Tragedy And Humor Mixed In Tales Which Came Out Of Hurricane And Flood

It was pretty much of a worn-out group that gathered at the police station at midnight Friday. Chairman of the selectmen Howell Shepard was there, finally able to turn his attention to his own business after having spent one night in aiding during the hurricane and the next night in operating his station-wagon shuttle-train fashion between Shawsheen Village and Marland Village as the waters of the Shawsheen river stealthily crept out onto North Main street, forcing residents of those two sections to evacuate for the second time in two years and a half.

Ev Collins was there, still wondering where he'd get a job if his insurance company fired him for working in the town's interest instead of at his own job during the crisis. He was tired, but not as tired as he was at five Thursday morning when he put up his axe after chopping away at trees since early the previous evening. Len Saunders was there, nursing a beautiful shiner and a bruised shin

Tax Directors Act on Articles

The Board of Directors of the Taxpayers' Association last night voted to favor the North Main street $500 chapter 90 work, to oppose the Hussey's pond purchase, the ice-skating article and the County road extension, and to defer action on the W. P. A. article and the emergency article until definite information on a W. P. A. rehabilitation grant was available. The opposition to the three articles was based mainly on the feeling that since they are not emergency articles they have no place in a special town warrant.

The North Main street sum was approved since it would be a safety measure to have the whole road the same width as the section now being constructed by the

Hurricane Fund of $25,000 to Eliminate Water Jobs

Show You're Thankful

There is one very good way for the Town of Andover to express its thankfulness at its escape from really serious damage and from loss of life during the hurricane, and that is by donating to the Red Cross to aid those communities hit ever so much harder than we were. We lost trees; they lost homes, lives. In those communities today there is suffering; warm clothing, food, medicine are all needed very badly. So let's all give thanks by reaching down into our pocket-books and giving something to the Red Cross, either at the National Bank or to Philip Ripley at 7 Abbot street.

Rev. Samuel B. Overstreet and Mrs. Overstreet will take part in the Merrimack River Baptist Association meeting to be held Wednesday at the First Calvary Church

The greater part of the requested W. P. A. appropriation of $8500 for materials may be stricken out next Monday night by the Board of Public Works if its request for a $25,870 W. P. A. grant for emergency public property rehabilitation is approved. The district authorities have promised quick action on the request and have intimated that it would be approved. The Board will meet again tomorrow night to see if anything has been done.

The large federal fund would be used to provide not only W. P. A. labor but also materials and equipment for rehabilitation of public property damaged in the wind storm and flood. It would keep the greater part of the W. P. A. quota busy for some time, long enough to make it impossible, from ground conditions, to construct the water extensions for which $5500 of the $8500 would be spent. It is understood that the Board would not ask for this sum, but instead would merely ask for the $1000 for work on ledges and $2000 for gravel road work for winter time.

As outlined by superintendent Gilliard in a letter to area supervisor James H. Powers the project would include $4220 for labor, equipment and material for work on 60 trees in the residential district, including street and sidewalk repairs, filling holes and loaming; $6100 for similar work on 200 trees on other roads; $1,000 for repairs on retaining walls, the outstanding instances being the Barnard estate and a wall at the Seacole property on Harding street damaged when a tree bulged it out after being weighed down by another tree; $250 for repairs to damaged walls in rural districts; $7550 for work on 250 trees on town-owned property, such as the Haggetts pond grove, etc., to stave off forest fires; $6750 for excavation and backfill. The figures were arrived at at a consultation between the board and W. P. A. men last night after member Sidney P. White and superintendent Gilliard had toured the town in the morning.

No definite figure has yet been decided upon for the emergency appropriation under article 7, but estimates between $5000 and $10000 have been made. This will cover all departments, including extra police help, etc.

There may be considerable discussion on the W. P. A. appropriation. On the $2250 for the purchase of Hussey's pond there will probably be some opposition from residents of the village who do not relish the prospect of 500 or so children from all over the town congregating there every day in the summer.

Recounts Fail To Change Results

Two recounts held this week failed to change the final result of the representative contests, but Paul A. L'Antigua made a seven vote gain on William McCoubrie in the Republican contest and Arthur Ouellette fell seven votes farther behind Cornelius Twomey in the Democratic contest. L'Antigua was 18 votes behind originally, but he picked up a net of five in Lawrence and two in Andover. Ouellette's recount just took place in Lawrence, since he did not file a petition here.

