LEONARD F. JAMES

With Turkey as the setting, history is repeating itself in the international political scene of 1948. The backdrop may be slightly altered, some of the roles may be played by new actors, but the stage is the same, and old faces still walk before us. Great Britain and France have today dropped back to the position of understudies, while the United States becomes the protagonist to face Russia. The Czarist double-eagle may have given way to the Soviet hammer and sickle, but Russia's interests in the Mediterranean remain what they have been for at least one hundred years.

In the nineteenth century Turkey, a despotic and harsh military ruler, controlled a vast area of Austria-Hungary. Outraged as were many western nations at Turkey's ruthlessness in the Balkans, they were nevertheless more deeply concerned with Russia's ambitions to take over the vital Turkish Dardanelles and the outlet to the Eastern Mediterranean. Britain aided Greece in her revolution against Turkey in the 1820's but joined France in the Crimean War against Russia in the 1850's. For the Mediterranean interests of Britain and France could not countenance Russian expansion in that area.

19th Century Russian Ambitions
The completion of the Suez Canal by 1870, and the opening of what Great Britain regarded as her vital "life-line" to the East, brought into closer perspective the threats of Russian expansion. When Russia defeated Turkey in 1878, and secured concessions in the Dardanelles, Great Britain joined Germany at the Congress of Berlin to take away those spoils of victory. As a consequence, Russia (Continued on Page Twelve)

Record For First Six Months of 1948 Far In Excess of Corresponding Period a Year Ago

Andover's water consumption for the first six months of 1948 was far in excess of the corresponding period a year ago. During 1947 the town used 216 million gallons from January through June, while this year the January-June total reached the high figure of 235 million, a gain of more than three million gallons a month.

This indicates that the water consumption for 1948 will top the total of 469,364,000 used during the entire year 1947, a daily average of 1,285,926 gallons.

Furthermore, it is pointed out, the 1948 figures do not include July and August, the hot summer months when water consumption usually is greatest. Last year a very dry August together with an unusual amount of hot weather found users drawing much more than the daily average. Should a (Continued on Page Four)

Plans have been made to obtain a headquarters and to set up the machinery necessary to register approximately 8700 young men in the area. (Continued on Page Four)

Sees Future Need For Playgrounds

"The Town of Andover should set aside land now in the new housing developments that can be used later for playground purposes," Benjamin F. Dimlich, the director of playgrounds in Andover, told a radio audience over station WCCM last Tuesday morning.

"Such land set aside now," he said, "can always be used for other purposes, but once it has been built up, there can be no adequate playground facilities without taking the children far from their home."

Mr. Dimlich was heard in the fourth of a series of WCCM programs devoted to recreation in Andover.

Close Burnham Rd. For Sewer Work

Burnham road from the corner of Arundel street to Dufon road is closed indefinitely owing to sewer construction.

Contract for the sewer, which will run over 2500 feet on Burnham road, and about 600 or more feet on Dufon road, was awarded last week to Lewis and Scott, contractors.

This narrow road runs under the B & M railroad bridge and is much used by motorists going to Shawshen Village and Lawrence. Being so narrow, however, it was decided to close it while construction of the sewer is in progress, a matter of several weeks.

House Lots Available For Four Veterans

Applicants Must Be Prepared To Start Building Within Two Months

Four lots on the Veterans' plot at the junction of Burnham road and High streets are available to any local veterans who are able and willing to start building within the next two months.

The lots are numbers 4 and 6 on Burnham road, and numbers 10 and 11 on High street.

To dispose of these lots, a drawing will be held in the office of the Veterans' Service Officer at the Town House, Monday evening, August 16, at 8 o'clock.

Any veteran desiring to enter the drawing for one of these lots should submit his name at once to Francis P. Markey, the Veterans' Service Officer.

If a veteran enters his name in the drawing and finds that he will be unable to attend at the appointed time, he may authorize another person to act as his agent.

