Present Gift To Retiring Pastor

The Christian Endeavor society of the Baptist church tendered Rev. and Mrs. Samuel B. Overstreet a surprise party recently at Lynn beach. After enjoying a period of swimming and a picnic lunch, the group played games.

A feature of the party was the presentation by President Charles Shattuck of an attractive book-case to Rev. and Mrs. Overstreet, who will shortly leave for Newport, R. I., where Rev. Mr. Overstreet has accepted a pastorate.

League "Porch Party" To Discuss National Defense

The second Porch Party planned by the Andover League of Women Voters for this summer will be held Wednesday at 2:30 in the garden at Mrs. Herbert Merrick's, 164 Lowell street. The League in this time of crisis recognizes its duty to help women be informed on world affairs. Those who attended a similar meeting at Mrs. Edward Buchanan's in July will anticipate this program. The timely subject will be "National Defense." All women interested are invited to be present whether or not members of the local league. In case of rain the meeting will be held with Mrs. John D. Little, 197 Shawsheen road.

Field Days To Be Held Tomorrow

Field days will be held tomorrow at all three playgrounds, both afternoon and evening. There will be dashes and novelty events for several age groups.

Children under 11 will disport in the afternoon, starting at 2:30, and those 11 and over will occupy the attention in the evening.

Next week the annual carnivals will be held at the playgrounds, Wednesday at Shawsheen, Thursday at Ballardvale and Friday at Central.

Fishing Question Still Undecided

The Board of Public Works has received an answer from the state department of public health to its letter asking clarification of the fishing and boating situation at Haggetts, but it is understood that the question still remains open as to whether the state department is ordering the pond closed to boating and fishing or is putting it up to the local board.

TOWN AGENT TO TAKE EXAM

Town old age assistance agent Arthur Cole will take a merit system examination to be held in the state on September 21st, in order to comply with the federal regulation that all employees on welfare departments be under civil service or some comparable system.

Andover's Population Increase To Bring One More Liquor License

Andover will have one more liquor license to grant this year as a result of the increase shown in the recent census, provided that the town again votes for license for liquors to be served on the premises. The town went up into the 11,000 class and under state law this entitles the town to one more license. The package store quota remains the same however, as an increase of 5000 in population is necessary for a change in this case.

Indications are that the liquor question in November will again be keenly fought out. Two years ago when the town voted to outlaw selling hard liquors for consumption on the premises, the plurality was 190 votes. On the second question, the sale of wines and beers for consumption on the premises was approved, but there was only an 80 vote plurality. With both results having been very close it can be assumed that a change either way might result, and on January first of next year Andover may either be serving all alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises or it may be serving none. Last time the package stores had an amazing plurality of 1385 and so there's no chance that the package stores will be forced out.

The selectmen as licensing authorities two years ago had to withdraw a number of licenses when the vote to ban hard liquor went through, and this enabled them to clean up some of the sore spots, with the result that conditions have been pretty generally recognized as being much better. If the town repeats its vote of four years ago and again allows the sale of hard liquor for drinking on the premises, it is entirely probable that no new licenses will be granted save for the one that the increased population allows; it is expected that the present license-holders will ask for the more inclusive license, and if their record has been satisfactory, the licensing board would be more likely to extend their license than to grant one to a new applicant.

Not Certain Whether Lovely Will Coach

Nothing definite is known at present as to whether Eugene V. Lovely, coach of Punchard's football team for the past 26 years and now high school submaster, will be guiding the destinies of the Punchard gridiron warriors this fall. Mr. Lovely gave up his baseball coaching this spring because of the pressure of his administrative duties.

Mr. Lovely will probably not sever his relations with the football team entirely, although if his administrative work is too heavy, most of the coaching burden may fall on Joseph B. Doherty, who has been assisting Mr. Lovely for several years.

Water Carnival On August 24

The annual water carnival at the Poms pond town bathing beach will be held on Saturday, August 24th.

The beach at Poms and also the one at Husseys have been experiencing unusually large crowds the past few weeks because of the weather conditions.

County Commission Fight A Hard One

One of the hard contests in the forthcoming primaries will be that for county commissioner, in which Fred Butler of Lowell street is a candidate for re-election. There are two positions to be filled, and County Commissioner Richard D. Bentley is also in the field for re-election.

Among the opponents for the Republican nomination are Mr. Longworth and Mr. Woekel of Methuen.