Mr. L'Antigua last night expressed his sincere appreciation for the support given him by the people of Andover in his campaign.

Numerous Faculty Changes As Abbot Reopens After Week's Postponement

Abbot Academy will open on Monday with a full school. The regular date for opening was postponed because of the difficulties of transportation for the many students coming from points west of Albany and from New York City or other places which involve travel through the hurricane-swept region between New York and Boston.

Miss Hearsey, the Principal, announces the following changes in the faculty for the coming year:

Miss Florence Butterfield, Dietician and Housekeeper, and Madame Marie Craig are retiring and will live in Newton and Springfield, respectively. Miss Fanny Jenks has resigned and will be at home in North Brookfield, Mass. Miss Evelyn Rumney and Miss Ena Marston, teachers of English, have accepted positions at Chatham Hall, Virginia, and St. Hilda's Hall, Portland, Oregon. Miss Helen Bean, teacher of history, has resigned because of her marriage this summer to Mr. Kristian August Juthe of Newton Centre.

Miss Hope Coolidge, M.S., Columbia University, comes to Abbot from the Women's College of the University of North Carolina, where she has been in charge of a dining hall of fifteen hundred students. Miss Coolidge succeeds Miss Butterfield. Miss Hilda Baynes, who succeeds Madame Craig, taught at Abbot in the past, and returns now after further teaching experience at the Mary C. Wheeler School in Providence, and the Kent Place School in Summit, N. J. Miss Baynes has also supplemented her excellent training by having received recently the Diplome de l'Ecole de Preparation des Professeurs de francais of the Sorbonne and the Certificat de Phonétique of the University of Paris.

Miss M. Dorothy Baker of Bath, England, and Miss Lucile Tuttle, whose home is in Assam, India, are to be the new members of the English faculty. Miss Baker is a graduate of St. Mary's College, Cheltenham, England, and holds the Oxford Teachers' Certificate. Miss Tuttle is a graduate of Denison University in Ohio, and has her M. A. degree in English from Radcliffe College. Miss Laura H. Smith, Vassar A.B. and Radcliffe, M.A., who succeeds Miss Bean, comes to Abbot with ten years experience at Miss Lee's School in Boston. Miss Rowena Rhodes, a graduate of the Bouve School of Physical Education, will assist in the Physical Education Department. She has just returned from two years in Japan where she has been teaching in a school of physical education. Miss Marjorie Hill, A.B., Mount Holyoke, and M.A. Radcliffe, will assist in the History department and the administrative offices.

During the summer various improvements have been made to increase the efficiency and beauty of the school buildings. The greatest loss from the hurricane was in the woods on the school grounds where nearly seventy trees were uprooted. The rest of the campus suffered comparatively little damage.

Day students, of whom there will be thirty-five this year, will meet to register in Abbot Hall on Tuesday morning, October 4, at nine o'clock.

Reasons to Be Thankful

Andover has a great many things to be thankful for this week. True it lost an awful lot of the town's beautiful trees which it will take decades, even centuries to replace, but the storm and the flood gave us a good many reasons to be grateful.

They showed us again what a fine group of officials and what a fine type of citizenry we have here in town. We are grateful today for being able to count among our townspeople those men, selectmen, police officials, firemen, tree workers who responded early to the call for help during the wind-storm and who did not spare themselves in their efforts to alleviate a trying situation. We are grateful to the linesmen of the New England Power Company who carried on the hazardous work for an unbroken stretch of 45 hours after the blow started and who since that time have been working at least 16 hours a day to restore service to our lightless homes. We are grateful to the men of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company who have been laboring from daybreak to nightfall in an effort to bring us the 'phone service which we so sorely need, and we are grateful to the girls who reported to the exchange last Wednesday night to do their utmost to complete the emergency calls from relatives outside New England whose radios had carried messages of the disaster. We are grateful to the Legion, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and all the others who helped the police and firemen by providing food during their long vigil. And we are grateful too to all you non-officials who helped by private patrol work the night of the blow, by helping to clear the roadways the day after, and by enduring the inconveniences resulting from the storm in a patient, good-humored way.

