Medal Presented

Punchard Student

The annual Punchard Memorial Day exercises were held in the Memorial auditorium, Monday, during the utility period. Mr. Hamblin and Mr. Sanborn represented the school, while commander Dea and Stafford A. Lindsay represented the American Legion. The exercises were opened by the singing of "America," with Miss Sweeney at the piano. Mr. Stevens read the Scriptures and Mr. Hamblin led the assembly in the Lord's prayer. The group sang "The Star Spangled Banner" following this.

Mr. Hamblin then stated that he felt that we could not have Memorial exercises without the reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, and that each year it seemed to have more meaning than ever before. Thomas Davies then read the address. After this reading, Mr. Hamblin said that he had read Senator Vandenberg's speech that he delivered at Gettysburg last year and that he thought it would make a very appropriate address at this time. This was delivered by Warren Richardson.

Mr. Lindsay was then introduced and he told his audience that he was astonished at the number of people that do not know the words to "America" and he was glad to see and hear it sung at these exercises. He reminded them that the youth of the nation must carry on the traditional spirit of Memorial Day, and in the event of another war that the very boys sitting in front of him would be fighting.

Mr. Lindsay spoke on the annual Legion oratorical contest that is usually held here in Andover, and said that it was not held this year here, but Joanne O'Riordan, popular Punchard junior, had entered the county finals at Peabody and did a fine job, and therefore was to be awarded a medal for Excellence in Oratory. Commander Dea presented Joanne with the medal.

Mr. Hamblin told the Legion representatives that the school appreciated the prize which the Legion offers each year to the student who excels in the study of the constitution. He said that the written tests were given this morning, and that a great deal of enthusiasm is always stimulated in them.

Thomas Burns read the Punchard Roll of Honor which consists of the names of the Punchard boys who went directly to the Civil War and the World War and were killed in action. Douglas Howe led the assembly in the flag salute, and Charles Shattuck blew taps.

To Serve Saturday In Local Stores

There'll be new faces in most of Andover's business section shops on Saturday when a large group of Punchard students take advantage of an opportunity to learn firsthand how business is run. Most of the local merchants will have one and several of them will have two Punchard students, seniors mostly, in their stores, the greater part of the day, under a co-operative plan sponsored by the Merchants' committee of the Andover Service club. The participating merchants are offering specials for the day.

The students have been chosen by the Punchard authorities as follows: Harborn Shop, Dorothy

Andover's new auditorium, Memorial in name by virtue of a town meeting vote, became a Memorial in fact Tuesday when a plaque was unveiled in the foyer, bearing the names of 583 Andover boys who served in the World War including 20 who gave their lives. Selectman Howell F. Shepard accepted the plaque for the town from the chairman of the memorial plaque committee, Stafford A. Lindsay.

Punchard high school's principal, Nathan C. Hamblin, gave the dedicatory address, with Harold S. Cates and Clifford W. Dunnells doing the unveiling. Rev. Mr. Noss offered prayer, and a salute was fired by the Legion firing squad. Bugler John Keith sounded Taps, with David Robb echoing it from a distance.

The plaque was manufactured by the Gorham Company and purchased through John H. Grecoe.

The first exercises of the morning were held at the Library, with the following program in charge of chaplain Fred Cheever: remarks and prayer, Rev. Samuel Overstreet, pastor of the Baptist church; selection, America, Andover Brass Band.

Programs were also held at the Memorial Tower and the cemeteries.

Young Republicans To Meet Tonight

Moving pictures of Flycasting by the New Hampshire Department of Conservation will be shown at the Andover Young Men's Republican club meeting in the National Bank building tonight. John Crouse will be the narrator.

The activities committee with Irving J. Whitcomb, chairman, assisted by Thomas Fallon, Milton Jackson and president Donald Bassett, will release the plans for summer events. Refreshments will be served.

Brass Band In New Uniforms

The Andover Brass Band made its first appearance in its natty new uniforms Sunday afternoon when the annual exercises for the sailor dead were held at the Stevens street bridge. The uniforms are neatly tailored, coats and pants being of two different tones of blue. They were supplied through one of the band members, Norman Leslie of the Leslie Men's Shop.

