TO PHONE SUTHERLAND'S CALL ANDOVER 300 — NO TOLL CHARGE

You will not find Andover's visiting artist, Charles R. Sheeler, strolling around Phillips' campus with an easel under his arm or with brush and palette replacing the policeman in the square while converting to canvas his impression of Main street. The distinguished silver-haired artist whose paintings hang in twenty-three museums and in many private collections throughout the country doesn't work that way.

Since his arrival at the Andover Inn where he and his charming wife are residing for the month of October, Mr. Sheeler has been spending his time "scouting around the town" making diagrams and gathering his material or "ammunition" as he so aptly puts it which he will assemble upon returning to his home in Irvington-on-the-Hudson, and from it he expects to develop several pictures. He has said, and it is quoted in his biography by Constance Rourke, "Something seen keeps recurring in memory with an insistence increasingly vivid and with attributes added which escaped observation on first acquaintance. Gradually a mental image is built up which takes on a personal identity. The picture attains a mental existence that is complete, within the limits of my capabilities, before the actual work of putting it down begins."

So, although Andover and Andover Hill will be the subjects of his paintings that will be a result of his visit here, he will do little more than observe while he is staying here.

His visit is the result of an experiment Phillips Academy is embarking upon at the inspiration of Bartlett Hayes, director of Addison Gallery. It was decided to invite an artist to stay in town for a month and from the work done as a result of the visit, the Gallery expects to select and purchase a painting for its permanent collection. The painting, Mr. Hayes has said, "will be stimulated by our particular environment but dictated in no way by us." It will, of course, have a special interest for Andover Hill and according to the success of the unique plan, it is expected that other artists will be invited from time to time which anticipates the growth of a small collection possessing an "aesthetic validity" for the surrounding community. It may be completely coincidence that the plan should be inaugurated on the year that Andover observes its 300th birthday, but it is a fact that Mr. Sheeler first came to town to talk to Mr. Hayes about the arrangement when the director was deep in a search for historical photographs to make up the exhibit "This Was Andover" that opened during the Tercentenary celebration.

The Boston Herald last Sunday commented upon the plan by saying: "Not many people, perhaps, realize that painters work much of their time for an obscure market, or for none at all. Unlike the Artists of the Renaissance who worked for patrons of the church, the modern painter too seldom has any intimate association with those for whom he may be painting, and unlike the industrial designer, for example, feels no social demand for his work. If he could know that a sympathetic community was waiting his interpretation of the local scene, and that his work would form part of a collection enriching the aesthetic life of the community vividly and directly, it might give new impetus and direction to his brush, and satisfaction to his pride."

Mr. Sheeler himself feels pleased and honored that he was selected as the first artist to be part of this new plan. Interviewed regarding his stay in Andover so far, he said, "I am very much enjoying my association with Phillips Academy, especially in regard to the art courses and the activities of the Addison Gallery. The present project of the gallery, now being inaugurated, should prove of mutual benefit. From the standpoint of the artist, it is a lively experiment in bringing him in closer touch with the museum than he has been in the past and also in making him an integral part of society. I am sure most artists would welcome these improved relationships."

"With the success of the project in Andover, it should be reasonable to expect that it will spread to other communities and other institutions. Then the value of the artist will be greatly enhanced in relation to the life of his time."

"The art classes at the Academy are doing a valuable service to the students in the opportunity afforded them for making a beginning of a richer perception of the world in which they live. I have known men who were conspicuous in the business world who studied art in their spare time for the satisfaction they derived from a better understanding of the paintings which they possessed."

Mr. Sheeler has not limited his observances to the Academy alone but has explored the rural and central streets enthusiastically with Abbott Cheever as his guide. He confided that Mr. Cheever, an artist himself, knows the town "inside and out."

Born in Philadelphia of a family long rooted in Eastern, Penn., whose descent was Welsh and Irish, Mr. Sheeler began his study of art while he was still in high school, because he "wanted to paint more than anything else." According to his own statement, he was fortunate in having parents who encouraged rather than deterred his desire. For three years he attended the school of Industrial Art and later spent his Saturdays in the studio of Herman Diegendsch. Later he studied at the Academy of Fine Arts under William Chase, making two trips abroad after the completion of his course, not for further study, but to wander with unabated enthusiasm in the many museums in Spain, Italy, Paris and London.

When he returned to this country to commence his career, he worked at photography during the week and at painting on week-ends. His biographer writes that he "stands alone in having achieved distinction both in painting and photography." Indeed he first exhibited his paintings in the New York Armory show in 1913 and in 1918 gave a one man exhibition of photographs at the Modern Gallery also in New York.

