Hot-Weather Ramblings

Mid-summer doldrums still continue, and it's been hotter than ever. Mills closed down, some stores closed, and with the book out of the way except for some binding, we even closed about half-way through Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. When it gets so hot that some of the fellows take off their undershirts and roll their pants up to the knee, it's about time to tell them to go off to the beach or something.

We headed for Maine ourselves, and couldn't help but wonder about lots of things. Down in Amesbury we saw an old fellow, red-faced, perspiration streaming off him, tussling with a lawn-mower in an attempt to make a bigger lawn than he had previously had. We wondered why people are like that, why someone in his family didn't tell him that the lawn could wait until cooler weather, and we sort of looked at the list of heat deaths the next day to see if there were an Amesbury man in it. Farther on we saw a gang of men working on a ditch job, and boy, were they hot! And again we wondered — if it were pelting rain, they'd halt the job, and yet the heat would do more harm to them than the rain would.

There was more traffic Wednesday afternoon than there is on week-ends. It was pretty slow. Sometimes we think on a main artery like U. S. 1, the laggard is the more dangerous driver. We remember up around Winnepesaukee once, we were moping along in a long line of cars that were all slowed down by one car at the head of the line, when along came a state police car, sped past everybody, beckoned the slow car off the road and then signalled all the other cars along. But Wednesday they weren't doing that. In Maine a state car came along a mile a minute, passed a whole line, sired at a sleek-looking convertible which pulled over to the side and nearly piled up four or five cars behind it. And we wondered again; that patrolman was more of a menace than the cars were. Luck was with him. Of course we all slowed down for four or five miles then.

There were a couple of places we could have had bad accidents ourselves, because of roadside distractions. Up on the main road in Hampton there's a widely-advertised place called Perry's Nut-House with a fake elephant, fake giraffe and fake something else out front. They didn't distract us,

A CONVERSATION ON THE SUNNY SIDE OF THE STREET

A sickly smile — "Well, hello!"
A handshake damp and sticky;
"So this is Jane; how she's grown!
And this is little Dickie."
"Gosh, it's hot!" "Humid, too."
(Limply wiping brow)
"Oh, I've been well. How are you?"
(No one cares right now).
"Well, glad I met you, see you soon."
(When it cools off a bit)
"Yes, we must get together."
"It's so hot, isn't it?"
"I'll call you sometime very soon."
"Oh, how's your husband's cough?"

"I beg your pardon, what was that?"
"My feet just melted off."

We'll Be Seeing You

but Wednesday there was an old bewhiskered character on a spindly old bike pedalling by as we passed the house. We couldn't help taking our eyes off the road, looking back at him, and breathing a sigh of relief when we saw that he got by Perry's Nut-House all right.

There really hasn't been much doing in Andover to write an editorial about, and chances are we won't even call this an editorial column this week. Before we left Wednesday, Roy Hardy dropped in to pick up some Tercentenary books. He said he saw our announcement about retiring as editor, and we told him that was just in line with our editorial comment last March that town officials shouldn't try to run the town for longer than twelve years; we'd been trying for fifteen, and that's long enough. He told us about the possibility of parking meters here in Andover. They seem to be very popular wherever they've been installed. Lawrence is going to try it, and Haverhill has had them for quite a while. Lowell should definitely do something. Down in Biddeford they recently went into operation; an officer came along to show us where to put our nickel, and told us they were a great thing for the motorists, but tough on the cops. You can almost always find a place to park, and if you're lucky sometimes you can park on the left-over part of the preceding fellow's nickel or penny. We're very much in favor of the idea, because the proceeds are to be used for traffic purposes, and there'll probably be enough left over to pay for some new violation tags which we hope our successors here will be printing.

We suggested to Roy that somebody should do something about the Welcome to Andover signs which have faded to an almost invisible blue along the main entrances to town. Why wouldn't it be nice, as long as they're to be repainted, to have Hank Cheever or Frances Dalton or somebody paint a picture of some sort on them; the Memorial tower or some other landmark would give the signs a distinctive touch. It's something to think about.

