Shawsheen Mill On Three Shifts; Relief Cut Nearly In Half

Prospects for recovery have been looking brighter for the past few weeks in Andover, with several lo-cal conditions fortifying the optimism created by the sharp rise in the stock market of the past two weeks. The outstanding local development has been the activity ir the Shawsheen Mills, where three shifts are being run in many de-partments and at least two in all departments. This is the busiest at present of the American Woolen Mills, and the activity promises to continue through August anyway.

The Marland Mills are also doing very well, although there has been no slump of any magnitude in the M. T. Stevens concern. Of the Lawrence Mills the Arlington is showing the most activity at present.

With the increased industrial activity has come a very marked de-cline in the amount of local welcline in the amount of local wel-fare payments. This amount reached a peak, in cash and gro-ceries, of $560 the week ending June 11. Since then it has steadily declined until for the week ending July 2 it was only $300, almost fifty reaccent loss. The unin cause of percent less. The main cause of this has been the increased work at Shawsheen and Marland's, while a W. P. A. quota increase has taken some men off town welfare. If the Tyer Rubber company would start to pick up, Andover would have no problem at all.

Chief Upholds Young Officer

"We never remove officers for doing their duty; we just remove them if they don't," police chief George A. Dane said yesterday when he was informed that some of the young men who frequent the square were contemplating circu-lating a petition asking the removal of reserve officer Joseph O'Brien who arrested two over the weekend on charges of drunkenness and assaut.

The chief stated that he checked up on Andover square a few weeks ago on Saturday night in answer to numerous complaints, and he found the conditions so bad that he immediately transferred Ser-geant Ray Hickey to Saturday night duty with orders to keep the square and lower part of Elm street clear of drunks. Progress has been made, several citizen; having complimented the police re-cently for the bettered conditions. The team has been handicapped by having only one pitcher, Warren Deyermond, and while he has done good work in view of the fact he's had to bear the hurling brunt in every game, his teammates have provided him with very poor support both afield and at the bat.

Last Thursday the local team could make only four hits against East Lynn, one a homer by Burn-ham, while East Lynn was making ten and also capitalizing on five errors in the infield. ALONG THE STREET

One of the Boston papers which glories in pink sheets and lurid illustrations became quite excited over the week-end when it found that a watch had been lost at the Andover Country club. It wasn't just an ordinary watch, for it had some 65 diamonds set in it, the value being around $1,000. Mrs. La Rosa of Winchester called Andover police to report a possible theft, but the pink sheet's big story fell through the next day when Mrs. LaRosa called to say the watch had turned up. But for $1,000, you'd probably get excited, too.

mound, allowing the visitors but three scattered hits. Burnham be-hind the bat handled the assignment in a creditable manner. Bishop, playing the first game of his career at third base gave a fine account of himself. MacLaughlin who was moved over to second took care of 5 chances without an error, and Warren Deyermond made some fine catches on first base. East Lynn was first to score, making two in the second. Andover tied it up in the 4th. Bishop opened with a single to left, MacLaughlin sacrificed, W. Deyermond singled over short scoring Bishop, and when the left fielder threw wild to home W. Deyermond continued to third. Proctor hit to Whalen who tossed to the plate too late to get Devermond. Andover scored what proved to be the winning run in the 6th. Bishop, reaching first on Oak's bad throw, raced around to third on a wild pitch and scored tion of the incident which occurred Monday afternoon when Box 58 at the corner of Essex and Brook streets sounded. We are in no po-but rather Lawrence's and North Andover's, because fortunately we had no noc-turnal alarms. And if we had had you probably wouldn't have minded much anyway because the chances are that your sleep was pretty much interrupted by fireworks anyway. However, we all mind the alarm when it breaks into an ordinary night's slumber as it frequently throughout the does year.

Six or seven years ago the fire department was besieged with calls from people who did not like to be awakened by the fire alarm, and at that time the department tried to alleviate the situation by eliminating the all-out signal of two blows. But after a half-year of this experiment, it was given up, because people awakened by the original alarm couldn't rest easy until they knew that the fire if any was all out. Since then there have been complaints still coming from citizens who after a hard day's work hate to be awakened by the fire alarm blasting away for something that's probably only a false a chimney fire, or some alarm. small blaze.

Of course it's a nuisance. The whistle was a nuisance, too, train and that was elminatied The question then arises: why not eliminate night fire alarms? And that brings up the question: how are you going to do it? The fire department a large necessarily depends on number of call men, and these men must be notified that there is a fire. If they are not notified, and a serious fire results, we who don't like that night alarm would prob-ably be camping down on Chief Emerson's doorstep the next morning blaming him. Yes, it would be a good thing to cut out those nocturnal blasts, but first we must find different way of notifying the call men.

