Art Exhibition

The annual exhibition of the art classes in the Junior and Senior high schools is to be held June 2nd, 3rd and 4th in the music room of the Junior high school. Miss Frances Dalton and Mrs. Dorothy Sanborn are the instructors in charge of this exhibition. Cash prizes will be given for the best work with color detail and arrangement taken into consideration. There will be a first, second and third prize given for the best paintings. The picture winning the first prize will be framed and hung in the school, as ning, May 28th, from 8 to 11:30 o'clock. The Phillips Academy "Campus Playboys" will make the music. The decorations are to be along the Mardi Gras line with multi-colored streamers and other decorations.

The members of the decorating committee are: Chairman Bessie Christie, Ann Smith, Sally Bassett, Patricia Peterkin, Marian White, Janet Fieldhouse, Jay Guertin, Robert Markert, Charles Koza, Charles McCullom and Arvilla Prescott.

School Paper

The next issue of the Junior Sun will come out this week. The staff of the Junior Sun under the able direction of Miss Ansl Angelo, eighth grade English teacher, has been working very hard to make the first year of the school paper a successful one and has accomplished its goal. Congratulations!

Reading To Visit

Student Government members are planning a return invitation to the Parker Junior High School Student Council of Reading. No definite date has been set as yet, but we hope it will be soon.

School Campus

Have you noticed the beautiful campus of the Junior High school? Although this is a rather difficult time of year to keep them looking well, the lawns look quite presentable this year. The traffic squad has organized to help keep them nice, and the homerooms are also helping. Do your part by keeping off the grass.

Our Neighbors

The seventh graders have been racking their brains on a project this marking period. Miss Marshall assigned Latin American note books to be due this Monday. Many beautiful note books emphasize the hard work behind them. They contain maps, pictures and many other interesting facts about Latin America.

Vacation

No one needs a reminder that vacation is just around the corner. Schools will close April 30th and will not reopen until May 10th. Happy vacation to everyone.

Volley Ball

The girls finished the volleyball tournaments, and it certainly was an exciting season. The Blues won first place; Reds, second, and the Greens and Golds tied for third place.

A Cheer for the An Ju Hi!

The cheerleaders for the Andover Junior High are as follows: Marilyn McKay, Janet Valentine, Janet Svenson, Betty Born, Eileen Skierik, Jean Farrell, Miriam Demers, Lucille Spinella, Dorothy Hastings and Lucille Sherry. Eileen Skierik, an eighth grade student, was chosen as captain.

A Special Treat Every Day

The lunches in the Andover Junior High school are excellent. As an example, April 26th, the menu was as follows: American chop suey, buttered wax beans, bread and butter, and milk—all for twenty-five cents. If you wished for a light lunch, there was a delicious stuffed pineapple salad and roll. For variety, there was a choice of chicken rice soup or various sandwiches. For dessert there were chocolate chips, fruit, icebergs or Hoodsies to top off a delicious meal.

Sing! Sing! Sing!

Mrs. McArdle tested all the boys for the Glee club last week. There was a wonderful turnout, and it is getting along as well as the Girls' Glee club, which started two weeks ago.

Gym Team Exhibition

The gym team exhibition was held Wednesday night at 7:30. The refreshments served at intermission were in charge of Miss Angelo's club.

The Junior High boys participating were the following: Hilton Corney, co-captain; Joseph Wennik, co-captain; Walter Tomlinson, Jr., Michael Boloian, Peter Dunlop, Clifford Lawrence, Paul Tisbert, Louis Tisbert and Robert West.

Town Hall Activities

Saturday will be the last day for making payments of poll taxes and the motor vehicle taxes that have been sent out to date. Interest and charges will be added to all bills after that date.

The Board of Public Works is preparing for the annual resurfacing of streets which will start sometime next month. Some grading and patching is to be completed before the oiling starts.

Due to the advance in the cost of materials only 107,000 gallons of oil were used in resurfacing last year and Supt. Edward R. Lawson estimated that about the same amount will be used this year. Prior to the war about 130,000 gallons were used in this annual project, which must be curtailed again this year.