This Sober Town

When we were in New York last spring we saw Bill Odom who has just completed the record-breaking round-the-world flight.

We don't suppose that our seeing him made a bit of difference.

The blackberry is here in all its glory. We know because we have come in contact with them several times during the past week. They are hanging heavy on the vines, and if blackberries were a crop, it would be a good crop this year, and everyone would be very pleased about it. But as things stand now, blackberries are appreciated only by a very few, and it would be sad to estimate the number of succulent ebony berries that shrivel on the vines every year.

There is really nothing like home made blackberry jam on toast for breakfast. Or for that matter at any time of the day. Besides tasting delicious, it makes you feel very virtuous and close to nature. If you don't know where there are any vines, just follow the first hornet you see, and be sure to take along a bottle of iodine for your scratches.

August 12th was supposed to be a momentous night for star gazers. Meteors were supposed to be flying back and forth from Perseus, at their best after midnight. We didn't see anything though. Maybe we weren't looking in the right place.

Or maybe we were too sleepy.

Communication...

The following biography of a well-known Andover native was received from I. H. Shaver of Philadelphia:

100th Anniversary
Educator, Novelist, Poet, Diplomat
1847-1930

Arthur S. Hardy, born August 13, 1847, started his life in Andover and during the formative years of childhood had the privilege of attending school in Neuchatel, Switzerland; later was at Phillips Andover Academy; and studied for a year at Amherst College. He then entered West Point Military Academy and graduated in 1869. He was assigned to artillery, served about a year and resigned his commission.

In 1871-3 he was professor of civil engineering at Iowa College (now Grinnel); then he studied scientific bridge building and road construction for a year in Paris. In 1874 he accepted the chair of mathematics in Chandler Scientific School, connected with Dartmouth College; four years later he was made professor of mathematics in the college itself, and held this position until about 1893 or so.

Meantime he became the author of several important works on mathematics: "Elements of Quaternions, 1881; later he annotated a translation of Argand's "Theory of Imaginary Quantities"; contributed to a work on "Applications of Photography to Surveying"; in 1889, published textbooks on analytic geometry and calculus.

In 1878 appeared his first purely literary work, "Francesca da Rimini," a lengthy poem; in 1883 came a novel, "But Yet a Woman," and because of its grace and brilliancy, it was successful and became quite popular and passed through many editions both in America and England. About 1886 brings along "Wind of Destiny"; in 1888 the Atlantic monthly serialized his "Passe Rose," the romance of a dancing girl at the court of Charlemagne; this is probably the most enduring of Hardy's books.

The professor's powers as a novelist are not in the elaboration of plots, or delineation of characters, but in his general aptitude for descriptive beauties of nature, happy expression of the rules of noble living, aphoristic thoughts, etc.—a delicate blending of light and shade. His diction is pleasing and graceful, and he uses, with excellent discrimination, the wide and accurate learning at his command.

In 1891, he made a tour of the world; about 1893, after his Dartmouth professorship, he functioned for a while as editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine. In 1897, he entered the diplomatic service, holding posts at Persia, Greece (as minister, 1899 to 1901), and Switzerland, concluding with about three years' service as minister to Spain. He was recalled in an unusual moment of pique by Theodore Roosevelt, who mistakenly believed that Hardy had refused to undertake a post as under-secretary of state. He had married some years previously, but after a number of years, finally retired and settled in Woodstock, Conn., and died in 1930, ending his long, checkered, useful life.

NOT A PENNY A MILE, BUT A MILE OF PENNIES

A mile of pennies sounds like a lot of money to accumulate, but that's the task the PHS Girls' band has set for itself, so that this fall they may have the new instruments and uniforms that they need.

Cards have been made out in the form of foot rules, with slots for a penny to each inch, thus obtaining a foot of pennies. The slots may also be filled with nickels, dimes and quarters.