Of him it has been said: "Classic in his self-discipline and in his choice of form, discoverer of the industrial subject, painter of the Ford River Rouge series and of Williamsburg, and also among the first of the truly modern photographers, Sheeler is perhaps most interesting as the artist who can see all America in the shape and setting of a Bucks County barn, in the imperishable forms of Shaker handiwork, in the polished perfection of an ancient staircase."

He expressed a regret that he will not be in Andover for the showing of local artists' works in Main street stores the first week in November. He will, however, remain for the opening of an exhibit of his own work in Addison Gallery, October 25th but will leave town shortly afterwards.

What form his interpretation of Andover will take on canvas upon his return to New York tantalizes the imagination, but we know that it will be both strong and serene, for he "favors the picture which arrives at its destination without the evidence of a trying journey, rather than the one which shows the marks of battle."

WRONG ANIMAL

"Why is it," asked the fair young city lassie, "that this cow has no horns?"
 "Well, you see," explained the farmer, "some cows are born without horns and never have any, others shed theirs, and some we de-horn. But the big reason why that cow has no horns is because she isn't a cow—she's a horse."

TURN ABOUT

It was pouring. Two men who had quarreled went out in the rain to settle their differences. They fought until one got the other on his back and held him there. "Will you give up?" he asked, and the reply was "No."

After a time he said, "Gonna say 'Uncle'?" The reply again was a determined "No."

"Then," said the other, "will you get on top for a while and let me get under? I'm getting soaked."

WHEN AMERICANS MEET THE CANADIAN MEAT

Officer and Mrs. John Deyermond have just returned from a trip across the border to the land of meat and construction. Canada's scenery is especially impressive right now because it is dotted with buildings, new buildings, many of them made of WOOD. In the restaurants, the most tempting menus are not crossed out with heavy black lines, and when you order steak, you get steak, for little more than a dollar a plate! Of course there are two meatless days observed each week, leaving only five out of seven when you can enter a butcher shop and purchase a pound of steak for 45 cents.

The comparison of our country's policies to Canada's on the major domestic issues of meat and housing is not very favorable, and in the trip from Toronto to Niagara, it was the last straw to find the scenic beauty of the Canadian falls holding its own better than that on the American side.

HALLOWE'EN

was never like this—
it was much, much worse

Did you know that when young people, disguised and masked and slightly fearsome in their Hallowe'en costumes, come to your door singing and hoping for a reward of some kind, that it isn't a purely commercial enterprise?

Unknown to themselves, they are following in the traditional footsteps of those who ages ago went from parish to parish, in the "old country," begging and puling (puling means small singing, for your information) for Soul Cakes, or any other good thing with which to make merry!

And has anyone told you that eating apples hung from a string was once much more difficult, since in the earlier form of the game, the apples were tied to the ends of hanging beams, on opposite ends of which were lighted candles. By this flickering unsteady flame the apple target was more elusive than ever for the contestants with hands tied behind them.

Even our apple bobbing stunt is a descendant of a more perilous sport — In the olden days lack of good balancing caused many a splash as the player tried to light a candle from another, tied to the far end of a pole, suspended over a tub of water.

And the carrying of lighted pumpkins is a modern counterpart of the past practice of tying faggots and broom and flax to a pole, and carrying the thing aflame on one's shoulder around the village, attended by a crowd of singing and shouting merrymakers.

When unharvested cabbages are pulled from the garden and pitched into piles of leaves, it isn't original mischief at all. Nor is it that modern bogey—juvenile delinquency—asserting itself. Long ago young women went out into the dark fields on this night and, with blind-folded eyes, pulled cabbages to determine from their roots the figures and sizes of their future husbands. Burns tells us:

"The first ceremony of Hallowe'en is pulling each a stock or plant of kale. They must go out, hand in hand, with eyes shut, and pull the first they meet with. Its being big or little, straight or crooked, is prophetic of the size and shape of the grand object of all their spells. . ."

Even the waxing and soaping on windows has an ancient origin. An old Hallowe'en custom of the fishermen of Orkney was a seining or signing of their boats with a cross of tar to bring them success with their fishing.

But, if your barn door disappears or your gate is unhinged and lies in some near-by field, you should be grateful, for you could have had dire misfortune attend your next trip to the barn or visit to your garden. It works this way, and we quote—"This charm must likewise be performed unperceived and alone. You go to the barn and open both doors, taking them off the hinges, if possible; for there is danger that the BEING, about to appear, may shut the doors and do you some mischief. Then take this instrument used in winnowing corn . . . and go through all the motions of letting down corn against the wind. Repeat it three times; and the third time an apparition will pass through the barn, in at the windy door, and out at the other, having both the figure in question, and the appearance or retinue marking the employment or station in life." That's the way to call up a ghost, you see, and it's just as well to have the BEING safely out through the other side and off about his weird business before you get yourself done some mischief!

