CHRISTMAS SEALS

Help to Protect Your Home from Tuberculosis

Christmas Seals

To Go On Sale

On Friday the 1938 Christmas Seals will be before the public. These little seals bear the message "1938 Christmas Greetings" and pictures an old-fashioned home scene accompanied by the insignia of all Tuberculosis prevention work, the double barred cross.

Nearly 30,000 letters will be in the mail by midnight on Thanksgiving in order that the homes throughout the country may receive the Seals as early as possible the day the sale begins. Returns are to be made in Andover to Mrs. Henry S. Hopper, Chairman of the local Seal Sale Committee.

Every day in the United States, 200 people die of Tuberculosis. Thirty-three of these are between the ages of 15 and 25. As Christmas Seals help to save lives, the amount of funds raised during the 1938 campaign in Essex County, may help to determine whether or not the death rate will be lowered in this county in 1939. In Andover in 1937 there were reported 7 new cases of pulmonary and other forms of Tuberculosis with 2 deaths as compared with 5 new cases and 1 death reported in 1936. If Tuberculosis is discovered early, it is curable. Christmas Seals help to find new cases before they may infect others.

May Still Give To Local Red Cross

The Red Cross Roll Call ended yesterday, but all those who were not at home when the solicitor called are asked to send their donations to Philip Ripley, treasurer of the chapter, or to Stafford A. Lindsay, chairman of the Roll Call. The goal this year is $5000 which is the minimum amount necessary to carry on the work of caring for the needy, undernourished and sick.

Gallery Exhibit Described As Popularized Textbook Of Architecture

The arrangement of Museum exhibitions is becoming more and more one of the minor arts, and an increasingly complex one, adding to its function of the collection and display of art objects those of instruction and propaganda. Not only now must the placing and juxtaposition of the exhibits be carefully studied, but the writing of labels which used merely to state subjects and titles now has become a new literary form. In the present show of Modern Architecture at the Addison Gallery, the labelling has reached such proportions that there is almost more text to be read than pictures to be looked at. One cannot help wondering if it would not have been better to have taken the same material and make of it a richly illustrated book. Certainly it would be much easier to read such a book, seated in a comfortable chair, than to read the labels of this exhibition, standing up, or almost in some cases standing on one's head. To this frivolous criticism no doubt the answer is that the Labelled Exhibition is a form of teaching, of imparting information to many people, just as important as books or lectures—and that probably many more people, in a community that has an Art Gallery, will see the Exhibition and even read all the labels than would have bought and read the book.

At any rate, this show can be studied as a popularized Textbook of Modern Architecture in America. Architects' models, photographs, booksetting, and label literature, all contribute to it.

The modern architect, we read, is not so modern, but that he sets up as ideals for himself the three enumerated 2,000 years ago by Vitruvius, a Roman architect: Commodity, Firmness, and Delight. On the other hand, our occupations and desires differ from those of our forefathers, and therefore Vitruvius' basic principles must be applied in new ways.* All this is set out on boards of different colours—each colour could represent a chapter, if the Exhibition were made into a book. With the help of headlines and sub-headings and footnotes, all in different size type, and tiny photographs as illustrations, the various problems and the principles of Modern architecture are set out. There is the adaptation of houses and buildings to their use, which eliminates traditional arbitrary forms and symmetry, all useless ornament. Rhythm and the "flow of space" replace these outworn aesthetic rules. Then the house must form part of the landscape in which it is set, and the landscape must come into the house, be part of it. All this is made possible, they say, by new discoveries of engineering, sliding and disappearing walls and windows; and strong new materials make for simpler construction. When we have read all this, we may look at the large and really excellent photographs of modern

