmont on the Mohawk trail. This a Massachusetts State Camp and is a truly beautiful spot.

The last Saturday of our two weeks' vacation my husband and daughter took the trailer back over to Pillings and built a 9x12 porch in front of the trailer, with our awning for a roof. This made a delightful extra room.

August 1, found us again at Pillings Pond for five more delightful weeks. One of our amusing memories is of a cold rainy Sunday, when neighboring campers thinking we would be cold and uncomfortable came to offer us the shelter of their camps. Our trailer was so warm, with our little stove in action, that they stayed to visit and all day we had a crowded house. Weenie roasts, impromptu parties, berrying, and visiting made the days pass all too swiftly and on September 4, we brought our little brown home back to Andover with many and varied memories of an unique and happy summer.

To me trailering is a hobby par excellence, as every trip with a trailer is an adventure; in no other way can modern people learn to know and to love the out of doors. The knowledge that one can be absolutely protected from the elements and can have good meals attractively served changes one's attitude to camping. When in my trailer, I have a huge living room the decorations of which are changed by nature according to the season and location. One also grows to tolerate or love the creatures and insects. Caterpillars are just funny fuzzy bits of life, the moth laying her eggs on the trees is simple tragedy (for herself if killed, for the trees if not). To see a snake almost purr with delight when stroked and fondled helps overcome one's aversion for the creatures. The companionship of birds, squirrels and chipmunks must be experienced to be understood. I long to be again at home in my trailer.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

The Interclass hockey and soccer matches will be played off next week if the weather permits. The last round of the tennis tournament will be played soon with Rebecca Stevens and Jeanette Bacheller competing for the school championship.—THELMA FAIRWEATHER

ENTERTAINMENTS

A number of interesting programs were held last week after the home-room meeting. The ninth grade programs were as follows:

Room 4—played a game which was suggested by James Carmichael; room 5 had a "Fibber Contest" which was won by Helen Gahm and Walter Gaily, who told the biggest fibs; Room 9 had a play entitled "The Real Man." The actors were Dorothy Souter, Doris Rutter, Theresa Whalen, Edward Valentine and Philip Toohey.—MARY RING

In Room 7 at the last Home Room meeting it was decided that a member of that class would take care of the library instead of leaving these duties to the Library Club.

The Students' Creed was discussed at the meeting of Room 13 on Friday. A game of Guggenheim was also enjoyed.

BOYS' ATHLETICS

VISIT 'PHONE EXCHANGE

On Friday, October 15, divisions 9B-2 and 9B-3 visited the Andover Telephone Exchange. Mrs. Sullivan, the chief operator, was very kind in showing how things worked and in answering many questions. A few of the children found their own numbers. A few of the outstanding facts learned were: long distance calls are made from the Lawrence Exchange; when phones are disconnected a small plug is put into the jack where the connecting plug was before; how to work the pay station switches; unlike many of the operators in the movies, the Andover girls are not allowed to chew gum. The operator, no matter how angry the subscriber becomes, must always be calm, polite, and quiet.—MARY SLEEPER, 9B-2

LECTURE ON BIRDS

A very interesting lecture was given last Wednesday by L. R. Talbot, who brought out the fact that this is the time of year to go out and see and hear the different birds. Mr. Talbot told of some of his experiences with birds and also of the great joy one can get from knowing the birds and their songs. Slides of the different birds which Mr. Talbot has seen were shown. There is a fine display of stuffed birds on exhibit in Room 11 and in the general science room.—MARY RING

STUDENTS' CREED

The following Creed was read and discussed during Home Room period on Friday:

I believe in honest work, in generous comradeship, in the courage of high convictions. I believe in the inspiration that comes from contact with all that is truest and best, in books, in people, in life. I believe in loyalty to our junior high school, the fostering mother of these ideals, and I pledge her my allegiance in all her undertakings; in all that will make her a stronger and nobler school.

PROJECT WORK

The 9C-A English Class is working on "Ivanhoe" projects. Some people are building models of Saxon castles, some are making small replicas of weapons used during King Richard's time, and some are studying the music and costumes of the time. Several class members are preparing short plays, for which they have written up in dialogue the most dramatic scenes of the story. These projects will be an display in Room 5 during November.

9C-A and 9C-B are interested in writing to students in foreign countries through the International Friendship League of Boston. The 9th grades had the opportunity to do this last year and found it most enjoyable and worth-while. The present 9th graders will begin their correspondence as soon as they receive the names of some foreign students.

Decide to Form Local C. E. Union

The Free church C. E. society met Sunday evening at the church. At this meeting it was voted to organize two societies, an intermediate and a senior society. Heretofore, there has only been a senior society.