Up to date six applications for these lots have been received. Veterans desiring to place their names in the drawing are advised to act immediately.

Work on at least two houses on the Burnham road side of the plot is now underway and it is expected that at least two more will be started shortly.

These buildings are not connected with the housing to be erected under the jurisdiction of the local Housing Authority.

Parking Ordinance Approved

193 Meters Will Be In Operation In About 10 Days

Parking meters are being installed in the business area of the town and will be put into operation in about 10 days.

Notification that the town's new parking ordinance and plans had been approved by the state was received by the selectmen Monday. Workmen representing the M-Co Meter company immediately began installing the posts along the sidewalks, each about 15 inches in from the curb.

This work is expected to take a day or two more. Police Chief George A. Dane will have the lanes painted on the roadways indicating each parking area, and when this is completed the meters and instruction plates will be attached. The latter are expected to arrive here shortly.

All told 193 meters will be installed and one police officer will be assigned to supervise parking in the metered area.

Water Carnival At Pomp's Aug. 21

Plans are now underway for the water carnival of the Andover beaches which will be held Saturday, August 21, at Pomp's pond. Since community residents are using the beach in increasing numbers, it promises to be a gala civic affair with both young and old participating.

The following races are now scheduled for speed swimmers: 25-yard free-style for beginners under 10 years; 50-yard free-style for racers between 10-14 years; 50-yard free-style for racers over 14 years; 4-man relay made up of children under 14 years, one team from Pomp's competing against one from Hussey's pond in Shawshen.

Service Club Plans For Coming Season

Plans are being made by the Andover Service club for another year's program. The new club year starts next month, September 23. Notices to all members will be mailed from the secretary's office as usual.

The new club roster is being made up, giving full information about the organization, names of officers, membership, committees, and other details, and will be sent to each member as soon as it comes off the press.

President Frank L. Brigham has appointed all standing committees for the year. They will serve this year as the program committee, each taking its turn in being responsible for one or more meetings during the year.

Several innovations are being planned to spark up the meetings during the coming season and every member will have a part in making the meetings interesting, profitable and constructive.

Members are asked to jot down the first five meeting dates and plan for them—September 23, October 14 and 28, November 18 and December 9. The program will be announced later.

No "Cuss" Words In The New Army

The new Army "isn't what it used to be."

And many of the objections Mother had with the "draft" Army in the early days of the late unpleasantness are no longer valid objections. For the Army, into which thousands of young Americans are headed a few months hence, has been changed in many ways. The changes were first tried in the Army's experimental units at the Universal Military Training Center at Fort Knox, Kentucky. The success of these new ideas in military training has caused them to be incorporated in the training plans for Regular Army units.

No longer will Mother have reason to be fearful lest her son learn some "cuss" words he never knew before, from some tough old-time Army sergeant. Under the new set-up, the Army just doesn't let the "tough, old" sergeants swear at recruits. The average "tough, old" sergeant in today's Army, by the way, is about 24 years old.

The edict against swearing is part of the Army's new approach toward receiving and training recruits to become good soldiers. Patience with new-comers has supplanted the old "bawling-out" method that many recruits used to think was a favorite pastime with the old soldiers.

The Army chaplain (minister, priest or rabbi to you) plays an important role in the Army's plans for training its new draft Army. Whenever possible, the new men will be given individual interviews with chaplains and strongly encouraged to attend a church of their own choice. The chaplains will send letters to parents, from time to time, to keep them posted about their young sons, many of whom will be away from home for the first time. The assistance of communities in the vicinity of camps will be sought to provide wholesome, attractive, and interesting recreational and entertainment facilities for the new soldier.

The facilities of the United States Armed Forces Institute, the largest educational enterprise in the world, will be available to the selectee or enlistee. The Army puts considerable stress on its educational program which will enable the draftee to continue his formal education in off-duty time. Courses will be available which will fit directly into the educational plans of the soldier, most of those courses being accredited by civilian educational institutions.