If you don't care about any of these performances, yet wish to stir up that uneasy eerie feeling for your own private celebration of the night of long-legged beasties and things that go bump in the night, you might ask for some of these books at the Memorail Hall Library, any time between now and then:

A sense of mystery the spirit daunted,
And said, as plain as whisper in the ear,
THE PLACE IS HAUNTED!"

Crying Over Milk

Sometimes when we open up a bottle of milk we're very much in favor of a more rigid milk inspection here in Andover. We don't suppose that we're alone in having bought milk in local stores, only to find that some way or other dirt of some kind had gotten into the bottle. Furthermore, too often the top of the bottle itself, over which one must pour, is dirty.

We do have inspection here in Andover, and the town report will show the number of times inspections were made and the number of times that milk was found below standard. Possibly if our town report contained more specific information, such as the reports of other towns contain, the resulting publicity might make milk producers a little more careful. We have seen other reports that actually list the names of the producers whose milk was below standard.

Superannuation

The problem of old employees in a municipality has in recent years been approaching a more satisfactory solution, but there is still a long way to go. The present law permits retirement of a certain age on pension and requires it at a later age. The only difficulty is that some employees should be retired before the voluntary date and some could well be kept on after the required age, since the rate of disability is not necessarily a chronological factor.

We have had many instances in Andover of town service becoming inefficient because employees were kept on longer than they should have been. It means we're paying money for service that is not being rendered well, whether it be in teaching, janitoring, or road work. If such people could be retired when they were no longer able to do a good job, the town service could be improved a great deal.

Some thought should be given by the legislature toward making this law more flexible.

ENGINEER'S SALARY CUT; HIGHWAY FOREMAN RESIGNS

At Monday evening's meeting the Board of Public Works reduced the salary of soon-to-be-Town-Engineer Charles Gilliard from the $89.25 computed at the previous meeting to $80. This will be a $5.00 increase which was the limit set in the town meeting motion this year.

William Baker, foreman of the street department submitted his resignation to the Board after 49 years of service. The resignation was accepted.

Several applicants were present at the meeting for the position of clerk in the Department to succeed Assistant Superintendent Edward

R. Lawson. The board decided to advertise for a male clerk, it being thought that he might be groomed for later superintendency.

USEFUL INVENTION

Once when Clarence Darrow was lecturing, he added a significant post-script to his story of the Phoenicians.

"How can we thank Mr. Darrow for his so interesting lecture?" the chairwoman asked rhetorically.

Road to Success

Any school or organization, in order to be successful, must have cooperation on the part of everyone. The Andover Junior High School is very fortunate in having that cooperation, and there is one boy who is especially cooperative. John Campbell, who lives at Carter's Corner, helps to make the cafeteria the efficient organization that it is. John is at his post every day right on time and he remains there until his job of assembling all used dishes that the students bring him, is done. He is never heard to grumble, but is always pleasant, and has a good word to all who come his way. He is realizing very early in life that the man, to be worthy of his hire, must do his work well, and completely.

Inspection Tours

On Wednesday, October 9, Mr. Milton C. Blanchard, Principal of the Junior High School, and Mr. Carl Gahan, head of the Vocational Training Department in the Andover schools, visited the Junior High Schools in Needham, Newton, and Lexington for the purpose of studying the General Shop Program in order that they might try to improve the already rapidly expanding vocational department in the Andover schools. In each of those schools, but in the Needham Junior High School particularly, they saw some very fine work being done. While in Newton, they talked with Mr. Emil Keiler, a former shop teacher in the Andover Junior High School.

On Monday, October 14, Mr. Owen Hinckley, Junior High School Shop Instructor, visited the Needham Junior High School, which seemed to have an outstanding vocational program, with the purpose in mind of studying the shop program relative to building up the general shop program here.

Two in One

So many young people were interested in the Handicraft Club under the direction of Miss Angie Dantos, that Miss Dantos could not handle them all, and give them all the proper instruction. The Club has been broken into two sections, and Mr. William Snyder, who is a very fine craftsman, has taken the second group in tow, and promises to teach them many things.

Embarrassing Moment

The school's face certainly was red last Thursday morning when Fire Chief Edward Buchan appeared for a fire drill during Fire Prevention week! After consistently practicing every week, the fire alarm just would not ring while he was present. No sooner had he left the building when another attempt was made to ring it. This time it performed handsomely, and all rooms were emptied, and the students out of doors in a matter of seconds. In fact, it was one of the fastest fire drills of the term.

