Mayor and Mayoress Attending All Tercentenary Events Find Time To Be "Just Good Neighbors"

Arriving in the United States Wednesday night by the Lisbon Clipper, Mayor George D. Young and Mayoress Maud Sainsbury of Andover, England were in Andover Thursday morning for the Memorial services in the auditorium. Throughout the four day celebration of the 300th birthday of the town, the honored guests were present at each event and in their spare time toured Andover and surrounding territories to form a lasting impression to be shared with their townspeople of an allied country which they had never before visited. On Sunday morning, they attended the South Congregational church to hear the historical sermon delivered by Rev. Frederick B. Noss on the town's first church and Sunday afternoon, the mayoress was feted by a tea in her honor at the home of Miss Marguerite Hearsey, principal of Abbot academy. Directly following the Pageant on Friday afternoon an informal reception was tendered the couple in the auditorium when townspeople were charmed by their natural friendliness.

But in spite of their full days of seeing, meeting and wining the friendship of all who met them, the Mayor and Mayoress found time to be just neighborly and on Thursday night slipped away unattended to pay a visit to a veteran who had represented Andover, Mass., in Andover, England during the war.

Irving J. Whitcomb and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Montie Z. Whitcomb, were happily surprised and honored when a knock at their door announced the arrival of the distinguished guests who came bearing a personal message from Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Allen of Andover, England. A prominent citizen and business man of our cousin-town, Mr. Allen had been instrumental in getting Irving, then a technical sergeant in the U. S. Army Signal Corps, to attend a ceremony in honor of Councilor and Mrs. S. R. Bell in Andover, England, August 2, 1944. Mr. Bell had served as Mayor during the years 1939-1943 a term longer than is customarily accorded the office, and had retired high in the esteem of the townspeople and considered one of the most outstanding men ever to hold the honorable position.

Reviewing the Parade

Mr. Allen had inaugurated the idea of having an Andover, Mass., representative present at the public event and entertained Mr. Whitcomb at his home upon the occasion. It was natural then, in corresponding with Mr. Allen that Irving should include a program of our Tercentenary program which arrived just before the present Mayor and Mayoress were leaving England. It was natural, too, that Mr. Allen should sit down and pen a letter to be delivered by the visitors and it was this that prompted their unannounced arrival at the Whitcomb home on Thursday.

It read:

Dear Mr. Whitcomb:

Thank you very much for your letter and greetings. We were glad to hear of you again and to know that you are well.

The Mayor and Mayoress are thrilled at the prospect of being with you next week and were delighted to read of the programme which you sent me. They are taking this letter and will, I hope, be able to deliver it to you personally.

We hope that you have good weather and that your celebrations are an enormous success.

Our kindest regards to you;

Yours sincerely,

B. S. Allen

Mayor Young and Mayoress Sainsbury sat down to have a cozy chat after delivering the message and told of their transatlantic flight that made the distance between the two towns seem short. Mostly they talked of our houses, the well-cut green lawns, the wooden structures, the central heating systems which seemed to "pour out just a bit too much heat," and the "netting" on all the windows.

The charming visitors left with a reply to Mr. and Mrs. Allen and expressed the hope that a further exchange of visitors would be possible in the future.

To the town, the Mayor and Mayoress presented a scroll bearing the red seal of the English borough and resolutions adopted at a special meeting in their guild hall honoring Andover, Mass., upon its Tercentenary observance. This was presented to the selectmen during the neighborly visit which so completely fulfilled the wish on the scroll that "this bond of friendship shall continued and be strengthened in the future."

300 Years of History In One Afternoon

To quote the Mayoress of Andover, England who in a few words summed up the general impressiveness of the pageant presented by all the local schools on Friday afternoon, "I learned more about your country's history in one afternoon than I have learned all my life — and your delightful children!"

Andover's historical background which also typifies the historical background of our country was enfolded in picturesque scenes against a naturalistic background of green. The playstead was at the height of the season's beauty and the sun was hot and bright on the eager spectators proudly watching the children of eleven schools and academies relive the store of Andover's progress. Each school had been assigned to depict certain chapters in the town's history with only a few weeks to organize, practice and procure costumes. Never had such a tremendous undertaking been attempted by a composite group of schools ranging from first graders through high school and academy students, and from the size of the two blackened savages taking part in Phillips academy's dramatization of the Missionary Movement, the talent scouts had even gone into the nursery and come out with two tiny "naturals" who needed no coaching in the fine art of acting. Never had the individual scenes been rehearsed in the setting of the playstead. Never had a complete rehearsal of the integral production been held. Never had the efficient stage crew in their boy scout uniforms had an opportunity to practice each change of scenery, what trees to uproot, what props to put where and never had the "nevers" been so inconspicuous in a completed production as they were Friday afternoon.

To choose some from the scenes and episodes upon which to enlarge would be the height of unfairness as each well composed young actor or actress played the individual part "just right" and each scene had individual importance only in that it was part of the whole picture.

At the opening of the dramatization, the procession on to the field was preceded by the Punchard All Girl Band, a group from which a superb performance can always be expected and which has become in its short years of existence under the capable directorship of Miss Miriam Sweeney, a town institution. Then came the long lines of hundreds of school children, some wearing the costume of their ancestors, some painted and wearing the brown garb of the Indians that once peopled "Cochicewicke," some wearing uniforms of our Armed Forces from the French and Indian War through World War II and some dressed in their present day school clothes, some walking, some riding in the bicycle brigade and one fortunate young man a-horseback, but all were

— THE BIG PARADE —

Andover's 4-day celebration of 300 years of settlement and progress was opened with one of the longest and most colorful parades in our town's history. A last of the fire signal was the GO signal to the hundreds of people amassed on Elm and its intersecting streets that the time of march had arrived. The procession led by Lionel Boulanger, Andover's only amputee whose sacrifice of a leg in the Italian campaign made him the ranking war veteran in a town which welcomes the return of hundreds from the Armed Forces, proceeded down Main street lined with townspeople and visitors of all ages who cheered and clapped as each service group, band, float and fire apparatus passed.

Andover's stores and buildings were colorfully decked in flags and bunting while the throngs of spectators waved balloons, flags and pinwheels from their positions in the windows on the roofs and from the sides of the streets. The bands burst into marches, fire whistles shrieked and the bright tartens of the kilties swung with each rhythmic step.