Academy Treasurer

Retires July 1

James C. Sawyer, treasurer of Phillips Academy since 1901, will retire at the end of this school year. Holder of the office longer than any previous treasurer, Mr. Sawyer has been in this important position during the years of the school's greatest expansion. He has seen the value of the school's property, through improvements and additions, increase manifold, and he has also seen the school's annual income and its heavy endowment expand rapidly. In considerable measure this expansion can be credited to him and to an academy 1890 classmate of his, Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, now headmaster emeritus. Also in the same class was the late Thomas Cochran, the school's greatest benefactor, and George B. Case, donor of the baseball cage.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS NEXT WEEK

Punchard Alumni

Plan Card Party

The annual card party of the Punchard Alumni Association will be held Wednesday evening, December 7, in the Memorial Gymnasium, with the following in charge: Madeleine Kimball, Sumner F. Ask Restocking

Of Foster's Pond

The selectmen voted Monday night to petition the Division of Fisheries and Game of the Department of Conservation for the restocking and regulation of fishing at Foster's pond. The action was preceded by a hearing at which several of those who have homes or camps at the pond objected to the lowering of the water in the pond, a matter over which the selectmen have no jurisdiction. Those who spoke were Miss Bessie P. Goldsmith, Edward A. Barnes, Robert Crocket, Andrew G. Robinson, Mrs. Alexander Crocket, Willis Chick, and James Grimes.

About 90 Will Forfeit Plates

About 90 local residents will have their registrations suspended the first of next week by the Registry of Motor Vehicles for non-payment of excise taxes. Wednesday noon 91 out of 2606 billed had not paid even after the demand from the local collector and the notice of probable suspension from the Registry.

The names of 44 other non-payers were sent to the Registry Wednesday night. They were included in a commitment of 210 billed on October 10 and due November 10. Thirty days after receiving their notice from the Registry their registration will also be suspended unless they have paid their bills by this time.

Claims Unauthorized

Seizure Of Land

A strenuous protest was voiced to the Board of Selectmen this week by a woman who claimed that a W. P. A. road project had taken away some of her land from her without her permission or knowledge. She told the selectmen that she had been away for some time, and when she came out to see the property in which she has an interest at the corner of Andover street and Dascomb road, she found that a corner of it had been taken for road-widening purposes.

The selectmen informed her that it was out of their jurisdiction and referred her to the Board of Public Works. The selectmen in road-widening cases on request of the B. P. W. frequently secure releases from the abuttor, but according to the board, no request was made for securing these releases in this case.

To Take Action

Monday On Licenses

The selectmen will hold a public hearing on next Monday evening to act on the twenty applications received for liquor licenses. The hearing will open at 7:30.

Christmas Bazaar

On Next Friday

The Christmas Bazaar of The Shawsheen Village Woman's Club, under the general direction of Mrs. H. Garrison Holt, will be held Friday, December 2, at 2 in Balmoral Hall. There will be greens and plants and Christmas decorations, holiday gifts, bakery, candy, and grabs for sale. There will also be a silver tea.

Concert To Be Held
At Abbot Saturday

Esther May Barrett, soprano, and Nicholas Slonimsky, pianist, will appear in concert on Saturday evening, November 26, at Davis Hall at 8. Miss Barrett has been called "The Poetic Songstress." A native of Virginia, she has been singing publicly since she was five years old, and when she recently made her recital debut in New York, Olin Downes, of the New York Times, acclaimed her voice as one of "fresh and lovely quality," another critic spoke of her as a "personable young lady and one possessed of a voice of unusual beauty and purity"; while still another praised her for the "intelligence and musical understanding in her singing." Mr. Slonimsky is a distinguished pianist as well as a composer, conductor, lecturer and writer. He founded the Chamber Orchestra of Boston in 1927 and appeared as guest conductor in Paris, Berlin, Budapest, Havana, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Hollywood and Denver. One of his songs is "My Little Pool," widely performed by Roland Hayes. He has given courses in modern music and other subjects, and has written an encyclopedic survey entitled "Music Since 1900," as well as a series of articles on music for children, for the Christian Science Monitor.

Admission to the public will be one dollar. The program will be held in Davis Hall at 8 P. M.