You can help. Why not use the telephone wherever possible when you have a fire of any kind? Then, if the fire is inconsequential, if no more assistance is needed than the regular men provide, the alarm would not have to be sounded. Today when a box alarm is pulled in, the whistle starts sounding, and the whole department, pumps, ladder and all races away to the box. More often than not the ladder and the second engine were not needed, but the department, not knowing from a mere box alarm whether the fire is big or small, cannot take the chance of sending insufficient apparatus. So use the telephone. Tell the fireman who answers who you are, where you are and what the fire is. Then he won't sound the alarm if it's not necessary, and he won't send out unnecessary apparatus. This practice woud eliminate at least half the whistles, day and night of eliminating all the day-time whilstles, for the call men are working all over town. But possibly the telephone company could assist with the night-time alarms for fires which require call-men's services If the call-men could all be reached by phone within a few minutes, it woud help a great deal. In these days of marked scientific progress, it would seem to be an easy thing to have the list of call-men's num-bers on file at the exchange, with the operator, usually not very busy at night-time, plugging them in when requested by the fire-department. Perhaps there are technical difficulties in this suggestion, but for the peace of Andover's sleepers, it would seem that it's at least worth looking into.

> Andover has just ended the first six months of 1938 without a single fatal automobile accident, a record which the town hasn't been able to boast of for some years. There can be no doubt that one of the reasons for this record is the increased activity of registry and police officials in stopping speeders and in apprehending drunken drivers.

When you suspect that almost anywhere along the road there may be a trap or a state or local officer may see you speeding along, the chances are that you will cut down your speed. And if you don't cut down your speed and you're caught, the chances are that you will cut down your speed in the future. The chances of accidents, serious ones, taking place at fifty miles per hour are much greater than the chances of their taking place at forty or at thirty, and for that reason the drive of local and state officials against speeders is to be commended. There is always the danger of being arbitrarily of course strict. Wholesale passing out of tickets to motorists is to be deplored, for more often than not a courteous warning would do a world more good than a ticket. We want Andover to be safe; we want its record of no fatalities to continue; but at the same time we know these ends can be accomplished without getting the goat of every motorist who passes through the town. If motorists can be made to feel that Andover's policemen are courteous and are out to help them instead of to "get" them, An-dover will be a safe community without being one which motorists shun because of unwise police activity.

Politicians trying to count their primary votes now should remem-ber that one vote on the ballot is worth ten from the palate.

Count von Haugwitz-Reventlow, husband of the Woolworth heiress is said to have demanded five million dollars from her for a divorce. That count certainly can count.

If the Governor and the Legislature don't get together soon on the relief problem, the chances are that they won't get any vacation until after November.

Weddings-Planitzer-Bacon

At a pretty ceremony held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Bacon of 6 Washington avenue last Friday evening, their daughter, Miss Elinor Viola Bacon, became the bride of Eric R. Planitzer of Fitchburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt L. Planitzer of 637 Howard street, Lawrence. Rev. Lorentz I. Hansen, former pastor of the Bap. tist church, officiated, and bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Flora May Bacon of Belmont, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Eunice Bacon of Andover, another sister, and Miss Gertrude Hesseltine of Arlington. Alfred E. Scholz of Worcester was best man, and the ushers were Clare Norton, Jr., of Andover and Phillip S. Robbins of Lawrence.

The bride wore a white mousseline de soie gown of Dalnatian in-fluence, fitted bodice, extremely full skirt, and puffed sleeves, over a satin slip. She wore two veils, caught on to a cap bearing a cluster of gardenias, and she carried a colonial bouquet. The two bridesmaids wore identical gowns of peach mousseline de soie, also in the same style as the bride's, with short veils and clus-ters of flowers in harmony with their bouquets

The bride's mother wore an aqua lace frock, with a mixed corsage, and Mrs. Planitzer wore a gown of periwinkle blue with white access sories and a corsage of gardenias. Music was furnished by a threepiece orchestra, conducted by Mrs. Hansen at the piano, with Ruth Napier violinist and Vera Crossley cellist.

A reception followed immediately after the ceremony, following which the couple left on a wedding trip. They will make their home in Fitchburg, where Mr. Planitzer is program secretary at the Y. M. "Clarence S. Waugh of William street spent the holiday week-end at the Andover Country club."

Business Is Better

Comparing our 1938 Fourth of July sales with 1937 sales we find that although our last year's sales were larger than any previous year, this year's holiday business topped them all. More Lamb, Ham, Salmon, Corned Beef, and Poultry was sold, and the sales of native vegetables were almost twice as much as a year ago, showing that business with us is decidedly on the upswing.