Rev. Herman C. Johnson spoke at the exercises which were held under the auspices of the Sons of Veterans auxiliary, with Mrs. Henry S. Wright in charge. The complete program follows: Singing of "Nearer My God to Thee"; casting of wreath on water by Miss Anna Neas and strewing of flowers by school children; Recitations, "Our Heroes Beneath the Seas," by Helen Dowd, and "Your Flag and My Flag," by Charles Waterman; taps, Legion Bugle and Drum corps; Benediction, Rev. Only Cream Puffs

A sound truck toured the usually peaceful city of Milford Monday night and early Tuesday morning, with an unusual message coming forth from its loudspeaker. Over the radio the same message was repeated to the people of Milford. Throughout the night physicians hurried from house to house, taking care of 100 persons who had suddenly become ill.

No one knew the itinerant peddler who sold the cream puffs to these Milford people. It was believed he was from Boston, but nobody even bothered to get his license number. Of course if the people of Milford had taken the pains to buy their cream puffs in one of the local shops, they probably would have had fewer pains in the long run. The shop would be there the next day, and you're pretty careful of what you sell when you know the people to whom you sell can walk in on you the next day.

This could have been in Andover. We have plenty of peddlers visiting our homes; some of them come on foot, others peddle from trucks. Most of them you don't know. They'll sell you everything from brushes to ice cream. In some cases they themselves are unfortunate, sucked into the house-to-house selling game by ridiculous promises of huge profits. Then they find they have to buy the samples which they show and buy the samples which they give away. Others are hired by firms whose products won't sell in a store where better products are shown. All of them come from concerns which do not have enough community interest to establish a store or to sell their products through a store which pays taxes in the town. Among the worst offenders are ice cream trucks which are allowed to park along the roadway and vend their cream without paying their just share of the tax levy.

It's safer to trade with some one you know, it's less expensive in the long run, and it helps your town. "No" is an awfully good word to use on the peddlers who come to our door.

Tribute To Miss Twichell

In a recent issue of the Townsman a tribute was paid the retiring librarian, Miss Brown. Miss Julia Twichell, who retired over a year ago, also contributed much to the growth of the library, and we are glad to print here a tribute which appears in the records of the library trustees:

"Miss Julia E. Twichell's connection with the Memorial Hall and her long service for the Town of Andover began in 1900 when the Cornell Art Gallery was opened on the third floor of the building and she was appointed its custodian. Her association with the Library really started during this period, for she occasionally helped Mr. Ballard Holt, then in charge, and substituted for him during his vacations. Miss Brown became librarian on September 1st, 1906, and on October 1st of that year Miss Twichell gave up the art gallery to assist in the just-started reorganization of the library.

Though untrained in technical methods, Miss Twichell brought to her new work a fine education, being a graduate of Abbot Academy and of the Oswego State Normal School for Teachers. She had taught kindergarten in Rutland, Vermont, for seven years before making her home in Andover, and had also traveled extensively in Europe, spending one whole year in Turkey.

During the summer of 1907, she attended the professional courses given by the New York State Library School at Albany, completing them with honor, and thus acquiring a broader knowledge of the work to which she was to give so many years. She began, that same winter, a series of story hours for children which were held in the Trustees' room. They were so popular that the capacity of the room proved far inadequate, for only eighteen children could be accommodated, when fifty wished to come. In this undertaking Miss Twichell was so successful that she often, by invitation, told stories in the public schools.

Year after year the Literature department of the November Club depended—and still depends—upon Miss Twichell to give them a summary of the interesting new books of each season, and she has frequently given it for the entire club membership. She has often been in demand as a speaker by other clubs and organizations.

Her wide acquaintance with the town and its people was especially helpful in the beginning to a librarian who came as a stranger to Andover, while her broad outlook and ability to see all sides of a question made her advice invaluable. She is completely identified with every forward step in the progress and expansion of the library for over thirty years and the institution could not, and would not, stand where it stands today were it not for the fortunate chance that made her its first assistant. It is also certain that no one employed by the library has ever been more popular or more beloved by the public.

