Two Cadets Launch Teaching Careers

Miss Gwen Armitage of Haverhill street and Miss Eleanor Raidy of Summer street are starting their teaching careers in the local schools. Miss Armitage began her duties as the high school's first cadet yesterday and Miss Raidy will start Monday in the lower grades, taking the place of a regular full-pay teacher.

Another Bus Looms

As School Problem

The possibility of putting on a fourth school bus developed Tuesday night at the school board meeting when Superintendent Sanborn presented a report on the ever-increasing transportation problems.

The superintendent reported that it would be necessary to extend the bus route on Lowell street to the Tewksbury line since there are some children in the last house on Lowell street, a mile and a half from the present route ending at Haggetts Pond road.

The Wood family which presented numerous difficulties last year including the determination of the boundary line between Andover and Wilmington have moved away, but another family has moved in with five children. One girl is a junior in the Wilmington high school and she will continue there with the town paying Wilmington tuition of about $85 instead of transporting her to the high school. The other four children are all in the grades, and Mrs. Brown will transport them to the Andover schools as she did the Woods last year.

Car Demolished; Only Slight Injuries

Andover had only one automobile fatality this year, but the list of those accidents which might well have been fatal continues to mount. Sunday afternoon a Lawrence car collided with an Everett car on the by-pass, swung to the left, hit the soft shoulder and overturned. The car was practically demolished but the four Lawrence men were only slightly injured.

TO RESUME TEACHING

Miss Marion L. Abbott will resume her pianoforte teaching Monday, September 11. Prospective pupils will find her studio at 7 Cedar road. Telephone 555.

Parochial School Reopens Monday For 26th Year

St. Augustine's Parochial school will reopen on Monday morning, starting its second quarter century in Andover. A record attendance is expected.

The school first opened with three grades in September of 1914, the present building being first used in 1918. On the third of September, 1914, the Sisters of Notre Dame took over the present convent at 1 Chestnut street. During the past year it has been completely renovated, including repainting, new plumbing, new lighting and new floors.

High And Junior High Enrollments Below Last Year's

The registration on opening day in both Punchard High and Junior High dropped off this year as compared to last year. However, no definite conclusions can be drawn about enrollment until about October first.

Last year's opening day enrollment for the high school set a new record of 377. Yesterday 365 children attended. On opening day in the Junior High last year the total was 467, while yesterday's total was 453.

The grammar grades reopen Monday.

Automobiles To Crash At Topsfield Fair

Week-end throngs at the 118th annual Essex County Fair at Topsfield, which concludes Sunday, will be treated to an assortment of thrills and innovations.

Friday Captain Jimmy Smith and his much-publicized "Squadron of Death" will open a two-day engagement, presenting two hours "thrill sessions" at 1:30 and 7:30

P. M. Friday and at 2 and 8 on Saturday. This group of interesting stuntmen claim to be the only troupe in the highly hazardous business of crashing and smashing automobiles and motorcycles who perform on an out-door track at night under floodlights.

Among the feats in Captain Smith's spectacular show will be a head-on collision of two automobiles; motorcycle and auto flaming boardwall crashes; auto roll-over and spiral roll; auto and cycle hurdling and broadjumping. As a special feature Captain Smith will drive a motorcycle at 50 miles an hour from the top of a 12-foot ladder mounted on the cycle. Another highlight of the act will be a flaming house crash with an auto.

Gov. Saltonstall will be the guest of honor Friday, Governor's Day. Special attractions besides the auto thrill show will include plowing and horse-pulling contests, chariot, Roman standing and running horse races; a photographic salon, vaudeville and horse pushball contests.

Numerous added entertainment spectacles and demonstrations will be presented Saturday, which will be Children's Day. In the past the Fair has been host to children on opening day but it was decided to admit the kiddies free until 1 P. M. on Saturday this year to enable more of them to attend. In many communities school reopened on the first day of the Fair.

There will be several innovations Sunday, closing day of the Fair. In addition to the regular track and grandstand program.

He called Officers Frank McBride and George Dufton in the square and the two cars were stopped, the operators being booked on charges of operating to endanger and speeding.

Both pleaded not guilty to the charges Saturday morning and the case was continued until tomorrow to allow the routine check-up of their records.

Drink Of Liquor Costs 50 Dollars

The price for stepping into a car and starting to drive off while you are under the influence of liquor is fifty dollars, so Patrick McBride of 38 Chestnut street found out Tuesday morning.