The Back Yard Gardener Says:

I spent last Wednesday at the Waltham Field Station. It was their annual Field Day when they make a special display of their experiments for visitors. Of course, they had a lot of special demonstrations that you wouldn't see at other times, but as I've often said, the real way to get some ideas on vegetable growing and flower growing is to visit any time such places as the Field Station and the University and the County Agricultural Schools. There you can really see what a flower or a vegetable of such and such a variety really looks like, and you can make up your own mind a bit more definitely than if you read the glowing accounts in the seed catalogs. I saw a lot of things and lots of people, too. Some of the folks who are a bit older than I am must have been a bit flabbergasted at the gadgets on display. The grounds were literally covered with gasoline engines which had been attached to all sorts of gardening tools. Maybe it was the other way around but either way there were hundreds of machines, from weed pullers up. Two or three of them I think I'll buy when the inflation prices come down a bit. I think my old bones will last that long.

Come to think of it, about the only gadget that I didn't see attached to a gasoline engine was a hoe which works between the hills. They had some that would do the job between the rows but not around the individual hills. If they keep on they will have gardening down to a point where there won't be any backaches, just headaches trying to get the darn machines started and then keep them running. But, to get back to the old grind. Early the next morning I

WE NEED NOT FAIL

Welles
Summer Welles has written a simple, direct statement about Palestine and American policy toward it. He reviews the historical data on Palestine, approves partition, criticizes American policy and underlines the necessity of working through collective action in the United Nations. He draws a telling parallel between the issue presented by the invasion of Manchuria seventeen years ago and the refusal of the United Nations to face the risks involved in the imposition of the partition plan for Palestine.

Primarily it is the story of the well-educated Indian girl, Noebe. Miss Bates has drawn to a considerable extent upon the history and folk lore of the island. An earlier novel by this author, "Floor of Heaven," failed to find the audience it is so richly deserved.

picked a bushel of Kentucky wonders for Mom to can. I wish someone would develop Kentucky wonders which wouldn't grow more than six feet high. I have to use Mom's kitchen step ladder to reach the highest.

While we're on the subject of vegetables, right now we're enjoying Coccozelle squash and I'm pleased to note that more and more other back yard gardeners are using these in preference to the old time varieties of summer squash. I find when boiled or steamed they have much firmer flesh and then they have the added advantage of frying as you do egg plants. If you don't think they're good that way, put a batch in front of three hungry youngsters as Mom often does.

One last word before I stop this letter, don't forget to keep those Jap beetles under control. Mr. Whitcomb, the entomologist down at the Field Station, told me that just about 15 questions out of every 20 that come in are on Jap beetles. This means that they are spreading rapidly. At this time of year with fruit nearing the mature stage, your best bet is to use a non-poisonous spray or dust. The recommendation given by Mr. Whitcomb runs like this—3 tablespoons full to each gallon of water of powdered derris or cube dust. If you dust, use rotenone dust, ¼ of 1 per cent or 1 per cent. Repeat real often, especially on flowers which are just starting to blossom because the beetles will come back to these undusted flowers.

For more effective and long lasting control, probably the best bet for the home gardener is to dust with 3 or 5 per cent DDT dust, repeating every few days, more often when rain occurs. Remember, of course though, that DDT is poisonous while rotenone isn't.

Water Consumption Here Greater Than Last Year

hot, dry spell occur this month the 1948 figure should soar. Hot weather is always accompanied by a heavy drain upon the water supply. Consumption goes up far beyond the daily average and the pumps are in operation more than usual.

Varied Events for Playgrounds

Other events scheduled in connection with the playground activities are: Carnival dance at the Guild, Tuesday, August 17, beginning at 7 p. m. Field Day at Ballardvale, Wednesday, August 18. Field Day at Shawsheen, Friday, August 20. With the conclusion of these events the summer programs will be finished and all playgrounds will close for the season Friday, August 20.