Work of extending water mains in various parts of the town, as voted by the last town meeting, will be delayed for some time until the water pipe arrives. The 10-inch pipe to be used on Bailey road is not expected until the last of May or early June, and the six-inch pipes for other mains may not be delivered until August.

The board of public works has practically completed rough grading of the veterans' lot for which $500 was appropriated.

Hartwell B. Abbott of Dascomb road has been re-appointed animal inspector for a one-year term, subject to the approval of the state department of agriculture. Henry E. Drolet of Lowell street has been drawn to serve as a juror for the session of criminal court opening May 17 at Newburyport.

A pole location on Flint circle has been granted to the Lawrence Gas & Electrical company. The selectmen granted 18 pole locations on Prospect road point-to-point to the New England Tel. & Tel. company and the Lawrence Gas & Electrical company.

Frank R. Petty of 67 Center street, Ballardvale and Albert E. Curtis of 15 Cedar road, have been re-appointed trustees of Spring Grove cemetery for three-year terms.

On request of the Hill Parker company of Jenkins road, the following have been appointed public weighers: James McCabe, Reed Daigle and Fred J. Doyle.

The Andover Sportsman's club has been granted a one-day beer license for an outing to be held off Greenwood road May 2.

After a hearing the selectmen granted Albert E. Curtis permission to keep and store 500 gallons of gasoline in an underground tank at his address, 50 Cedar road.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hird of North street were granted a common victualer's license to do business as the "Little Brown Jug" at the location of the former Roughwood Cabin on Lowell St.

Chairman Roy E. Hardy of the board of selectmen was in attendance Thursday at the monthly meeting of the state assessors at Greenfield.

Three town hall officials were lucky this week, each winning a prize at the exposition being held at the state armory in Lawrence.

George C. Napier, town auditor;

Edward R. Lawson, superintendent of the board of public works, and Francis P. Markey, Veterans' Affairs agent, were the ones who received the smiles of Dame Fortune.

Up to the present 750 dog licenses have been issued at the office of Town Clerk George H. Winslow. Last year the number ran up over 1,000, and it seems that some dog owners are taking a chance on having their pets picked up by the dog officer as April 1 is the deadline for licenses.

The department of public works is busy filling and grading a number of streets about town in preparation for oiling.

GILLIARD HOME

Charles T. Gilliard, town engineer, has returned from the N. E. Deaconess hospital, Boston, and is now at the Longe rest home on Main street.

KEEP BROODER FIRES GOING

"Don't let the first warm days of spring mislead you to false economy in caring for chicks," warns the American Veterinary Medical Association. "Keep a small fire going in the brooder stove until it is certain that warm weather is in to stay."

Unless the flock has started to roost, a sudden change from warm weather to cold and rain will cause chicks to crowd together in the absence of artificial heating. The result will be that some of them will get overheated while others will chill and some may smother, and serious diseases may follow. Certain types of respiratory troubles, digestive disturbances, and outbreaks of coccidiosis are sometimes traceable to this early-spring error in management, the veterinary group says.

Lewisohn To Give Lawrence Lecture

An invitation has been extended to the public to hear Ludwig Lewisohn, eminent American novelist, in a lecture at Temple Emanuel, Milton and Lowell streets, Lawrence, Sunday evening, May 2, at 8:15. Officers of Temple Emanuel Sisterhood announce that there will be no admission charge, and that Lewisohn, whose topic is: "Is Liberalism Enough?", will be introduced by another best-selling novelist, Elsie Oakes Barber of Lawrence, wife of the Rev. Robert Barber, of the Universalist church.

The committee in charge of the evening, Mrs. Harry Axelrod, Mrs. Charles Berns, Mrs. Ralph Spector and Mrs. Hans Marum believe that the lecture by this eminent novelist will be of interest to the whole Christian as well as Jewish community of Greater Lawrence.