The new senior society will consist of all members 16 years old and over. The new intermediate society will comprise of all members under 16 years of age. There was quite a lengthy discussion held as to whether or not to have the societies remain in the Lawrence Union or form an Andover Union. The intermediates decided to organize an Andover Union and the minority of the seniors who wanted an Andover Union will go in with the intermediates while the majority of the seniors who wanted to remain in the Lawrence Union will do so.

The newly elected officers of the old united society will enter the intermediate society as two of them are under sixteen and the other two are in favor of the Andover Union being organized. Warren Richardson, secretary of the society, and Ruth Keith, vice-president, both resigned their offices and entered the intermediates. William Taylor, president, and Lindsay Kinnear, treasurer, are both over 16 years of age, but are in favor of the organization of an Andover Union; therefore, they will stay with the intermediates and help them form their union.

The local members are planning to attend a Hallowe'en party to be held by the Ballardvale Union Friday evening at seven o'clock, October 29, in the Ballardvale Methodist church.

The Free church society will have charge of the candy booth at the annual fair at the Free church Friday, November 12. Each member is asked to contribute five pounds of candy.

The new organization will meet Sunday evening to elect officers. The intermediates will meet at 6.15 and the seniors will meet at 6.30.

WHIST ENJOYED

Mrs. William Coupe was hostess on Wednesday at the whist party held by the Andover Mothers' club. Refreshments were served, with Mrs. Alexander Crockett and Mrs. Susan Hastings assisting Mrs. Coupe.

GIVES NAME OF UNKNOWN

A reader has supplied the following wanted information on a recent picture: "The Andover Townsman, October 1st issue, published a picture of the second grade back in 1911. The child listed as unknown, third from the right in the front row, is Gertrude Franklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Franklin of Woodland road. She was graduated from Abbot in 1922 and from Wellesley in 1926. She is now known to her friends as Mrs. William P. Lowell, Jr., of Newburyport."

Adventurers' First Play December 7

The first meeting of 1937-38 Adventurers' season was held at the Free church parish house Monday. Harry Emmons, new president, opened the meeting with the new officers officiating. A large gathering, with several new members, was present.

The following appointments were made by the president: Business manager, Geoffrey Nicoll; production managers, Edward Weeks and Allan Flye; play reading committee, Mrs. Lyman Cheever, chairman.

The first play will be "The Path of Glory," by L. DuGarde Peach and will be under the direction of Mervin E. Stevens. It will be presented on Tuesday evening, December 7 in the Memorial Auditorium.

After the business meeting a short play entitled "Spring" by C. C. Clement was presented under the direction of Charles Armitage. The characters: The Skirt, Dorothy Winn; The Gob, Robert MacLaren; musical effects by Marion MacDonald.

Following the play Charles Armitage gave a talk on Drama and then Frederick Hulme explained the principles of scenery design, using as his subject "The Path of Glory."

Refreshments of cider and doughnuts were served by Mrs. Harry Emmons and Mrs. Frederick Hulme.

The substance of Mr. Armitage's talk follows:

Comedy, not necessarily funny, is that form of drama in which the fortunes of the hero have a happy, or at least a satisfactory, outcome. Many modern comedies differ from tragedy only in that the protagonist finds a satisfactory solution to his problems. This type of comedy is referred to as polite or drawing-room comedy, a comedy of manners, or even sometimes, more accurately, as tragicomedy. It is the nearest to real life of all types of comedies.

There are other types of comedy, classified roughly, for the most part, on the basis of their fidelity to real life. Burlesque, for example, makes the characters so distorted as to be ridiculous and gets its effect through its utter absurdity. Melodrama takes exaggerated type characters—the hero, the villain, the virtuous but helpless heroine—through situations of impending tragedy to a pleasant conclusion with virtue triumphant. Farce—comedy is, in its plausibility, about halfway between burlesque and polite comedy. It is funny and frequently absurd, but not altogether impossible. It depends for its hilarious fun, not on the characters, but on the situation—that is on the fast-moving action which sweeps the characters along in spite of themselves to a happy ending.

The distinctions between the familiar divisions of drama: tragedy, comedy, melodrama, and farce, rest mainly upon tone, that is, the attitude which the author takes toward his material and toward his audience. In comedy, the conflict is serious for the participants and to the audience; its issue is not unfortunate for the sympathetic characters.

Comic plays of historical material are possible but infrequent; generally they deal with contemporary life. Therefore the dramatist must be reasonably faithful to what the audience knows and believes about that life. Usually the comic writer is critical of contemporary life; he wishes to arouse satiric laughter about it; or perhaps he wishes to give the pleasure which comes from recognition of it. His characters tend, therefore, more than in serious plays, to become types. And if those types are recognizable people, or have modes of thought and motivations common in the audience's experience, the problem of credibility is solved, and the illusion is maintained.