On October 1st, 1937, she resigned her position of assistant librarian after thirty-one years of most successful service—thirty-seven years in the Memorial Hall itself."

Launch Drive For Fourth Celebration

The intensive drive for support for the town Fourth of July celebration is being launched tonight by the Andover Men's club, with tags being sold for the next few nights in different sections of the town.

The proposed list of events to date includes: night before: fireworks, band concert, block dancing; morning: patriotic and horribles parade, and married men vs. single men; afternoon: sports and races, baseball game; evening: band concert, attendance prize, and huge final display of fireworks.

You save money by paying $2.00 a year for the Townsman.

News of Other Days

Fifty Years Ago

Fruit is better than flowers, and we have before us four strawberries so large that they fill a box. They were picked from N. F. Flint's strawberry bed on Tuesday morning. He says this is two weeks earlier than he has ever had ripe berries before. (N.B. To avoid all possible misunderstanding, we ought, perhaps, to state that the box referred to above is not a strawberry box!)

A gentleman who lately left this place to go into business in a neighboring town, took a horse fresh from the tracks of the West End Street Railway for use in his delivery team. When first driven, all ordinary means failed to make him understand when he was to start ahead. At last the owner bethought himself of a plan, and getting an alarm clock, he let the bell ring and the horse would go ahead at full speed. Calling off the names of the streets and "fares please" is done to cheer him up when he gets homesick.

Twenty-five Years Ago

Miss Miriam F. Carpenter was a passenger on the Potsdam of the Holland and America Line, which sailed from New York Tuesday, accompanying the widow and daughter of Prof. George R. Carpenter.

William Shaw and Miss Maude L. Chamberlain were married in Roxbury last Wednesday by Rev. Augustus H. Fuller of Ballardvale.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and daughter of Cliftondale spent the holiday at the home of Mr. Hill's father in West Andover.

Ten Years Ago

Roy W. Lindsay of Buffalo, N. Y., spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David S. Lindsay of Summer street.

At a meeting of the senior class at Punchard high school held last Friday, Elwyn Russell, Walter Batcheller and Eleanor Peterson were appointed to take charge of the class gift.

Today is the fourth in a heat wave record-breaking for the month of May. The maximum official temperature yesterday was 94 degrees.

Ruth Bodwell was elected editor-in-chief of the Punch Harder staff for next year.

Miss Abbie Lewis graduated from the Massachusetts Homeopathic hospital school for nurses in Boston last Tuesday evening.

Briggs-Allen To Close June 14th

The Briggs-Allen school closing day exercises will be held in the South church vestry at 9:30 A. M. on June 14th. A program which is unique and interesting will be given. Mrs. J. A. Burt is coaching a play "How Boots Befooled the King." The play is of special interest because Mrs. N. P. Hallowell, Jr., wrote it. She has written several plays, one of which was given recently by the Phillips Academy Faculty. Mrs. Hallowell and Mrs. Bartlett H. Hayes have charge of costumes.

Another outstanding feature between scenes will be the singing of a group of songs by Kenneth Tomlinson, a former pupil of the Briggs-Allen school.

The Phelps House on Main street has been selected as one of the distinguished examples of New England architecture and is being pictured in a 100 page portfolio devoted to "New England, Past and Present" in the June issue of House and Garden. The Phelps house is one of the few country homes definitely attributed to Bulfinch. It is now occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Fuess.

Recent Spring Weddings

Chase-Holland

Miss Clara MacFarlane Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester W. Holland of Chestnut street, became the bride of Elwood Norton Chase 2nd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield S. Chase of Canterbury street Saturday at a colorful wedding at her family home which was decorated with white lilacs.

The bride was lovely in a simple white tulle gown and veil, with tiny satin bows framing her face. She carried an arm bouquet of white marguerites. Her maid of honor, Miss Marion Dix of Greenwood, formerly of this town, wore yellow mousseline de soie and carried a bouquet of yellow marguerites and blue larkspur. The two bridesmaids, Miss Doris Anderson of Shawsheen and Frances Mahoney of North Andover, both wore blue mousseline de soie gowns and carried bouquets of yellow marguerites. The

She wore a peach chiffon gown, matching accessories, a leghorn hat, and carried talisman roses and blue delphinium. Leo Kushman of Wakefield was the best man.