Music to the Ears Of Baseball Fans

As usual, the school filed into the Auditorium last Thursday during the seventh period for its weekly Music Appreciation period. However, there was a great surprise in store for everyone, for the Music Appreciation class had been cancelled for the day, and everyone had a chance to listen to the World Series game for half an hour. That was the day when the Cards gave the Red Sox such a trouncing in Fenway Park.

Turn About

In order that everyone in the school will have an equal chance to go into the cafeteria early, the grades rotate each week—seventh, then eighth, then ninth, and then the seventh grade starts all over again. Last week the eighth grade had its second turn, and everyone in that grade went down the corridors so quietly and courteously, trying not to disturb the other classes, that they have received another early week as a reward. Good work, Eighth Grade!

Cheer Leaders

The student body decided that ninth grade girls should serve as cheerleaders at Junior High School football games. Those girls chosen are Nancy Chadwick, Captain; Jeanne Dumont, Berne Christie, Frances Bradley, Marjory Davis, Mary Green, Iolita Machon.

Methuen Central Tops Jr. High Team

The Junior High Representative team played Methuen Central last Thursday, October 10, and was defeated by a score of 20-7. For that game, Ness was elected captain and Watson co-captain. The team, minus the services of Collins and Brucato, played an excellent game in spite of that fact, but were up against a much heavier Methuen team. Captain Ness, who injured a finger, returned to the game later on and played outstandingly. The line-up was as follows:

Corney, le; Ross, lt; Morin, lg; Caldwell, c; King, rg; Rayball, rt; Dimlich, re; Watson, qb; Maucleri, lb; Dwyer, rbb; Ness, fb.

Chairman

At the last Library Staff meeting, Miss Katherine Sweeney made a schedule of the student librarians for this week. Betty Born was elected chairman of the program committee.

Central P-T-A Meets

On Wednesday night, October 16, the regular meeting of the Central Parent Teacher Association was held in the Auditorium. Judge Miles, Justice of the Municipal Court of Roxbury, spoke on the topic, "Your Job and Mine." To be able to listen to Judge Miles was a very special treat for the town of Andover, and many parents availed themselves of that opportunity. As usual at this meeting, the teachers were in their classrooms, where they talked with parents who had special problems to discuss. Following the lecture, the audience went to the cafeteria where refreshments were served.

To Represent School At Students' Committee

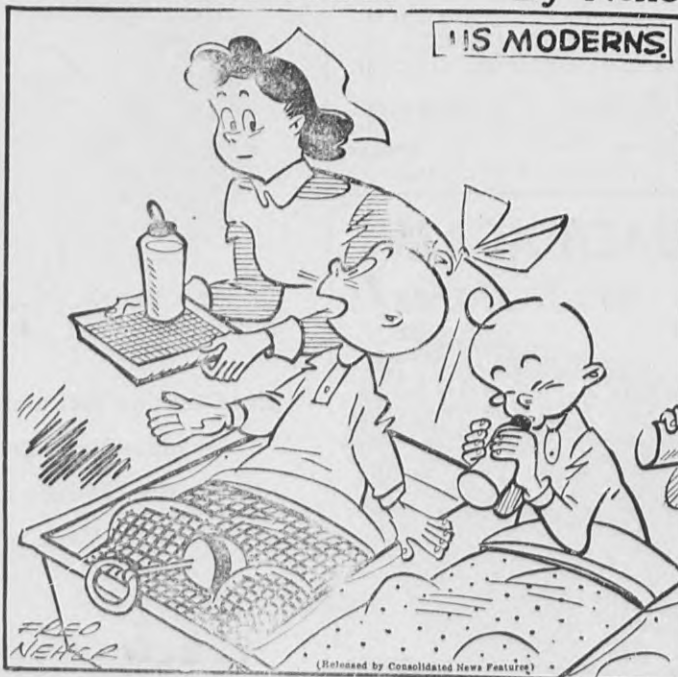

This year the Andover Junior High School will send a representative to the Students' Committee on State Affairs, a Junior Division in the Massachusetts Civic League, Incorporated. Joseph Ratyna, President of the school, was elected by the Student Council to attend the four meetings with William McDonald, the Student Government Advisor. The meetings are held in the Old South Meeting House. This is a very new branch of the Massachusetts Civic League and it came about when some young people of high school age asked if they might have an opportunity to learn about state government firsthand. They were invited to attend a meeting and a Democratic member of the House and a Republican member of the Senate were also invited to attend to answer any questions that the young folks might ask. This was two years ago. It has grown to be a very large organization to which students from many secondary schools have been invited to attend. Round Table discussions, lectures, debates, etc., in which the students participate, are held. Last year such weighty questions as the Judicial System in Massachusetts; Does It Insure Justice?; Juvenile Delinquency; Fair Employment Practices Bill; and Should the Towns and Cities of Greater Boston Unite To Form a Metropolitan Government? were discussed by these young people. That is the type of activity that Joe is going to attend.