Punchard Keeps Slate Clean

Punchard won its fifth straight victory and its fourth shut-out of the season Saturday when it blanked Ipswich 39-0. Tomorrow no game is scheduled.

With Noyes, Punchard's star fullback, and MacDonald, left tackle, out of the game it looked as though Punchard might be beaten. The boys from the clam-digging region, however, had a very light team and this was the chief reason why they failed to hold back the local lads. Only once did the Ipswich eleven threaten to score and this was in the third chapter of the game when Rubishaw, fullback, passed the ball on Punchard's 40-yard line to Cronin on the 29. Rubishaw again passed, this time to Siffronas who managed to snare it almost on the goal line, but he was immediately downed. After this the Punchard boys held them there and gradually forced them back a few yards until it was Punchard's ball out on the 20-yard line.

In the first period of the fray Dushame scored from the 18-yard line shortly after the kick-off after Lynch and Bisset had made several good runs. Lynch failed in his attempt to kick the goal for the point after. This first quarter was marked by several good runs on the part of the Punchard lads and the Ipswich boys seemed to be having a hard job to hold them. However, the visiting team did make several good gains. Then Mal Lynch, leader of the local grid stars, ran from his 48-yard line for a touchdown but was brought back by the officials, the team being penalized five yards because one of the Punchard eleven had been in motion before the ball was snapped back.

In the second quarter Lynch made a touchdown after his teammates had blasted their way through the opposition's lines several times, and then he kicked the point, making the score Punchard 13, Ipswich 0. The second chapter of the game was marked by many aerial and ground attacks by both sides. Coach Lovely near the end of the quarter sent in the second string line, and one new back-field man.

Going into the third, Ipswich kicked off and they showed better spirits and playing ability than they had in the previous period. It was in this quarter that they first threatened the Punchard goal-line. After this threat Punchard became more wary and after several ground attacks and frustrated passes Punchard was rapidly approaching the Ipswich goal. Bisset was doing all of the passing and when he was on the 25-yard line he passed to Lynch who caught it on the 15 and then ran for the third touchdown of the game. He failed in his attempt to kick the point after.

Ipswich also tried many passes in that quarter, some successful, some not, with Rubishaw doing the passing.

In the last chapter of the game Rubishaw again tried several passes but only one was completed, and this was to Cronin, who caught it but only gained one yard in the play. Then Rubishaw attempted a pass to Marcorell, but Walker of Punchard intercepted and although he did not have the ball safely in his hands, he juggled it along as he ran and finally succeeded in getting a firm hold on it and ran from Ipswich's 40-yard line to the 10. Rubishaw the man who had originally made the pass finally tackled Walker. Towne, on the next play smashed through to Ipswich's one-yard line with four enemy men clinging to his neck, and then Lynch scored the touchdown. Dushame failed in his attempt to kick the goal for the point after.

Later after a bad Ipswich kick William Anderson ran from Ipswich's 14-yard line in a left end run and scored the fifth touchdown of the game for the locals. Towne rushed the point. Punchard kicked to Ipswich and the latter team received on their 28. Ipswich was penalized 15 yards for clipping. John Collins, Punchard second string guard, and son of Selectman Everett Collins broke his arm in one of the heavy ground attacks, and had to be assisted from the field, Mitchell Johnson taking Collins's place in the line. Ipswich attempted a pass and Anderson who had recently scored for Punchard intercepted and was downed on Ipswich's 20. Frank Haggerty, second string back then scored Punchard's sixth touchdown, and Douglas Howe rushed the enemy lines and succeeded in crossing the goal to chalk up the point after.

Graham Wins Golf Title

M. Philip Graham, with a card of 73-79—152, won the Andover country club championship on Sunday in his first year as a member. James J. Eaton, runner-up and erstwhile champion, had a card of 78-77—155.

Graham led by two strokes in the first nine, and gained three more before the morning round ended. Eaton picked up two during the afternoon, one in the first nine and one in the second.

SOCCER TEAM TIES

For the second successive year the Phillips academy soccer team last Saturday played a scoreless tie with Worcester academy. Several times the Andover attack threatened the Worcester goal only to be repulsed. The team was handicapped by the absence of Captain Scott, who was in the infirmary.

Andover P. T. A. Opens Season

The Andover Parent-Teacher association opened its new season on Wednesday night, with the new president, Harold C. Dunn, introducing the speakers, Nathan C. Hamblin and Donald D. Dunn, and also the association's new officers. He also introduced Emil Keiler, new manual arts teacher. Following the talks refreshments of cider and doughnuts were served.