There is no cause for concern, however, as the daily average of the pumps, with a new intake pipe to be installed soon, will be 3,816,000 gallons.

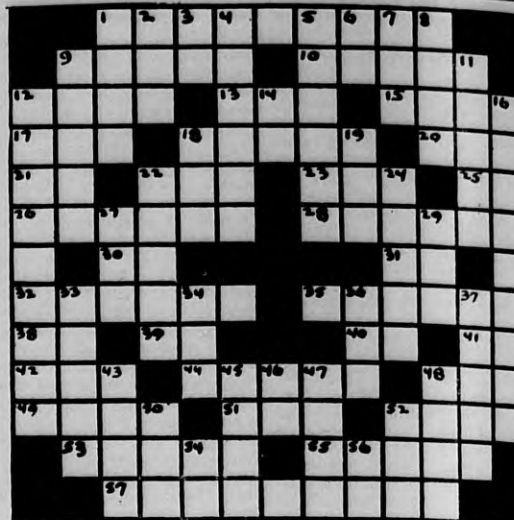

Another indication that more water will be used this year than last is the work of extending water mains, part of which is going on at present.

All of the water pipe for this year's new work is here. The Board of Public Works is now making a 960 foot extension of 6-inch pipe on Beacon street.

When this is finished there will be 1400 feet of 8-inch main to be constructed on Red Spring road; 1700 feet of 6-inch pipe on Gould road; and 1680 feet of 10-inch extension on Bailey road.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

REGISTER TOMORROW!

If you are not a voter, but are eligible to vote tomorrow will be your last chance to register before the September primaries. Voting is more than a privilege; it is a duty. It is senseless to feel like the woman who said she'd never vote until they elected better people to office. The one and only way for you to help put the right kind of people into office is to vote. Vote according to the dictates of your own conscience.

But before you can vote, you must register, if, of course, you are a new voter. So, tomorrow is an important date in the election year.

THE CUSTOMER IS ALWAYS RIGHT!

Almost every store, or concern that caters to the public wants to please the public. It wants to keep the customers it has, and it wants to gain new ones.

Some concerns go even further. They have a notion that the customers may have some pretty good ideas — ideas that nobody within the organization may happen to think about.

A case in point is the passengers' suggestion box in the North Station of the Boston & Maine Railroad in Boston. In that box customers may place any suggestions they may have, and if the ideas are good, bank on it, the railroad is always ready and willing to give them due consideration.

Some little time ago, a commuter made a suggestion that the commutation tickets be made smaller, so as to fit into one's wallet without folding. It seemed like a good idea, and the railroad not only considered it, but put it into effect.

And now commuters are using the smaller ticket. It is a big improvement.

POSTAL RECEIPTS GAIN

Receipts at the Andover post office have shown a decided gain over a year ago. For the fiscal year just closed the total was $487,473, an increase of $36,889 for the 12-month period.

Yearly postal receipts close to the half-million mark are a clear indication that business is good here. It must also be a great source of satisfaction to Postmaster Stephen A. Boland and his staff, always so cordially helpful in their dealings with the public, to see their office business growing in this manner. It is also pleasing to note that in the increase, the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds jumped almost one-third over last year, a most encouraging sign.

A REASONABLE REQUEST

Archbishop Cushing, speaking recently at the groundbreaking program at the new Bon Secours Hospital, in Methuen, said, "I ask only this of the laboring man on this project: that he give us a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. I ask him not to cut corners and I ask him not to be unjust in his demands or dealings with us. . . . I ask of labor on this project a just return for the high compensation we shall gladly give them. . . . We received from labor, prior to the late war, magnificent workmanship and good service. If we can get similar workmanship and service on this project with all our willingness to pay . . . we will indeed be blessed. . . . I am confident labor will give us this support."

Should not labor, on all projects, be willing to give full return for fair compensation? No request could be fairer!