Lastly, let us be thankful that we were spared the terrible disasters that fell to the lot of other communities. Let us be thankful that aside from the trees our property damage was really very slight, thanks to a freak of nature which seemed to make the trees drop one side or the other of houses rather than on top of them. And let us be indeed thankful that this town did not have to add a single name to the list of 600 or so who lost their lives as a result of the disaster.

It's Time to Stop Our Floods

Six hundred lives were lost in New England last week. Some of them our politically-minded administrators down in Washington couldn't help, for nothing can be done to stop a hurricane or a tidal wave. But the floods are preventable, and in the lap of the man down in Washington who held up New England's flood control pro-

Town meeting's Monday night, and one phase of the warrant has been considerably discussed by several town boards with agreement having apparently been reached among the finance committee, represented by chairman Harvey Turner above, the public works department represented by superintendent Charlie Gilliard, and the selectmen represented by chairman Howell F. Shepard (where in the world did he get that cane?). A joint meeting of the three boards was held two weeks ago and the W. P. A. $8500 program was agreed upon by the three.

jects for political reasons lies the blame for those lives which the flooded rivers cost. Plans have been ready for two years, but nothing has been done. It's happened to us twice, and we certainly now realize that there's no guarantee that it won't happen again. President Roosevelt can guarantee it however, if he will only forget politics and remember how much the loss of these lives cost the relatives and friends of the people who were killed by an avoidable disaster.

It's Coming Out of Your Purse

What was your tax bill this year? About $100 or so, perhaps? If so, someone is going to spend about four, five or six of your dollars next Monday evening at the special town meeting, and as long as it's going to hit your 1939 pocketbook, you'd better be there. Enough money will be asked at that meeting to mean at least a dollar on next year's tax rate. So it would be well to be at the Memorial auditorium next Monday evening when the moderator calls the meeting to order at 7:00 o'clock.

Communications

Has The Board "Gotten" To Us?

To the Editor:
Some of us who have watched with interest your campaign against the Board of Public Works wondered last week at your editorial which asked a let-up in town meeting criticism of the Board because of its action in "laying down the law" to the foremen. It was a step in the right direction of course, but most of us don't think it has a chance of working until a general clean-up is made. We hope you'll continue your campaign, and and hope sincerely no member of the board has gotten to you.

A Taxpayer

(Ed. Note: Golly, no—no member has "gotten" to us; in fact, most of the members have seemed somewhat loathe to say an awful lot to us since the editorials started to point out the inefficiency in the department. First of all, let us point out that there has been no "Campaign against the Board" by the Townsman. We have carefully avoided criticising the members of the board, in fact we have gone out of our way to speak well of the members of the Board, all in the hope that if we merely pointed out inefficiencies of which the members had apparently not been made aware, instead of blasting at them for not doing anything about it, we'd get a good deal farther toward cleaning up the department. We have no desire to "get" any member of the Board; our desire is and has been and will be to help in giving Andover a good, efficient operation of our department of public works. That is why, after the Board took last week's step, we asked a moratorium, because this step should be given a fair chance. Possibly it won't work; possibly the Board will have to take the drastic step of weeding out those men in the department who have been the cause of all the inefficiency and high cost of operation of the department. If after a fair trial, it becomes apparent that no improvement has been made, we certainly shall advocate such a weeding out.)

FOUR YEARS' TRIAL

To the Intelligent, Sober Citizens of Andover:

The time is now close at hand when you will be called upon by your vote at the November election to register your approval or disapproval of open liquor saloons in Andover.

By the failure of the majority of temperance persons to mark their ballots during the last two elections the saloon-keepers have been given the legalized privilege to maintain an open bar in the very center of our fair town. At this bar congregate day by day and night by night, seven days in the week, a crowd of befuddled drinkers.

The only interest the saloon-keepers appear to have for Andover is its supply of customers for their bars. They seem not to care a pinch of snuff for those qualities of character which guarantee the stability and nobility of our community; but the liquor they sell daily debauches our young men, weakens their power of resistance, crazes their brains, and draws into the coffers of the liquor-dealers money needed by the patrons for proper food, clothing and shelter. Not a single decent argument exists why the citizens of Andover should longer permit this traffic to feed upon the vitals of its citizens.

Of what use for Andover to maintain her schools in order to build in her youth the principles of sobriety, independence, thrift and a God-fearing conscience, and then, to send them forth from the school-house into a social environment that gives the lie to all their school instructions.

