B. P. W. Purchases

Five New Trucks

The Board of Public Works concluded a long period of truck investigation on Friday night when it decided to purchase four Diamond T trucks and one Dodge, the former from J. W. McCarthy of Lawrence and the latter from J. W. Robinson Co. The bid on the Diamond T's was $5905 and on the Dodge $1595, which totals the exact amount of the appropriation.

There were many bids received, but the board did not award the contract to the lowest bidder since it felt that the town would be better off financially in the long run to spend a little more now. Two of the members spent an entire week checking on trucks. Street departments in other communities were questioned and private truck owners were also contacted. The Commercial Car Journal, with its unbiased statistics on weights, dimensions, strengths, quality of material, etc., was consulted freely. Service and maintenance was also considered, and it was found that the dealer had a good supply of parts which could be obtained at a 20 percent reduction. The truck finally chosen was found to be a heavier unit, with a double rear end. It is estimated that $250 per truck was saved over the private price.

Other contracts have also been awarded for the season's supply of pipe, crushed stone, etc. In all cases except the meters, where the present standard meter was repurchased, the low bid was taken.

Three Hour Service

At Academy Chapel

A service centered around the Seven Words of Jesus from the Cross will be held at the Cochran Church at Phillips Academy on Good Friday. This will be a three-hour service beginning at 12 o'clock noon. Seven of the Andover ministers are participating and members of all the churches are invited to attend. There will be opportunity for those who cannot remain for the full three hours to come and leave at half hour intervals. The order of service is given below:

Organ Prelude; Reading of the Crucifixion Story, Rev. W. W. Marzahn; Organ Meditation; A Little Litany followed by Prayers, Rev. A. Graham Baldwin; Hymn, "O Sacred Head Now Wounded."

Meditation on: The First Word, "Father Forgive Them for They Know not What they Do," Rev. Donald Savage; The Second Word, "Woman behold thy son; friend behold thy mother," Rev. Herman Johnson; The Third Word, "My God, my God why hast thou forsaken me?" Rev. Frederick B. Noss; The Fourth Word, "I thirst," Rev. Claude Butterfield; The Fifth Word, "This day shalt thou be with me in Paradise," Rev. A. Graham Baldwin; The Sixth Word, "It is finished," Rev. A. Graham Baldwin; The Seventh Word, "Into thy hands I commend my spirit," Rev. Cornelis Heyn; Benediction.

Salvation Army Appeal Passes Half-way Mark

On Tuesday afternoon those in charge of the local Salvation Army Appeal received the fine contribution of $363.63 from the American Woolen company employees at the Shawsheen Mills and the Administration building in the village.

The Salvation Army Annual Maintenance Appeal Drive which opened March 22 in Andover with a quota set for $1,500 is well past the half-way mark, there being to date reported $798.18, according to Louis S. Finger, Campaign Treasurer for Andover.

Adjutant Charles Johnston in charge of the campaign and the Army work in Greater Lawrence reported that there are quite a number to be contacted still; also that merchants, small business establishments, factories, etc., have yet to be visited.

Apart from that a 1,500 letter appeal recently sent out will further help to bring the amount nearer the total. General Chairman Edward A. Anderson hopes that all workers will contact prospects within the next few days, and that all those receiving appeal letters will contribute immediately in order that all returns may be known and the quota realized.

Mr. Anderson further said that if everyone contributed with the same spirit as a dear old lady who approached him at the bank, handing him an amount and saying: "I haven't much to give, but I wouldn't pass up the Army, so here it is," that he was quite confident success would crown the effort.

Board Appoints

Cadet Teachers

A number of teachers and employees were reappointed and two new cadet teachers were named by the school board Tuesday night as the illness of two members made necessary the shunting aside of the budgetary problem of how to save $4,000 as required by town meeting. Chairman Frederick C. Smith and Harold T. Houston were unable to attend.

Miss Gwen Armitage and Miss Eleanor Raidy are the two new cadets, the former for the high school and the latter probably to replace Miss Irene Carson in the elementary grades. Miss Carson, a Newburyport girl, was appointed a short while ago to fill out the rest of the year. Miss Armitage was valedictorian of her class at Punchard and she stands high in her class at Smith college from which she will graduate in June. Miss Raidy, also a high-ranking student at Punchard, will graduate from Salem State Teachers' college in June.