BUSINESS STATESMANSHIP

American business leaders, gathered for the Harvard Business School Alumni Conference, heard appeals to fight inflation with lower prices and "a new statesmanship on the part of business and organized labor."

The president of R. H. Macy & Company, Inc. said: "We must fight for a lower level of prices on which depends the maintenance of a standard of living adequate to support a prosperous United States."

"People in this country want better things, better made things and better looking things, and they want to pay less for them so they may enjoy more of them. . . ."

"The key to the whole equation is lower prices and greater aggregate profits produced by lesser unit profits spread over more articles made and sold."

That is the story that chain stores and progressive independent stores have been preaching for years. That is the philosophy upon which chain retailing is based. It has been a constant brake working against runaway prices in the United States.

A retail distribution system that operates on this basis is a life-saver for the consumer because it discourages any tendency to charge "all the traffic will bear." It is a hopeful sign when leaders in business and labor recognize these fundamental principles.

The city of Melrose is out of debt! What an example to every town and city and state in these United States, and what an example to the United States Government! Melrose has proven that it can be done. The trouble is that few places elect the sort of people who will do it.

DO YOU KNOW Massachusetts?

DO YOU KNOW THAT . . . Nearly half again as many new dwellings were started during the first six months of 1948 in Massachusetts as in the same period last year, as shown by building permit issues reported by the Dept. of Labor and Industries . . . The total estimated construction cost was 76% more than that in the first half of 1947 . . . Massachusetts has the largest number of investors, in proportion to population, of any state in the Union . . . Metropolitan Boston supplies nearly one-third of all the fresh and frozen fish consumed in the United States . . . The death rate in Massachusetts during 1947 was 11.2 deaths per 100,000 residents, the lowest rate in the history of the Commonwealth with the exception of 1938 . . . Of the principal causes of death last year, heart diseases took 38.8%, cancer 15.7% and cerebral hemorrhage, embolism and thrombosis 9.0% . . . A survey conducted by Boston University shows that Boston is normally the third leading city of the United States in Federal income tax payments, fourth in volume of bank clearings and holds nearly three times as much per capita savings as the national average . . . Boston Chamber of Commerce has published a valuable booklet entitled "The Boston Story" . . . The Town of Somerset has appointed a special committee to prepare a zoning bylaw to guide the development of the town.

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago—August, 1898

Frank P. Higgins, Herbert S. Stillings and George A. Brown leave on a bicycle trip to Portsmouth, N. H. but only Brown reaches his destination. Riding through West Newbury late at night . . . it was a Saturday . . . they are set upon by thugs and badly beaten up. Higgins and Stillings go as far as Hampton the next day. A few days later one of the thugs is arrested.

Nesbitt Gleason of the American Express Company returns from a fishing trip.

Nellie Farmer of Andover Press and her brother, Chester, are at Kearsarge Village, North Conway, N. H., for two weeks.

Miss Addie Cox of Summer street is taking Miss Baldwin's place as stenographer and bookkeeper at the Emerson Manufacturing Company in Lawrence during Miss Baldwin's vacation.

We editorialize: "It is a welcome story that the dispatches bear to the American people this morning. Spain consents to the peace terms of our nation, and the war is now at an end."

25 Years Ago—August, 1923

Andover pays tribute to the late President Warren G. Harding. All stores and factories are closed and there is a public meeting in the Town Hall where the Rev. Charles F. Henry, rector of Christ church, presides. Town Clerk George A. Higgins reads President Coolidge's proclamation, and there are addresses by Fr. Nugent and by the Rev. E. Victor Bigelow.

The Townsman makes amends "or an erroneous new item printed the week before. We say that Mrs. M. E. Todd and Miss Eda P. Todd are not at West Boxford as was reported. They are merely at Boxford.