By failure to register your negative to the public saloon you tie the hands of your Selectmen; you mandate they must obey. They have no option in the matter.

We have had four years of trial of the saloon. To know its immediate effects upon its patrons permit me to suggest that you take a walk some night between eleven o'clock P. M. and one-thirty A. M., that you talk to the men whose duty it is to clean up the filth from the doorways of our business houses. Talk with the landlady concerning the condition of her roomers as they either stumble or are carried upstairs to bed. Glance into these saloons and see how openly and flagrantly they defy the law, well assured that the liquor commissioners of Boston have power to override any and all local complaints.

Andover citizens should no longer be blind to these conditions, and, because of that blindness, to complacently rid themselves of personal responsibility.

Stolid indifference and this alone is responsible for this black blot upon the clean pages of Andover's splendid and enviable history.

A Town Lover

Doubts Whether Board Should Spend Money

My Dear Mr. Editor:

I am a reader, believer, and a supporter of the Andover Townsman. I am not alone in extending my sincere thanks when you cleaned up the square of perpetual drunks who cluttered it up. Believing in your honesty and sincerity in desiring to help the town in its welfare and well-being, I now submit to you the following, hoping that you can find space for it in your valuable paper:

The Town of Andover is to hold a special Town Meeting on October 3rd for the purpose of appropriating moneys for the material used for W. P. A. and other various things.

One of the articles is for the appropriation of $8500 for work on

Arbroathians Hold Second Get-Together

You can have floods and hurricanes and tidal waves, but you can't stop the Arbroathians from getting together when they decide to get together. They had a date all set for last Saturday night for the second annual get-together in the town hall, and despite the disaster they came on here from Barre, Vt., Springfield, New York, New Jersey, Michigan, Lynn, Peabody, Beverly, Quincy and Boston. Blood runs thicker than water, even when the water runs awful thick.

They had a mighty good time. They ate first and then went on to enjoy a musical program and general dancing. There was no outside talent; the Arbroathians don't have to go outside for talent. Miss Margaret Wynton sang as did Dave Wallace and Henry Fairweather, while their own Kilty band played. Minnie Valentine was at the piano.

Alex Beedie was floor director for the dancing which started with a grand march led by Mr. and Mrs. George N. Petrie.

Donald Surette

(1)—Donald Surette, Townsman photographer, answered Box 54 last Wednesday afternoon to find that fallen wires were igniting brush and trees at the rear of Brechin Terrace. That was the start of the blow. Back at the police station a message came through that a tree was down on Andover street, and Donald down there snapped these branches hurtling through the air. After that messages came hot and heavy about fallen trees, until later in the evening so many phones had been disrupted that there were very few people able to call the station.
(2)—As darkness came on, this tree fell, crashing the porch of the house on Central street, just below the Baptist church. Workmen shortly cut through it to allow traffic to go through.
(3)—We gave up our watch on this tree while it was striving to tear away from its mooring, in order to take picture number 8 below. When we came back, this was what was left, wall pushed out onto North Main street and fence overhanging the sidewalk. The tree was on the Barnard estate.

(4)—One of the spectacular sights during the storm was this tree at the corner of Elm and Summer. It broke off about six feet up and then seasawed at the top of two telephone poles.
(5)—The Storm blew off the roof and part of the second floor of the Scholtz chicken farm on Ballardvale road, leaving the windows standing to keep the breeze out!
(6)—Section of the Tyer rubber warehouse on Lewis street, ripped apart by the hurricane.
(7)—Window on the second floor of the shop, caved in under the weight of the debris from above.
(8)—A night shot taken just after this pole had cracked half-way up, and bent over North Main street supported only by wires from the other poles.

(9)—One of the first trees to fall was this one on Highland road beside Alan Blackmer's home. The above picture, taken shortly after the tree had toppled, shows how completely blocked most of Andover's streets were at one time or another during the night.
What Hat?
Funniest story that came out of the big blow involved Chairman Shepard and Chief Dane. At the height of it the pair walked out of the police station, and Shep was immediately knocked down on his knees. Getting up he looked around and saw George on his knees looking under a car. "What are you looking for?" Shep shouted. "Your hat!" George answered. "Goodnight, man," answered Shep, "I haven't worn a hat for three months!"