The cadet teacher matter was one of the bones of contention between the finance committee and the school board before and at town meeting, the finance committee feeling that they were not necessary and the school board feeling that they were. Two Taxpayers' association representatives who examined the budget also felt that this was an unnecessary item.

The finance and advisory committee presented a report on the budget but action was deferred until the next meeting of the full board, which may be a special meeting. A request for a hearing on the proposed splitting of a grade at the Shawsheen school was

Stainer's "Crucifixion" Will Be Presented At Christ Church Friday

Of all the Passion-tide cantatas none is as universally known and loved as Sir John Stainer's "Crucifixion," a meditation on the Sacred Passion of the Holy Redeemer, to be presented at Christ Church tomorrow evening at 8. The text consists of various excerpts from the Gospels with selections from several religious poems arranged by the composer.

Stainer was organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, during the last part of the 19th century. After he composed the "Crucifixion" the vast cathedral would be crowded to the doors on Good Friday afternoon with devout worshippers eager to hear once again the deeply moving drama of Calvary expressed in such simple and understandable terms.

The cantata will be rendered by the full choir of men and boys with special soloists.

Award Contract For Altering Town Hall

Arthur Steinert of Union street was on Monday night awarded the contract for remodeling the second floor of the town hall for inclusion of the new B. P. W. offices. He was the low bidder at $1050, the next being $1125. The appropriation for this purpose was $1200.

There has been considerable talk about the possibility of remodeling the rest of the town hall for the use of the Legion. At present the town rents quarters at $600 annually.

Elliott Named To Pond Committee

Gordon B. Elliott of Holt road was named to the Pumps Pond committee at the meeting of the selectmen on Monday evening. Reappointed were George G. Brown and Edward J. Lefebvre.

No changes were made in the other appointments made annually by the selectmen.

Lawrence's Mayor, Legislative Leader, Talk Here Tonight

Lawrence's Mayor and the State Legislature's speaker will vie for attention tonight at two local banquets. Mayor Griffin will address the Square and Compass club and Representative Christian Herter will speak at the annual banquet of the Young Men's Republican club, the latter to be held at the November club and the former at the club's own rooms.

The three local selectmen, Howell Shepard, Roy E. Hardy and J. Everett Collins, will serve as a reception committee to the Mayor.

PURCHASE NEW POLICE CAR

If you see a local police officer passing you by in a car these days with his nose stuck in the air, don't get mad. It's the car that he's conceited about. Last week the contract for the new police car was awarded to the Shea Motor Sales of Shawsheen village at a price of $855 less $390 trade-in value.

Boys' Club Loses
By One-Point Edge

The Andover Boys' club had to be satisfied with fourth place in the Greater Lawrence basketball tourney last Saturday when a last-quarter rally just fell short of overtaking an early lead, with St. Augustine's of Lawrence winning 24-23. Trailing 16 to 7 at the half, the local team, with Fettes and McKee outstanding on the offense, narrowed down the margin during the last two periods, but time was called with but one point separating the two teams.

Tommy Lynn Given
Medal For Heroism

Tommy Lynn, former well-known local young man, but now of Geneva, Ill., has recently been awarded at the direction of the President a Soldier's Medal in recognition of the heroism he displayed in saving 18 persons from death by fire or drowning during the flood at Williamsport, Pa., on March 18, 1936. He was serving as a sergeant in Company K, 109th Infantry, National Guard. An engraved certificate was also presented him.

Mrs. Francis Bergstrom of Pynchard avenue is under observation at the Phillips House in Boston.

The Art Of Walt Disney And Mickey Mouse
Comes To Addison Art Gallery

Beginning on Saturday and continuing until May 10, the Addison Gallery at Phillips Academy is showing "The Art of Walt Disney," a survey of the technical processes and design problems in the making of the animated cartoon. Through the co-operation of the Disney Studios and of Professor R. D. Feild of Harvard, it has been possible to trace in this exhibition for the first time the exciting story of the development of this new art which has seized popular fancy throughout the world. While the thousands of preliminary drawings are only intended as steps in the development of the final animated picture, many are of great interest in themselves. In several instances, in spite of Walt Disney's insistence that they are not works of art, the final celluloids which are photographed for the screen version have been acquired by museums and private collectors.