Weddings: Carrie A. Merrill and John I. Foye, both of Andover, married at Free Church by the Rev. F. A. Wilson; Helen I. Lawson of Andover and Norman E. Draper of Hartford, Conn.; Margaret Sharpe of Andover and Joseph Marshall of Dorchester.

Do these titles mean anything to you? They are songs, recordings of which were advertised by a music store a quarter of a century ago. "Trot Along"; "Wet Y' Thumb"; "Stella"; "Carolina Mammy"; "Rosetime and You"; "Oh! Harold!"; "When June Comes Along With a Song"; "Born and Bred in Brooklyn"; "When You Walked Out Somebody Else Walked Right In"; "Barney Google"; "I Cried for You."

James C. Ramsey and family have moved from Brookline to their new home at 13 William St. Members of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Free church agree to earn $1 each during the summer, and several of them band together and have a bakery sale at the home of Miss Florence Parker.

10 Years Ago—August, 1938

West Andover besieged by dogs and many poultry are killed. One animal is caught and given in charge of the M. S. P. C. A.

Back on the job after their vacations are Police Chief George A. Dane and Patrolman John Devermond.

Miss Helen Tewksbury spends the weekend at Hyannis, a guest of Miss Mary L. Guyton of Boston, recently elected third vice-president of Quota International. Mrs. Andrew B. McTernan and Alice McTernan returned from a vacation spent at Smith's Point.

Mrs. Mary C. Edmands moves from Wolcott avenue to 35 Washington avenue.

The annual boxing tournament is being held at the playgrounds. The South church cemetery will be enlarged by virtue of a recent gift of land from Miss Byers Smith to the church. The piece of land lies between the present cemetery and Lupin road.

For the town morally. Particularly it is bad for the young children who frequent these carnivals to be subjected to this kind of a public display of gambling.

By SEN. PHILIP K. ALLEN

The writer of this column suddenly found the other day that due to oversight the steady march of Departments in alphabetical order had been interrupted and that the Department of Education had got in ahead of the Departments of Corporations and Taxation and Correction. To correct this oversight we shall forthwith take two steps backward and take up the first of the above mentioned hoping that the readers will forgive us.

The Department of Corporations and Taxation is perhaps the most interesting of the twenty. In the first place it is the main collecting agency for the Commonwealth; the second, its impact is felt by every single individual in the Commonwealth. But to most people who know the department, its main contribution to Massachusetts Government is its Director, Henry F. Long, of Topsfield. No other man in the history of the Commonwealth has served in an appointive office continuously as long as he has. No other man has been given as much arbitrary power as he. Yet no other head of a department is as available as he for conference; that is, his office door is always open. And since the days of Calvin Coolidge, who appointed him to this office, nearly every governor or would-be governor has made campaign promises to remove Mr. Long—yet he still rules the department with an iron hand.

In the department there are two deputies, assistants to the director Harold S. Lyon of West Bridgevater, and Edward C. Wilson of Belmont. Under these two are the twelve divisions that make up the department.

The Division of Appraisal and Review, with some twenty-two employees, values inheritance taxes on estates and administers the collection of taxes on insurance and on stock transfers. In the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1948 this division had collected approximately 8 millions.

The Division of Corporate Organization and Registration employing some sixteen persons is the records division. Here are filed not only the organizational structure of every corporation in the Commonwealth—lists of directors, capital structure, place of business, purpose of incorporation, etc. but also annual certificates of conditions of every corporation doing business within Massachusetts.

The Division of Corporations with thirty employees is responsible for the assisive of the corporate excise tax. This tax, levied on all corporations doing business in the state is made up of a 1 1/2% so-called normal tax on corporate income, a 13% surtax, a 1 1/2% additional tax temporarily to be levied until 1950 to pay for the Veteran's Bonus and the 13% surtax applied to this 1 1/2% tax. From this source some 61 millions were collected during the last fiscal year. In addition to acting as an assisive agency this division is responsible for auditing the returns of all corporations engaged in manufacturing and both domestic and foreign business. Incidentally, although the exact figures were unobtainable, this system of auditing produces substantial additional returns.

