Last Chance To See

Lights At Seminary

Tomorrow night will be the last night that the lights will be on at the St. Francis seminary on River road in West Andover. This year's lights are even more beautiful than they were last year, and the Crib inside is larger and finer than that of last year. There are 7000 lights of various colors over the edifice. Thousands of motorists from all over the state have come to see the beautiful sight, with cars arriving at the rate of 600 per hour at some times. Andover residents wishing to see the building tonight should preferably drive up Lowell street to Silk square, just beyond the Tewksbury line. Turn right there, and this road if followed straight out will take you to River road near the seminary. Alternate routes are: turn right at the West Center school off Lowell street, and proceed to River road either via Chandler road all the way or cutting off onto North street, good paving all the way, turning left onto River road; or go into South Lawrence, turn left off South Broadway at Andover street (first traffic lights in South Lawrence), proceed along Andover street which becomes River road in Andover. Best travel conditions prevail on the first-mentioned route.

FORTY-YEAR-OLD DESKS REMOVED

STATE INCOME TAX MAN HERE WEDNESDAY

A representative of the state income tax division will be at the town house from 9 to 1 and from 2 to 4 on Wednesday to give advice on the making out of returns.

Announce Annual Election Schedule

February second is the last day for filing nomination papers and February 10 the last for filing special articles, town clerk Winslow announced yesterday. Only 55 signatures are required for 1939 nomination papers, the old requirement having been cut in half.

Meetings of the board of registrars for the registration of new voters are scheduled as follows:

Feb. 7, 7-9 p.m., Precinct 4, Grange Hall, West Parish; Feb. 9, 7-9 p.m., Precinct 3, Administration Bldg., Shawsheen Village; Feb. 11, 7-9 p.m., Precinct 2, Town House; Feb. 15, 7-9 p.m., Precinct 5, Old School House, Ballardvale; Feb. 17, 7-9 p.m., Precinct 6, Faculty Club, School street; Feb. 21, Noon to 10 p.m., Precinct 1, Town House.

Gives Interesting Talk Before Garden Club

H. Stuart Ortloff of New York gave the first in a series of three lectures before the Garden club on Tuesday. His subject, "Design of Small Property," was treated in an enthusiastic and practical manner which bodes well for the future of the series. In February he will speak on "Planting for Color and Succession of Bloom," and in March on "Garden Maintenance."

West Andover Citizens Voice Opposition To Closing Of Two Schools

The school board may close two West Andover schools, but it will have a fight on its hands to do it, a fight that won't end until the final town meeting vote next March. This much was made certain at two meetings this week when West Andoverites presented strong objections to the proposal. No action has been taken by the school board as yet, with a meeting of the finance and advisory committee to be held shortly to prepare a recommendation for the general committee.

Last Thursday about 60 residents attended a meeting held at the West Church vestry, and with about 40 left at the end of the meeting, a vote was taken on the proposal, it being unanimously against it. The concrete result of the meeting was the appointment of a committee to present the group's feelings to the school committee which held its regular meeting on Tuesday night. Substantially the same arguments were presented at both places.

Representing the group at the school board meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fieldhouse, William A. Trow, Mrs. Arthur Maddox, William F. Barron, and John Collins. Also present was Matthew Burns,

Many Contests Expected for Annual Town Election

Selectmen Appoint Assistant Assessors

Assistant assessors, who for the first time this year under a new law adopted by the historic 1938 legislature will have additional duties thrust upon them in the line of registration work, have been appointed by the selectmen, as follows: Precinct 1, Charles S. Cook, 101 Elm street; Precinct 2, Arthur M. Graham, 38 Whittier street; Precinct 3, Edith H. Kitchin, 17 Balmoral street; Precinct 4, Myrtle D. McQuesten, Chandler road; Precinct 5, John V. Doyle, Holt road; Precinct 6, Percy R. Holt, 6 Morton street.

Mr. Cook, Mr. Graham and Mr. Doyle were former assistant assessors. They have already begun their work.

Mrs. Gulick To Talk At Shawsheen Meeting

The Shawsheen Village Woman's Club will meet Monday evening in Balmoral Hall. The Literary Committee, with Miss Vera Thurston as chairman, will present Mrs. Eleanor Brooks Gulick in "Book Panorama." There will be a musical program.