Rev. Henry B. Smith, O. S. A., officiated at the ceremony. Miss Annie G. Donovan accompanied Louis J. Scanlon, soloist, who sang, "O Salutaris" and "Mother at Thy Feet I'm Kneeling."

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after which the couple left on a wedding trip.

RECEPTION TENDERED TO RETIRING AND INCOMING LIBRARIANS

Miss Twichell, Miss Putnam, Miss Brown

The community gathering of people in the Memorial Hall on Sunday afternoon was a fitting event in the Memorial Day season, for it was on May 30, 1873, that the building, with the promise of a library, was dedicated to the memory of the Andover men who fell during the Civil War.

The occasion, planned by the board of trustees of the Library, was an honoring of Miss Edna A.

Brown, who has just resigned the management of the Library after more than thirty years of service, of Miss Julia E. Twichell, her associate, recently retired, and of Miss Miriam Putnam, who is to assume charge in the fall.

The only flaw in the arrangements was the downpour of rain at just the appointed time, which prevented many from attending.

Unsuspected Talent

Revealed In Revue

"Glamour Galore" was certainly not a misnomer for the High school review which attracted over nine-hundred people to its performance in Memorial auditorium last Friday evening. By having all the members participate in the production, talent previously undiscovered was revealed and recognized by loud applause and laughter. Harold Gordon's "Snappy, Tappy Routine" was also intricate and one of the outstanding "hits" of the show. Other special favorites were: the Greek Dancers, Edith Valentine, Barbara Gillen, Barbara Jackson, Priscilla Glines, Ebon Bendroth, Monica Coleman, Ruth Anderson and Alice Bertram who were led by Angie Dantos; Jeanne Wirtz, singer; Teresa Burbine and Robert Towne, who proved to be full-fledged comedians; and Donald Lundgren as the mild Mr. Mouse who turned out to be the cheese after all. Tomorrow Night

A benefit and dance is to be held at the Memorial auditorium tomorrow evening at eight by the British War Veterans and the Shawsheen Mill Machinists. Two groups of selections will be sung by the New England champion Andover Male choir under the direction of J. Everett Collins and with Miss Marion Abbott as accompanist. Alberta Casgrain Comtois will be soloist with the choir and Edward Comtois will be solo violinist.

All connected with the library organization united to welcome the guests; trustees and their wives; the members of the staff, as ushers, including Miss Martha Byington, long-time head of the branch library in Ballardvale; and, in the junior room, Miss Robinson, with girls from the library club of the junior high school, who served fruit punch. Mr. Maclaren and Mrs. Donaldson, the caretakers, were hovering about with looks of proud ownership.

The reading room was attractively decorated with a profusion of lilacs and small evergreens. From the sister libraries of Phillips Academy and Abbot Academy came beautiful bouquets, one of callas, lavender stock, and delphinium, and the other of pink roses.

The guests were given an opportunity to sign a register beautifully hand-bound in red, which was presented to Miss Brown in recognition of what she has achieved in the library during the years of her administration.

Many people may not know how a library happened to be established in Andover so early, several years before the general movement for public libraries in this country began. It came about in this way. In 1870, five years after the close of the Civil War, John Smith, whose portrait hangs in the reading room, was travelling in Europe, and was much impressed with the public facilities for book lending, particularly in Germany, compared with those on this side of the Atlantic. The idea came to him of starting a plan for a soldiers' memorial in his own town, which should include a free library. His letter outlining the project is on record. His brother, Peter Smith, and John Dove at once took up the matter, and all together offered a nucleus of $35,000 on condition that the town would provide the land.

At a public meeting, a committee was appointed consisting of Hon. Francis Cogswell, Rev. Charles Smith, Samuel H. Taylor, Solomon Holt, William G. Means, David Middleton, and Samuel Raymond. After the site was purchased by the town, it was decided to raise the further amount needed by popular subscription instead of by taxation.