Assembly Program

The assembly program last Friday was sponsored by the Health Department of the school, with Miss Shirley Kenney and Miss Ruth Wescott acting as co-chairmen of the program. The school president, Joseph Ratyna, led the school in the salute to the flag and then read the Governor's proclamation, declaring that Pulaski Day should be observed on October 11. Miss Wescott then introduced Mrs. Maria Carpenter of the Essex County Health Association, who showed two very fine films entitled "Lease on Life" and "Goodbye, Mr. Germ."

Discussion Meeting Held by School Board

The special session of the school committee Monday night was a discussion meeting and the only vote that was taken was in regard to the improvement of the grounds at the Shawsheen school. A tentative figure of $500 was decided upon for landscaping the land and eliminating the dangerous hazard at the sand banking in the rear of the school. Mr. Sherman advised the board that he and Charles R. Waite, landscape engineer and architect, would inspect the grounds in an effort to determine the improvements necessary.

Having received several complaints from Ballardvale regarding the time that the children arrive home from school. Mr. Sherman stated that he has been making a study of the bus transportation schedules and he pointed out that the rearrangement of the system to permit the children of West Andover to arrive home earlier than 4:30, which has been the custom of the past, had necessitated a later hour of arrival for the pupils from the Vale and he mentioned the possibility of the school department purchasing a station wagon to provide for the latter pupils numbering ten at the present time. The wagon, he further indicated, could also be used in the delivering of supplies and running errands for which transportation is now paid.

The increased cost of fuel, supplies and the addition of a full year's cost of operation for kindergartens will bring the 1947 budget close to $30,000 more than last year according to Mr. Sherman's findings.

A discussion of the subject of equal pay for men and women teachers took place and the question will appear on the ballot in March. The school committee will draw up a resolution indicating its stand on the matter, explaining the costs involved.

A complimentary letter from A. Russell Mack, supervisor of secondary schools of the state department of education, was read in which was mentioned the fine condition of the schools and grounds at the central plant.

The next meeting of the committee will be held on Monday, November 4, instead of the 5th which is the customary date.

OPEN HOUSE IN NOVEMBER

Sunday afternoon, November 17, the Memorial Hall Library will hold its annual Open House, to which the public is cordially invited. The speaker this year will be Mrs. Johnson O'Connor, an architect of Boston, whose subject will be "Small Houses of Today and Tomorrow." There will be an open period after Mrs. O'Connor's talk for questions. This is an opportunity for young would-be home owners to learn first-hand facts about both houses and housing. Light refreshments will be served.

Open House is always an informal friendly part of our observation of National Book Week, and the timeliness of the subject, as well as the attractiveness of the new book displays, should have an appeal for our patrons and the many newcomers to the community.

AT PUNCHARD

By Jack Sherman

Fire Drill

Last Thursday a fire drill was held for the inspection by the Fire Chief, Edward Buchan. The school was cleared in 78 seconds. In an assembly at the beginning of the year, Mr. Lovely gave instructions to be followed in case of fire.

Senior Social Committee

The Seniors have elected Lyndon Gilman Chairman of the Social Committee, and he in turn has appointed his committee. They are: Patricia Collins, Carole Davies, Diane Mahoney, Catherine Craig, Mildred Richards, Marjorie Paine, Alex Meek, Deighton Emmons, George Colloten, Robert Henderson, Robert Wormwood, and Alan Petty. At a meeting held on Tuesday in the library, they decided to hold a barn dance on October 31st.

Sophomore Officers

The Sophomore class is the only one which has not finished electing its officers. It has elected all but the Chairman of the Social Committee. The other officers are Herbert DeVeaux, president; Joyce Demers, vice president; Anne Kenney, secretary; David Anderson, treasurer. Miss Munroe, the sophomore class adviser, has announced that the other remaining officer will be elected this week.

Guidance Program

The Guidance Office has been extremely busy this year getting in touch with the different schools and colleges for those of the Senior class and the post graduate veterans who are continuing their education next year. The department shows the student catalogs of the different schools and colleges, advises him on the merits of the different institutions in relation to his needs, and helps him with his application. The department also acts as a counseling agency for those who intend to go to work after high school, by advising them in the types of work open to young people today, and by testing them in the various ways to determine their capabilities.

Author Quiz

Pupils of English II-A, Juniors in the College Preparatory course, having completed a study unit on the American short story and short story writers from Washington Irving to Ambrose Bierce and Ben Ames Williams, recently engaged in a Literary Appreciation contest, to identify authors of short stories which they had not previously read, but the authors of which they had had studied. The class divided itself into eight teams of four members each, which set to work to identify the authors of individual stories from which the titles and authors' names had already been removed.