A week ago Monday at ten minutes to five, according to the story Sergeant Raymond Hickey told in District court, McBride was seen driving a car on Essex street in a "very drunk" condition. The sergeant stepped on the running-board and turned off the ignition. The only damage was to McBride's pocketbook.

Hitler, Mussilini, And Stalin Set September 6 As Zero Hour

SCOOPED, by golly, SCOOPED!! Right under our own noses. Just one day after the Townsman came out last week, the Andover Daily Sentinel appeared, with six exclusive stories right on its front and only page. And then, just to rub it in, they even ran an ad that we didn't have. "Use Jason's Ointment," it said, "good for all family uses and especially good for Chapped Lips & all sorts of Pimples."

The lead story, made prominent by a banner headline: "Zero Hour Sept. 6" forecast the date when "Hitler, Mussilini, and Stalin march their armies, invading other countries and stealing their properties. People dread that this hour will never come. Hitler the most hated man today was the son of a paper-hanger. Mussilini was the son of a village blacksmith. While Stalin was the son of a Georgian cobbler. All of these men are ruthless dictators."

"Forest Fire" headed another story which told of a "raging blaze" in the East Washington timberlands. "Thousands of trees were burned. Fire drove out every living thing. Hundreds of acres of land were destroyed. Timbermen had great loses. Most of the firefighters were overcome by the smoke and heat. Hoses had to be turned on them to keep them cool."

And there was local news, too. One story told of the removal of police sergeant Hickey's mother-in-law to the hospital when a piece of meat lodged in her throat. Another told of Alfred White's return to the hospital to reset that leg that was broken when he slid into the plate for Punchard last spring. The third told of Donald MacLauchland's winning of the "tournament between the caddies" at the Andover Country Club. "He hasn't recieved his prize yet but it will probably be a silver cup and some golf clubs. He is very glad that he won the game."

The other story in the Sentinel told about "all crowds" standing "breathless as one of Britans new aircraft carriers was about to be launched. All of a sudden the props holding her loosened as she broke her launching cable and sailed into the sea. After the wreckage was cleared I was found dead and 20 injured. Authorites believed it was caused by sabotage." (No posthumous writing this; it's just that he struck capital I instead of small L for the figure 1.)

The Sentinel is the Brechin Terrace news medium, and it's Daily only "because it sounded better that way." Phil Christie, son of the Andover Lunch's Greg, is the editor-in-chief and his principal fellow-journalist is Lawrence White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred White. Phil has a staff of reporters, too.

One is Russell MacLeish and the other is David Cargill, who also has the position of treasurer. Oh, yes, there is a treasury. It costs you a penny for the Sentinel, and the income is ploughed right back into the business, for each reporter gets two cents for every story he submits.

Watch the Sentinel.

If Hitler would only forsake his wolfish ideas concerning the Polish Corridor for a peaceful hunting trip, now that it's fall again... He could still carry a gun... and if he's fleet enough, he might still be able to pass the buck... At least it would be easier and much more fawn to pick up a little doe... providing, of course, that he didn't meet someone a little bit foxier than himself... and didn't prove to be a lame duck....

Mr. and Mrs. Dino Valz gave their children their second lesson in mountain climbing over the week-end... (their own past accomplishments are a matter they can very well blow their horn about)... The party of five, four Valzes and one dog, aspired to the heights of Mount Washington via Glen Boulder trail... descent was made via Huntington... Although the typical costume of the Alpine climber was not worn on this expedition, the dog's breath was coming in shorts....

Rod Hill was not so cautious... he neglected to take along a watchdog to guard his pup tent... Pups it didn't occur to him that there were strong-shouldered, light-fingered gents around who would relieve him of his equipment... he'll make doggone sure next time... However the theft didn't Marr his pleasure... in fact the cabins in which he spent the remainder of his vacation augmented it....

Maurice Gillen seemed to be enjoying himself at Hampton over Labor Day as did Paul and Bill Collins, Clifford Wadman, Fred Winn,

We hear that William Kurth was inspecting a swimming pool in North Conway last week-end for divers reasons... one of them is that he is planning to build one of his own....

Tax Collector Jim Christie thought his life was in danger this afternoon when a loud explosion in front of the tax office raised his hair on end... A revengeful taxpayer trying to tax Jim's nerves? No, just the spare tire on Alex Renny's Chevrolet, parked in front of the town house, taking a notion to blow out....