On foot were the State Guard Company, the Veterans of Foreign Wars bearing signs of the famous battles in which the members had participated, the V. F. W. auxiliary color bearers, the American Legion, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Boy Scouts with the massed colors of Allied nations, the Cost Guard Auxiliary band, the Scotch pipers, the West Roxbury Brass band, the Andover Brass band and the Punchard High School Girls' band.

Represented by floats of a historical or military nature were the American Veterans of World War II with a large AMVET seal, the town of Andover with its seal and an Indian smoking a peace pipe, the Service club with a large birth-grinning and waving at the audience as they passed.

Once the gay group had marched to its place, the crowds not seated on the bleachers or chairs rushed to the green in front of the stage upon the invitation of the narrator whose only stipulation was that the audience stay seated. Unfortunately the back rows found it difficult to see and from time to time rose to half sitting or kneeling positions cutting off the view of the audience in the folding chairs in front of the bleachers until Mervin Stevens was forced to interrupt his story-telling to further admonish "and keep it way down."

The story began with the aborigines settlement and described the development of the town, its farming and industries, its religious and educational progress, its government and system of town meeting, its contributions to the military might of the country in its fight for freedom and the democratic day cake, the Red Cross Nurses' aides and the Red Cross administering to the wounded, the National Bank representing Washington's breakfast in the Issac Abbot tavern, the Amercian Woolen Company with a model of a colonial kitchen, the Camp Eaton Girl Scouts with bows and arrows in a woodland setting, the Shawsheen Womans club depicting their own 25th birthday, the American Legion auxiliary representing the first Thanksgiving, the moth department trucks with their decorations of greens and trees, the American Legions interpretation of the flag raising at Iwo Jima, the Tyer Rubber company with models wearing the company's war and peacetime products, the Andover Grange with a beautifully laid out garden, St. Augustine's with school children dressed in white characterizing For God and Country, The League of Women Voters with a voting booth indicating Your Vote Is Your Power, Abbot academy and Marland private school with representative floats and fire apparatus of all description representing the old and the new ways of fire fighting with equipment from Andover, Tewksbury, Wilmington, Wakefield, Salem, Lynfield, Woburn, Lawrence, Reading, Stoneham, North Reading, Methuen, North Andover and the State Forest Service. The regular Army entered anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns, a search light and service trucks from Fort Banks.

The reviewing stand set up in front of the Red Cross headquarters was peopled with Gold Star mothers, Andover residents of eighty or over who had been invited by the town to a place on the stand, members of the Tercentenary committee, town officials and distinguished visitors including Mayor George D. Young and Mayoress Sainsbury of Andover, England.

way of life, and even some of the skeletons were brought out of the closet in the portrayal of the witchcraft trials of 1693. The closing of the pageant came with the representatives of World War I passing on the torch to the representatives of World War II during the recitation of "In Flanders Fields" with a final grouping of the military and other pageant characters around the white robed characterizations of Peace, Liberty and Justice.

The pageant was in itself a culmination of the educational progress of the town showing the ability of the young people, the success of the system under which they are trained that made possible the colossal production combining efforts of teachers and pupils and necessitating the close co-operation of all town public schools, the parochial school and the two academies besides the contributions of many townspeople. It could indeed be viewed with pride.

Dress Up Main Street, Permanently

Didn't the Main street business houses look grand, dressed up in all the gay bunting over the holidays?

Shouldn't they look grand all the time? Shouldn't our Main street be a place of beauty, a modern model business center instead of a place that still smacks of the late 1800's?

The reasons for the almost decadent antiquity of Main street are many, and the many are mostly money.

One reason is the town house. Anybody who can say a word of praise for it must feel in the back of his mind that he's really kidding himself. It's a disgrace to a community like Andover; let's face that fact, and get rid of the thing as soon as we can. And we can soon; let's not put it off any longer.

Another reason is the lack of willingness on the part of the landlords who own most of the street to improve their property. With their co-operation most of the merchants could have much better-looking premises than they now have. Lessees deserve something besides the privilege of paying their rent.

The local merchant can't do it all by himself. His finances are pretty well limited in most cases here on Main street. He doesn't dare venture too far in the way of providing a smart modern-looking front, or an up-to-date interior. It costs money, and that is the type of an investment which will pay itself back, but not fast enough for the limited finances of the local merchant.

He needs co-operation from his landlord, he needs co-operation from his bank, he needs co-operation from you. He's not just a dinky small-town merchant; he's your neighbor, trying to make an honest living, and more willing to serve you than any big-shot merchant in a bigger community. You know you call him at all hours of the day or night—and you shouldn't. You wouldn't call the big-time merchant. You know when you go into his store, you ask for him personally, when a clerk could serve you just as well. A dozen of eggs, a round of nails, a tube of shaving cream—any clerk can get those for you; don't take up the boss's time. Let him spend his time on other things, so that at night he won't finally have to drag himself home so doggoned tired that he can't think of improving his store. Support him; give him every bit of business you can. He's your merchant; it's your town. If we work together, Main street won't need any bunting to look beautiful.

Hard Work and a Good Job

Well, it wasn't too bad a celebration, after all was it? In fact, even though the committee every once in a while proffered an apology because of the shortness of time that they had in which to prepare, there was no need for apologies. The shortness of time made the feat an even more remarkable one.

The committee deserves a lot of credit, but all those who participated deserve credit, too. It meant a great deal of hard work, very hard work, on the part of everyone who was involved in the program. To mention any would be to neglect many. Without the whole-hearted co-operation of all, the observance would not have been the memorable one that it was.

When Is IT Coming Out?

No definite date can be set for the publication of The Townsman's Tercentenary book at present. Realizing that it is a volume which will last a long time, the publisher is desirous of making it just as perfect as it can be, and that takes time. No corners will be cut in its production. Later a definite time can be announced.

The Tercentenary pictures taken for the book were excellent, and many will be reproduced. There still remain some pictures to be taken on the life in Andover in the 1946 series. Some club histories are still outstanding, and anyone who has material of this nature should communicate it at once to The Townsman office. We are still accepting old pictures of persons or activities of long ago, long ago.

To produce the book in a rush would be a mistake; every effort is being made to make it as good a book as the Town of Andover deserves.

BELONG OF THE ON!

Twenty Manufacturers Exhibit in Enlightening Display of Town Industries

The gym was transformed into a "little Andover" during the four days of the Anniversary celebration, with over twenty industries participating in a way representative of each one's own individual activities and interests.

Greeting the eye of the visitor, there opened out a varied and colorful panorama of carefully prepared exhibits, ranging from the stuffed toy animals to a rubber bridge pontoon capable of displacing 860 tons of water.