A look at the list of contributors, which can be seen in the large exhibition show case in the reading room, will show how hearty and generous the response was. The names of whole families appear in some cases, with sums ranging from ten cents to five hundred dollars. Beside the subscription book is placed the now precious certificate given to the first of these contributors, John Flint. The list was kept by E. Kendall Jenkins, whose term as trustee for fifty-three years was the longest of any member, and included many years of service as president. The whole amount was close to $63,000, given by 703 contributors.

The next year, 1871, the cornerstone was laid and in 1872, the first trustees were elected at town meeting. Joseph W. Smith was the first president, and Samuel Raymond, secretary, heading the long list of representative Andover citizens who have given time and careful thought to the interests of this important institution.

In the sixty-six years there have been but two librarians. Ballard Holt, Civil War veteran, served from 1873 to September 1906, when Miss Brown came into office. In 1926 the building, by vote of the town, was remodeled and enlarged, providing the present adequate and convenient quarters.

The steady and almost phenomenal increase in the circulation of books during the past few years is a sure indication that the people of Andover will be expecting more and more of their library. It is also a challenge to the town to stand behind the trustees and the new librarian with support commensurate with still growing demands.

Sneezing, Tickling And Finger-Sucking Bring Complications In School Operetta

If you had three wishes, what would they be? Max Luckyfoot, played by Donald O'Connor, had his chance in the operetta, "The Magic Wishing Well," given by the Parochial school children recently. The scene was laid in Cranbury Cross where the only dark cloud that threatened the happiness of the otherwise jolly citizens was the king's unusual affliction. He couldn't stop sneezing. The unfortunate part of it all was that his sneezing was not an illness that could be cured by medicine, but a result of the Queen's tickling him, and the queen tickled him every time she saw the Princess with her finger in her mouth. The princess, then, was the fundamental cause of all the trouble, but she couldn't help putting her finger in her mouth because she was so lonesome.

That's where Max came in. Max was a threadbare wood-cutter with three pennies and a generous nature. When the waterlily, a little nymph with white blossoms cascading over her blue dress, complained that she had no pennies to buy new clothes, he gave her his pennies. No one could have done differently for Alice Robbins was an irresistible wheedler.

In return she offered Max three wishes which would come true in the morning, and after some thought he chose (1) That no one would be able to say "No" to him; (2) that he should have a music box that played such happy music that everyone would dance; and (3) that he should be known as a "man of his word." These wishes eventually were the cure for the princess' habit of biting her finger, the Queen's tickling the King, and the King's sneezing. Consequently, Max was made a Prince and owned half the kingdom and it looked pretty much as if the Princess was to be part of his reward.

The adaptation of the story added to its appeal. A group of Mexican dancers, cleverly introduced into the Operetta by their wish-making at the well, were dressed in picturesque costumes that swirled around them as they danced Mexican steps with a little trucking for a contrast.

"Betty Behave," a short one-act comedy of practical jokes, starred Kathleen Quill and Kathryn Walsh as Ellen and Jeanette who turned the tables on Barbara Carley as Betty, the mischief-maker. Because she didn't behave, Betty was doomed to spend a lonely evening in the Woodland School dormitory while her two friends enjoyed a luscious dinner with dessert and a movie.

The patriotic closing of the program was a dramatization of "God Bless America" with Katherine O'Riordan as Miss America, introducing the typical young ladies of all parts of America. Joan Fleming was lovely in a white be-furred costume as the Eskimo, Barbara Terry, dressed in an old-fashioned blue gown, was a sweet southern belle. Helen Walsh represented a dashing cow girl and Joan Hartigan was the modern miss from Boston.

"Happy Hans and Hilda," a combination song and dance, was made up of little Dutch couples, not completely sure of their steps and just a little hesitant on some of the words, but good troupers. If they forgot, they improvised or they stole a glance at the person next to them for suggestions.

In enthusiastic praise of the entire program, it is impossible to overlook the "comedian unawares." Barry Greco, a baker, who had a very minor part in "The Magic Wishing Well" completely stole the show by his fierce concentration on his routine for the short time during which he and his fellow workers were dancing.

Miss Constance Grace Natoli, elocution teacher, was the director.