Twenty-eight stories were offered and within 90 minutes one group had read 25 stories; a second group, 22; a third, 23; and no group less than 15. First place in the contest was won by the team which identified authors of 93% of the stories read by its members, who were Viola Barnet, Joan Capen, Joan Draper, and Jean Kenny. Second place was won by the team consisting of Fred Cole, Richard Kydd, Walter Lloyd, and Laurence Marocco. Third place was captured by the team of Jane Draper, Marjorie Harshaw, Audrey Tompkins, and Carolyn White. The remaining five teams did creditable work, also, averaging correct authors for six out of every ten stories read.

Do you know your authors as well?

Alumni

Three of Punchard's outstanding alumni were home over the week end. They are Fred McCollum '46, Walter Demers '46, and Bob Phinney '46. They were active on former Punchard football teams and now attend Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H., where they are also active in football.

Team Work?

The Phillpian this week records the story of a news story that was squelched—inadvertently. It reads: "Doug Kennedy, sports correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune, covered the Andover-Harvard game and afterwards descended into the labyrinth of P. A.'s own Borden Gym for personal interviews with the victors. Came supper time and Bob and Charley and everyone cleared out, leaving Mr. Kennedy locked in and the Sunday Tribune without its article."

Awarded Scholarship By Museum School

The ability of Jeanne Kenney, High school student who is a promising art pupil of Miss Francis Dalton's, has received outstanding recognition by the Museum school in Boston and she has been awarded a scholarship to attend Saturday morning classes there this year.

Competing with many talented art pupils throughout the state, Jeanne's paintings were judged superior to her competitors and she won the scholarship without any difficulty. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kenney, Jr., of Johnson road.

Artists' Exhibits To Again Decorate Main Street

Andover stores will once more turn their show windows into miniature galleries displaying the work of local artists as American art week celebrates its fifteenth annual observance.

Art week has been a great boon to American artists and for the art of America. It has introduced local artists to the American public and made the public aware of artists. In every state where emphasis has been stressed on this activity, it has grown immeasurably with each year. It takes but a very small seed to grow a mighty oak.

Last year, Andover's art show introduced or reminded townspeople of the artistic talent within the community and Dirk van der Stucken of Phillips academy wrote concerning it: "Art has conquered Main street; it has broken out of its fortress prisons in the big cities and has overflowed our town; we see it everywhere, fraternizing with cloaks, dairy products, and notions — and the overall impression is so gay, so pleasant, that one might wish it were permanent instead of a hebdomadal exhibition."

New paintings and new artists will be represented in this year's show which will make its appearance on the 4th of November and continue until the 11th. The promised meat that is due to arrive in the local stores about the same time will have strong competition as window shopping increases its popularity during Art Week.

The Shawsheen School Troop met on Monday evening, October 14, under the direction of Scoutmaster Everett MacAskill. Games were played for 15 minutes, followed by opening exercises and a short business meeting. Eddie Sullivan applied for membership. Groups of instruction in signaling, Tenderfoot requirements and compass were formed. The Scoutmaster led the Troop in a drill and instruction in parade formation. The following Second Class requirements have been completed recently: pacing, Allan Barlow; compass, Peter Miller; Scout oath and law, Allan Barlow, Edward Dean, Peter Miller, Walter Tomlinson, Thomas Wilkinson, and Arthur Mooney; knife and hatchet, Allan Barlow; thrift, Louis Hamilton, William McKay, and Walter Tomlinson.

Hallowe'en Party

The monthly meeting of Cub Pack 72 of the Free church, in the form of a Hallowe'en party, was attended by 40 Cubs and with a large group of parents, Den Mothers, and Pack officers. Dens 2, 4, and 6 won 100% attendance banners. The Cubs were all costumed in every type of Hallowe'en array from pirate costumes to skeletons. The judges picked 11 boys as finalists, and District Commissioner Walter Caswell picked the winners. David Glendenning of Den 7, dressed as a farmer; James Sullivan of Den 2, as a pirate; and Jack Wright of Den 4, as a crystal gazer, won prizes for the most original costumes. Prizes for the funniest costumes went to Teddy Laitinen of Den 4, as a ghost, and John Polgreen of Den 9, as a donkey.

The prizes were as follows: Cub plaques to James Sullivan and Teddy Laitinen; Cub belts to David Glendenning and John Polgreen; and a Scout handbook to Jack Wright. James Dolan of Den 6 won the apple bobbing contest, Paul Shepherd of Den 3 won the doughnut eating contest, and Glen Moore and James Sullivan tied for the peanut race. These boys were all given angle toothbrushes, donated by Squibb's. Den 2 was judged to be the best costumed group. They appeared as a pirate group.