Contests in several offices at the March annual elections are already promised as the 1939 political season gets under way.

This year the term of Roy E. Hardy expires on the board of selectmen, and for the past two months there have been rumors about possible candidates, mainly centering around P. LeRoy Wilson, John M. Erving and Gordon R. Cannon. Mr. Wilson is known to have been seriously considering the move. Mr. Erving, who has one more year to serve on the school board, has not announced his intention of running for selectman officially as yet, and the rumor may have no basis at all. Three years ago, when he made his first campaign for school committee, he assisted the successful Hardy campaign. The rumors about Mr. Cannon invariably mention his large vote in the recent campaign for representative.

So You're Going To Run for Office?

You've been thinking perhaps during the past year that you'd like to run for office. Maybe you feel that you'd like to be in a position to serve the town; maybe you'd like to be in the limelight; possibly you feel that you're the one that can get "those scoundrels out of office" and run the department the way it should be run.

It's a laudable ambition, and it's too bad that more of our excellent citizens don't find time in which to serve the town in this way. It really shouldn't take up much of any board's time, barring of course the selectmen, because most of the detail in the department is taken care of by the employed staff, with the board only necessary to give broad supervision over policy and expenditure. So if you think that you can give up a little time now and then, why not run?

But first, what qualifications do you have? In your campaign literature some of you of course will burst right out with the fact that you were born in Andover—it's nice, but not necessary. Some adopted son of Andover will make a better board member than you who are a native if he has some of the other qualifications that you are a little shy of. Then there's education—you really ought to have some. Back in the old days when public schooling was not so prevalent as it is now, you could read a book or two and then be superior to your fellow man. Not so today.

But is that all? No, even an Andover native with a Ph.D. from Oxford wouldn't be the ideal of ideals as a candidate. You must have something else. Honesty, of course, is necessary, honesty toward yourself and toward your town—but then we assume you have that. You know what you really ought to have, in abundant quantities? Common sense, call it good old plain horse sense if you want to. You could read Munro on Municipal Government, you could even go back through Plato and Machiavelli (though he's in disrepute at present)—but frankly, all this theoretical knowledge won't make you as good a board member as the fellow who perhaps says "dem tings," but who, when he says "dem tings," has got a good foundation of common sense behind "dem."

And then there's another thing; you must be able to "take it." Yes, you'll find if you're elected, that you'll have a lot to take. You have a boss, a corporate organization in which some 6000 voters have a say—and you'd better listen and like it. You'll be elected by some 1800 voters, and there will be some of those who feel that since they gave you 1/1800th of your strength they have a right to tell you what to do. Sure, listen to them; that's part of your job. They'll criticize you, harshly, some of them. You'll learn things about your official and your private life that you never knew before. You'll find out many, many reasons why you voted such-and-such a way on a certain issue, reasons which you hadn't even thought of. You'll be told that if you don't vote so-and-so, "I and my family, and there's six of us" won't vote for you again. Yes, you have to take it. Listen to them, sift the unjustifiable criticism from the justifiable, and there'll be some of the latter, too, and then act accordingly. But do what your conscience dictates; close your eyes to the year ahead when you will come up for re-election, and vote the way you said you would when you took your oath of office, for the best interests of the whole town.

So if you've got a little time, some education, a lot of common sense and a good, strong chin, go ahead and run. You'll make good at it.

Is Andover Morally Slipping?

Formerly no town in all this Commonwealth had climbed to a level as high in intellectual and moral rectitude as Andover. It was known both nationally and internationally as a "School Town." Here young men and young women flocked from nearly every section of America to equip themselves successfully to cope with life's problems; here was located the most renowned Theological Seminary, whose graduates were sought to fill noted pulpits; here the oldest and best equipped female academy was established; here was Phillips Academy, second to none, either in this country or in Europe, that sent forth its students into every corner of our land; here were nine churches whose weekly message of love to God and goodwill to man called into exercise the deep religious instincts of its people.

Hence, both intellectually, morally and spiritually, Andover towered high in public esteem. So proud was she of her heritage and so jealous of her good name that she successfully balked the attempt made only a few years ago to establish in her midst an eleemosynary institution to house the feeble-minded. She feared lest its reputation, in time, would supplant its traditional reputation as a "School Town" and possibly prove a menace to the purity of its large student body. She was determined to prevent the incoming of any institution or line of business that tended to lower her standard of excellence.