The Girls' band has been rehearsing each morning during the summer under the direction of Miriam Sweeney, supervisor of music in the public schools, and they expect to be ready for an active season.

Harness Racing Back At Topsfield Fair

The second post-war edition of the 123-year-old Topsfield Fair, August 24-30, Sunday through Saturday, will attain new heights of color and entertainment, with buildings bursting with record agricultural, horticultural, handicraft and homemaking exhibits, and a grandstand program featuring the Massachusetts premiere of harness horse racing under floodlights, Jimmy Lynch's motor-mad "Death Dodgers," the Martin Bros. circus, and horse-pulling contests.

As usual, the cow will be queen of the livestock exhibition, entries already having reached an all-time high of more than 300 of the finest pure-bred Ayreshires, Jerseys, Guernseys and Holsteins in New England. Closely rivalling the dairy cow in numbers and interest will be the state's largest goat show. So many entries have poured in that a full day will be devoted to judging each of the six leading breeds.

The fair's famous flower show, against a novel early fall background of growing trees and shrubs, will be a riot of gladioli, dahlias, begonias and hundreds of other outdoor and hot-house blooms. Of special interest will be the flower arrangement competition among 18 Essex county garden clubs.

Harness horse racing will return to Topsfield after a lapse of eight years with eight dashes nightly except Sunday on the newly floodlighted half-mile track and using the unique motor-driven automatic starting gate. It will be the first harness racing with pari-mutuels in Massachusetts, and will attract top trotters and pacers campaigning on N. E. and Eastern circuits. Sunday afternoon and evening, opening day, will find the spectacular auto smashing "Death Dodgers" occupying the spotlight.

Historical Field Day

All members of the Andover Historical society are cordially invited to the annual Field Day to be held at Rockport on Saturday, August 16, arranged by the recently formed Essex County Historical association.

Upon arrival all should register at the Congregational church, where full programs may be had.

The Sandy Bay Historical society will be open, offering hospitality to all.

During the afternoon, the historical museum, ancient houses, and art galleries will be open. Mr. and Mrs. Galen Perrett are opening their garden during the latter part of the afternoon, where tea will be served. Those who intend to be present should notify the secretary.

There will be a short meeting at the church at 2 p. m. when a paper by Mr. A. M. Brooks of Gloucester, who is an authority on local topics, will be given.

There are good restaurants in Rockport, but their capacity is limited. Box lunches are in order — either on the church green or the Sandy Bay beach.

The morning offers various attractions for those who would enjoy an all day outing.

Miss York is local chairman for the Rockport Historical society.

Welcome to all, and for fuller information telephone the Andover Historical society, 1089-J.

Mr. Biggs is a member of the faculty of the Methuen Summer Organ Institute, whose students come from 20 states and the Dominion of Canada.

These concerts bring to a close the series of eight concerts on the old Boston Music Hall organ, which was recently rebuilt

Tennis

The tennis tournament for the championship of Essex County will be held at the North Andover Country Club, beginning August 30th and continuing over Labor Day.

There will be both single and doubles matches for men, and a new three-year trophy will be awarded in addition to the usual prizes.

BPW RECEIVES PLAYSTEAD PETITION

The Board of Public Works was petitioned at its regular meeting Monday night by a group of nearly one hundred men, women and children, who sought to have the condition of the field at the playstead remedied. The petition was circulated by a group of small boys who use the field daily for practice games. Also present on behalf of the boys were Benjamin Dimlich, George Snyder and James D. Doherty, as well as several members of the Andover Veterans baseball team which won the twilight league race.

The delegation expressed the hope that the field might be fixed temporarily for the time being, and that an article be placed in the warrant next March for resurfacing the entire area.

The board agreed to do what could be done this week in time for the rest of the all-star series, and to meet with the group at a later date to plan a more comprehensive program.