Dr. Peirson S. Page

"The late Dr. Peirson S. Page was a man who gave himself unstintedly to Phillips Academy. Coming to the school in 1902, in his early thirties, he served for more than three decades both as Director of Athletics and as School Physician. Starting with inadequate equipment and limited funds, he built up both these departments until they compared favorably with those of any of the great American academies. He planned the Isham Infirmary in 1912 and its more elaborate addition in 1934, and he was almost at the moment of his death thinking out the problems of a possible new gymnasium. His virtues in his profession were many. He was an organizer of unusual effectiveness, with a gift for managing enterprises and directing subordinates. He was a tireless worker, ready uncomplainingly to assume any burden, and always doing more himself than he asked of his associates. He was loyal to the school and its interests. No institution ever had a more faithful servant. Generations of old boys, especially among the athletes of past generations, will read of his death with sorrow and recall their pleasant associations with him.

"Dr. Page was distinguished by his simplicity, his kindness, and his unselfishness. He loved games, especially golf, bridge, and billiards, and his life, particularly in his later days, was made happier through these diversions. He had a host of friends who enjoyed playing with him, but he always placed his duty ahead of his recreation. He had far more than an ordinary common sense and insight into human nature, particularly boy nature, and he was noteworthy for his understanding and tolerance of student frailty. Completely without ostentation or pretense, he never sought the lime-light, but he had a generous nature and for his friends was ready to make any sacrifice. Brisk of step, quick of motion, often brusque in manner, he possessed a personality all his own, with little attractive traits that somehow cannot be forgotten. Of recent months, particularly since the tragic death of his youngest daughter, he had been in poor health, but his courage never faltered. He had planned to retire from active duty in June and to spend his remaining years with his wife in Florida. Instead his passing occurred in the very midst of a busy career. He left behind him the memory of a job well done and of a gracious, kindly personality." C. M. F.

Town Treasurer Thaxter Eaton, Mrs. Eaton and Miss Patsy spent the last week-end in Maine. Two nights were spent at the Wonder View cabins at Wells, Maine, Friends in Portland, Scarborough and Pine Point were visited.

Punchard In Tie With Johnson H. S.

After driving to an undisputed position at the top of the loop on Friday, the Punchard boys handed their game on Wednesday to George Knightly's Chelmsford high team at the latter's field by the score of 6 to 5. After leading throughout the contest, a misjudged fly, two singles and an outfield error allowed the home club to come out on top in the last half of the ninth. Both teams were erratic in the field and the pitchers were given very poor support.

George Knightly used his ace boxman, Cochrane, and Coach Lovely countered with captain Doug Howe. Howe went along for two innings without trouble, but in the ninth, with Chelmsford one run down, the storm broke, and when the storm broke, and when the thunder had quieted, the visitors had been dropped to a first place tie with Johnson.

In the other league game played yesterday, Johnson high defeated Methuen by the score of 11 to 0, thereby advancing to a tie with Punchard.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dunnells and daughter Edith of Abbot street and Roy Dearborn and son Lauren of Elm street spent the week-end at Brewster.

FACTS FAVOR FORD

1 The 1939 Ford V-8 is a beautiful, modern motor car. Its 85-horsepower engine gives you economical, well-balanced performance over the entire speed range — and the 60-horsepower engine is even more economical.

2 The structural strength of the Ford car — frame, bracing, axles, body — makes not only for safety, but durability and long life.

3 Ford hydraulic brakes are exceptionally large and strong in proportion to car weight.

4 The Ford car is stabilized for comfortable riding. Its springbase, the distance between front and rear suspension, is 123 inches. Seats are toward the center, perfectly balanced. The car does not bob or dip and can have very little sway.

These four points — power, strength, safety, comfort — are by far the most important essentials in any motor car. They form the basic value of your investment.

With this solid foundation to build on, the Ford V-8 has been made beautiful, spacious, easy to drive. It is richly upholstered and has all the modern features which add to the luxury and pleasure of motoring.

You can see these things when you take a trial drive, but do not forget that the main value is in the things you do not readily see — quality of materials, precision of manufacture, fundamental engineering.