Uncle Sam Says

Some day soon—perhaps this very day—one of Uncle Sam's volunteer representatives is going to ring your doorbell to ask you to do one of the most important things you can do now for yourself and your country. He or she is going to urge you to start, or to increase, your buying of United States Savings Bonds under a patriotic, automatic and regular plan. If you heed my nephew or niece's advice, you'll be doing yourself a favor. For these security bonds—as they do their part to insure a stable economy, cornerstone of the future security of our country—will pay you back $4 for every $3 ten years from now. They can mean financial security for you and your family. AMERICA'S SECURITY IS YOUR SECURITY! U. S. Treasury Department

Wedding Bells...

BANCROFT—ENGLEHARDT At a 4 o'clock candlelight service, Saturday, April 24, at the Vine Street Methodist church, Lawrence, Miss Doris P. Englehardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Englehardt, 13 Norris street, Lawrence, and George A. Bancroft, son of Mr. William Bancroft of Rocky Hill road, were united in marriage by the Rev. K. Thiem. The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose the ever beautiful "Because" and "Oh, Promise Me" for her wedding music sung by Miss Miriam Miller with Miss Clara Matthes at the organ.

The bride's sister, Miss Shirley Englehardt of Lawrence, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Habib, also of Lawrence and Mrs. William Johnston of Salem, N. H. Mr. Bancroft had as his best man, Vincent Mahoney of Andover, Robert Lozier and John Crowley, both of Lawrence, served as his ushers. The bride's candlelight duchess satin gown, styled in the mid-Victorian manner, with inserted marquisette yoke and portrait neckline edged in rosepoint lace, had a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt with full court train bordered with lace. Her imported veil of illusion fell from a coronet of pearled orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of bridal roses and stephanotis. The maid of honor wore a lilac faille taffeta and chantilly lace gown with a matching net hat and carried an arm bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses. Light green gowns, replicas of that worn by the maid of honor and matching net hats, were selected by the bride for her other attendants whose arm bouquets were pink sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

MORGAN—McGUIRE Miss Jacqueline T. McGuire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McGuire of 44 Saunders street, North Andover, became the bride of William F. Morgan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Morgan of Prospect road, last Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Michael's church, North Andover. The Rev. Edmund L. Loughlin performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of guests.

Steadman—Clark A June wedding at the Grace Episcopal church, Lawrence, is planned by Miss Genevieve E. Clark, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Clark of 168 Andover street, Lawrence, announce her engagement to Gordon I. Steadman of West Andover. Miss Clark is a graduate of Lawrence High school. She served two years with the WAVES and is now employed at the N. E. Tel & Tel. company exchange at Lawrence. Mr. Steadman is in the floral business with his father, Herbert Steadman. He served in the European theatre with the Air force during the war.

Fournier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Fournier of 447 Lowell street, Methuen. Mr. Fournier, a Navy veteran of the last war, is employed at the Pacific mills. Miss LeBlanc is planning a fall wedding.

Miss Anne Stone Honored At Tea

Upon the occasion of her retirement from the position of Matron of the Home for Aged People, Miss Anne Stone was honored at a tea last Sunday afternoon. The women with whom Miss Stone has been so closely associated at the home, Miss Ellen Sullivan, Miss Robina Mitchell, Miss Angie M. Burt, Miss Annie S. Lindsay, and Mrs. Lizzie C. Jenkins, were present to honor their matron. Miss Clara Baldwin, member of the board of managers, presided. Also at the tea were other members of the board of managers: President Arthur W. Cole; First Vice-President Herbert P. Carter; Second Vice-President Foster C. Barnard; Clerk Howard T. Malley; Treasurer Edward A. Anderson.

Friends of Miss Stone and the home who enjoyed the Sunday afternoon in her honor were: Fred E. Cheever, Frederick W. Gould, Mrs. Brownell Gage, Mrs. Ernest S. Young, Mrs. George Sawyer, Mrs. Joseph Rand, Mrs. Everett Lundgren and Mrs. John Angus.