Local Residents Stewards At Myopia Dog Show

Andover residents are prominent in the arrangements for the Myopia Hunt club seventh annual dog show to be held at Hamilton on Saturday, August 24. Emery J. Trott is chief steward, with Frederick Johnson of Woodland road, Glenn Hay of Stonehedge road and Ernest Young of Elm street acting as stewards. Stewards from North Andover are G. C. Waterston and William A. Russell.

"Bench Marks" Placed Here In W. P. A. Project To Supply Basis For Future Work

Little has been heard about a W. P. A. project that has been going on here in Andover for some time, but it is one that in many ways has a basis of permanence behind it. The W. P. A. Leveling project finds its physical results in the placing of small bronze discs called bench marks in various places in the town. The theory behind them and their purpose is explained in the following report by supervisor F. Tyler Carlton:

Have you been wondering about the why and the wherefore of those bronze discs that so mysteriously sprout up in granite steps such as the Andover Savings Bank's? To date some fifty of these so called "Bench Marks" have been placed in the northeastern part of town. Some planted in ledge have just broken through the surface; others set in a concrete bound in grass plots are just below the sod, to be out of the way of the lawn-mower. These "benches," as they are known, are reference points which it is hoped will be permanent, the bronze disc being a means of identifying an exact spot. The disc is slightly convex so that it has a definite high spot; it is numbered for identity and indexing in the records. The general location of each bench is spotted on a map of the town kept by the Board of Public Works, and a record kept of the exact location by "tying in" the bench, that is designating it as so many feet from the near-by hydrant and so far from the north corner of such-and-such a house.

Having established and located a definite point which is not likely to settle or be heaved by the frost, the next step is to determine the elevation in relation to some datum or accepted base. Mean Sea Level is the now universally accepted datum and is defined as the level about which the tide oscillates. The United States Coast and Geodetic Survey has established tide gauge stations at which it takes hourly readings of tide heights. A series of these readings over a three year period will give the mean reading to within a quarter of an inch. A startlingly long period is necessary to eliminate the seasonal and incidental storm-caused variations. As early as 1879, the United States Coast and Geodetic Surveys ran a chain of precise levels across the continent. Twenty years later it was found that the leveling done up until then was in error due to the fact that the earth is an oblate spheroid. This necessitated an adjustment known as orthometric correction. This correction is not used in small areas such as Andover due to the fact that the greatest change would be only a few hundred-thousandths of a foot; much too fine an adjustment for the accuracy of the work. By 1929 such a large amount of leveling had been done that it was thought wise to make a new general adjustment. With the co-operation of the Geodetic Survey of Canada, 20,000 miles of its First-Order Levels were combined with 40,000 miles of the U.S. levels to form a new net, based on 21 tide stations in the U. S. and 5 in Canada.

The first attempt to place elevations in Massachusetts on a Mean-Sea-Level datum was in 1893 when a line was run by the Massachusetts Topographical Commission from Boston across the state to New York to connect with a U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey line previously run along the east side of the Hudson River. In 1923 and 1927 several other lines were run by the U. S. Coast and Geodetic in Massachusetts. In 1933 the original line from Springfield west was rerun and, in 1934 and 1935 other lines were extended into New Hampshire and Connecticut. In 1933 the Massachusetts Geodetic Survey was formed and has been criss-crossing and adding to these main lines.

Leveling, like all other human endeavors, has some error in it. The levels are classified as First, Second, or Third Order depending on the amount of error they contain. If we start with a certain point and run a chain, or series, of levels around a loop, eventually getting back to the starting point, the elevation obtained for that point at the end of the chain should be exactly the same as that at the start. If we come within .017 feet times the square root of the number of miles of the chain, it is called First-Order leveling. This allows about 7/32 of an inch higher or lower at the end of a one mile run, and about 5/16 of an inch for a two mile circuit. Second-Order work has to close within .04 feet times the square root of miles, or less than 1/2 inch in one mile and about 11/16 inch in two miles. The levels now being run in Andover are to be of this Second-Order accuracy.

A study of the laws governing the distribution of these accidental errors (known as the Method of Least Squares) shows that the number of errors that will probably remain uncompensated is equal to the square root of the total number of opportunities to err. With many loops, each with one or more sides in common, the corrections must be applied, not to the loops as a whole, but to the sections between the junction points. We thereby get a great many unknowns and an equal number of equations with square roots in them. These have to be solved simultaneously and the correction applied to each section of levels to obtain adjusted elevations. Simple nets of loops may have fifteen or twenty unknowns, more complicated nets (not necessarily larger) may have a hundred or more.