Prizes were awarded by District Chairman V. Malcolm Laitinen. Cubmaster John Carver and Vice-Chairman Calvin Metcalf were assisted by a large and enthusiastic committee. The meeting closed with eats of sandwiches and cider and other foods for the Cubs, who all did a fine job in this department. Eight new boys signed applications. Four of the boys were not accepted at this meeting, as their parents were not with them.

Techs Should Re-Enlist Before October 29

Honorably discharged veterans of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard, eligible through special wartime training and service in certain vitally needed specialties for enlistment in the new regular Army in the grade of technical sergeant, have only until October 29 to take advantage of this opportunity, the United States Army Recruiting Service, First Army, announces.

On and after October 30 such qualified men may enlist, but at grades not higher than that of staff sergeant. In no event, however, even prior to October 30, may a man enlist at a grade higher than that which he held at the time of his separation from the service. The new regulation applies only to men who have been out of service more than 20 days. Veterans who enlist within 20 days after separation are not affected.

There are many military occupational specialties in such fields as radio and radar, communications, construction, medicine, chemistry, aircraft maintenance, photography and many others in which the new Regular Army is desirous of placing qualified men.

Length of service in jobs carrying desired Military Occupational Specialty numbers determine the grade in which enlistments may be made. Veterans of other branches of the armed services are eligible, if the specialty numbers they held upon discharge convert to the desired Army numbers.

FAR EASTERN REPORT—

Here's what members of the house military affairs committee reported to General Eisenhower, following their return from an inspection of our military bases in the Far East.

1. Morale of our Far East occupational troops is being endangered by the army's delay in sending wives and families to officers and enlisted men.

2. The army is doing little to set up facilities for the proper housing of army wives and children who want to join the troops. On Okinawa, for instance, surplus army stoves and plumbing supplies—badly needed in quonset huts where army families will be housed—have been sold to the Chinese.

3. Another demoralizing factor is the shortage of cigarettes, fresh fruit and vegetables.

Eisenhower promised to look into these facts immediately.

Congressmen reported that an estimated 350 Jap soldiers are still at large on the island of Okinawa, living a Robinson Crusoe existence in the hills. American authorities are not seriously troubled. . . . A lone Jap fugitive was picked up a couple of months ago on Saipan, after having been at large for over a year. When asked where he had been getting water on the very dry portion of the island to which he had been confined, the Nip replied that he had gone at night to a large house in an isolated sector, drinking from the tap and filling his canteen. The home was that of the American commander.

The returned congressmen are worried that lower ranking commissioned officers are "taking the Japs to their hearts." Congressmen fear that many occupation officers have forgotten that the Japs were our enemies only a year ago. Japs, the congressmen say, have not forgotten their dead, but some of our men have forgotten the Americans who died battling these same Japs.

One of MacArthur's difficulties is the great shortage of Jap-American interpreters. Result: In Japanese towns without any interpreter reports on conditions, written by Jap authorities, are sent to U. S. headquarters as official reports.

Plans to recruit 50,000 Filipinos for our army have fallen through because of lack of money. The present goal is 35,000, with the training now under way.

Worst areas in the Pacific for troop morale are Korea and the Aleutians. Korea is the center of political intrigue and, because it is at the end of the supply lines, the food served our troops is hardly better than field rations. In the bare, treeless Aleutians, the big wish of U. S. troops is for a 12-month rotation system. They now are sent on a two-year hitch with scant chance to get back to the comparative gaiety of Alaska.

STALIN'S WAR OF NERVES

Most interesting fact about Stalin's recent widely broadcast and widely-hailed-as-conciliatory statements to a London newsman is the date. The date was September 24.

For on exactly the same day Stalin was telling the world that there was no danger of another war, he was sending a note to Turkey which sang another tune.

The note to Turkey was not made public until four days later. Thus Stalin publicly put fears to rest, while simultaneously warning Turkey that she must yield to Russia on the Dardanelles and that she must permit Russian troops on Turkish soil. If not, the implied threat was war.

Thus, despite Stalin's attempt to woo the world, his aims remain exactly the same. Furthermore, they remain exactly the same as those of the czars before him. Finally, they remain today, with his allies, exactly the same as with his old sparring partner, Hitler.

For, in 1940, when Russia and Germany were under a non-aggression pact, the same Molotov now tlickering in Paris went to Berlin to tlicker with Ribbentrop for terms under which Russia would come into the war against England. The terms Molotov wanted were the Dardanelles, Iran, Iraq, the Balkans and the mouth of the Red sea. Hitler wouldn't give these terms, and Russia finally was forced into the war on the side of the Allies, not against them.