After the teachers' meeting Tuesday night, the members re-congregated at The Countryside Grille... Wednesday morning the grilling began in earnest... some of it was done on the grid-iron... some of it was done in Punchard's corridors... hashing over the summer's events... one thing, none of the students could beef about returning to classes in the burning sun... It wasn't even broiling... It definitely seems to be cooling off!

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wadman and son of Medford have been visiting with their parents in Andover the last three weeks.

Tax Bills Due

On October First

The tax rate was late, but your payments can't be. When the legislature passed the law which held up local boards of assessors on their rate announcements so that the average rate was two months later than usual, it neglected to change the payment dates. Bills are due October first, but interest charges do not go into effect until November first.

The assessors last Friday morning announced the rate of $30.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Dunn and family have returned to their home on Salem street after enjoying the summer months at Wells Beach, Maine. Jacqueline Dunn will begin her sophomore year at Nasson College this fall.

Miss Louise Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Higgins of North Main street, will attend Jackson college this fall.

Blended COAL

AMAZES HOUSEHOLDERS

ANDOVER COAL CO.

REVEALS UNDERGROUND SECRET WHICH IS BRINGING NEW COMFORT AND ECONOMY TO THOUSANDS

"See these two coals? This dull-black anthracite is 'Red-Ash'. It burns with a hot, quick flame—marvelous for heat."

"What's the shiny coal?"

"That's 'White-Ash' anthracite. It's very hard, which makes it burn long and slow. It's ideal for a slow fire."

"Which is better?"

"Both are perfect specimens of their type. Both came from Colonial Colliery which produces two coals from one mine. Both are filled with heat and very low in ash. But they burn differently."

"Could the two be blended?"

"That's just what happens in our Colonial Blended Anthracite. We buy from the only colliery which actually blends its entire output. It's the blend that gives you a hot fire which banks well. Try one ton and you'll never go back to ordinary anthracite."

THE ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

Established 1887

Published on Thursday at Smith & Coutts Co., 4 Park Street, Andover, Mass., by Elmer J. Grover.
Entered at the Andover Postoffice as Second Class Matter.

1914 and 1939; 1917 and 1942?

"We'll be over; we're coming over. And we won't come back 'til it's over, over there."

Thrilled you, didn't it, back in the days of '17? "The Yanks are coming, the Yanks are coming, the drums rum-tumming everywhere." Yes, a tingle ran up and down your spine and you stuck your chest 'way out; you had Patriotism.

The boys marched down the street; off to camp they went, or maybe their next destination was a transport bound for "Over There." It was grand, magnificent, to see those sturdy American youths marching by behind the Stars and Stripes, going off to fight on the battlefields of France. No, it wouldn't last long now that we'd decided to get into it. Those boys of ours would soon put an end to the Huns' aggression. Our public speakers, with star-spangled phrases, told us they would, told us that our boys would make the world safe for Democracy. Didn't those talks thrill you, too? Didn't that tingle just race up and down your spine as our civic leaders poured forth praise of our boys and our flag? Yes, you had Patriotism.

"Turn the dark cloud inside out, 'Til the boys come home."

It was a different kind of a thrill in 1918, wasn't it? It was Patriotism, of course; you had to be patriotic, anyway. But it wasn't the frenzied, inordinately proud Patriotism of 1917. It was a more serious-minded feeling that you had, loyalty with perhaps an occasional bit of wondering if it was really worth what it cost. You stayed true to the flag; you kept the home fires burning; you cheered just as lustily but more solemnly as more boys marched by to the transports. You had been given a few lessons in the cost of war since the drums first started rolling. Somehow you weren't quite sure whether it was worth while; a glance at a window with a flag bearing a gold star told you that someone had paid a pretty dear price. You were proud of the "Glorious Dead," of course; they had "given their last full measure of devotion." Once they had walked by, sturdy American youths, and you had cheered them wildly. If they ever came back, it would be on a flag-draped caisson, and then you'd stand, head uncovered, wondering—wondering.

Over the peaceful countryside there's deep silence. A lone bugler stands at attention, raises his bugle to his lips. Over the peaceful countryside there sounds the slow sorrowful notes of "Taps."

Oh, it was wonderful to hear that near-gay martial music of 1917. It was still with a real ray of hope that you heard the lonely war-music of 1918. But—it always ends with "Taps."