AT THE LIBRARY

How many people if asked the name of the nation's number one publisher would answer the United States Government? Yet such is the case. No other publisher, no matter how diversified his list, can match the United States Government in the number of books sold annually or in the number of new titles annually published. In one year not so long ago 13,000,000 government publications were sold or distributed. The astronomical sales of many a current best seller often leaves us gasping, but how many can equal the total sales of the one of the Children's Bureau's perennial favorites the many times revised Infant Care which at a recent reckoning had reached total sales of 3,362,500!

These books and pamphlets are written by specialists and are often very attractively gotten out. Yet how many people are aware of the size of this government printing enterprise or what is more how many have taken advantage of this excellent material which is available at a small cost from the Superintendent of Documents and occasionally free from the issuing bureau? It would have to be a rare request to go unanswered for whether it be information on a recent Supreme Court decision, termite control, statistics on foreign commerce, information on making furniture, raising livestock, the text of current bills or legislation of interest to management and labor, seemingly there is a publication to fill every need. If there isn't, the chances are good that if the request is repeated often enough there will be, since it is often cheaper to issue a publication than to respond to often repeated requests individually.

How does the average individual track down the particular publication that he wants, and how does he avoid being lost in the maze of material in print? There are helps: the price lists in the various subject fields and the bi-monthly Selected United States Government publications which lists some of the more popular titles. The Library has the latter on file as well as the following price lists:

Labor, Indians, Children's Bureau, Insular Possessions, Fish and Wildlife, Alaska and Hawaii, Agricultural Chemistry and Soils and Fertilizers, Suburbanites and Home Builders, Education, Field Manuals and Technical Manuals, Business Service Check List. Selection of government publications for the library requires thought and care for it wants to steer a middle course between being buried beneath the weight of the combined total of government publications and the other extreme of ignoring them altogether. Selection, as practiced in the Memorial Hall Library is geared so far as possible to choosing publications for their known or expected value and use and for their importance to the time—in the latter category would be such important publications as those of the Atomic Energy Commission and the State Department.

Anyone who is interested in knowing what government publications the Memorial Hall Library has on hand has only to ask at the Library desk. Listed below are a few of the more recent additions to the library's collection. It is perhaps interesting to note here the attention which is being paid to government publications like the American Forces in Action Series and the recent survey of medical conditions in the Bituminous-Coal Industry in book reviewing periodicals.

American Forces in Action Series

The material presented in this series is based on the best military records available and was prepared under the direction of the Historical Division of the War Department and was originally planned for wounded soldiers to tell them of the battles and campaigns in which they served. Howard Mumford Jones calls them some of the "finest historical scholarships ever directed at the man in streets." The series includes: (1) To Bizerts with the II Corps, (2) Papuan campaign, (3) Salerno, (4) From the Volturno to the Winter Line, (5) Merrill's Marauders, (6) The Winter Line, (7) Omaha Beachhead, and several more.

Building with Logs

A practical pamphlet which gives the basic principles in the art of log construction to anyone who has a yen to build or furnish a log dwelling.

Postage Stamps

Issued by the Post Office Department from July 1, 1847 to May 31, 1947.

OBITUARIES . . .

MRS. ROSCOE E. DAKE

Every community has someone who fills a very real need in that community, someone who gives unstintingly of her time and of her efforts in furthering the well-being of less fortunate citizens and in promoting the community's worthwhile civic activities.

Andover for the past ten years has been more fortunate in this respect than many a community. The Red Cross, the League, the Evening Study Groups, were all very greatly aided in their work by the seemingly boundless energy and enthusiasm of Ruth (Cadmus) Dake. She had done much more than her share for Andover, accomplishing a great deal in a very quiet and unostentatious way.

On Saturday morning, Ruth Dake, at the age of 43, passed away at the Baker Memorial hospital in Boston.

She was born in Elyria, Ohio, and spent her childhood in Peoria, Illinois. In 1926 she graduated from Middlebury college, Vermont, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Mrs. Dake was a member of the board of the Andover League of Women Voters and was a member of the finance committee of the state organization. She was active in the Andover Evening Study Groups, having served as secretary of the program for the past two years.