Andover Residents In Wrecked Train
The nearest Andover came to a loss of life happened in Stonington, Conn., when Miss Hilda Baynes of the Abbot Academy faculty, on her way up here, nearly drowned when a tidal wave overturned the train in which she was riding. She was carried away by the water, and managed to grasp a tree from which two men rescued her after plunging in from a porch. Another passenger on the ill-fated train was Reeve Chipman of 4 Morton street who saw Miss Baynes but was unable to reach her. Not of much importance to Mr. Chipman was the destruction of the garage at the rear of 4 Morton street.

(10)—A hurricane's bad enough, but to follow it up with a flood—oh, well, we only have them once every two years.

(11)—Thursday night the fire department aided the Shawsheen Dairy in putting out its milk by pumping to keep the water away from the transformers.

(12)—Next morning when the waters were still mounting, the Marland villagers began to move to higher quarters, the above showing a washing machine going away from the water, Eddie Thompson being the motive power.

(13)—The Legion, Marcotte and Crotty, and the Salvation Army all aided by providing food for the traffic and flood workers in Shawsheen square, the above showing chairman Shepard, Chief Dane, Carl Stevens and others enjoying a sandwich and coffee.

(14)—Light for Andover square traffic was provided by the Melrose fire department service truck.

(15)—Another of Donald's night shots, showing the Stelandre garage off North Main street, half under water reflected as almost a perfect hexagon.

(16)—Another shot of the milk getting through, this time a Hood wagon fording the Shawsheen river's North Main street branch.

(17)—There was a great demand for horses, the wooden kind, throughout town because of the fallen trees. As a substitute selectman Shepard provided these barrels from the Watson-Park shop.

(17A)—And when the flood was over, dear old Susie was left behind, forgotten entirely, even by her boatsman of the day before, officer David Gillespie who piloted many families to safety from their Riverina road homes.

(18)—To get back to the hurricane—the morning after proved to be a camera fans' paradise, with many like Henry Hansen and Bill McCarthy above training their lenses on the hurricane's aftermath.

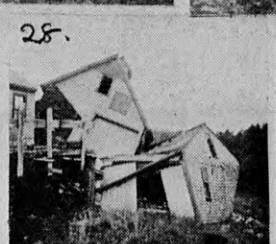

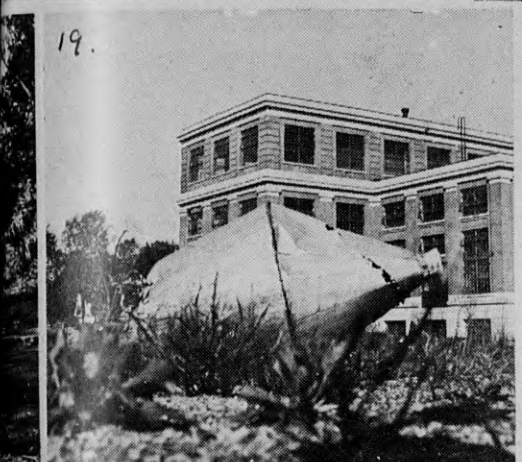

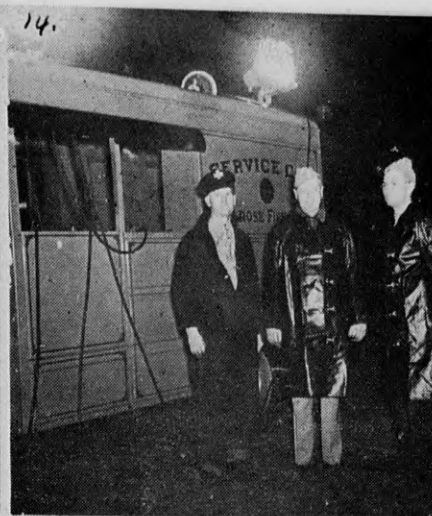

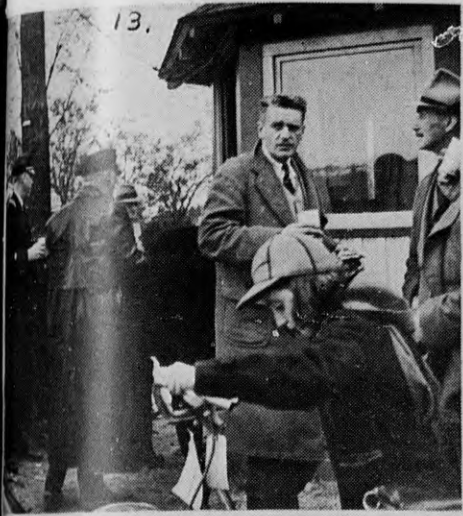

(19)—Blower which was on an ell at the rear of the Hardy brush factory before the blow blew the blower below.