On the right upon entering was the Watson Park Company, consisting of several attractively - arranged cabinets containing an array of bottles, test-tubes and solutions, used in the various stages of the production of textile soaps and compounds.

Next to this, Conry Leather Company had several groups of real leather cuttings, almost $\frac{1}{4}$ " thick, which would eventually be used in the production of shoes.

From here, one could pass into a replica of the vault at the Andover National Bank, interestingly hung with many pictures of historical Andover. This exhibit consisted of two small rooms, with tellers' windows, vault doors and gates cleverly reproduced on the walls. The bank was also celebrating the 120th anniversary of its founding.

Tate Pipe Linings had an exhibit of the various machinery used in the manufacture of equipment used in cleaning out and relining water mains, etc.

In front of this exhibit was that of Harry Stephenson, which consisted of a large machine used in the manufacture of textile machinery and appliances.

P. W. Moody Company, manufacturers of cotton batting, showed the inside of a satin puff, filled with the batting which they produce in Ballardvale.

A table full of adorable stuffed toys and animals made by the Charlotte Marland Gift Shop attracted the youngsters to that corner of the room. These toys are sold to gift shops and candy stores all over the state.

The Colonial Spinning Mills, Inc., had on display a sample of grey jersey cloth, and jars of other textile materials made by them.

Washable chalk was the feature of the Walbuck Crayon Company exhibit. And in case you didn't believe these very colorful chalks were washable, there was a basin of water and a cloth right there to prove it. Molding clay was given away, as many a housewife can testify.

The Townsman Press booth had as its main attraction a Ludlow Typecasting machine in operation, showing one way that type is set. Many people had their names set in a slug as a souvenir of the anniversary, and were able to better understand the intricacies of printing.

The next exhibit was, perhaps, the most attractive and colorful, and certainly it was the largest. This was the American Woolen Company, which was set up to look like a very large store window, with huge bolts of yarn as a rainbow background for several models dressed in garments of the smartest creations, made from cloth manufactured by the American Woolen Company. Woolly red and green lambs "gamboling on the green" had a double meaning, the wool from real sheep, spun and dyed, covering their plaster bodies. The whole exhibit was set around by a small white picket fence, and claimed the very center of the circle of exhibits.

The Andover Press had a group of classbooks which they have produced on display, and these, as well as the three- and four-color pictures which provided a background for their exhibit proved very interesting.

It would be impossible to describe everything in the exhibit of the Town of Andover, and it would take great length of time to examine the many old records, historical documents, etc., that were on display. Some newspapers from the town of Andover, England were apropos, and a souvenir button from the 50th anniversary celebration, the design of which was that which is now on the town seal, under glass, attracted much attention. There were many other things of historical interest too numerous to mention.

The Brunelle Ice Cream Company exhibit made everyone wish that there was an ice-cream stand right on the spot, with its mouth-watering displays and decorations.

Robbie's Fur Shop, which does remodeling and restoring as well as selling of fur coats displayed the process of fur coat making with genuine animal pelts, and a coat in the process.

The public schools also had an engaging exhibit of work done by the pupils in the homemaking, arts and crafts and other departments, as well as a boat made in the Adult study group.

The Tyer Rubber exhibit which banked the west wall was most enlightening, as well as educational. The "star" of this exhibit was a huge rubber pontoon used in the construction of pontoon bridges by the Army in the European and other theaters of war. This pontoon was capable of displacing 860 tons of water when inflated. So many other products were on display that it would be impossible to mention them all, but the general public, so long estranged from rubber, noted with interest the rubber boots, overshoes, elastic bands, and rubber-soled sneakers, as well as the skate-scabbards and hockey pucks. Several types of rubber in the original form were shown, including a piece of "crepe" rubber, which we can remember on the soles of shoes before the war.

The Marland Mills exhibit consisted of several types of very attractive plaid cloth, and smartly dressed models, the clothes, of course, being made from Marland Mills woolen cloth. This exhibit also represented a store window and was very colorful.

Hardy Brush Company had several large brushes on display, and especially interesting was a huge cylindrical nylon brush.

Nearing the door once more, the last exhibit was that of Tasco Craftsman, showing a variety of fishing spoons and spinners, as well as an Atomic top, the action of which is very fast and startling.

This completed an exhibit that to most Andoverites was a revelation in itself to find so many and varied industries in a town not classed as "industrial"—industries that they never knew existed in their own home town.

Lt. Col. Allen Substitutes For Dr. Stearns In Stirring Memorial Day Address

The first Memorial service since the conclusion of the war was attended by a pitifully small group of veterans and townspeople Thursday morning in Memorial auditorium.

In the fact of this manifestation of forgetfulness, Lt. Col. Philip K. Allen, veteran of World War II, delivered his address of remembrance reprinted for the benefit of those who missed his stirring message.

Lt. Col. Philip Allen, who began his Army career as a private, was a substitute speaker in place of Dr. Alfred E. Stearns who was taken ill suddenly on Tuesday and although emergency penicillin treatment was administered at the Phillips House in Boston, his condition was not sufficiently improved to allow his taking part in the Memorial service. Prior to his military service, Lt. Col. Allen was a teacher at Phillips academy and is now associated with veterans' rehabilitation at Harvard University.

Mayor George Donald Young and Mayoress Maud Sainsbury of Andover, England, arrived in time to attend the service and were seated on the platform as guests of honor. Representatives of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars were also seated on the stage with the board of selectmen and members of the Tercentenary committee.

Commander Arthur E. Steinert of Post 8, American Legion introduced the speakers and William J. Hulse, V. F. W., placed the memorial wreath at the foot of the Colors. Rev. Leverett Reynolds, pastor of the Free Christian church, gave the invocation and Rev. Frederick B. Noss, pastor of the South church, pronounced the benediction.

"Will they remember

The umbrella and the Munich paper,
The rubble that was Rotterdam,
The dazed look on women's faces,
The little Caesar who thought the world was his?

"Will they remember

The treeless hills of Italy,
The graveyards of the tanks and trucks on sandy reaches,
The rusting hulks, naked, dead, in the washing tide,
The blasted roads and bridges on foreign soil?

"Will they remember

The calm and peaceful Sunday afternoon,
The drone of planes,
The frenzy of defense so weak, so pitifully brave,
The dead and dying with questions in their eyes?

"Will they remember

The stench on coral islands in the sea,
The painful halting wall of dying men,

The flaming body of the nameless screaming son of heaven,

The crawling wakes of foaming white pointing toward the shore?
"Will they remember

The raising of the colors on that bomb-scarred rock,

The reaching fingers and the wind in the folds,

The promise of future victory,
The promise of lasting peace?