While many people are inclined to think that the Disney pictures are entirely the product of the genius of one individual—Walt Disney—the Addison Gallery exhibition indicates quite otherwise. Over six hundred people contribute to the making of an animated picture and many of them play an important part in its plan and execution. To quote one commentator, "It is the most completely socialized industry in this respect I have ever seen." The inspiration and organizing genius of Walt Disney and of his individual directors, however, is equally essential to the working of this American organization. From the original story, through the various stages of layout, background, and animation, the exhibition leads us through the entire course of the making of an animated picture and one cannot see it without obtaining a more complete understanding of the art of an animated picture, its present accomplishments and future possibilities.

In an adjoining gallery at the Andover museum, an exhibition of "The Bauhaus, 1919-1928," is being presented to coincide with the Disney exhibition. This celebrated experimental art school of post-war Germany was a pioneer in modern design and its products embodied a wide range of material from book binding to architecture. The exhibition, selected from the comprehensive showing at the Museum of Modern Art, New York, in January, offers a New England audience its first opportunity to see the early work of such celebrated designers and artists as Walter Gropius, Marcel Breuer, Josef Albers, Lyonel Feininger, and Moholy-Nagy. The spread of modernism in recent years leaves us with an occasional feeling that we have seen some of the items, especially the architecture and furniture, before. It is inspiring and possibly prophetic for the future, however, to discover that such widespread creative activity was taking place in Germany before it was submerged by the political ideology of Herr Hitler.

IN MEMORIAM

Rev. Mr. Monroe As I Knew Him

I think I can truly say that I knew Mr. Monroe more intimately than he was known by anyone outside his immediate family, for nearly every day during five consecutive years we spent at least two hours in each other's company. Such daily contact uncovered to me more and more his innermost soul. Mr. Monroe was not a man to carry his heart upon his sleeve. One would at first acquaintance doubtless regard him as possessing a dignified reticence, as a sympathetic listener rather than a conversationalist, but a further acquaintance would be sure to disclose a confiding nature—a glad willingness to share with others his rich experiences and varied knowledge. Certainly such experiences and knowledge he cordially shared with me.

And were I asked to name one outstanding and overmastering quality, I would unhesitatingly single out his spiritual mindedness, for here, I believe, lies the source and spring of his many admirable qualities that bound with bands of steel the affection of all persons privileged to know him.

This rare quality never consciously got itself into expression. I doubt if Mr. Monroe knew himself to possess it, for he was one of the humblest of men, always regarding others better than himself; yet it pervaded his entire speech and action and never failed to create a purified and inspiring atmosphere.

While it was true that no topic of conversation so quickly captured his interest and kindled his emotions as those topics that centered around the person of Christ, nevertheless he was not wanting in interest for those departments of knowledge lying more remote from the Bible. For instance: We spent several months in the field of philosophy reviewing its salient outlines from Plato to William James. Several months more we spent in the field of history and literature. But science as such utterly failed to glue his interest. He cared to see the world not through the eye of science but through a spiritualized vision as the expression of the thought of God. Science has much to offer religion by way of a scaffolding and reinforcement of faith, but so vital and personal was Mr. Monroe's communing with God that he felt no need of any exterior support.

But Mr. Monroe was not so much a lover of books as a lover of persons. His heart went out toward the youth and his eye kindled as he told of his joy in collecting funds and building a clubhouse for them in North Andover, his last parish. He loved the sailor lads and established a home for them in East Boston, while pastor there. He loved the men in the city slums—the "down and outers." I have known him to share his clothing and blankets with them, and to the day of his death send money to aid the McCall Mission in New York.

Mr. Monroe loved the shut-ins and bed-ridden. His visits to them were frequent. At times I accompanied him and never did he leave them before offering prayer in their behalf. All these varied forms of activity found their urge and delight from motives generated in his Christian life. Hence, if true greatness consists in Christian character, Mr. Monroe was truly great.

Obituaries

Richard H. Wheeler

Andover's flags dropped again to half-mast Saturday when death took another of Andover's veterans, Richard H. Wheeler, of Ballardvale road. He served two years overseas with the 71st coast artillery. On returning he became a member of the firm of Derby, Barnes and Champney, architects in Boston.