Such was the moral stamina of Andover a few short years ago. What is it today? The contrast is worthy of serious thought. To be sure, she still has her fine schools and nine churches and in outward furnishings shows improvement over former years, but in inward moral furnishings she is seen to be steadily slipping toward a lower level. In proof of this, note the following facts: Following the mandate of the majority vote at our last town meeting the Selectmen have recently issued sixteen (16) licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquor, and this in spite of its schools and churches, and in spite of disclosures by our police and local press of much drunkenness and indecency consequent upon past licenses. The granting of even one such license a few years ago would have kindled a fire of wrath.

But not rum-selling alone is made legal and respectable (?) but gambling in the form of lotteries is looked upon as a legitimate part of our town life. Boys and girls from 10 to 12 years of age are sent from house to house to sell lottery tickets. When I asked of our little solicitor: "Did you know this is gambling and that gambling is wrong?" his reply was: "Yes, I know it is wrong, but everybody is doing it," and went to the next house.

Besides this house to house sale of lottery tickets every one who pays an entrance fee of 25 or 35 cents is given a chance to win from $25 to $75 in hard cash. One elderly woman I know thus won $200. These doings no longer occasion any shock to the moral sensibilities of our people; they are looked upon as an accepted part of our town life. Therefore, I ask in all sincerity, does it not seem that with nine churches, two academies and sixty-four public teachers, backed by a willing press Andover can muster enough of moral fibre to tighten up her brakes?

What About 1939? To The Editor:

We are now closing the Chapter in the Book of History which records the events of the year 1938, and we face the responsibility of writing in full the Chapter for the year 1939.

The year 1938 did not contain as many favorable events as we would have wished; during the first six months we had a serious business problem. We all know about it so there is no reason to relate the grave details here. During the last six months a change has occurred. We are again on the road to business recovery and the question of how far this recovery is likely to go in 1939 is not only far-reaching but definitely rests on the shoulders of each of us whether we are employers or employees, landlords or tenants, little business men or big business men, workers or non-workers.

One of the most important ways we citizens of Andover can help to produce more confidence on the part of the ordinary local business man is by reducing taxes. The essence of business confidence is faith in the future and business confidence is confidence in the prospects for profits. If the Federal government, state, city or town governments increase taxes so that there no longer is a reasonable profit in doing business, the business man is going to lose interest and confidence in the future. What then? Who will take his place? Under such conditions who would wish to take his place? With that necessary confidence gone he will not enlarge his plant, build homes, hire more employees, purchase more commodities or spend money on improvements and repairs. Such a condition will affect everyone irrespective of their standing in a community.

FIELDSTONES

will be closed
until FEBRUARY 16

On the other hand we can and must reduce our tax rate, we can help materially in increasing the confidence of the business man, we can reduce our valuations if necessary, we can dispense with unnecessary expenses in the running of town affairs. This cannot be done wholly by the town officials. It must also be done by each and every voter at town meeting. We have a very imposing list of town officials who are conscientious, businesslike, and try to do their duty thoroughly and economically. Do they have the full cooperation of the citizens in their tasks?

Suppose we have in 1939 a tax rate not in excess of $25 per thousand and no increase in individual valuations. Could we not expect property owners to have a better outlook on life and thus be in a position to spend more money? Could we not expect many respectable persons now living in other communities to move to Andover and build? This in turn would increase the total valuation, increase the funds in the town treasury and reduce still further the tax rate and taxes for the citizens of Andover.

Clarence G. Scholtz

Each year about fifty people have registered during the opening week and opportunity will again be provided for registration and for payment of dues while the courses are being held. Such centers will be established on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in Peabody House and on Monday evenings in Samuel F. B. Morse Hall, from 7:15 to 8:45 during the first two weeks of the courses.

WOMAN'S UNION OPEN HOUSE

On Wednesday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 the Woman's Union of the South church will hold its annual open house. This is especially designed to make newcomers acquainted with the church people, but its purpose is also to give all the women of the church a chance to know each other better.