THE ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

TELEPHONE ANDOVER 1250-R

How To Stay in Office

Two years ago at this time President Roosevelt decided that he had had a mandate from the people after his sweeping victory at the polls, and acting on that supposed mandate he went ahead on such schemes as the Supreme court reorganization. Now two years later the situation has changed, and it has been found that the supposedly large W. P. A. vote was not large enough to offset the wave of criticism of certain features of the administration.

Now the President should take this also as a mandate. It is pretty certain that there are comparatively few people who feel that the W. P. A. should be done away with, but it is just as certain that there is a large majority who feel that the abuses which exist under the present set-up should be eliminated. Fundamentally, the W. P. A. is a splendid plan, and it is hoped that when good times come the plan will be followed as Herbert Hoover first suggested when he was secretary of commerce years ago. Today's policy is to spend a lot on public works during bad times; Hoover's suggestion was to spend a lot during bad times, but to defer all non-necessary governmental projects during good times, thus saving money enough to finance the bad time projects. This would eliminate in a measure the huge deficit under which we are now laboring.

But to get back to present abuses: first of all, only people who in good times would be working should be given jobs on public works. It is safe to say that some of the men on the W. P. A. are getting more days' pay now than they do in good times; they don't want to work, and can't get any pay from private industry, but in bad times, without working any more, they can get pay from the government.

Then, secondly, the men should be made to work for their money just as they do when private industry hires them in good times. Unfortunately, most of the men do want to work, but the loafers on the projects either deride them for working for fear that they'd be shown up, or the men don't feel that they should exert themselves too much when others are getting away with it—and you can't blame them too much for that. Either projects should be done by private contractors, or foremen should be chosen who will make the men work, and the men responsible for the choosing of the foremen should see to it that they do this. Politicians should remember that it wasn't the W. P. A. vote that put them into office; it was the anti-abuse vote that put others out of office. Firing, just as it does in private industry, should come to those who refuse to work; they should realize that they can get pay if and only if they want to work for it.

Thirdly, to offset the objection that the men aren't capable of doing hard work with a pick and shovel, the administration should study the whole situation to see if in any way projects can be conceived which will enable these men to continue on with work somewhat similar to their own. There's no reason why every man out of work should be forced to work with a pick and shovel. For those who are able to do it, all right; for those who can't, it's criminal to make them. Here, for instance, our chief trouble is with textile unemployment, and every weaver, spinner, carder and whatnot who is laid off is given a pick and shovel. Meanwhile, the needy go around in tatters. Why can't the government use some of this money that they are throwing away on useless pick and shovel projects instead of buying clothes for the needy, using cloth bought on a bid basis from mills in sections where unemployment is heavy, from mills which will be willing to take back to work their most needy spinners, etc. Some such plan as this, if found feasible, would certainly eliminate the demoralization which now comes upon W. P. A. men. They would have to work, since they would be in private industry, and they wouldn't suffer the depressing effects of the feeling that they are on relief.

Most of all, politics in every form should be eliminated entirely from the administration of the W. P. A. Politicians will find that they stay in office longer if this is done.

Thomas Richardson Vennerbeck and Richard Stanley Vennerbeck, students at Moses Brown School, are at home for the Thanksgiving holidays. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Vennerbeck, Aberdeen Apartments.

In Memoriam

Mrs. Percy Crosby

She was called the "Sunshine of the ward" at the hospital where she was ill for so many weeks, for even while in pain she had a cheery smile and word for those who visited her.

She thought her life rather lowly, and was surprised when she was ill, to find she had so many friends. Always willing to help others, even when she was hardly able, she gave unstintingly of her time and energy, and did those everyday tasks so needful, but which are not often appreciated, until the one doing them is gone.

Mrs. Crosby will be missed by a large circle of friends besides her immediate family, for she did "the daily round, the common task" in a way that brought her every day "nearer God."