Born in Antrim, N. H., 47 years ago, he had lived here for the past eight years. He attended Newton High and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Doris Wheeler, and two sons, Robert and Gordon.

Rev. H. Usher Monro

The subject of this notice was born the 12th of January, 1854, the son of Dr. George F. and Emily A. Monro. His boyhood and youth were spent in Bristol, R. I., with relatives of his father. In 1873, having chosen the ministry as his life work, he began his studies in Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio. After a five years' course there, he returned to Rhode Island and received his appointment as a candidate for Holy Orders by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Clark of that Diocese.

In September, 1878, he entered the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal church in Philadelphia, Penna. Having finished the three year course and received his theological degree, he was graduated in June, 1881, and on the same day was ordained Deacon by Bishop Clark in Philadelphia. In 1882 he was ordained Presbyter by Bishop Clark in Providence. In 1881 he was appointed Assistant Minister of the Church of the Redeemer in Providence, R. I. In 1882 he was elected rector of the Church of the Saviour and remained in charge of the same until 1888, when he was called to the Diocese of Massachusetts to become the Assistant Minister of St. John's Church, Boston Highlands. In 1889 Mr. Monro was elected rector of St. John's Church, East Boston. While serving this parish, he was appointed by Bishop Paddock to begin the work for a Seamen's Chapel in East Boston which resulted finally in the building of St. Mary's Church and Parish House for Sailors. Mr. Monro resigned from St. John's Church in 1890, on account of impaired health, and was elected rector of St. Mary's Church, Newton Lower Falls, Mass., where he served from 1890 until 1901. In 1902 he was elected rector of St. Paul's Church, North Andover, and served this parish 17 years. He resigned in 1919 on account of disability, and removed to North Scituate, where he lived in retirement until the death of his wife in 1925. Then Mr. Monro moved to Andover where he lived with his son, late school committee member Claxton Monro, for a number of years.

Surviving him are two daughters, Miss Dorothy Monro and Miss Edith Monro, and three grandsons, John Usher Monro, Claxton Monro, Jr., and Sutton Monro.

THE ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

"Easter Christians"

There's a very fine group of men here in town who are looking forward to Sunday with considerable anticipation. They have been preparing for weeks, lining up casts for cantatas, supervising the arranging of special musical programs, directing the flower arrangements and taking care of innumerable details in order that on Sunday you may observe in the proper spirit one of the most important days in the history of Christianity.

They are expecting more of you to come to church on Sunday than usual, an expectation that mingles some pleasant anticipation with a bit of a regret that you don't come much more frequently. They may feel perhaps that you are just "Easter Christians," more interested in coming to church because it's the best place of a Sunday morning to show off your new clothes than in coming because you want to "experience within yourselves that resurrection of hope, courage and power which comes from contact with the living Christ," in Episcopal Bishop Tucker's words.

We have a good time in this modern world of ours. We can listen to the radio, we can go to the movies, we can indulge in innumerable other means of entertaining ourselves. But somehow or other when Sunday rolls around, we're too tired to bother to go to church. And if we do go, we probably contribute a nickel or so to the collection—to the support of the church and to the aid of its work at home and in the mission fields. That's all we can afford. Imagine what an enormous amount of worthwhile work the churches could do if everyone pledged that he would contribute to the church each week the same amount as he has been able to afford for recreation.

We're having such a good time, and we're getting to know so much that we're becoming quite blasé about religion. We know for instance that we can be in one place and through the use of certain waves in the ether we can be heard thousands of miles away. Man did that; why talk about anything more important than man? Of course man isn't quite sure how the waves got there in the first place for him to use. He knows too how he came on the earth; he can describe how all the natal processes work. But he can't tell who made them work that way. No, we don't know everything.

Let's make Easter a resurrection of Andover's church life this year. Let's not only go to church this Sunday; let's go every Sunday, and in that way and by our generous contributions let us show that we appreciate the fact that Andover has a grand set of clergymen whose ideals are ideals which we should adopt for ours.

SOCCER SUNDAY

The local soccer season reopens Sunday at three with a game on the playstead pitch between Methuen and the Andover team.

Siftings

It's April. Better let a garage inspect your car before an inspector inspects it. Better get a sticker before you get stuck.

Pretty soon the races at Rockingham will start, which is welcome news to those whose home-town spirit makes them prefer to lose their money nearer home.