These things they must remember
The peoples of the world.

These things they must remember
When peace comes to the world.

These things they must remember these things they will remember."

"This is not just another Memorial Day. Since May 30, 1941 the last time an occasion of this kind was observed with the country at peace, close to 250,000 American boys have been killed and another 760,000 temporarily or permanently disabled fighting for their country. This town — like countless others throughout our nation — has given its full share; there are at least fifty young men of Andover who will never come back.

"Already this nation and this town are well on the way to forgetting these facts. The every-day problems of getting meat, butter, and nylons are rapidly crowding out the larger issues. Many people who, two years ago, were desperately concerned with the war news each day now find their memories of that struggle dim and vague. And if this is true of World War II, how much vaguer must be our recollections of World War I?

"This tendency is not a surprising one. It is but natural that the normal human interests of family, home, friends, and job should eclipse world issues. There are few people with imagination enough to keep ever before their eyes the larger question involving human beings beyond their immediate horizons. Yet these men whom we honor here this morning had no choice but to act — and to die — for these larger issues. They had no chance — as we do — to choose their home, their friends, their job. They were obliged, by the cruel necessity of war, to sacrifice their future hopes and desires for millions of people whom they had never seen. Only those of you here this morning who have actually lost your flesh and blood can know what this means. The rest of us can be sympathetic and neighborly, but we can never really understand. Yet we can try — for a few moments — to remember that these men will NEVER return; that we must stand forever in their debt.

"If we should attempt to imagine what they would want from us, what would it be? No one, of course, will ever know. Still, and I speak in all humility,

I believe there are certain fundamental attitudes that they would approve.

"These men loved Andover. They would want their town to be a place where all men would have a chance to live in peace and security, to work at their chosen occupation in dignity, to build a home and raise a family in pride and self-respect. They would resent petty animosities, snobbery, and self-interest among their fellow townsmen.

"These men loved America. They would want their country to be a place where the government was the servant, not the master, of the people; where an alert citizenry insisted upon the frank acceptance of the country's responsibility to other nations; where race, creed, or political belief had no weight in determining a man's fitness for positions of responsibility. They would resent action against the common welfare on the part of either labor or management, the reappearance of organizations like the Ku Klux Klan, a timid and vacillating Congress, and a general unwillingness to put the best interests of the country ahead of those of private individuals.

"These men wanted freedom for all men. They were willing to leave their homes and their country to fight for freedom in foreign lands. They would want a world where national interests were made secondary to those of peace, where jealousy and suspicion among peoples would yield to mutual confidence and trust, where an organization of nations would be thought so important that the peoples of the world would not allow their statesmen to consider any alternative. They would resent the prospect of hundreds of thousands of Europeans starving while America fattened on surplus food. They would deplore the unwillingness of this country to see its armed forces strong enough to fulfill its commitments abroad. And they would be ashamed of a tendency in America to return to the false God of Isolationism; to forget that America is one of a family of nations.

"Above all, these men would want to be remembered. They would want to be remembered, not as mere names on some memorial plaque, but as men who had lived and died faithful to something bigger than themselves. As we think of them this morning, may be rededicate ourselves to the great work which still remains."

The national anthem was played by the Punchard high school girls band under the direction of Miss Miriam Sweeney and the Andover Male Choir directed by J. Everett Collins sang two selections.

Members of the veterans organizations and their auxiliaries massed their colors in front of the Legion rooms on with other veterans Park street.

FRASER MAKES RECORD TIME IN BIKE RACES

A chill wind and rain greeted the bicycle racers who met at the starting line in Ballardvale for their three mile wheel to Andover playstead. The riders fourteen years and under were in the majority and started enmasse a half an hour before the senior age group. Finishing first was George Fraser of 68 Magnolia avenue with a record time of 10½ minutes. Ray Collins of 35 Summer street and R. Stephani of 244 South Main street came a close second and third respectively.

Roger Dee was the only rider who finished the race for boys fifteen years and older with a time of 11 minutes. The winners were presented commemorative medallions by Bernard L. McDonald, member of the Tercentenary committee of the sports sub-committee.

Junior High Defeats Methuen C. in 6th Win

Junior High easily defeated Methuen by a score of 14 to 7 at Methuen on last Monday. Lloyd led the batting attack for Andover with a perfect day, hitting 4 for 4 and also a well-placed sacrifice. Muise was next with 3 for 4 and Deveaux and Jowett each got 2 for 4. Herbie Deveaux had by far the longest hit of the game. It went past Lister in right field and Deveaux, who is a fast runner, made a triple out of the hit. Lister threw over the third baseman's head and Deveaux, without stopping, scored.

Bernard, Silva, and Berwick led Methuens batting. Craig went all the way for Andover as did Krauss for the losers.

Field Day will probably be held some time next week. Much interest will be shown in the competition because the race for the cup is very close.

Johnson Defeats P. H. S. In Tercentenary Game

Although Punchard got off to a strong start against Johnson on the playstead diamond Thursday afternoon following the Tercentenary parade, the North Andover nine took over the lead in the 6th inning and maintained the top score throughout the remaining innings. Punchard recovered in the last of the 8th with two runs but the game dragged to a close with the blue team only 9 to Johnson's 16.

Johnson scored two runs in the 1st with Punchard retaliating with 5 in the 2nd. Neither team scored in the 3rd or 4th but Johnson brought home two in the 5th. Punchard's two runs in the 6th were not enough to offset Johnson's five and although Johnson scored seven more runs in the 7th and 8th, Punchard continued to dwindle with only two more to her credit.

George Lee, Johnson's coach, and Kenneth McKiniry, Punchard scheduled the game in cooperation with the Tercentenary committee's sports program and a large crowd filled the playstead bleachers and overflowed to the side lines. Andover Servicemen's Fund association members and helpers went among the spectators with their wares of peanuts, cold tonics, ice cream and novelties adding a festive atmosphere to the occasion. The crowd fell away as the Punchard team slowed up adding to the attendance at the industrial exhibit in the high school gymnasium.

The baseball game scheduled for Saturday afternoon at Brother's field was rained out.

Track Letter

Mr. Greeley at Salt Lake City

Mr. Greeley has now turned back to the East, having left California, and he writes us from Salt Lake City, Utah as follows:

"After staying three full weeks in California, we spent three days in the Yosemite National Park, the place where the redwood forest is. So far this was the nicest part of our trip, both for rest and sight-seeing. You have seen pictures of the tree that is so big that the road goes right through it. Anna was driving and she drove right through it with plenty of room on both sides of the car.