Evening Groups

Rapidly Filling

An enrollment even higher than that of last year at this time gives evidence that the Andover Evening Study Groups will be again popular meeting places for adults during the coming winter evenings. Both profit and pleasure are to be found in these informal gatherings of people in this community who are interested in the same subject and eager to extend their knowledge and their appreciation of it.

As some of the courses, notably Effective Speaking I and Studio Art, are rapidly approaching their full quota of students, those interested in these and other courses which must be kept small are urged by the Directors of the Program to register at an early date in order to avoid disappointment. Even the lecture courses are limited by the seating capacity of the rooms in which they are held, so early enrolment for them, too, is advisable.

A reduction in tuition charges for all those registering on or before December 12, 1938, provides another reason for early registration. For all such registrations one dollar may be deducted from the total fee. Other details about how to become enrolled in these courses are to be found in the pamphlets about the Andover Evening Study Groups which may be had free of charge from the libraries in Andover, North Andover, or Lawrence; from the Andover National Bank; or from the Lawrence Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A.

An entirely new thing this year is the course called Exercises for Health, conducted by Mr. Frank DiClementi. This will offer instruction and exercises helpful in reducing or building up the body and leading towards better posture, breathing and muscle co-ordination. The members will also practice methods of relaxation of value in preventing fatigue and sleeplessness. Early in the course, posture photographs will be taken of each member of the group, and exercise charts will be given out so that each person may supplement the course with home work if he so desires. Each session will close with volley-ball or other games for those who wish to participate. There will be two sections of this course, each limited to twenty men. Any man may, by payment of the extra course fee, enroll for both sections.

Townsmania

"GRATE HURRICANE"

How many of you remember the great hurricane? Most of you will just think a few weeks back, but mute remembrance of another was found recently by Mrs. McClellan of Orchard street. She was glancing through an old book in which her great grand-relatives had inscribed various family matters, births, marriages, etc., when she came across the following entry: "The grate hurricane in the town of Woodstock August 23 Do. 1786 which reached from So. Brimfield to Thillingly and carried all before it—houses, barns, timber, fruit, trees, etc." But at least they didn't lose their electricity or telephones, did they?

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our kind neighbors and friends for their thought for us and our loved one during Mrs. Crosby's illness, and their sympathy expressed, at her death, by words of comfort and beautiful flowers.

Especially do we thank Police Officers David Gillespie and William Shaw for their willingness to donate lifeblood in the hope of saving her life.

Signed: Percy Crosby, husband Robert Crosby and Marjorie Crosby, children.

Asks Information On Ex-Service Men

After twenty months of extensive work the World War Tablet Committee has about completed its work in compiling the names of Andover citizens who served in the World War. It has well over 500 names to go on a bronze tablet to be placed in the Memorial Auditorium. It has tried to obtain the name of every one who now has an Honorable Discharge from the United States Army, Navy, or Marines, or from any of the Allied Forces, and who was a resident of the Town of Andover prior to the beginning of the war.

They would like to have some information about the following ex-service men: George Edwards, Richard F. Harding, Emmanuel Martin, Richard J. Manion, Robert Mills, William or Clifford Shaub, Harry G. Neale, William Smith, and Robert S. Tucker.

It is their opinion that the above became residents of this town after the war, so any information the townspeople can give them will be greatly appreciated.

The Committee: Howell F. Shepard, Clifford W. Dunnells, J. Everett Collins, Harold S. Cates, Herbert P. Carter, Robert V. Deyermond, Stafford A. Lindsay.

Tells Story Of Circling Globe In Small Schooner

Captain Irving Johnson of the "Yankee" was the speaker at the annual guest night of the November Club Monday evening. The story of circling the globe for fun in a 92 foot schooner, which bore besides its Captain, a crew of boys and girls, Mrs. Johnson and baby Arthur, was delightfully told and beautifully illustrated with colored moving pictures. The audience would have been glad to weigh anchor and hoist sail immediately for a similar voyage.

Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor's first lecture on "History in the Making" was enthusiastically attended. The second lecture of the series comes on Wednesday morning, December 7, at 9:45.

The Dramatic Department is holding its first meeting of the year this afternoon with Mrs. Leon A. Field, 5 Wolcott Ave.

The next meeting of the Art Department will come on Monday, November 28, at 3 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Tyler Carlton, 33 Summer St.

The Literature Department will meet with Mrs. Cleveland Gil-crest, 56 Whittier St., on Wednesday afternoon, November 30th.

The next regular meeting of the November Club, on December 5th, will be under the auspices of the Literature Department. Mrs. M. E. Gutterson will speak on "Book Panarama." It should be a particularly helpful meeting for those who intend to buy books for Christmas gifts.

Goldsmith Speakers Chosen At Punchard

The speakers for the Goldsmith Prize-Speaking Contest to be held in the Memorial Auditorium, Friday evening, December 16, were chosen recently at Punchard. One boy and one girl will represent each of the three classes as follows: Marjorie Higgins, Arthur Brindle, seniors; Aldo Grieco, Lester Alleruzzo, juniors; Doris Bourdelais, Robert Costello, sophomores.

Drop Investigation Of Postal Cards

Federal authorities decided to drop this week the investigation into the mailing of a reported 25 cards bearing the cartoon on the Lawrence W. P. A. which appeared over a month ago in the Townsman

The investigation revealed that 500 were ordered by a local person, and of these some were passed out to friends for mailing purposes, being called back when postal authorities questioned their mailability. The person who ordered them appeared before U. S. assistant attorney Jackson Holtz in Boston Monday and told the story, following which Mr. Holtz ordered the investigation halted. No decision was made by federal authorities as to whether or not the cards were libelous.

Postal authorities now are interested in only one phase of the story, and that is the identity of someone who in some way obtained possession of a few of the cards and put them into the mail with a pencilled address.

houses. We start with the pioneer European examples, throughout the various countries we are shown how our three Vitruvian principles (now translated into modern jargon), Functional Design, Solid Construction, and Beauty unhampered by tradition or prejudice, are made to serve the needs of Tubercular patients, makers of Crispbread, problem children, and Penguins. Certainly the Penguins' "Machine for Living" fulfills Vitruvius' requisite of Delight.

The most interesting part of the exhibition is the collection of photographs, plans, and descriptions of private dwelling houses built in this country by modern architects. The problems of the site, the requirements of the families, the way in which these were met and what materials were used, are given. I find these houses for the most part practical and pleasing, especially those by Lezcaze, Stonorov, and Neutra. Neutra's house in Palm Springs especially fulfills the requisite of the union of the house with the outdoors. In the photographs the walls and windows of the house seem frames for the desert landscape, the uninterrupted surfaces of the stone house seem pleasant in texture and must take beautiful shadows of the trees around. All the country houses have sheltered places to sit in the open air, half in, half out, of the house.

It is also easy to criticize details: the overhanging of Frank Lloyd Wright's houses must darken the rooms too much; the "flow of space," sometimes entails a lack of privacy, the effort for simplification and economy eliminates too many things we have been used to need. But we must not criticize the architect when he is merely serving an eccentric patron. If a man feels he must enjoy the climate of North Carolina in New York State and therefore requires a house with a double set of walls—or if another insists on living suspended over a waterfall, the method by which the architect enables them to gratify these wishes are only admirable. Simplicity, cleanness, openness—these seem to me the admirable qualities of the new houses. How very near to the old New England farmhouses some of these new houses are—at least in outdoor appearance. Walter Gropius, coming to this country from Germany, said that the truly functional architecture was that of the Colonial farms. No doubt this resemblance occurs because modern architects share with the early settlers of this region an austere dislike of useless ornament and a desire to build for usefulness in a serene, but active, life.—Clare Hayes

*LeCorbusier's definition of a house is also quoted; he calls it a "Machine to live in."