Trudi Schoop Comes From Brilliant Family

Trudi Schoop, who brings her group of dancers to George Washington Auditorium on Tuesday evening, January 17, was one of four children born to the editor of the "Zuricher Zeitung"; Max became a painter and designed costumes and scenery for his sister's ballets; Paul composed the brilliant scores for their accompaniment; Hedi, an actress, married

Victor Hollander, composer, now with Paramount in Hollywood; and Trudi herself.

When she was three, Trudi would be the one to invent the games and stories to amuse her sister and brothers. She would dance for them, or if they were occupied elsewhere, for the trees and the sky. Always she felt impelled to express some inner feeling, and always even in childhood she preferred to express it in movement rather than words.

Her father who indulged her every wish, sent her to Munich to study acting with the celebrated Revy. Tow-haired Trudi, in her ungainly teens, could barely control her feet and body when she walked upon the rehearsal stage. She was a determined girl, however, and it was not long before she was receiving important roles in the studio performances. Her predilection for pantomime caused her to change her mind suddenly. She went home.

Without a whit of training, she began to compose and execute choreographic designs for "A Buttercup Opening its Petals," "A Crow Hopping in a Cornfield" and "A Beautiful Snake Charmer." She stirred her brothers and sister to frantic activity, writing the music, designing and painting the scenery and sewing the costumes.

Goldsmith Speaking On Next Friday

The annual Goldsmith Prize-Speaking Contest will be held in the Memorial Auditorium Friday evening, January 13, at eight o'clock. The contest was postponed from December 16, when the two senior contestants were suddenly taken ill.

A boy and a girl will represent each of the three Punchard classes, as follows: Marjorie Higgins, Arthur Brindle, seniors; Alda Grieco, Lester Alleruzzo, juniors; Doris Bourdelais, Robert Costello, sophomores.

Andover Boys Win Honors At Academy

Three Andover boys made the second honor list at Phillips Academy during the past term. Twenty-five percent of the upper middle and twenty-five percent of the juniors who made honors were from Andover. Edmond E. Hammond, Jr., and Donald B. Cole were among the eight upper middle, and Lincoln Clark was one of the four juniors.

General Welfare Club To Elect

Plans are to be made for a large meeting to be held in the town hall on Sunday, January 29, when speakers from Boston will be present. The new officers will be installed at this meeting.

Residents Protest

Don't Want Transportation

Mr. Trow expressed a fear that the removal of the schools would retard the real estate development in that section. Then he remarked that "all are against transporting the children." It was pointed out at this time by members of the school board that of the 51 pupils now going to West Center 40 are transported. Later a member of the delegation remarked that some of the children in this group of 40 are youngsters who live nearer the North School but prefer to go to West Center because the bus passes their homes.

Mr. Trow brought up the question of health, stating that the Shawsheen school was unfortunately constructed since very little sunlight comes in through the classroom windows. Property-owners and parents alike in West Andover are against the plan, he said. Later he spoke of the difficulty of having a bus make the steep grade on Cuba street to the Indian Ridge school.

With Mr. Barron, Mr. Trow brought up the question of a discrepancy in the estimated saving, which would cut it down from $4234 to a little under $3600. This was a transportation item. It is being investigated by the subcommittee, but the chances are that there was that $670 discrepancy in the estimate. Mr. Barron also spoke of the proposed bus schedule, stating that in one place a driver was to operate 2.6 miles in two minutes. This obvious error is also being checked by the subcommittee.

Speaking at the meeting last Thursday were Mrs. Albert A. Hardy, Saul Shtrumpfman, Mr. Barron, Carl Stevens, Mrs. Alma Shiers, Mr. and Mrs. Fieldhouse, Raymond Munroe, Nelson Dennis, Charles Kent, Harry Wright, Mr. Trow, Chester Whitney, and Herbert Merrick.

Contests Expected

For the first time since 1936 the position of town clerk will be on the block again, and since it means a steady three year job for someone, the chances are that town clerk George H. Winslow may have some opposition, possibly from the large group that ran for tax collector last year. In the latter position James Christie's first term is expiring, and he may have some opponents, although his large lead over a big field a year ago may cut down the venturesome opposition.

There will be probably nothing serious in the way of competition for moderator Fred Butler or treasurer Thaxter Eaton.

On the Board of Public Works the terms of William D. McIntyre and J. Henry Playdon expire. There is very likely to be a battle here.