(20)—It's an ill wind—Selectman Roy Hardy doesn't care particularly for the flood that enters his Balmoral Spa basement, but he certainly likes the winds that rip away at his pet peeve, billboards. This one stood on South Main street.

(21)—Along Hussey's pond at the rear of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller's, a whole group of waterside trees bowed before the wind.

(22)—Toughest problem to the tree men was the tree which toppled from the Goodwin home on Harding street across the street, resting on top of the Vannett home. The problem was how to get it down without injuring the house. Above it is shown after the preliminary steps of cutting off the limbs save for the one which leaned against the house. A pulley was then attached to this limb and (23)—A limb of a tree which survived the storm, and a number of men pulled the limb away from the roof after Walter Baker had sawed part way through. After it was pulled away, it looked as shown in picture 23.

(24)—A silhouetted lineman working to restore service as rapidly as possible on Thursday.
(25)—With no electricity, gasoline pumps could not be run. A few garages along Main street profited by having electricity, and advertised that fact as above. Others like Jimmy Williams on Park street hitched up a small motor and battery, while Johnny Wilson down in the Vale backed his car up to the pump, put the rear wheels on a block, took off one tire and ran a belt from the wheel to a wheel in the pump.

(26)—While Walter Curtis was up in Maine on business this tree landed on his Dascomb road home.
(27)—The pine grove at Haggetts pond looked like this the morning after.
(28)—Barn and shed in rear of a vacant house on Woburn street which decided with the wind's help to secede from the house.
(29)—The Shawsheen Laundry getting a wet-wash during its second flood in two years. Again the Andover Steam Laundry, which makes its own power, was ablaze with lights as Al Badger offered its facilities at night to Jim Utley. Laundry business was good this week, with washing machines idle at lightless homes.

(30)—A tree fell at the canoe wharf at the Shawsheen off Andover street, making the old building cave in.
(31)—These two linemen immediately went back to their job on the pole after having seen a companion taken away to the hospital with burns suffered when he picked up a supposedly dead wire.
Cousin Drowned
Miss Nellie H. Farmer of 43 Whittier street has cause to remember the disaster, for a cousin, Mrs. Wallace Crumb and her husband, were drowned in the tidal wave at Charleston, R. I. Miss Farmer had recently spent a weekend with the couple, and they had been frequent visitors here.

state department. There was considerable discussion about Hussey's, which involved 4 1/5 acres. It was reported that the selectmen had told the company that they would not call a special town meeting on the subject, but they did agree to insert an article if a special town meeting had to be called for some other purpose. It was also stated that the $1100 asked for the County road work would only pay for the material, and that no W. P. A. project had been submitted.

(32)—This is what a car looked like when its garage at the rear of 4 Morton street collapsed under the weight of a fallen tree.

(33)—Workmen starting to remove a tree from the collapsed roof of the Hirst garage on Locke street. A car inside was not damaged.

(34)—This garage took a licking on Andover street in the Vale. It is at the rear of the old Dyson property.

(35)—One reason that train traffic was slow, a crossing gate cracked off at the shanty on Essex street.

(36)—Another reason why the Yankee and other trains proceeded slowly. A semaphore cracked off just below the Andover station.

(37)—Thursday morning we saw the so-called streamlined Flying Yankee headed for Ballardvale while we were at the Andover station. We drove to the Vale, through the mess outside the Abbot homestead, and waited at the Vale crossing for the Crawling Tortoise to arrive.

(38)—Scenes like this near the Abbot homestead were plentiful around town, particularly in the Summer street section where a maze of wires was hurtled to the ground.

(39)—Two workers cutting away at a tree early Thursday morning to make roads passable. Looking through is Jerry O'Connor.

(40)—When a tree fell outside St. Augustine's rectory, the pastor, Father Austin, came out and swung the ax. Many other private individuals all over town got out their axes and saws to remove the debris from their yards.