It's been winter one day and spring the next now for several weeks. Sorry, but by actual calculation Easter comes in winter this year.

BAPTISM CANDIDATES AT MEETING TONIGHT

The names of the candidates for Easter Baptism will be presented at the special meeting of the Baptist church at 7:45 tonight. A Communion service will be conducted by the Rev. Samuel Overstreet and the deacons of the church. The Baptist choir will sing.

Candidates for baptism are asked to meet the membership committee at 7 o'clock in the church parlors.

Men's Club To Send Boy To Conference

At the last meeting of the Men's Club Tuesday night, it was decided that the organization would send one boy from the Andover School Boy patrol to the conference in Washington and to the World's Fair.

A full rehearsal for the minstrel show, which is to be held in the Memorial Auditorium April 14, will take place in the club rooms tonight.

Promote Peck, Shepard, Sorota

Ray A. Shepard, popular football and track coach at Phillips academy, has relinquished the former duties to take over the post of athletic director, it was announced this week. The change brings with it the elevation of Stephen Sorota, assistant football coach for the past few years, to the post of head coach.

Equally as important is the promotion of Montville E. Peck as physical director to succeed Dr. Peirson S. Page, who is retiring in June. Mr. Peck has been assistant director since 1915, and in that time he has never missed any of his school appointments.

Whists Planned By Mothers' Club

Plans for whist parties to be held this month and next were completed at the Mothers' Club meeting yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Peter Stewart will sponsor one at her home, 3 Temple Place, next Thursday, and Mrs. R. B. Manning will give a beano party at her home, 9 Maple Court, April 25. The dates of the May parties will be announced later.

In observance of Mothers' Day, the May meeting will be a roll call and all mothers are asked to be present or to send a tribute to be read. A pie social followed the meeting and refreshments were served by Mrs. Timothy McCarthy, Mrs. Thomas Platt, and Mrs. Thomas Brucato. Mrs. Annie Davis presided.

INJURED IN MAINE

Four Andover residents were slightly injured Sunday when their car skidded in Portland, Me. They were George O. Lewis, Mrs. Lewis, Marjorie Higgins, and Mrs. Mary Clark. Their car was badly damaged and they returned to Andover by train.

Miss Harsey together with three members of the faculty enjoyed a twelve day trip to Bermuda, Saturday, at 8:15. Maeve MacMurrough will give a program of character sketches.

Sunday, at 7:30, the traditional Easter service will be held. It is hoped that many friends of the school will join in the service and worship.

Talks To Woman's Club On News Gathering

Presidents and press chairmen of Women's Clubs of the 10th District were well represented at Presidents' Night at the Shawsheen Village Woman's Club Monday night. Mrs. William W. Kurth presided and Mrs. Alice Cole Dodge, Tenth District Director, spoke on meetings to be held in April.

Mrs. Garfield S. Chase, press chairman, introduced the speaker, Alton Hall Blackington in his illustrated talk on "Romance of News Gathering." Mr. Blackington spoke of many things of interest, from his arrival that morning from a West Indies cruise aboard a German boat, back to the September hurricane, all illustrated by color photography.

Mrs. Joseph T. Gagne and her committee are making plans for the annual meeting, May 1st, when there will be election of officers and committee reports.

FINISHES MURAL

Lois Di Stefani, well-known local artist and interior decorator, has just finished an excellent mural at St. Anne's Protectors in Lawrence.

Canadian Mountie To Address Club

Sydney R. Montague will present his thrilling story "Under Northern Lights" at the next meeting of the November Club on Monday afternoon at three o'clock. Mr. Montague was for almost six years a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and was selected for duty in the eastern Arctic, in Baffinland, with ten other men. Montague and one other were the only ones to return.

After two and a half years in the Arctic living with Eskimos, learning their customs and their language, he is qualified to make these little brown men seem real to us. In the constant battle against the elements he had to adopt their manner of living to survive. Within a couple of hundred miles from the North Pole, he had to patrol from the coast of Labrador to the northernmost habitation of man.