On the school committee the terms of Mrs. George H. Musk, Arthur R. Lewis and Elmer J. Grover are expiring. Mrs. Musk having been elected last year to fill an unexpired term. Both Mrs. Musk and Mr. Lewis will run again, but Mr. Grover has notified town clerk Winslow not to include his name on the nomination sheet. Today he notified his fellow members on the school board of his decision, stating that when he took over the Townsman last May he decided not to run again since he wished to have an unbiased view toward all boards in his editorial writing. There would have been opposition here, but this move will leave the field wide open.

There is a possibility of opposition to chairman Franklin H.

Stacey of the health board. None of any importance is expected against Dr. Claude M. Fuess on the library trustees or Walter Tomlinson on the planning board. Tree Warden G. Richard Abbott is likely to find some competition.

Shawsheen Heights Has Had Remarkable Growth

George Cairns had a lot of land a couple of years ago, between Corbett street and William street extension. Today on that lot of land there are 25 homes, all completely built, all purchased, all occupied. And there are more going up.

Shawsheen Heights has truly had a remarkable growth. By year's end in 1937 seven houses had been erected. This past year 18 more went up, all nicely laid out, spic and span structures that rival many of the small-home developments in other towns. A number of streets have already been cut through, and more are on their way. The town meeting will hear of this development, for there are privately-constructed water mains to be bought by the town, streets to be accepted, etc. And the income from 25 homes will prove far more than the extra town expense involved.

Those who have located on the Heights to date are: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Henrick, 1 George street, from Lowell; Mr. and Mrs. James French, 7 George street, from Andover; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burgess, 6 George street, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garland, 8 George street, from Shawsheen; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robinson, 4 George street, from Shawsheen; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith, 5 George street, from Lawrence; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pomaleau, 2 George street, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. William Grey, 3 George street, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fisher, 8 Yale road, from So. Lawrence; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Colmer, 7 Yale road, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Walker, 5 Yale road, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Foley, 3 Yale road, from Methuen;

Mr. and Mrs. John Ebhart, 1 Yale road, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Fallon, 3 Princeton road, from So. Lawrence; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Babb, 5 Princeton road, from Shawsheen; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duckett, 10 Yale road, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. John Daly, 9 Yale road, from Andover; Mr. and Mrs. George Culver, 11 Yale road, from Shawsheen; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Griffin, 6 Dartmouth road, from Haverhill; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tagny, 7 Dartmouth road, from Methuen; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cairns, 10 George street, from Shawsheen; Mr. and Mrs. George Cairns, 9 George street, from Shawsheen; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smart, 4 Yale road, from Andover; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Parks, 2 Yale road, from Lawrence.

MOTHERS' CLUB MEETS

Excellent reports on Christmas welfare work were presented at the Mothers' club meeting yesterday. Plans were made for a beano party to be held next Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ralph Manning, Maple Court, and for a matinee whist at the home of Mrs. Walter Downs, South Main street, January 31.

The Motor Truck club of Massachusetts has agreed to extend its whole-hearted co-operation in an attempt to cut down the number of trucks going through the center of the town instead of around the by-pass. Babcock arranged for a meeting between the local highway safety committee and the club officials recently, and at that time the officials promised that they would do everything possible. If the traffic still continues heavy, however, it is probable that the senator at the request of the local committee will reintroduce the rerouting bill in the legislature.

Library To Require Increased Appropriations

"It is plain that for 1939 we shall need an increased appropriation," Miss Edna Brown, librarian, stated Tuesday in her annual report to the library trustees. The past year she said, has shown an unprecedented and unforeseen increase in the use of the library, over 16 percent more than 1937, and this makes practically all library costs higher, such as binding, mending, cataloguing, shelf work, etc. It was necessary in the past year to increase the staff by the addition of Miss Nancy E. Babcock.

Miss Brown's report, dwelling on every phase of the library problem, follows:

To the Trustees of the Memorial Hall Library:

I herewith present the report of the Library for the twelve months ending December 31, 1938.

The past year has shown an extraordinary and unforeseen increase in the use of the library. We circulated for home use during 1938, 99,440 books, 13,754 more than during 1937. This is at the rate of 9.9 per capita of the town's population. We have 5195 borrowers, 51 percent of Andover's inhabitants.