(41)—And here is a sight nearly every sightseer in Andover went to view, the old Abbot homestead, oldest house in Andover, more than two centuries old. Fortunately the oldest section of the house was not harmed materially, but the adjoining shed was crushed by a section of the huge front yard tree.

(42)—Everybody that saw this picture before we mounted it for our panel of pictures picked the thing up the wrong way and it's easy to see why. This is, or was, a shed adjoining a large barn on South Main street, on which appeared the huge lettering advertising Norman Hatch's riding stables.

Hurricane Aftermath

suffered when he fell over a fallen tree when walking down to Carmel road Wednesday night to rout out Gus Farragher whom the power company couldn't reach by 'phone to ask him to go on duty at the office. Joe Davis came in to check out after having been on duty since eight in the morning, most of which time was spent at Lincoln street routing Lawrence-bound traffic one-way to Lowell street. Win White reported in, most of his day having been spent at the other end of Lincoln street preventing Boston-bound traffic from making it two-way. George Waldie reported back, still able to grin after a day of shouting "Sharp Left to Andover Square" up at the corner of Lowell street and Shawsheen road.

All over the town similar scenes were being enacted. The evening let-up in traffic had made it possible to release some of the officers who had been working inhuman hours, and by that time they were sound asleep. The tree department workers were enjoying a very well-earned sleep—knowing that a small department in which an emergency seldom if ever occurs had been on the job immediately, and had for several days worked like Spartans to clear up the trees which the hurricane had laid low.

45 Hours Straight

Street by street the lights are being restored. Many residents, despite the many times they absent-mindedly pushed a button, turned on the radio or plugged in the washing-machine, accepted the lack of service without complaint, and there certainly was no cause for complaint.

These linesmen worked, immediately after the hurricane, a stretch of 45 hours without sleep! When asked Tuesday how long they worked each day, one linesman said, "Well, yesterday was our shortest day so far. We only worked 18 hours yesterday." Ice-men had big smiles on as electrically-refrigerated homes returned to the ice age again.

Prendergast Exhibit Opens At Art Gallery

An unusually colorful exhibition opens the fall season at the Addison Gallery of American Art, Phillips Academy. The exhibition, which will continue until November 6, presents the watercolors and oil paintings by Maurice Prendergast together with decorative panels and screens by his brother Charles. These two artists, long residents of the neighboring town of Winchester, and of Boston, have here their first New England exhibition, which has attained widespread attention in New York and Boston papers.

Maurice Prendergast (1859-1924), the elder and better known of the two brothers, painted in a gay, impressionistic manner the bright colors of the throngs on the beaches of the North Shore and in the parks of Boston. His watercolors are lively patterns of light and color and movement; his aim was not "Social Significance" but rather to discover from the scene before him its individual pattern of color and light. The sixty watercolors which the Addison Gallery shows in one room presents in an unbroken sequence the development of his style, from the subdued tones of "Low Tide, Beachmont", painted in 1897, to the riotous colors of "Salem Willows", painted in 1921. Oil paintings and monotypes by him are also included in the exhibition; due to lack of sufficient money, however, he painted little in oil until late in his life and it is on his watercolors that the final estimate of his art must rest.

Until recent years, Charles Prendergast (1869-) was known only as a craftsman, a maker of carved and gilded frames. The panels and screens presented in this exhibition show him to be an artist in his own right. Executed on a plaster ground on which the design is incised and the color and gold and silver leaf laid in, they have the brilliant decorative quality of a Persian miniature or an Italian Renaissance festival. In the panel entitled "The Central Park Zoo" he combines buildings, animals, and visitors in a single gay decorative design which has the effect of holiday and youth.

Lenders to the exhibition include Charles Prendergast; Van Wyck Brooks, who has contributed to the catalogue anecdotes of the life of Maurice Prendergast; and several museums and private collectors.

water mains, done in conjunction with the W. P. A.

This money is no doubt to be spent under the supervision of the Board of Public Works. Is this wise after some of the things that have come to light?

A short time ago the Selectmen of the town refused to O K a bill rendered to them for approval by the said Board of Public Works for repairs on the road scraper known as "Big Mick or Number 77." This machine the Board said was bought on the installment plan and without permission of the citizens of the town. Upon examination it was found that the town had at the instigation of the Board of Public Works paid to the owner of said "Big Mick" the magnificent sum of $1050, which sum the Selectmen have since collected from said owner and put into the town funds.