"The largest of these trees are named for the states of the Union. When we came to the tree that was named for Massachusetts, we found that it had fallen in 1927. There are steps and a platform built into it for people to go up and walk the length of it. There it lay on May 23rd, half covered with snow."

YOU might not think that football was back, with May on its way to June, but football is always back. It has few intermissions now from

Grantland Rice

January to January, when you pack in spring practice and the never-ending flow of football talk. I found this true again on a recent jaunt through the Southeast where record squads were busy at spring practice in Florida, Georgia, Alabama and the Carolinas.

Many of these practice delegations ran from 125 to 175 men. The early enthusiasm, even under blazing suns, was far beyond normal.

I ran into Wally Butts, Georgia's coach, who coyly admitted his 1946 Bulldogs would be better than fair.

"We had no line last fall," Wally said, "but we have a good line now and with Trippi on hand for the backfield, plus a few more, we hope to be ready for Alabama and Oklahoma A. and M., to mention only two. Also L.S.U."

In the meanwhile Alabama and Oklahoma A. and M. are facing the chance of losing Harry Gilmer and Bob Fenimore, two All-America stars. The beckoning finger of the army draft has called both for a physical test. These two have been in the 4-F class the last two seasons. But if they are taken, there can be no replacements to match their worth. Alabama has a great squad. But losing Gilmer is like losing a Sammy Baugh or a Luckman. Losing Fenimore, the 195-pound sprinter, passer and kicker would be no worse than the army losing Doc Blanchard.

Florida Full of Hope

Florida was running a high football fever. Ray Wolf and a new strong staff are now at Florida with the best Gator prospects in several seasons. Miami university, Orange Bowl winner over Holy Cross, expects to have a much better team than the 1945 squad.

Snuffy Stirnweiss, backfield coach at North Carolina, reports the arrival of halfback Justice at Chapel Hill, plus several additions that Carl Snively can use with considerable pleasure. I also received the news that Bob Neyland will have another Tennessee squad that will be hard to clean away. Also that Wallace Wade, back at Duke, is busier than ten swarms of bees getting ready for a hard campaign.

Southern teams have a stiff spring training grind and they are busier than usual with so many Bowls to be filled next year. With Neyland and Wade back they also face keener competition, especially if Frank Thomas at Alabama loses Gilmer.

No one can say yet what Henry Frnka will have at Tulane, but you can gamble the Green Wave is rolling forward. It might also be noted that no one can say yet just how many good football players the draft will remove from the scene all over the map. This draft procedure will wreck some teams while missing others completely.

Army and Notre Dame

We ran into several Notre Dame ex-stars who advised us to keep an eye on Frank Leahy's 1946 squad.

"The last two Army teams piled up 108 points against us in 1944 and 1945. A beating is one thing. A massacre is something else. But brother it is going to be different in 1946. Notre Dame will be there with what it takes. This means line, backfield, power and speed.

"Leahy will have both Kelly and Mello back. Here are two of the best backs Notre Dame has known in years. But they are only a small part of the material now on hand for spring practice at South Bend."

"You don't figure any Army push-over?" I asked the Notre Damer.

"Certainly not. But Army won't be the Army of 1944 and 1945. Why? The line. Yes, Army will have or should have the best backfield in football, headed by Blanchard, Davis and Tucker. But don't forget Army has lost a number of valuable linemen and that Army line has been a big factor in their victories.

In the meanwhile Capt. Tom Hamilton, now on the job at Navy, finds himself caught between two fires—Army and Notre Dame. Tom Hamilton is not only one of the best coaches in football, but one of the best inspirational leaders. Hamilton has the foundation or basis for a hustling, fighting squad that can make it extremely uncomfortable for any opponent on Navy's schedule.

Michigan's Troubles

Hamilton was the one man who saved college football during the war. At least he did more for the cause than any other three men I know about. One team that may acquire more than its share of draft trouble is Michigan. Last fall Fritz Crisler had 18 freshmen on his squad, 8 of whom were classed among his regulars. The Wolverines had one of the youngest squads in the country and for this reason may suffer heavier casualties.

WHERE TO GO ..AND WHEN

It's Always Fair Weather

Soooo — the Pynchard Alumni banquets are being revived again after completely dying out during the war when the alumni members were scattered all over the globe, including the battle of longest duration on the banks of the Potomac.

The banquet on June 12 in the High school cafeteria will be more of a welcome-home, how've-you-been, well-look-who's-here sort of thing, and although the reunioning classes have been designated as those whose numbers end in 6's and 1's, there are also those who would have been reunioning last year and the year before that who will have a good representation. The time will be 6:15.

Working on ideas of how to make the banquet extra-special, the committee has started with a chicken pie supper, dancing, and appropriate decorations, and when they finish the plans, you will be glad you paid your $1.75.

Just incidentally, tickets may be obtained from members of the ticket committee, chairmanned by Harold Bendroth, who are Miss Bessie Dantos, Miss Simeone, Miss Mary Gates, William A. Doherty, Miss Ruth Andrews and Miss Elinor Innes.

Pianoforte Recital

Miss Marion L. Abbott will present her pupils in two pianoforte recitals on June 12 and 18 at 7:30 o'clock in the music room of the Junior High school.

Pupils playing selections in the June 12th program will be: Peter Pingree, Phyllis Heifitz, Sara Southwick, Millicent Gilchrist, Sidney Tavern, Douglas Adkins, Cornelia Weldon, Marylyn Mulcahy, David Martin, Nancy Penwell, Joan Barnard, Winthrop Adkins, Mary Elise Waddington, Anne Grover, and Alice Surette. Elinor Mondale and Anne Grover will also play a duet.

In the June 18th program will be: Patricia Brennan, David Howells, Arianna Shaw, Phyllis Thompson, Marion Glennie, Josephine Collins, Lloyd Howells, Elinor Mondale, Joanne Hart, Betty Jane O'Connor, Laura Thompson, Sally Westhaver, David Pingree, Beverly Adkins, and Anne Kenney.

The public is cordially invited to attend both of the performances.

Commencement Concert

Miss Ruth Kinney is among the pupils of the music department at Abbot academy who will take part in the commencement concert to be given at 7:30 in Davis Hall, June 9. She, with five other students, will sing Three Folk Songs of the British Isles.

The program will include selections by the choir, the Fidelio society, and instrumental music and will be open to the public.