In 1914 the United States was determined. That year was a "We won't" year. And 1915 was a "We probably won't" year. By 1916 you were saying "Well, we won't, but they'd better watch out." And in 1917 it was "We will, we'll show them." It didn't take long in those days for us to forget the isolationist determination we had when first the Kaiser sent his troops across Belgium on their way to the never-reached destination of the Dover Cliffs. Only a couple of years passed before the country which was going to keep its boys from being cannon-fodder for Europe had become rabidly bellicose. Could an absolute embargo like that imposed under the present neutrality act have kept us out of it? Could a cash-and-carry policy have kept us out of it? No, laws are made by men, and laws are unmade by men. It was a state-of-mind that brought us into the war, and that state-of-mind would have transcended any law.

The United States is in a good state-of-mind today; let's stay that way this time.

Several Andover People In Europe

No word has been received from Europe yet on the fate of Miss Margaret Stewart, maid at the Dr. Hartigan residence, who was reported to have been on the Athena which was torpedoed and sunk Monday off the Hebrides shortly after Great Britain and France declared war on Germany. It is not even certain that the young lady was on the boat. She went across in the early summer on the S. S. California. It is understood that most of those on that particular trip were returning on the Athena, but preference was given to American citizens and Miss Stewart was not a citizen here. Most of the 1400 passengers were believed saved.

Bernard L. Boyle, Jr., of Manchester, teacher at the academy, has also not been heard from. He was due to return Saturday after a trip to England but a message to his parents last week said he would probably be delayed.

Dirk H. van der Stucken of the academy faculty is reported on his way home from his annual continental tour. Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Sides have returned, making the return trip on the Bremen's last crossing before it mysteriously disappeared.

Miss Dorothy Baker of England, who taught at Abbot last year, may remain over there. Mrs. Jessie McNeil of Balmoral street is in Scotland, and Mrs. Edith Smith of Carisbrooke street is in London.

Weddings

Burbine-Dubois

Wearing a white panne velvet gown with swirling full court train, Miss Theresa H. Dubois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Dubois of 122 Edgewood street, Methuen, became the bride of William F. Burbine, son of Mrs. Angus Burbine of 8 Lewis street at a ceremony in the Mount Carmel church, Methuen, Sunday afternoon. Her short veil was of white tulle and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

The groom's sister, Miss Marguerite Burbine, was the maid of honor. Her gown was of peacock blue velvet and she wore a matching doll hat. Pink roses relieved the all-blue of her costume.

Charles E. Dubois was best man. An uncle of the bride, Donat A. Dubois, played the organ and with Mrs. Dubois sang several vocal selections previous to the ceremony which was performed by Rev. John J. Bouchard, S.M.

The reception followed immediately in the parish house. After a wedding trip, the couple will make their home at 8 Lewis street.

Hughes-Cheney

Against a setting of cedar boughs and white hydrangea before the open fireplace in her parent's home, Miss Harriet M. Cheney, R. N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Cheney of 83 Maple avenue, became the bride of T. Frederick Hughes of Boston, Saturday afternoon. Pink gladioli and white cosmos were artistically arranged throughout the house. Rev. Frederick B. Noss performed the ceremony.

The bride's dusty pink crepe gown made a pleasing contrast with the copenhagen blue gown of the maid of honor, Miss Phyllis McIntyre of Clinton. Both the bride and her attendant carried old-fashioned bouquets of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Arthur Millette of New Bedford was the best man and William McIntyre of Clinton, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march.

After the reception, the couple left on an unannounced wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside at 235 Park Drive, Boston.

The bride attended Abbot Academy and graduated from Nasson Institute, Springvale, Maine, and the Peter Bent Brigham hospital school of nursing in Boston. She has been engaged for the past several years in private duty nursing at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital.

Mr. Hughes is superintendent of the A. G. Walton shoe factory in Chelsea.

Guests attended from New Bedford, Boston, Ayer, Clinton, Worcester, Malden, Haverhill, Lawrence, Derry, N. H., and Andover.

The guest of honor was the bride's 86-year-old great aunt, Mrs. James Campion of Boston.

It was an unusual event to have as guests, Orra L. Stone and Mrs. P. H. McIntyre both of Clinton, who served as best man and bridesmaid respectively to the bride's parents at their wedding 44 years ago.

School Board To Tighten Up On Rates

The school board Tuesday night turned down a request for rate reduction for the use of the auditorium and gymnasium after a discussion in which the feeling prevailed that the rate rules should be enforced more strictly.

The Clan auxiliary had applied for the use of the auditorium, gymnasium and cafeteria for the afternoon and evening of November 4 for a regional drill competition, with no admission charge in the afternoon. Members of the board felt that concessions should be granted only to school and charity affairs. It was voted that the full charge should apply to the Clan.