Another pertinent question for the Board of Public Works of a new dump truck and to turn in the old one as part payment. Evidence has been brought to light that two concerns offered $175 for said old truck; another offered $180 and received the sale. The price of the new truck complete was $1016. The town treasurer paid with the town's check $1016 and was told that there was no turn-in value for the old truck. What became of the $180 the successful bidder promised to pay for the turn-in price?

After these and various other things, is it wise for the citizens to entrust this money to the Board of Public Works?

Citizen and Member of the Taxpayers' Association

To the Editor:

If by any chance you need a little material for one of your well known editorials it could easily be gotten by observing the way the work of clearing the damage caused last night.

High school students and other youngsters are given preference for a chance to work when older and more able men, some married, are looking for a chance to earn needed money.

Isn't that a situation to be highly commended?

Hurricane Prices

It is very distressing to read in the daily papers about the profiteering that is going on in some parts of the stricken areas. As an independent service grocer, and knowing independent grocers as I do, I don't believe there is one that would stoop to such unethical and uncharitable practices.

As a matter of fact, we are able this week to offer you lower prices on 16 food items such as

There will not be a single item of food that will carry a higher price than before the Hurricane hit us.

Weddings

Peters-Stott

Miss Ruth Binkerd Stott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. H. Stott of Williams Hall, became the bride on Saturday afternoon of Lovett Chase Peters, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Peters of Amherst, at a ceremony conducted in Cochran Church by Rev. William Weston Patton of Glen Ridge, N. J., roommate of Mr. Stott at Amherst and usher at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Stott 25 years ago. Rev. A. Graham Baldwin assisted, and Dr. Carl Pfatteicher played the wedding march.

Miss Helen Binkerd Stott, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Barbara Reinhart of Andover, Harriett Cleveland of Greenville, S. C., Patricia Pierce of Brookline and Elizabeth Calder of Providence. Andrew Peters of Canton, N. Y., was best man for his brother.

The bride wore her mother's wedding dress of ivory silk over satin with a beautiful tulle veil and lace, part rose point lace worn by her mother and grandmother. Her sister wore a peacock blue taffeta frock and cap of flowers with a ribbon matching her dress. The bridesmaids wore deep blue taffeta frocks with bands of maroon velvet around the skirt and maroon velvet coronets trimmed with ostrich plumes. The bride carried a shower bouquet of bouvardia and ivory roses, while her attendants carried old-fashioned bouquets.

The ushers were Frederick Allis and George L. Follansbee of the faculty, Frederick A. Stott, Hervey Parke of Amherst, Russell W. Viering of West Hartford, Conn., and William S. C. Bulkeley of Hartford.

Thompson-Chase

Wearing a Colonial gown of white slipper satin made with a fitted bodice, Miss Alice Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield S. Chase of Canterbury street, became the bride of Lester MacKenzie Thompson, son of William Thompson of Walnut avenue at a pretty Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony at Christ church. The rector, Rev. Albert C. Morris, performed the ceremony in the chancel decorated with white hydrangeas and potted palms.

The bride's gown had a full skirt and terminated in a clover leaf train. Her finger-tip veil was of plain tulle, held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried gardenias and bouvardia.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Homer W. Hanscom of Westport, Conn., the former Miss Charlotte Chase, wore a Colonial gown of hyacinth quilted taffeta with a velvet girdle. With the two bridesmaids she wore a headdress of grapes and carried chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Miss Jean Thompson and Miss Clara Holland, wore corresponding quilted taffeta frocks in purple tones.

Dr. William G. Thompson, brother of the bridegroom, was his best man, and the ushers were: Gordon M. Thompson of Andover, brother of the bridegroom; Somerby N. Chase and Aviation Cadet Elwood N. Chase, 2nd, brothers of the bride; Homer W. Hanscom of Westport, Conn., Philip Clements and Malcolm Ruhl of Andover.

Sutcliffe-Richardson

Mrs. Wilhelmina Richardson and John Sutcliffe were united in marriage on Saturday evening at a ceremony held at the home of Rev. Herman C. Johnson on Cedar road. The attendants were Dorothy Sutcliffe and Warren Richardson. A large group of friends were present at the ceremony and at the wedding supper which followed in Tewksbury.