Miss Stone, who has served the home efficiently and sympathetically during the past sixteen years, will be succeeded the first of May or shortly thereafter, by Mrs. Maude B. D. Killam of Porter road. The new matron was elected at a meeting of the board of managers April 20.

Those people who were fortunate enough to experience the kindness and consideration, patience and cheerful air which Miss Stone always brought to her position at the home, deeply regret her resignation but all wish her many years of health and happiness upon her return to Limington, Maine.

passed, the Arabs refused to accept partition, and the essential problem was no nearer solution than it was last November when partition was formally voted. So, two weeks ago the United States turned completely in its tracks, renounced the partition plan that now proved unworkable, and then proposed a vague trusteeship that offers no practical solution of a very serious problem that must be faced on May 15.

Small in size and population Palestine may be, with its 2,000,000 people in a Vermont-sized area, and thousands of miles away from our shores, yet upon its future may depend not only the future of the United Nations, but that of world peace. For it is another axiom of international politics that no issue can be discussed in a vacuum, or isolated from its relationship with other issues.

So involved has the Palestine problem become, with its many local and international aspects, that a proper appreciation of the issues at stake demand understanding of the background of events. Without the setting and historical perspective, the Palestine issue is exasperation, inhuman, and the cause of misunderstanding and hate. Limitations of space necessitate a division of the subject into two articles, the first to deal with the history of Palestine, and the second with the attempted recent solutions in the light of present issues.

Palestine—A Mandate

Modern Zionism is a blend of cultural, religious, and political tendencies toward a return to Palestine, given practical impetus in 1917 by Great Britain's Foreign Secretary Balfour in a letter to the British Zionist Federation, stating that, "His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people . . . it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine . . ."

In 1922 the League of Nations made Great Britain the Mandatory Power over Palestine, responsible for encouraging the development of "self-governing institutions." Whatever was meant by the term, the fact was that Arab, Jew and Briton lived in watertight compartments that aggravated rather than lessened the separate interests of each. In 1922 the Jewish population numbered one to every seven Arabs in a combined total of 672,900, and the Arabs were already resisting the implications of the Mandate with its encouragement of Jewish immigration and purchase of land.

European anti-Semitism after 1933 drove thousands of Jews to Palestine, until at present they number some 600,000 compared with about 1,350,000 Arabs. Repeated riots throughout the 1920's and 1930's were connected with Arab opposition to Jewish immigration. Finally, sustained violence in 1937-39, assisted by Axis propaganda, led the British Government to end its period of indecisiveness and to announce in 1939 what was intended to be a final settlement.

British Plan of 1939

Former attempts by the British to determine some form of self-government had proved unsuccessful, the Arabs continually pressing for "democratic government" in which, obviously, they would have commanded an overwhelming majority, the Jews unanimously rejecting any plan which precluded the National Home. So, in 1939, the announced policy of the British Government aimed at creating an independent Palestine within ten years, to set up in 1944 an appropriate body representative of the people of Palestine to make recommendations for the new State, and to limit Jewish immigration to a total of 75,000 between 1939 and 1944, refusing further immigration after that period except with consent of the Arabs of Palestine.

The problem was aggravated during the war by the Nazi slaughter of 6,000,000 Jews, and the wretched condition of survivors wandering homeless across Europe. Humanitarian instincts demanded a haven for the survivors; domestic politics in most nations closed the doors to worldwide immigration; guilty consciences pointed to Palestine as the obvious place. But those who so conveniently found their solution refused to consider the Arab position, or merely replied that Great Britain was either mismanaging her mandate, or firmly establishing imperial rule in Palestine by deliberately setting Arab against Jew.

Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry

The revival of terroristic activities in Palestine following V-E Day, this time by the Jews, convinced Great Britain of the necessity of determining an immigration policy which would be acceptable to Jewish and Arab opinion. However, since Palestine was only part of the complex refugee problem, the British Government wished to explore the possibilities of absorption in Europe and other countries, as well as in Palestine. As a result, an Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry was instituted to make immediate and long-term proposals. (Incidentally, Behind the Silken Curtain, by Bartley Crum, an American member of the Committee, is well worth reading.) During the interim period, Jewish immigration would be continued at the current 1,500 a month. The Committee report, published in May 1946, made several unanimous recommendations, of which the most important may be summarized as:

1. Opportunities for displaced persons other than in Palestine were few, and Palestine could not alone meet the problem.
2. Immediate admission of 100,000 Jews should be authorized.
3. Palestine must become a self-governing State, but no independent Palestine State or States should be set up. These, apart from plattitudinous hopes for peace and cooperation between Jews and Arabs, constituted the main proposals—in effect no solution, perhaps because there was no peaceful solution to suggest.

Immediate Arab reaction was condemnation of the report, and indications that "the national struggle" would be resumed if the recommendations were implemented. The Jews were lukewarm, except on the recommendation of the immediate admission of 100,000. In fact, the Zionist Organization of America, in October 1946, reaffirmed the demand for a Jewish Commonwealth covering the whole of Palestine. The British Government wished to be satisfied that they would not be called upon to operate a policy which would involve them single-handed. They proposed to consult the United States Government "to ascertain to what extent the government would be prepared to share the resulting military and financial responsibilities."

In October 1946, President Truman virtually refused to support existing plans, in effect supporting the demand for a Jewish State in a portion of Palestine, and pronounced himself in favor of immediate admission of the 100,000 Jews, ignoring the implications of such a move.

Further attempts by the British in 1946 and 1947 to secure conciliatory agreements between Jews and Arabs proved unsuccessful because, as Foreign Secretary Bevin reported, "For the Jews the essential principle is the creation of a sovereign Jewish State. For the Arabs, the essential point of principle is to resist to the last the establishment of Jewish sovereignty in any part of Palestine."

The British Government, lacking the authority to partition Palestine, unable to accept the requests of either the Arabs or the Jews, and unable to impose by themselves a solution of their own, decided that the only remaining course was to refer the problem to the United Nations. That body, but especially the United States, produced a 'solution' in November 1947. But in wishing away one problem, it ignored perspective and obvious problems, and thereby created other more serious possible consequences. The fighting in Palestine is only one of several. The sequence of events since November 1947 will show the fallacy of presuming that a paper decision solves an issue.

Duties Of A Free Press Stressed By Editor

"The institutions of democracy rest more securely upon the foundation of a free press, which so largely creates public opinion, than upon any other idea or practice", Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo (O.) Blade told his audience at the Don R. Mellett luncheon during Boston University's founders' day institute recently.

"I was in Berlin in 1932, in 1933, in 1937. Before 1937 the free press was gone. It is my opinion that nearly all the evils inherent in totalitarianism, in whatever nation it came to pass, could have been prevented or destroyed in 60 days if there had been a free press", he continued.

"Taken as a form of government, it seems to me democracy has been too often superficially defined as the rule of the majority. That is not a true definition. I agree with Dorothy Thompson that the glory of democracy is not that it means the rule of the majority. The glory of democracy is that it is the one type of government upon the earth which provides for the continuing rights of a minority not in power. What could be more despotic, more tyrannical than a majority in power, without provision for the rights of the minority? The American newspaper is peculiarly the medium for the expression of the minority not in power, because it is not under the control of government.

"Free expression, creating public opinion, is the most important attribute of democracy, and a free newspaper is its most vital medium".

The Ohio editor pointed out that it is the responsibility of American journalism to provide objective reporting, to furnish unbiased facts, to represent the whole people and special interests, and to join in a constructive effort to raise standards.

"Newspaper publishers will have freedom of the press", he reminded his audience of newspaper men and women, "so long as they deserve it through devotion to public welfare".

Patterson declared: "We are engaged in widening the horizons of men's thinking. This is surely something of human progress, something eternally purposeful in this effort. May we editors write over our doors, over our minds, over our hearts, those words of Thomas Jefferson, carved in stone and set above the entrance to the University of Virginia: 'Enter by this gate to seek the light of truth, the way of honor, and the will do work for man'.