A leader in Red Cross activities she had served as chairman of the nursing committee and the board, and was wartime secretary of the disaster committee and chairman of the home service committee. During the war she was chairman of the food and sugar rationing panel of the Andover rationing board. She was also associated with the Adventurers and the November Club.

Besides her husband she is survived by a son, Richard; a daughter, Barbara; a brother, Bradford Cadmus of Torrington, Conn. Mrs. Dake was a direct descendant of William Bradford, governor of the Plymouth Bay colony.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at 3:00 in the Cochran chapel, Phillips Academy, with Rev. A. Graham Baldwin, officiating. Cremation was at Harmony Grove, Salem.

MRS. CORA D. WELWOOD

Mrs. Cora (Dutton) Welwood, widow of John Welwood, Shawsheen road, died Tuesday night at the North Andover Nursing Home after a long illness. She was born in Waltham 85 years ago, and came here a number of years ago.

Her father, the late Benjamin F. Dutton, was one of the founders of Houghton & Dutton Company, Boston merchants. Mrs. Welwood was active in welfare work during two wars, the American Fund for French Wounded in World War I, and the USO in World War II.

She is survived by a son, John D. Little of Buffalo, N. Y.; one brother, George Dutton of Marblehead; one sister, Mrs. Lombard C. Jones of Waquoit, Mass.; and three grandchildren.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon from the Lundgren funeral home, with services at 2 o'clock. Rev. John S. Moses, rector of Christ church, will officiate. Burial will be in the Dutton tomb, Forest Dale cemetery, Malden.

SAMUEL BOWDEN

Samuel Bowden, 95 Haverhill street, Shawsheen Village, died Wednesday morning at the Lawrence General hospital after a short illness.

He was born in Buckfastleigh, Devonshire, England, in 1890, and came to the United States 40 years ago, residing in North Andover for a number of years. He came to Shawsheen Village 22 years ago, where he was employed at the Shawsheen mills. He was a member of Court Excelsior, 8498, A. O. F., of Methuen.

He is survived by his wife, Ethel (Seddon) Bowden; one son, Earl J., of Andover; four sisters, Mrs. Ernest Harvey of North Andover and Mrs. Emma Hamm, Mrs. Mary Watts and Mrs. Beatrice Webber of England; and two brothers, William and George Bowden, also of England.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at the Carl W. Knightly funeral home with services at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. Charles A. Bidwell, pastor of the Riverside Congregational church, Lawrence, will officiate. Burial will be in Ridgewood cemetery, North Andover.

BRINGING MORE AND BETTER
TELEPHONE SERVICE TO RURAL NEW ENGLAND

We're making real progress on our rural telephone program these days. We began the year installing new telephones at the rate of 1000 a month—and we're stepping this up as more and more new central office equipment comes to New England.

It's an intensive, behind-the-scenes job to make all these installations possible. Skilled crews are hard at work stringing miles of wire and cable and making additions to practically all our central offices. In the days ahead, this construction work will make possible improvements in service too — such as fewer people on party lines.

We're bringing more and better telephone service to rural New England as fast as we can get it here.

Kyoto, the city of shrines, Beppu, the city of hot springs (I've taken so many natural hot spring baths since I've been here), the Kegon waterfalls and shrines at Nikko, the Japanese Alps, etc."

Parking Meters

There is a very great possibility that Andover will have parking meters before too long. The Selectmen are in favor of the plan which was approved by the legislature during the past year, and it was understood that the majority of the merchants are very much in favor of it.

The receipts from the meters are used to take care of payment for the meters so that no town appropriation is necessary. The excess of the receipts over the cost of the meters may be used for traffic purposes.

Granted Storage Permit

Louis Eidam, owner of the Elm Street Service Station, was granted permission by the selectmen to store 6,000 gallons of gasoline in addition to the previously authorized 4,000 gallons, after a public hearing Monday evening.