Sydney Montague brings no movies, no slides with his lecture, for his stories are packed full of adventure and excitement that never could be illustrated, but his exhibit far surpasses in interest what any pictures could ever be. When he tells of the Eskimo dress, he produces the clothing itself. As he tells of experiences of the trail with refractory dog-teams that must be driven on and on lest all perish, but he does not lash an imaginary team by tongue, he takes a long snarling whip and makes it snap and bite on the platform as if he were on the trail. He demonstrates the perfect control the dog-team driver has of his whip, for the art is to nip the dog's fear but seldom his body.

If you have already heard him, you will want to hear him again. If you never have had the pleasure, then you have an unprecedented treat in store for you, for he has been claimed a sensation.

Shopics by the Townswoman

Only two more shopping days until Easter and still she blows. It looks like the revival of the race between the tortoise and the hare, represented by the Easter bunny and Spring. We don't even need warm weather on our side for with color as a password, we'll not only look like spring but we'll feel like it too.

Interest focuses on jewelry this spring and consequently on the "biggest little jewelry store in the state." John H. Grecco is featuring unusual crosses, lockets and pendants that are especially smart against colorful prints with plain necklines. He has them in solid gold and less expensive ones, gold plated and gold filled, for $1.00 up.

Suits have gone colorful this year, too. In Russem's at 295 Essex street, Lawrence, you'll find all colors and types from the classic tailors to the casual plaids and tweeds. Three piece suits come in several shades and tones with full box coats over sleekly fitting jackets. Skirts follow the latest flair for fullness and jackets possess that rare quality of keeping within the bounds of fashion and still have that careful detail and tailoring that makes them stand out. For smartness and individuality, you'll want to buy your suit in Russem's and be first in the Easter Parade.

Tempting show cases and a mouth-watering smell attract attention to Sally's Food Shop (next to Woolworth's) where the smart townswomen shop for breads and pastries that taste as good as they look. Easter candies, hand-dipped eggs and brightly wrapped favors, will make childish eyes widen with joy and their special Easter cakes make a gift that the whole family will enjoy. Order one now with colorful holiday trimmings.

Although flowers are really a topic for a men's page, Shopics will accomplish the same purpose if you prop it in front of his plate at dinner tonight. Then he'll remember to drop into Dantos Bros. tomorrow and pick out your Easter lily. It would also be a good time to order some of their very delicious ice cream, made right on the premises, for Sunday's dinner.

Mary Louise Dickinson of Shaw-sheen Village is enjoying a spring recess from Pembroke College.

Brighten up your home for Easter too. With a new couch, exquisitely upholstered, or one of those restful balloon chairs, your living room will take on new character and comfort. Rowland Luce at 53 Park street has recently received some new ones that possess that rare combination of daintiness and durability, and his couches are priced as low as $22.50. You'll just have to sit in one once to be convinced.

Have you heard that Rod Hill is moving? Within the next few weeks he expects to be located in the ex-Ben Franklin store, next to Miller's.

When your imagination is running rampant with petunia shades and soft greens, let X-L dispose of your cleansing worries. Delicate shades become practical and long-lived under their careful handling, and you can wear them as nonchalantly as you do your infallible navy. Just call X-L (tel. 1319). The name describes the service.

So with plenty of Easter chic and no April fooling, let's give bad weather a smart send off

BOSTON SYMPHONY MUSICIANS TO PRESENT CONCERT FOR CHRIST CHURCH

For the past few weeks committees have been working under Mrs. E. Dean Walen, as general chairman, to make the concert to be given at The Andover Memorial Auditorium one of the most interesting and enjoyable concerts of the season. Mrs. Angus, Dr. Pfatteicher Present Brahms' "Requiem"

On Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock in the Cochran Chapel, Mrs. Angus of Andover, well known in musical circles for her piano-forte playing, collaborated with Dr. Pfatteicher of Phillips academy in a splendid piano and organ version of Brahms' famed German Requiem.

This very melodious masterwork of Johannes Brahms should not properly be called a requiem, for it does not follow the ordinary pattern of the requiem mass. It bears no connection to the church and is a musical setting of seven texts extracted from the Bible. According to Kalbeck, the first sketches of the Requiem must have been written as early as 1861, at Hamburg. This would at any rate dispose of the generally accepted view that the death of Brahms' mother was the direct occasion of its composition. On the contrary, Kalbeck produces convincing evidence that the German Requiem was "intended as a last great funeral rite for Robert Schumann," Brahms' close friend. He did not, however, begin active composition on the work until the death of his mother, in 1865; it was completed in 1868, when a fifth movement was inserted between what are now the fourth and sixth movements. In spirit the Brahms' Requiem is rather a consolation to the living than an assurance of peace for the dead.