The Massachusetts Geodetic Survey has extended First-Order levels, based on Mean Sea Level at Boston, to various points in Andover. Two or more elevations are obtained by various routes for each bench mark. These are each (for First-Order work) true elevations correct within a half an inch, and when adjusted by Least Squares, to obtain the most probable average, give the correct elevation to within a quarter of an inch. The difference between the elevations of any two benches of First-Order in Andover is much less than that. Computations are carried to 1/10,000th of a foot and recorded to 1/1,000th, or about 1-64th of an inch. Second-Order benches are recorded to the most probable eighth of an inch.

About now you are asking why all this "hair splitting"; to whom and for what are the results of real value? The answer is this:—A series of bench marks accurately established comprise a control system upon which to base future engineering work. As a woven cloth is firmer than a snarl of yarn, so this new interconnected net of benches furnishes the strong foundation upon which engineers may develop new roads, sewers and water extensions. On a widely accepted datum, future work is not limited to Andover, but can, without additional calculations be readily coordinated with surrounding communities.

Summerizing Local News

Where IS everybody? Was a time when you'd walk up Main street and more or less have to weave in and out of pedestrian traffic; now all that Andover's seven pedestrians have to do is to find a way through the motor traffic headed for the rocks,—we mean The Rock.

Of course there are some who come here to help replenish the town census for a week or so—up from Raleigh, North Carolina, are Mrs. John S. Rhodes and children, John Flint and Joellen, visiting Mrs. Rhodes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Houghton Flint of Washington avenue... Mrs. Rhodes was Eleanor Flint... Elizabeth Douty, a nurse at the Salem hospital, is spending three weeks at her home on Salem street... Back from the Parkway hospital eager to receive visitors at her home at 93 Salem street is Marroy Dunn, appendectomized recently...

On the exodus side, Miss Harriet Newman of Elm street has been spending a few days visiting friends in East Barrington, N. H., and she is now, with Betty Whitney of Methuen, vacationing with her sister, Mrs. Guy Kneeland, in Mendon... up at Fortune's Rock, Biddeford, Me., are Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Broadhead and Mrs. Amy Bauman of High street... and lest we forget, at the insistence of 213 persons whose names the assistant editor has put in this column, we must state that Miss Elizabeth L. Buchan, assistant editor of the Townsman, is spending a week in Naples, Me., with Miss Helen Findeisen of Methuen and her golf clubs... up at Lake Winnepesaukee with the golf clubs that made a historic 62 at Portsmouth recently is Joe Wright of Hill Hardware.... Mr. and Mrs. John Erving of Salem street week-ended at Rye North beach, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greenwood and family and Mrs. Stanley V. Lane motored to Rye Sunday... Mrs. Harriet Marsh and Jaclyn Dunn motored to Wells beach on Tuesday... swinging up through New York state and on into Canada this week are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Allicon of Morton street on a two weeks' vacation, the second of which will be spent at Ocean Park, Maine... Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander and son Brian of 74 Summer street spent Sunday in the White Mountains...

Making hay while the sun shines at 90-100 degrees is Jeannette B. Reed of 3 Hidden road who received one of 200 degrees given out at B. U. Saturday. Jeannette made her Master of Arts degree in the Graduate school... we're very proud of another hay-maker at present: Warren Richardson, president of this year's Punchard graduating class and former Townsman correspondent, who has just been promoted to a sergeancy in the United States Army... he's stationed at the recruiting office in Boston...

Summer's heat doesn't stop people from buying houses... Wallace Brimer has bought Mrs. Nathalie Appleton's 10-room Colonial house with garage and three acres on Orchard street through the Fred E. Cheever real estate agency... the house that we said last week Edwin Bramley had bought on Elm street was in reality on Appletree Lane off Salem street...

Reeve Chipman, travel expert, is practicing what he preaches with a month's trip west...

Mr. and Mrs. James Sullivan of Temple place are enjoying their vacation on the Cape... Mrs. John MacKenzie of Balmoral street is vacationing with Mrs. Everett B. Mersereau of Lowell street at Milton, N. H., while Lieut. Mersereau of Lowell street is with the 182nd infantry at Potsdam, N. Y.... the MacKenzies have a nine-weeks-old Doberman Pinscher trying to replace their prize-winning Lady Margaret Fluga who died last week on a vacation trip to Maine... Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Donnell and Joan of Riverina road will leave for Seabrook next week where they will vacation until school opens... Grace Lake and Emma Stevens are on a two-weeks' trip to the West Coast... Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson spent the week-end at York Beach with Mr. Pearson's mother... May Elander of Elm street has been vacationing in Maine... James and Allan Trott spent the week-end at the World's Fair... Mr. and Mrs. Joe Higginson and Evelyn of Chestnut street are at Little Neck for a vacation...