Family Picnic

A picnic in the South church grounds with special invitations to the Boy Scouts, Junior King's Daughters, kindergarten class, and the Young People's society will be held from 2:30 to 6:00 on June 8. The event will start with a bang with contestants scrambling for peanuts and pitting their skill in other games, such as ping-pong, horseshoes, and badminton.

Tonic and popcorn, FREE, will be served at 4:00 preceding the championship contests. Supplementing your own basket lunch will be served frankforts, mustard, and relish — no rolls — ice cream and tonic.

All parents of the young people are invited to go and take part as it is hoped that the affair will be a real family picnic.

No rain checks will be given for the event, but if clouds threaten, the program will be held in the vestry.

Vale-in-time

The Watson-Park auto-torium will again be a scene of galey on June 8th when the Welcome Home and Fourth of July Celebration committee will sponsor a penny social and dance beginning at 8:00.

Such treasured items as canned goods, coffee and tea will be on sale, and refreshments will be sold during the evening.

It is hoped that this event will bring the treasury to the goal set for the big celebration over the Fourth, when the local servicemen and women will be officially welcomed "home."

This Trip Is Necessary

Corinne Byers, as an appealing Alice, will begin her magical journey through Wonderland at 7:30 the night of June 14 in Memorial auditorium and other Pike school children will become such crawly, jumpy or purry things as caterpillars, white rabbits, cats and all the other animals and people that Alice meets on her trip.

Proceeds from the three-act musical drama will be donated toward the modernization of the Shattuck ward for children in the Lawrence General hospital.

Andover Praised as Typifying Spirit of Early Settlers at Tercentenary Banquet

At the Tercentenary banquet in the Case Memorial Cage, Phillips Academy, Saturday night a congregation of 1000 townspeople heard the distinguished speakers of the evening proclaim Andover as a town typifying New England principles and the foundations of American democracy.

Dr. Claude M. Fuess, chairman of the Tercentenary Committee of fifteen, was the master of ceremonies and introduced as the first speaker, Governor Maurice J. Tobin, who brought greetings from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He pointed out that the downtrodden peoples of the world are looking toward this country for leadership and guidance and that the spirit of the early New England settlers, prevailing in Andover throughout three hundred years is the spirit most needed today. He complimented the town on its retention of the democratic system of town government with its town meetings where every citizen has the opportunity of speaking his mind. "This independence," he said, "should also stretch to our national congress. Democracy has proven that it can meet its challenges; it proved that it could live through war although we seem, in the aftermath of peace, to be disintegrated. Our military might should be continued for the freedom of the world, but it must not be abused. Centuries of freedom as typified by Andover shed a great light over the whole of America and throughout the world." The governor was accompanied by Mrs. Tobin and by his aide, Major Earl Barnard.

U. S. Senator Leverett Saltonstall said that the early settlers realized the importance of trust and confidence and faith in each others work. Men like Franklin, Jefferson and Adams labored under many difficulties and yet progressed. He spoke regretfully of the distrust that permeates the world today, emphasizing that it is the home distrust that shakes the confidence of our system. "We must conquer our present day problems as the early government overcame her difficulties with faith and confidence. Our ancestors got together and we must get together, both at home and abroad."

Congresswoman Edith Rouse Rogers spoke of Andover's contribution as that of character with the emphasis on self reliance, hard work and the will to overcome obstacles. "Other sections of the country," she said, "are a bit envious of the educational leadership of New England and the home spun virtues which have done so much to shape the building of the national character. While we may take justifiable satisfaction in this, we of today must nevertheless prove worthy of our heritage, and look to the future and not alone to the past." She expressed the need for national unity pointing out that without at home we can have no hope of being a strong united nations.

Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal speaking as a member of the president's cabinet said that in traveling through the country during the past six years, he has been struck by the enduring imprint which New Englanders have left of culture, education, discipline and faith over the great areas of our country. The evidences of New England tradition carried thither by migrating families are easily recognized in the north western states.

"The United States," he said, "can not avoid taking federal action on many problems and in so doing makes decisions affecting the lives of millions. There is no conscious desire to broaden the area of this authority; whether it widens dangerously or only in response to pressing necessities will depend a great deal upon whether your tradition of self reliance prevails or of not avoiding the responsibility of solving problems at home wherever possible.

"There are two great forces which now challenge the minds of men," he continued, "The force of democracy as we know it, the democracy of liberty, of individual freedom, equal opportunity, of religious and political intolerance, the goals of the early New Englanders and the other is the thesis of total authority in a central government, the creation of a monolithic state for solutions to all problems for the expression and direction of all hopes and aspirations of men."

Complimenting the mayor on his fortitude and good humor in withstanding New England weather, Dr. Fuess introduced Andover England's Mayor George D. Young who made his first and only public address during his visit. The friendly and unpretentious guest of the town spoke briefly saying that he brought the greetings not only from the borough of Andover but from all his countrymen.

He expressed a wish that the close connection which the countries of United States and England had during the war would be maintained during the peace. He remarked that Andover England, had perhaps seen more of the American Army during wartime than Andover, Mass., since 5000 men had been billeted there at one time. In the future years when travel between the countries is more generally possible he hoped that many would return under happier circumstances.

Introduced as the Worshipful Mayoress and friend, Mrs. Sainsbury brought greetings particularly from the women of England and said that in this her first visit to the United States she thought that it was a "grand country." She remarked on the "lovely wooden houses, the charming children" and looked forward to further interchanging of visits in the future. She expressed a fervent hope that the women of the two great nations would help to build a lasting peace, the heart's desire of all.

Her brief and sincere message won the hearts of all present and the applause that honored her was deafening. Both the Mayor and the Mayoress have the distinction of being the first to follow the suggestion made by Lord Halifax that the two countries exchange visiting delegations to cement still firmer the bonds between them.

President James Phinney Baxter, 3rd, of Williams college, a graduate of Phillips academy and a trustee of the school at the present time gave the concluding speech of the evening giving a historical sketch of the academy's background and the recognition it is now accorded throughout the world.

Musical selections were played by Frankie Kahn's orchestra and both the British and the American national anthems were sung. Rev. Frederick B. Noss, pastor of the South Congregational church gave the invocation and benediction was pronounced by Rev. Thomas P. Fogarty, O. S. A., pastor of St. Augustine's church. The program was broadcast from 8:30 to 9:00 o'clock.