Mrs. Angus and Dr. Pfatteicher played this difficult but very melodious masterpiece with the same precision and finesse that was employed in the presentation of the Bach "Art of the Fugue" a few months ago for the local musical societies of Andover. This was the first time that the two performers have played this work since 1928 when it was an annual feature.

It might be interesting to note that the Requiem will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra with the Harvard-Radcliffe Choral Society at the annual Pension Fund Concert in Symphony Hall, Boston, on the night of April 25.

SYMPHONY TO PLAY

Mrs. Wallace E. Brimer, Mr. and Mrs. Stafford A. Lindsay, Mr. and Mrs. Lester M. Thompson, Miss Elizabeth Eades, Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Rutter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Ashton, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Granville A. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. E. Barton Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Leland, Jr., Mrs. Harry H. Noyes, Mrs. Eben A. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. George M. May, Mrs. Julius Rockwell, Mrs. Archie N. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dalton.

Mr. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the orchestra which is composed of prominent members of the Boston Symphony, and although the program will be what is termed a popular one, it will, because of its conductor and the members of the orchestra, be one of highest artistry.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF LIFE IN ANDOVER

North Andover Police Chief Engineers Escape From Andover Jail

The queerest things were happening in Andover Friday night. They all revolved about a "40 'n' 8" initiation, called for more than historical reasons a "wreck." There were Legionnaires from all over the county here to welcome several new members, four of them from Andover: Stafford Lindsay, Joseph Remmes, Garrison Holt and Arthur Coleman.

There were several mysteries which developed during the night—and they're still mysteries. The first was: how did Andover's commander, Tom Dea, get locked in the local jail with the initiates—"Poor Goofs" they call them. Tom brought a group of candidates over, and Sergeant Saunders and selectman Shepard obligingly opened the cells for Tom. But no one seems to know just how the outside door was locked after Tom got inside. Some of the Legionnaires thought that maybe Shep had clicked the lock—but you know Shep wouldn't do that.

The second mystery was: where did the key go after the lock had been snapped? Chief of Police Al McKee of North Andover was in charge of the initiation and into the police station he strolled: "Come on, Len; we've got to get those fellows out of there." "What fellas cha mean?" queried our innocent sergeant. "C'mon, Len, quit the foolin'; we're ready to work on 'em." "Who?" "Now listen here, you—, Len, give us the key, will yuh?" "What key's that, Al?" "The key to the cell, you big—." "Oh, the cell. Where did that key go, I wonder? Shep, do you remember seeing the key to the cell around lately?" "No, Len, I wouldn't have any idea where it is. Funny how it gets lost, isn't it?"

The third mystery was: with the key missing, how did North Andover's chief manage to "spring" the whole gang of prisoners out of our jail? There was a long period of silence in the corridor, and pretty soon Al dropped in to say: "So long, Len; don't bother about the keys; the boys are all out." After a short period of time, Len unravelled Len and peered in the cell. The doors were all tightly locked, but there wasn't a single occupant!

The fourth mystery was a picture. Some of the initiates and Tom Dea felt sure that a couple of pictures had been taken of them in jail. In fact, they even said that one of the pictures showed initiate Staff Lindsay behind bars and grease paint, and the other, Tom puffing away at a cigarette. But the Townsman photographer and the rest of the Townsman staff could not quite remember the taking of any pictures. Maybe they'll turn up somewhere sometime, who knows?

Where's Hotel Andover?

Where's Hotel Andover? No Hotel Andover? There must be, because if a bath towel can have "HOTEL ANDOVER" on it, it stands to reason that there must be a "Hotel Andover."

You've never seen a towel like that? Didn't you read your copy of LIFE magazine very carefully last Friday? You recall the four reproductions of the cover of two weeks ago showing nude statuary to be displayed at the World's Fair, reproductions which had been done by readers to see what the statues would look like dressed? Did you look carefully at the towels which were draped around the statues in one of them? The towel to the right was the conventional "Pullman" but the one on the left was labeled: "Hotel Andover."