Mr. Hamblin had been asked to give the effect if any of the change to the present 6-3-3 system, and he pointed out that the change had been made very smoothly because of the previous 6-2-4 system. In an interesting tracing of his own school life, he told of the school which he attended with its ten grades in one building and an extra one added for those children who were not quite old enough to start the first grade at school opening time. The course of study was not as broad as it is now. The three R's were gone into intensively, and music was just introduced during his school days, drawing followed a short while later. Very few went on to the high school, he said.

When he first came to Andover, the high school was divided into the college preparatory course and the commercial course, the chief difference being that the former required four years of Latin and the latter three. The advent of typing, shorthand and other business courses has made it a difference in more than name.

He told of the introduction of the 6-2-4 system which paved the way for an almost imperceptible change to 6-3-3. The chief changes have been the addition of physical education and the extension of the practical arts program.

Physical education instructor Donald Dunn gave a talk on what the physical education program hopes to accomplish. He stated that the physical average of all pupils is five over normal, as compared to the mental average's fifteen over normal. He told of the physical examination recently given, the results being recorded on cards and an endeavor made to correct the particular defects found. Three percent require doctor's care, 47 percent are below normal and fifty-three above.

The high school orchestra played three selections under the direction of Miss Miriam Sweeney, supervisor of music.

The program for the rest of the year follows. General subject: Vocations.

November 17, Dr. Claude M. Fuess of Phillips academy.

December 15, John P. McGrail, Division of University Extension.

February 16, Herman Brase, Lowell State Teachers college.

March 16, James Holland, Mechanical Arts high school.

April 20, Dennis E. Callahan, Superintendent of Lawrence schools.

May 18, Annual meeting, exhibition of school gymnastics.

A short musical program will add interest to each meeting.

Academy Pass Defense Weak

Phillips academy's football team proved that the air was its strong as well as its weak point last Saturday when it defeated Northeastern fresh 27-6. Forward passes played a large part in the Andover scores, and they also constituted a serious threat by the Northeastern fresh aggregation.

A Harrison to Seymour pass at the end of the first period was good for a gain of 54 yards, with the ball going in play again at the ten-yard line. After a few fruitless rushes, Kausel brought it to the one-yard line, Seymour scoring from there. Ted Harrison kicked the point. Tine scored another touchdown later on an eighteen-yard pass from Kubie. Seymour made the point after on a rush when a bad center prevented a place kick.

Early in the final quarter Ted Harrison jaunted from midfield for a touchdown, following it up with a place kick point. After the kick-off, Bill Williams of Northeastern heaved a pass from his own forty-five to Caswell on the ten, Caswell converting from that point. Andover was caught flat-footed on that play, and later another Northeastern touchdown was prevented by the final whistle after Williams had tossed another long pass to MacNamara on the five-yard line. In the meantime Gould, flashy sophomore, had scored for Andover when after heading for a run around left end, he dashed diagonally on a cutback through the whole Northeastern eleven for a twenty-five yard gain and score. Pirnie, recently elevated from the Jayvees, paved the way for the touchdown with a run from his own thirty to the N.U. Fresh 25.

To Ask School Board for Phones

The regular meeting of the Andover Parent-Teacher Council was held Monday evening in the office of the superintendent of schools.

The report of the nomination committee was read by the secretary, Miss Anne Harnedy, and the president, Harold Rafton, cast one ballot electing the new officers as follows: President, Harold Rafton; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harold Eastwood.

There was much interest among the members in regard to installing telephones in the schools not already equipped with the same and it was voted that the Council go on record as being unanimously in favor of requesting the school committee to place in their budget for the coming year the item of telephones for the schools which do not now have them. It was also voted that the presidents of each association in the Council serve as a committee to call upon the school committee and present the matter of including telephones for these schools in their next annual budget. The presidents of the various associations are: Harold Dunn, Andover; Mrs. Harold Rafton, Shaw-shen; Mrs. S. H. Corney, Ballardvale.

After lengthy discussion on the matter of a co-ordinating system of physical education it was voted to lay the matter on the table until the next meeting.

It was voted that the council was favorably inclined toward the continuation of junior programs and that the Teachers' association be asked for an expression of opinion. If the Teachers' association is favorable the matter is to be referred to the presidents of the three associations to be brought before the members of their respective boards, they to arrange to carry out the program.

It was voted that the subject of kindergarten be brought before the various associations for discussion to ascertain whether or not they wish to support a movement to install kindergartens in Andover. Reports will be given at the next meeting of the Council, the third Monday in December.