Seated at the head table were: Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal, Mrs. Maurice J. Tobin, Dr. and Mrs. Claude M. Fuess, Senator Leverett Saltonstall, Mayor George D. Young, Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Mrs. Maud Sainsbury, Governor Maurice J. Tobin, Dr. James Phinney Baxter, 3rd, Selectman and Mrs. Roy Hardy, Rev. and Mrs. Frederick B. Noss, Atty. and Mrs. Raymond Schlapp, Rev. Thomas P. Fogarty, Representative and Mrs. J. Everett Collins, Miss Margaret Hearsey, principal of Abbot academy; Colonel William G. Goldsmith, Rear Admiral M. L. Deyo, commandant of the First Naval District, and Rear Admiral Wilder D. Baxter, commandant of the Boston Naval base, both of whom accompanied Secretary Forrestal; Mrs. M. L. Mayo and Representative Ralph Hill.

Tercentenary Concerts Attract Large Audiences

Community Orchestra Hold Its Own With Famous Soloist

For those who have watched the Community Orchestra from its modest beginnings years ago, the Tercentenary Concert was little short of a revelation. It is indeed a far cry from the days when we went to applaud civic spirit and good will rather than actual performance to this presentation, which excelled in achievement and ease of artistic execution. For those among us who see in the rise of music in a community a measuring stick for its civilization, it was a proud day.

The fact that the great Percy Grainger was the soloist of the evening contributed largely, of course, to its success, but the coordination of artist and orchestra was so complete that the laurels must be equally divided among all the performers. George Brown did a most competent job as a conductor; his touch both with his orchestra and the soloist was extraordinary.

The program was well-chosen and pleasantly varied. The piece de resistance of the evening was the great Fantasia and Fugue in G-minor by Bach, marvelously executed; the first movement of the Grieg Piano Concerto followed, showing off both Mr. Grainger and the orchestra to their best advantage. The most applauded selection, however, was Mr. Grainger's own piece "Spoon River", a rollicking adaptation of American folk-tunes, which pleased the audience so well that it had to be repeated. Two sharply contrasting pieces, the soft Indonesian Gamelan-imitation of Debussy's "Pagodas", followed by the barbarous splendor of

In Capturing Town's Ear Singers Win Town's Heart

Cochran chapel was chosen as the place for the concluding Tercentenary event last Sunday evening because of its superb organ and also because it was estimated as "just about the right size."

Although the male choir has been popular in concerts given throughout the state, attendance in the home town has usually been quite small and J. Everett Collins, the director of the choir and of the Tercentenary chorus, expected a small audience at the Sacred Concert. When he arrived at the chapel Sunday night and saw folded chairs set up in the back of the auditorium, he pondered, "I wonder what these are for. Maybe we should put them away." But with the opening chords of Ivar Sjostrom's selection all the pews and folded chairs were filled and the audience still standing were looking enviously into the reserved section for possible vacant seats. When the chorus had finished their first group of hymns and were filing back to their seats, there were no seats. The ever increasing number of rapt listeners had even overflowed to the choir box and many were for the first time listening with appreciation to local talent that had never before attracted their attention.

Both the newly organized chorus with the Male choir as its nucleus, and the choir in solo gave splendid performances which did justice to the talented direction of Mr. Collins. The accompaniment by Miss Marion Abbott and John Newall was exceptionally effective in the choir's rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Republic." John D. Newall, 3rd, and Mr. Sjostrom both played organ selections.

The Boys' Glee club of forty-five true and clear voices thrilled the audience with their "Alleluia." A newly formed group, trained and directed by Miss Miriam Sweeney, the club has already made several public appearances but at Sunday night's concert, it won a place of honor in the town's heart.

Formally gowned ushers directing the audience to seats, when there were seats, were: Misses E. Marjorie Smith, Agnes V. Dugan, Marjorie Weeks, Lucille Nolet, Joan Young and Patricia Robertson.

Balakirev's "Islamey", were the rest of Mr. Grainger's contribution, to which he added, as a bonne bouche, the popular strains of Gershwin's "The Man I Love."

The orchestral part of the evening took us from the old French and English masters to the ever-popular Strauss waltzes, and the orchestra seemed to adapt itself with the same ease to the stately tunes of the former as it did to the enticing dance-rhythms of the latter.

Our thanks are due to all of those who have done this for Andover; orchestra, soloist, conductor, and, last but not least, the untiring manager, whose efforts have kept this organization together for many difficult years, all share in the success of this evening, a most worthy part of our Tercentenary celebrations.

Wedding Bells for June Brides

GROLEAU—JACK

Mrs. Mary J. Dinsmore, 288 Prospect street, has announced the marriage of her daughter, Alice G. Jack, to Adrian Groleau, 22 Corbett street.

The ceremony was performed on April 25 in Exeter, New Hampshire, after which the couple left for a wedding trip through the White Mountains.

The bride is employed at the Western Electric plant in Haverhill, and Mr. Groleau by the New England Milk Producers' Association. They are making their home at 22 Corbett street.

JOHNSTON—CAMPBELL

Gowned in white satin with lace on train and finger tip veil, Miss Gloria Virginia Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Campbell of Haverhill street, North Reading, was escorted down the white-carpeted aisle of the Union Congregational church, in North Reading, by her father Saturday afternoon, to become the bride of Paul Arnold Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Johnston of Haverhill street. The four o'clock ceremony was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The double-ring ceremony was performed before an altar banked with huge baskets of white snowballs, bridal wreath and iris, tied with bows of white ribbon similar to that used as pew markers, by Dr. Samuel Le Page, pastor of the church. The bride carried a white-bound Bible, from which cascaded swansonia and ribbon streamers. On the Bible was a white orchid, surrounded by swansonia, which she later wore as a corsage.

The wedding party was preceded by the flower girl, Irene De Felice of Lynn, who wore a colonial type gown of blue taffeta with headdress of blue veiling and flowers. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay bouquet.

Maid of honor for her sister was Miss Thelma Campbell, who wore a peach taffeta gown with matching headdress. She carried a colonial bouquet centered with a large red rose. The bridesmaids were Miss Beverly Johnston, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Barbara Normine. They were attractively gowned in blue taffeta with headdress of veiling and flowers to match. They carried colonial bouquets.

The best man was Robert Story of Reading, friend and classmate of the bridegroom.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the parish hall, after which the couple left for Washington, D. C., where Mr. Johnston has a position with the U. S. government as a member of the F. B. I.

The bride is a graduate of Reading High school. The bridegroom served in the Army Air Forces for more than two years, and at the time of his discharge held the rank of corporal. He was awarded two citations and four bronze battle stars.