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McDuffie, formerly of North Andover, are now Andoverites, residing on the Wood estate...

V. F. W. To Take Boys To Ball Game

About 55 boys from Andover will have an opportunity to see the Red Sox play the Washington Senators tomorrow afternoon, with the local V. F. W. post taking care of arrangements. A bus will leave the Musgrove building at one.

This is the first of a series of events planned by the post for the youth of Andover.

85 YEARS YOUNG

"Early to bed and early to rise" is a good motto according to Mrs. Edgar Wright of Lovejoy road who on Friday celebrated her 85th birthday. She is a very spry and healthy little person who spends a great many of her hours during the day in and about her flowers and vegetables. She has a large garden and as one friend put it, she couldn't find a weed in it.

The members of the Woman's union of the West church and friends tendered her a party on Friday on the lawn about her home. She received many cards and other gifts. About thirty were present to wish her many more happy birthdays. A very pretty birthday cake was the gift of Mrs. Carl Stevens. Refreshments were served.

Perkins Annexes Tennis Title

Stan Perkins of this town copped the Greater Lawrence tennis title Sunday when he defeated Roland Bretton of Lawrence in a four-set match. Both players, unseeded, had eliminated the seeded players in the early rounds.

Perkins got off to a 3 love lead in the first set but Bretton tied it up, with the latter finally winning 6-8. The second set was Perkins' easiest, with Bretton taking only three games. However the new champion found it hard going in the last, winning 7-5 and 6-4.

In the quarter finals Perkins had defeated Ralph Hadley, seeded number 2, and in the semi-finals he defeated James Garvey, seeded number 4. Warren Stanwood, 1937 champ who was seeded number 1, was defeated by Bretton in the quarter-finals and Warren Gauthier was Bretton's semi-final victim.

Swap Punches At Local Playgrounds

If there were no such things as tanks, airplanes, guns—if nations had to depend on hand-to-hand fighting—the United States could find its fittest subjects for a draft on the local playgrounds. Last Friday night at the Central and at Ballardvale our young men of various ages 'way up to 13 engaged in some keen fisticuffs, demonstrating their ability to stay with the best of 'em. Did you ever notice that Joe Louis has never dared visit Andover?

By pre-arrangement there were no decisions—and there were no knockouts.

At the Central playground the following pugs swapped punches:

YOUNG VISITOR HAS FIRST EXPERIENCE WITH BUSES AND BEACHES

In South Royalton, in the heart of Vermont, there are no busses and the seashore is so far away that it is quite possible that a little girl could grow up to be nine years old without having ridden on a bus and without having bathed in a real ocean. Such was the case of little Jean Leighton who came to visit Mr. and Mrs. William Simmons of 75½ School street three weeks ago. Since that time, Jean has ridden on so many busses that she has become quite nonchalant about hailing one and dropping her dime in the box that tinkles, and she has visited Revere, Salem Willows, Plum Island and several other beaches filling her eyes, nose and mouth with salt water so that she will remember what it's like long after she's returned to South Royalton one week hence.

Miss Leighton is very much impressed with our town and is enjoying her visit to the utmost, but her Vermont loyalty crops up every once in a while and she assures her new friends that South Royalton has lots of things that we don't have in Andover—well, quite a few things.

Draft Makes Little Difference To Cupid

We expected to find the marriage bureau in a bustle of activity; we expected to have to wait for hours before we could get a peek at the records to determine the exact increase in the number of marriages; as a matter of fact, we expected to see Mr. Winslow with forty or more assistants to take care of the extra work produced by the draft. We found none of these things so we've decided that the prevalent rumors are products of vivid imaginations.

However, we don't want to pretend that there hasn't been a slight increase. In June there were five more local marriages than there were last year and in July there were two more. July's total for 1940 having been only 15, and if Romance cares to make good the rumors this month, she will have to beat last year's record of 20 marriages for August.

Plane Common Sense

Is the United States Chamberlaining or Dilly-Daladiering at present? Are we proving that what the Totalitarians call the inefficiency of the Democracies is a necessary part of that system of government? With the Nazis unleashing savage attacks on England what are we doing to make it plain to the Nazis, in case they do win over England, that we are prepared to speak the only language they seem to be able to speak, in the event that their aspirations go beyond the British Isles?

Well, we've appropriated a lot of money for defense. Most of us were glad to have it appropriated, with the majority of us hoping that too much of it would not be wasted before January when we'll have a chief executive with a talent for managing instead of mis-managing things. And what has this accomplished? Pitiably little. Of course the President made a trip to inspect our defenses; so did Daladier. Everything's going fine, he reports. That's a habit he has developed in seven years of explaining away failures. Today we know, everybody who reads a newspaper knows, that the most important single branch of modern warfare is the airplane, and how, Mr. President, are we coming along in that branch? Is everything fine there?