When are people around Boston going to realize that North Andover and Andover are separate communities? It seems this young man in Cambridge, from the tone of his letter, felt peeved at the Puritanical attitude of some of our New England towns, and so he did his drapery work. North Andover's chief Al McKee did ban the magazine with the statuary cover a few weeks back, but Andover's George Dane didn't. Did you know that even the Boston newspapers don't know the difference between the two towns? Some of them called up to ask about Andover's banning the magazine.

Water Succeeds Where School Board Failed

Water is more powerful than the school board. The latter tried to close up the North school, but the town wouldn't let it. The former just walked right into the cellar Sunday, extinguished the oil burner, and until it was evicted late Monday, the school was closed.

Townsmania

Fog on the Reading road one night recently confused a driver entering Andover to such an extent that he went under the over-pass on the left side. He slowed down almost to a stop to take time to be thankful he hadn't tried the middle.

"Believe it or not. I was not at this meeting." Penned on a clipping from the Daytona Beach (Florida) Evening News sent to us was this brief note. The clipping was headed: "T. P. A. Out For A Budget Cut," and the story told of a five-hour meeting of the Taxpayers' Association which finally decided to urge that the city manager's budget be reduced $94,000 to $300,000—that's a cut, isn't it?

Oh, yes—the clipping came from the president of Andover's association.

"It's publicity, of course, but it's not true," says John Deyermond, Jr., Andover's football-playing student at Syracuse, of an article recently appearing in a Syracuse paper. Seems, so goes the story, that John was given a ride one very rainy night by a man. "Some night, isn't it?" said John. "Mp," said the man. Two miles later on, John tried again: "Boy, is it raining!" "Mp," said the man. Three miles later on, John tried again: "Well, I don't mind the rain particularly." No "Mp" this time; said the man, opening the car door: "If you don't like the rain, get out and walk." Next time, remember, John, no talkee, no walkee.

Many people claim that strikes force businesses out of business. This recent Rhode Island truck strike, however, made one local firm stay in business. The Ben Franklin store due to close its doors the middle of last week had to remain open a few extra days because it was moving to Providence, and nothing was moving in Providence.

To Hold Rummage Sale For Patrol

Shawsheen women are working diligently to raise sufficient funds to send all the Shawsheen School patrol boys to Washington and the World's Fair. The bakery sale held in March was very successful and Mrs. Harold P. Hathaway and Mrs. L. Carleton Conner, who took orders for homemade baked beans, had so many customers that they had to turn some away.

A rummage sale is being planned for April 14, to be held at 579 Broadway opposite the Arlington Mills in Lawrence. Mrs. L. C. Conner is receiving the donations for the sale.

Delivery Truck Smashed Against Wall

Something described by physicians as possibly a "spell" of some sort caused this light delivery truck to smash up against the stone wall at Arden on North Main street yesterday afternoon at three. The driver of the truck, a Lawrence man, received a cut on his forehead. He told police that he was travelling north in the new third lane when he veered left to avoid hitting a parked car. He struck the fender, however, and the truck out of control swung across the street and into the wall. He stated that after hitting the fender he saw black.

Social Conference Held At Academy

Over 150 representatives of social service agencies from the Merrimack valley, including Community Chests, governmental and semi-private agencies, gathered last Thursday at Phillips academy for the third annual Valley conference on Social Work. In the morning, workers of the Family Welfare Society, Children's Aid Society, and Children's hospital of Boston demonstrated the handling of family problems of the needy.

The luncheon speaker was John Pearson, New England director of the Social Security board, who after explaining the workings of the security law, mentioned that eventually the old age laws might be amended so that grants are given on the basis of the size of the family rather than on previous earnings.

In the afternoon there were a number of forum discussions as follows: "WPA Projects in Merrimack Valley," "Group Work Agencies and the National Youth Movement" and "Programs of Medical Care." The speakers, introduced in turn by Judge Fenton, were Miss Isabel Brown of the Intake and Certification Department of the WPA. Unemployment Division; Miss Eleanor Hayward, assistant regional director on WPA Women's Projects; Augustine Walsh of Lawrence, and Frank Corbett of Lowell, WPA Recreational Projects; John J. Griffin, district director for National Youth Administration; Charles Bowman, reemployment service and unemployment compensation; Dr. Michael Tighe of the Lowell Community Health Council.