NEIL—KELESHIAN

At a pretty three o'clock ceremony on Sunday afternoon, Miss Elizabeth B. Keleshian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keleshian, 219 Walnut street, became the bride of Robert W. Neil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Neil, 23 Balmoral street. The ceremony was performed in Grace Episcopal church, Lawrence, by Rev. Archie H. Crowley, rector.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with a long train attached to a tiara of orange blossoms, with shoulder-length veil. She carried a prayer book with a marker of white orchids, lilies of the valley, and sweet peas.

The maid of honor was Miss Francis Janazian of Watertown, a cousin of the bride. Her gown was of powder-blue brocaded satin, and she wore a Juliet cap trimmed with horse-hair veiling to match. A hand spray bouquet of snapdragons, roses, larkspur and sweet peas completed her ensemble. The bridesmaids were similarly attired in pink, and carried hand sprays of roses and snapdragons.

Thomas M. Neil served as best man for his brother.

A reception for the guests, many of whom were from out-of-town, was held at the Shawsheen Manor, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to Maine and Canada. Upon their return they will make their home at 219 Walnut street, Lawrence.

The bride is a graduate of Lawrence High school, with the class of 1940. She also attended Lowell Textile school.

The bridegroom also attended Lowell Textile school, and served three and one half years in the Army, two and one half years being spent in North Africa and Italy with the infantry.

Howe, 19 Arundel street, became the bride of Frank W. Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Lee, 339 Main street, North Andover. The marriage was performed by Rev. Cornelius J. Heijn.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a period gown of point de sprit with full tiered skirt and train and fingertip veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of bouvardia, baby's breath and white roses.

Mrs. Frank E. Steinert of Andover served as matron of honor, and she wore a pink marquisette gown and matching picture hat trimmed with amethyst flowers. An amethyst and pink bouquet of snapdragons and stock completed her costume. Best man for the bridegroom was Frank E. Steinert.

Youth Hostel Receives Charter

Roy E. Hardy, chairman of the local committee sponsoring the Andover Youth Hostel at 10 Brook street, has received the official AYH charter for the current year from the National Headquarters of American Youth Hostels at Northfield, Massachusetts. The Houseparent is Miss Katherine E. Walsh. Members of the committee are: Mrs. Walter E. Pike, Rev. A. G. Baldwin, Mrs. C. C. Kimball, Mrs. C. D. McDuffie.

The American Youth Hostels have been operating since 1935 and as of September 30, 1945, have registered 357,377 overnights at some 250 Youth Hostels scattered throughout the country. Individuals numbering 115,593 have taken out Youth Hostel passes during this time and traveled some eleven million miles "under their own steam," by foot, bicycle, horseback or canoe in this country, and about 8,550 American Youth Hostellers have hosted also in foreign countries. (Before the war there were 5,000 Youth Hostels of foreign associations in nineteen countries in Europe.) This foreign travel included Canada, Mexico, Central and South America. Now that this war is over, European hosting is picking up. AYH anticipates accelerated expansion in this country as well. It is one of the needed organizations in America today, for it teaches young people to know and understand each other, a vital element in securing national solidarity and international sanity. Enclosed is a folder describing AYH.

The Andover Hostel will open on or about June 15.

Young Explorer Found After Long Hike

Raymond John, Jr., five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Johnson of 46 Salem street, had quite a hike for himself Friday. He took off at 11:00 in the morning, visiting first in North Andover before proceeding to South Lawrence, where he was picked up by Police Officer James Lynch, who was among the many searchers combing Andover and vicinity for the lost boy.

During his travels he went swimming in a wading pool and explored a dump, where he became the proud possessor of a discarded broom.

Officer Lynch found him in South Lawrence at 8:00 Friday evening, still wet from his swimming experience and still carrying the broom, a souvenir of his travels. He was driven back to his home on the motorcycle, quite unabashed by the whole experience, and his only comment was, "Did you see the motorcycle?"

His parents are having some difficulty convincing the young explorer that it was a lark not to be repeated.

In Appreciation:

We wish to openly express our sincere appreciation and gratitude to all those who participated or aided us in any way, in the search for our son Raymond, Jr. last Friday afternoon and evening.

It is impossible to contact all who gave of their time and services—the Andover police department, fire department, selectmen, Boy Scouts, State Guard and townspeople. Also we would like to express our thanks to Station WLAW, its announcers, and the Lawrence Boy Scouts.

We are indeed fortunate to live in a town that showed such splendid cooperation in a time of trouble.

Gratefully yours,

Raymond and Eileen

Will your Child finish School?

The quick impulse will be to say: "Yes, of course."
Most parents want to see their children finish school. But many children will not simply because someone forgot about the uncertainties, the things that can happen to anyone. Life insurance can be your guarantee against uncertainties. If you haven't set up this sort of provision to make sure your children have a fair chance to get through school, we would like to show you how to do so at small cost.

APPLICATIONS FOR POLICE EXAM ACCEPTED

Applications to take the police examination must be filed with the Office of Division of Civil Service, State Department, Boston, by 5:00 on July 5, whereupon those eligible will be notified of the place and time of the test scheduled for July 26, 1946.

The duties of those accepted for positions will be those of a patrolman with a minimum salary of $42.00 and a maximum of $47.00. Vacancies are occurring from time to time.

Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 35, but veterans who had not reached the maximum age limit at the time of entering the military or naval service will not be disqualified by reason of age within three years after the date of honorable discharge.

A certificate of date of birth must be filed with the application unless one has already been filed with a previous form. Applicants must obtain at least a grade of 70% in each subject in order to become eligible and the questions are taken from the manual called the "Blue Book," obtainable at the State House, Boston, Room 116. Training and experience count three and the practical questions, including a memory test and general information, count seven, making a total of 10.

Height requirements are five feet, six inches, or above, and there are certain weight specifications that must be met. Physical fitness will be determined by a physical examination and qualifying strength test. Applicants must, of course, be U. S. citizens domiciled in the commonwealth for one year next preceding date of filing application.

Applications may be obtained from the Division of Civil Service, rooms 145-152, in the Boston State House, or from the Civil Service representative in Lawrence.

The dollars you spend for transportation must be sliced many ways. Seventy cents from every dollar is absorbed by operating and maintenance cost (largely wages) . . . over fourteen cents is paid out in taxes . . . depreciation, interest, dividends, etc., must come from the sixteen cents balance. 1945's expense of operation was nearly $10,000,000 . . . nearly $2,000,000 went for taxes. A good part of every dollar you spend with the Eastern Massachusetts returns to benefit your community through taxes and payrolls.