This defense program involves a tremendous amount of business, and the President has consistently shown that he doesn't understand business. All he has to do is to get up and say: "We must have 50,000 planes, and equipment to produce 50,000 annually." But his magic wand doesn't work, because he doesn't understand business. Who is going to pay for the enormous plant expansion that is necessary? "Why, Business will pay for that, of course," says the President. Rugged individuals will come forth and pay to make permanent additions to their plants for something that we hope will be only temporary. Figure this investment into your cost? Of course, that's the thing to do. But the administration is going to take that money in the form of an excess profits tax, and when the crisis is over, you'll be left with a magnificent plant that folks will pass by and say: "Imagine him putting up a white elephant like that. What could he have been thinking of? No wonder his firm went broke."

And that is why we're slow on airplanes. The rest of America has learned in the last few years something that President Roosevelt hasn't: that National progress needs co-operation between Government, Business and Labor. Today National Safety needs the same thing, and President Roosevelt has proved that he's hardly the man to secure it.

"Our Day"

Take a pencil, preferably a red or blue one and if you don't have one of them, black will do—but make it heavy. Lift up the present leaf on your calendar, and around the number 17, third Tuesday in September, make a big circle. Make several big circles.

Then be sure your calendar is some place where you'll see it every morning. Put it in front of your alarm clock if necessary. And if you're not too sure that you'll keep looking at the calendar, ask your relatives, ask your friends, ask your fellow-workers to say to you, when September 17th comes: "BE SURE TO VOTE TODAY."

Of course it's a bit early for us to be hammering at this point, but we're going to keep hammering at it until September 12, our last issue before the primaries. Then no one can tell us, if everything does not go as it should, that it was our fault. But they can tell you, if you don't get out and vote.

Because we do want a representative. We've wanted one for fifteen long years. We didn't have a chance then; we do now. We'll realize something on that chance only if we realize that it's not the November election but the primary election that is of primary importance in the representative contest. For the last 15 years the September Democratic party primary has settled the fight for representative; for the next ten, the Republican party primary will settle that question in this new district. For unless there are some very, very unusual circumstances the three men who lead on the Republican ballots on September the seventeenth will be the men who will lead on the general ballot in November, the men who will represent us in the state legislature next year.

We've fussed and fumed these fifteen years. We've grumbled because we had no representative at the State House. If we still have cause to grumble at the lack of representation on September 18th and thereafter, the cause can be traced only to ourselves. We have a numerical opportunity; we have good local talent in the field; all we need now is enough people to be interested enough to get out and vote.

IN MEMORIAM

Alice Cleveland Carter

In these days when so many values are questioned it is with gratitude that we contemplate the life of Alice Carter who passed away this last week. She came to maturity with a rich equipment for service, and a full enjoyment of life, but even in her high school and college days there was some struggle with ill health, and before she had more than started her work, she was invalidated by the disease that restricted her more and more, until only her mind and heart were active and normal. Although she endured so much, I apologize to her for mentioning it. No friend, no matter how intimate, ever heard her speak of her suffering or disappointment, only through her family could you learn about her health. Her life was the embodiment of the love that never failed. She was deeply interested in her beloved brother's career that took him to far countries, and into world-wide situations. She loved to plan for the welfare of her sisters and their home. The cares, sorrows, and pleasures of her friends and neighbors were a vital interest for her. Her love of children was such that the visit of any child to her home was a keen delight. She loved books, but her mind was always turned outward to her friends. Her keen sense of humor gave many an awkward, or unpleasant situation an amusing turn.

She so lived in the lives and happiness of others that she became loveliness itself. Those who cared for her in her last days of weakness and pain loved her with the deepest devotion. Such a life cannot die, it is one with the eternal purpose of God.

Calls Cost Over
A Quarter Each

Outgoing calls to Lawrence or Andover on the controversial foreign exchange rate cost the subscriber 28.6 cents apiece, Shawsheen residents pointed out this week, for in reducing the foreign exchange rate from 1.20 to $1.00 per quarter mile, the state utilities commission made a limit of 70 calls. The total monthly bill is around $19-20.

A rate established in 1932 for Andover allows 50 calls monthly to Andover or Lawrence for $3.00, but it differs from the foreign exchange rate in that persons in the Lawrence district have to pay the toll charge to the $3.00 customers but not to the $19 customers.
