AMERICAN HEROES

by WOODY COWAN

A LIBERTY SHIP has been named for James G. Squires of Everett, Mass., second cook on the torpedoed S. S. Malantic, and a Merchant Marine Distinguished Service Medal awarded posthumously. Squires clung to a rope thrown to the life boat in which he, the ship's master and nine other crewmen floated on rough seas until the other ten were safe on a British rescue craft after the torpedoing. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness and was swept away. Investment in Victory Bonds to support living heroes is a testimonial, too, to such men.

There's no mistaking sure hands

In sowing or milking or in any other farm activity, there's no mistaking the work of capable, sure hands. It's the same in all the specialized branches of the telephone industry. For example, only experience can bring results like this: In a recent survey among New England farmers, 84% of those questioned described the quality of telephone service as "good" or "excellent." That same know-how has developed top-notch military communications for American fighting forces all over the world.

We hold to these high standards in the farm program for New England. We intend to keep them as we resume rural telephone development.

Right now, we are planning how to adapt the latest technical improvements and newest methods to the farm telephone needs expressed by New England farmers themselves. For this job, we are relying on practical telephone men of long experience . . . men who have built and maintained good service in the past.

LIBRARY NOTES

Not all music lovers can be performers and even they include many who perform solely for their own enjoyment. But all music lovers, performers and listeners alike can add vastly to their pleasure in music through books of musical history and interpretation. Musical biography is a rich field which offers beyond the musical background of the periods covered, interesting characterizations of great musical personalities. The Library has, too, a small collection of musical scores, mostly for piano but with a few collections for voice and violin.

Music in Western Civilization

Lang
 The author in his introduction says that he has addressed himself to "those lovers of music who combine enjoyment of their art with a curiosity as to all that goes to form a part of their intellectual estate." The book is an invaluable source of musical knowledge and is at the same time "a chronicle of music in the making of western civilization."

What To Listen For In Music

Copland
 Mr. Copland discusses the three planes of listening—the sensual, the expressive and the sheerly musical and the general purpose of his book is to give the average listener enough of an initiation into the mysteries of composition to make him able to listen to music with pleasure and profit.

The Real Jazz

Panassie
 "A brief, clear account of the origin and style of jazz followed by a full discussion of many interpreters and a long list of records."

The Unashamed Accompanist

Moore
 The author feels that the art of accompanying has been too little appreciated and his general purpose in writing the book has been to induce more piano students to take up accompanying for their careers or for their pleasures and to arouse more interest in and to show the importance of accompanying in order that enjoyment of good music may be increased.

Musical Scene

Thomson
 Highly personal criticism of the present-day musical scene by one who is himself a composer of merit.

A Little Night Music

Johnson
 Humorous essays on the making of amateur music which will be read with pleasure and understanding by all who have ever engaged in that hazardous pastime.

The Record Book

Hall
 A music-lover's guide to the world of phonograph music. Also of interest is the JAZZ RECORD BOOK, compiled by Ramsey and Smith.

Rise To Follow

Spalding
 Written with honesty, gaiety and charm, it is a fascinating picture of one of America's leading violinists, beginning with an account of his early musical training and ending with an account of a concert in prewar Hungary.

Garbage Lesson

The second Monday in March is still quite a few Mondays away, but if anybody is planning to present any proposition to the town meeting this coming year, it might be well to start thinking of it right away. Events of the last few months have demonstrated that it takes more than just a desire and an appropriation to translate something into actual fact.

Last March we voted for garbage removal. Now, as September comes to its closing days, not one person in Andover has had the town collect one single scrap of garbage. In March the town meeting obviously wanted very much to start town collection of garbage, and the vote was very overwhelming. The sentiment was so keen, indeed, that as something of a corollary, the town's tercentenary program was defeated, for there were many in the meeting who resented the shunting aside of the garbage appropriation by the finance committee and the approval of the celebration fund. So now here we are with a war over, no anniversary planned, and no garbage collected.

The finance committee disapproved the garbage appropriation on the grounds that there was insufficient information available, and this did burn people up, because they felt that sufficient information should have been available. But the burden of proof must necessarily be on the persons submitting a proposition, for the finance committee cannot sit down months beforehand and try to conjure up what plans may be forthcoming at town meetings. Nor is it that committee's job to line up specifications, compute costs, etc. Possibly the committee could have saved itself some castigation if in its report it had been somewhat more verbose, and explained that the principal proponent of the plan had no idea of just whose garbage was to be collected. As it turned out, however, the town did want its garbage collected and it felt that those who submitted the article in the warrant had looked into the problem more than they apparently did.