Now that the war is over, Stalin and Molotov are right back where they were in 1940—trying to get the Dardanelles and other long-range Russian objectives.

500 New Voters May Go To Polls Nov. 5

About 500 new voters had been added to the list at the close of registration Wednesday night. Two hundred and eighty registered on Wednesday alone.

A recent change in the law made it possible for town and city clerks to register voters during working hours in communities of 10,000 or more citizens, and Mr. Winslow has been kept busy doing just that.

Of our population of 11,920 there is now a total voting list of 7,048 as compared to 6,568 during the primaries and Mr. Winslow's prediction is that 90% will go to the polls on November 5th.

Why the Surprise Over Horse Meat Sales?

In Newark, N. J., butchers insist that the sales of horse meat are up 50 to 75 per cent, and that, as a matter of fact, customers like it. "There is nothing bad about horse meat," says one butcher. "It is just a question of mind over matter." Boston, too, is eating horse meat. No horse is really safe in the present crisis.

Elmer Twitchell declared today that horse meat is not to be belittled. "I have had beefsteaks lately that I am quite sure were in the racing entries once," he said.

"The reason people go for sow meat and not for horse meat is one of sentiment and custom. If we gave names like Blue Larkspur, Old Rosebud, Eternal and Bimelech to cows, folks would feel differently toward beef," continued Elmer.

"Why do people shudder at the mention of a tenderloin of horse and thrill to it from cattle? Because no general was ever photographed coming home from the wars on the back of a cow! Because Black Beauty wasn't a bovine! Because the poets, authors and movie writers get romantic over horses, but never over heifers."

"The whole history of meat as a food might have been different if Washington had ever ridden a cow or if Ben-Hur had driven a team of longhorns."

An Important Job Well Done!

Stranger dropped into Andy Botkin's tavern the other day; had a friendly glass of beer, and asked if he could look the place over.

"Haven't I seen you here before from time to time?" asks Andy showing him around. The stranger allows he's a representative of the brewing industry—checking up on places that sell beer—as part of the brewers' self-regulation program.

And Andy doesn't take offense at being checked on. It's to his interest to see that places selling a mod-

"Suppose the 'Charge of the Light Brigade' had been an epic of the cow country instead of cavalry mounts? What if Napoleon's cow had been stuffed and put in a museum instead of his horse?"

"Have you eaten many horses?" we asked.

"I'm afraid so," he replied. "In fact, I haven't had a steak in months that didn't strike me as once having had a saddle on it. Only last night the waiter pointed to a club steak on the menu, and when I asked if it was good he started to HANDICAP IT!"

BACK HOME STUFF

Well, ye ed has realized a life-long yen, one dating from boyhood: to get inside the Nathaniel Kendall mansion on the heights beyond Fair Haven. . . . Nate Kendall was one of the richest men in the community, a brewery and tractor mogul, and looked the part, commanding and autocratic. . . .

His castle, a massive place of red granite, stood on a high hill from what then was a view of 40 miles down Long Island sound. . . . As a kid we used to gaze in awe as the Kendalls drove out of the broad driveway behind a span of horses. . . . But nobody, not even playfully brash kids, crashed the Kendall grounds. . . . They seemed part of a baronial fortress.

Last week you could have knocked us over with a zither when we saw a huge electric sign "The Castle" over the mansion. . . . The "Kendall Place" is now a restaurant, and a pretty unusual one. . . .

We made for it at top speed and at last motored up the curved driveway, ordered "Boy, put this car up!" roamed the broad verandas and had a fine dinner where our earliest idea of a millionaire once slept.

Miss Josephine Daly enjoyed the holiday week-end at Biddeford Pool, Maine.

PUNCHARD LOSES TO TO READING ELEVEN

Punchard bowed to a strong Reading foe on Saturday afternoon after a hard-fought game on the Reading field, which ended with the score at 16 to 6.

Reading's advances, resulting from off-tackle smashes and end runs, practically bowled the Punchard team over in the opening period, although they did manage some good interference. Punchard's lone touchdown came in the second half when Yancy snared a long pass from Watson and galloped down the field to cross Reading's goal line.

The local team also rallied during the last few minutes, when they marched 64 yards down to the Reading two-yard line, where the ball rested when the final whistle was sounded. The summary:

To Oppose Army Plebes

Seeking revenge for last year's 20-0 trouncing, Andover's powerful football team will travel to West Point Saturday to face the always strong Army Plebes. With last week's upset of the heavier Harvard Freshmen tucked in their helmets, the Andover team will line up against a comparatively light Plebe team, with Pugh, starting full-back, again on the sidelines with an injured knee.