To explain this marked increase is not easy. Unemployment does not account for it, for most of our borrowers are now employed and we have far fewer unoccupied people in the reading-room. The increase includes the senior library, the junior room, and the Ballardvale branch, and embraces readers of every age and every type.

The most satisfactory explanation is the one which we hope to be the truth; that the town has become more conscious of its public library. All through the depression the library did its best to provide books for self-education, for professional help, for students, for mere amusement,—tried to keep up public morale, and in this we believe the libraries of the nation have been second only to the agencies of charity. The result is more demands made upon us, steadily more and more people finding out what a public library can mean to its community.

Library service means more than issuing books, answering questions and being generally helpful. It means making readers feel so at home that they instinctively think of "our" library; that they do not ask "Do you have a book on Diesel engines?" but "Do we have a book on Diesel power?"

And our public is becoming serious-minded. In days when even the children are taught economics, it is important for everyone to understand something of political and racial conditions. We are continually asked for books on national and European politics, and in these history-making times, can hardly keep up with the rapidly-shifting policies of nations.

It is not true that the books we buy are above the heads of ordinary people. They are bought because they are asked for, because working men and women request material upon definite subjects and the library heeds their requests. During the year we have bought books upon American and foreign governments, civilization, problems of democracy, church union, machine woodworking, electricity, ventilation, mechanical refrigeration, insulation, engineering, psychology, choral reading, aircraft, plastics, antiques—to list all would be to fill pages—but in each case, for a definite use and because of a particular request. We even have in the loan file waiting-lists for books such as "Mathematics for the Million," "Navigation,"

"The Thinking Body," "Your Voice Personality," as well as for many new biographies and books of travel.

No, it is not true that the books we buy are over the heads of ordinary people. No readers would use a small town public library to the extent of borrowing nearly 100,000 books in one year unless they found there the kind of books they actually want to read, and which they do read with appreciation and understanding.

Increased circulation means increased work in every department of the library. This year shows the handling of nearly 200,000 books coming in and out over the loan desk. It means more time spent in keeping shelves in order. Ours being open to the public, a book in the wrong place is a book temporarily lost. It means more mending of books and much more re-binding of volumes. Our bills for binding outran our budget for that item before the year was half over. Increased use means more questions to be answered and more time spent in looking up information for borrowers. It means more cards and library supplies of every kind. It means an increase in executive work and in planning so that things may go smoothly.

April of 1938 saw the high water mark of use for all time of 9669 books taken for home use. Every succeeding month saw usage much above the corresponding period for 1937, and the pressure upon a too-small staff increased until it became necessary to add another full-time assistant. On October 1st, Miss Nancy E. Babcock, a graduate of the Simmons College School of Library Science, joined the staff and has since been on steady duty in the junior room.

The work of the junior room continues to expand. During the school year Miss Robinson has given an hour and a half daily to the junior high school library. Could it be managed, the school would like much more of her time. Books are lent from the junior room to the junior high school library, and to all the grade schools, both public and parochial, as well as classroom libraries for individual teachers. The use made of these deposits is surprisingly large and entirely justifies the care spent in their selection and the time expended in attending to them. One deposit lent to the fourth grade of the John Dove School showed on return, that its 20 books had been read 177 times. Is it any wonder that binding bills are increasing and that the need for new books in the junior room remains constant?

(The balance of Miss Brown's report will be included in next week's issue.)

Protesting against the proposed street railway project last Friday at a special meeting in the town hall were D. Y. Comstock, W. F. Draper, Peter D. Smith, and D. C. Wells. Reference was made at times to the fear that the steel railway might bring in rowdies from Lawrence. One man stated that the railway "could not pay in the summer, except by running of excursion trains on the Sabbath, which was to be deprecated by citizens who wanted that as a day of rest."

Jeremiah Leary lost one of his iron-gray horses on Thursday from colic.

Twenty-five Years Ago

The Massachusetts legislature for 1914 was convened on Wednesday, and S. H. Bailey, Andover's representative, took his seat and

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Chapin have announced the engagement of their daughter, Isabel Stillman Chapin to J. Avery Gould of this town.

It was decided at the school board meeting to ask for the sum of $2500 to be used for making additions to the North School house, the present building being too small to satisfactorily accommodate the large and continually growing school.