But possibly it will all turn out right in the end. Eventually our garbage will be collected by the town. There can be another gain for the town, however, if only those who want certain things done will remember that they must in fairness present a complete report to the finance committee beforehand. The time to start is now; next February will be too late.

Long, 33 Strathmore road, Methuen, at a candlelight ceremony held Sunday evening at 7:30 in the South church. Rev. Frederick B. Noss, pastor, officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with fitted bodice and gathered tulle skirt with train. Her fingertip veil was caught up with orange blossoms, and she carried a white prayer book with a cascade bouquet of white roses and stephanotis. The maid of honor was Miss Lillian Lovely, an intimate friend of the bride, and she wore a blue gown of taffeta and tulle and Juliette cap. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and delphinium. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Edith Crosby, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Ruth Holt, intimate friend, wore matching gowns of peach taffeta with tulle skirts and Dutch caps of peach net. They carried army bouquets of talisman roses. Mary Margaret Forrest, niece of the bridegroom, was a flower girl, and she wore a light blue taffeta and tulle gown with sweetheart bonnet and carried a colonial bouquet.

The groom was attended by David Long, his brother.

The bride's mother wore a black gown with gold trimmings and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Long wore a royal blue crepe dinner gown with silver trimming and a corsage of red roses.

THIS TIME IT'S HOME FOR KEEPS!

A veteran who can come back to a real home has something to tie to, a great help in readjustment to civilian life. Our institution, too, can be of help in many ways, including assistance in owning a home, existing or planned. We'd like to discuss this or any other homecoming problem with veterans, whether or not the solution appears to be within our power, and regardless of whether any remuneration to the bank is involved. Returning service men are cordially invited to drop in, if only to be welcomed back.

Purity Cleansers Open Plant Here

A new cleansing and dyeing company, with all the processes being carried on here, has gone into operation recently, with the opening of the Purity Cleansers' shop and plant at 13 Essex street near the theater. The firm, operating since 1941 in Lawrence, will be able to furnish three-hour service, which had been a war casualty.

Saverio Santone had been associated with the cleansing business for a decade before he opened his shop on Newbury street in Lawrence in 1941. Later he moved to larger quarters on Lawrence street, and he also has a store at 183 South Union street.

The concern was doing its own finishing but the actual cleansing was being done out of town on a contract basis. Mr. Santone, in an effort to give faster service, finally managed to purchase enough machinery to start the new plant, although war restrictions were a hindrance for a while.

Joseph Fasulo, who has been in the business for 25 years, is in charge of operations and spotting at the local plant. Ralph Santone superintends the machinery. Mary Trainor is bookkeeper.

The building was entirely remodeled and repaired. The equipment includes three washers, two extractors, two tumblers, filter machinery, steam-heated drying cabinet, electric-steam iron, steam presses, etc. The plant is spotlessly clean, and all the machinery is very modern.

WEDDING

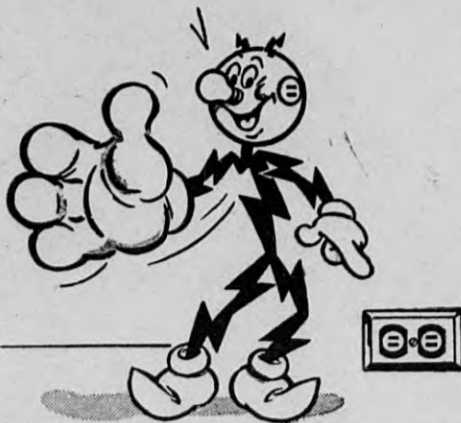

McTernen—Patterson

Lieutenant (j.g.) Marie E. Patterson, WAVES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Patterson of Farmerville, La., became the bride of Lieutenant Malcolm Bodwell McTernen, Jr., U. S. N. R., son of Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm B. McTernen of 27 Wolcott avenue, at an afternoon ceremony held in the Navy Chapel at the Philadelphia Navy Yard on Wednesday, September 12.

The bride was attended by Lt. (j.g.) Eda Grupen, WAVES, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and best man for the bridegroom was Lt. Claude W. Wiley, U. S. N. R., of Chazey, N. Y.

A reception for the families and close friends followed the ceremony.

GLAD TO MEET YOU...
LANDLORD!

What do I mean by calling YOU my "landlord"? Well, whether you realize it or not, probably you own at least part of the powerhouse where I'm hard at work turning out electric power at even less than low prewar prices.

You see, it's this way. Even if you haven't invested money directly in the electric industry, chances are you DO have a savings account or insurance policy. And that's enough to make you one of my "landlords," for your bank or insurance company invests some of your money in sound, business-managed electric companies. IN FACT, the electric light business is owned by MORE people in all walks of life than any other business in America!