"I have the faith to believe that this is the spirit which animates the better part of the leadership of American journalism. May we ever speak freely, but God give us to speak only after thinking, with understanding, with common sense and with tolerance".

Finally, the editor said, "Freedom of the press can be destroyed by economic strangulation, just as surely as it can be destroyed by political action. A newspaper must be profitable to be free, and to continue to be the channel for the aspirations of the people.

"As an editor", he said in conclusion, "I make no apology for suggesting to business men that they advertise. When we have no advertising, they will have no business. When they have no business, there

YOU ROLLING RIVER Binns
The ports of Oregon, Portland and Astoria, form the setting for this vigorous historical novel. Here are the stories of Captain Roger Collins, who loved the sea more than he loved his wife; of the Fortune brothers, products of a cruel father; of Willard Pearson, whose sweetheart took his affairs into her own hands—all tied together in a salty, thrilling novel.

HEADLESS ANGEL

THE WALL Cook
A vivid story of a Jewish family who stayed in America, and of their relatives in Germany, caught up in the Nazi storm. As an American soldier in Europe after World War I, the leading character met relatives in Germany, France and England, all living lives strangely separated from those of the average man. This is his struggle against his own, supported by his self-made standards.

THE NERO WOLFE

THE NERO WOLFE OMNIBUS Stout
Two old favorites, brought out together—"The League of Frightened Men" and "The Red Box." Good, both of them.

GREEN CARPET

WOMAN OF PROPERTY Seeley
Frieda Schlempe, daughter of immigrant parents who settled in a small town in the Middle West just before the 1900's, knew the degradation of poverty in the extreme. From the first awareness of her difference from other growing girls, she set about to build herself the protection that she felt wealth would supply, and from her determination grew the obsession of money. This is a powerful story, with much of the element of suspense that has made Mabel Seeley famous as a mystery writer.

Only Two Changes In Andover Trains

Only two Andover trains are affected by the changes in the new spring-summer schedule put into operation by the Boston and Maine railroad at 12:01 a. m. last Sunday.

The train formerly leaving Andover at 10:20 a. m. and arriving in Boston at 10:51 a. m. has been changed to leave here at 10:24 a. m., Daylight Saving Time, and arrive at Boston at 10:55 a. m.

The other change is in the time of a Sunday train which formerly left Boston at 7:35 p. m., and arrived here at 8:25 p. m. This train now leaves Boston at 7:55 p. m., Daylight Saving Time, and arrives at Andover at 8:42 p. m.

The railroad will continue to operate on Eastern Standard Time.

Fruitmen To Get Pest Warnings

To spray or not to spray is a question which Massachusetts fruitmen will be pondering many times in the months to come. The answer depends upon the weather as well as upon the development of blossoms and fruit in the orchard.

To help the fruitmen decide the question the United States Weather Bureau at East Boston, the county agricultural agents, and the University of Massachusetts plant and pest authorities have worked out an elaborate system of weather and pest warnings.

Agricultural agents and key fruitmen over the state will keep the university men informed of fruit and pest development. The weather station will issue a daily special farm weather forecast. Putting the two together the university men will issue warnings every Monday and Wednesday for radio use on Tuesday and Thursday.

The special warnings issued for Tuesdays and Thursdays from the University will be carried as follows: WBZ, 6:50 a. m.; WNAC, 6:15 a. m.; WEEI, 6:10 a. m.; WTIC, 6:35 a. m.; WHDH, 6:35 a. m. and 12:50 p. m.

Perhaps you have put up, during the war, with a burnt-out oven or, your sink was stained or chipped, the faucets leaking, past repair. Now, you can have a streamlined kitchen, stove, sink, cabinets, all of uniform and convenient height and with tops of the same finish. The cabinets will utilize space, now wasted; your built in sink can have two compartments for washing and rinsing; or if you are tired of washing dishes three times a day your sink can contain a dish washing machine.