Next week we will delve further into the Department of Corporations and Taxation.

TOPSFIELD FAIR

TOPSFIELD — Pari-mutual harness horse racing under floodlights will be featured at the Topsfield Fair for six nights, August 30 through September 4, on one of the fastest half-mile tracks in the East—a track on which trotters and pacers have been breaking records for half a century.

Last year's fair meeting marked the New England inaugural of night harness racing and it was an instant hit, the evening attendances being the largest in the history of the sponsoring Essex County Agricultural Society. Old-time followers of the traditional county fair sport were almost unanimous in reporting they found the races much more enjoyable in the cool of evening than under a hot sun.

ACTION RESULTS!
Andover's Meatless Week has brought results that were apparent from the start—
When the Voice of America, the 145,000,000 or more people, raise their protest loud enough, it can be heard the length and breadth of this great nation of ours.
Let everyone in America get behind movements such as this applying to all HIGH commodities, and perhaps we can enjoy more of the luxuries that at this time are just beyond our reach.
Continued similar action nationally will drive these high prices down a bit prematurely—better for them to come down now than to be forced down with the above methods.

JIMMY McLANE TAKES OLYMPIC SWIMMING PLUM

When Jimmy McLane, Phillips Academy's likeable 17-year-old swimmer, won the 1500 meter free style championship in the Wembley pool Saturday afternoon, to quote the New York Times, "he picked the last swimming plum off the Olympic tree." His time of 19:18.5 was fast, though not a record.

As pleasing as this youthful swimmer's victory was to the Academy, it was doubly sweet to one Roscoe E. Dake. Dake, who has coached McLane during the past two seasons in the Academy pool, has had a lot to do with the young man's progress.

Benjamin Welles, writing in the Times, called the 1500 meter affair "the race of the day" and termed it "a private event between America's McLane and Australia's Jack Marshall, who were swimming side by side in lanes four and five."

He went on to say: Hungary's game G. Mitro, who holds the European championship, drew lane six on the other side of McLane and from the opening gun he dug and scooped his way into the lead with his unique stiff-armed body-rolling stroke.

Marshall had been lying well back up, but as the tenth lap was ticked off the slender Australian, who is almost McLane's twin in physical build, began a remarkable bid.

It was almost eerie watching the two youngsters coursing down the length of the green tiled pool—all other six competitors forgotten in rear. Inch by inch, foot by foot, Marshall began climbing up on McLane; first he lagged by three body lengths, at the next turn it was two and a half lengths and all of a sudden the spectators began to sense what was coming.

Now the cheering began, spreading spontaneously through the largely British crowd of nearly 8,000 persons, all of whom were thirsting for some sort of a British victory.

By the 16th lap Marshall was clearly swimming more smoothly than McLane and the American lad, though still in the lead, was beginning to turn on steam to ward off the Australian's bid.

Still Marshall came on, his arms a marvel of ease in contrast with McLane's harder strokes and it seemed now as if style would prevail. By the 22nd lap, Marshall was on McLane's heels and the crowd was roaring itself hoarse.

Both lads went into the next turn neck and neck and for one whole length of the 50-meter pool Marshall raced nose and nose with McLane in a desperate bid to seize first place. But his heart was bigger than his reserve strength and by the end of the 24th lap the fans knew, McLane knew, and Marshall himself knew that the American boy had this race sewn up.

There was little else to watch. McLane ticked off the last six laps, increasing his lead, the whole time, to coast into the finish wall with the same distance between himself and Marshall as had been there before the young Australian's great-hearted effort.

Then McLane was lost in a welter of handshakes and kisses from his family and hearty slaps on his strong young shoulders from Wally Ris, Alan Ford, Bill Smith, Allen Stack and other swimming "greats" who helped ring the swimming bell for the United States and set Olympic history in the bargain.

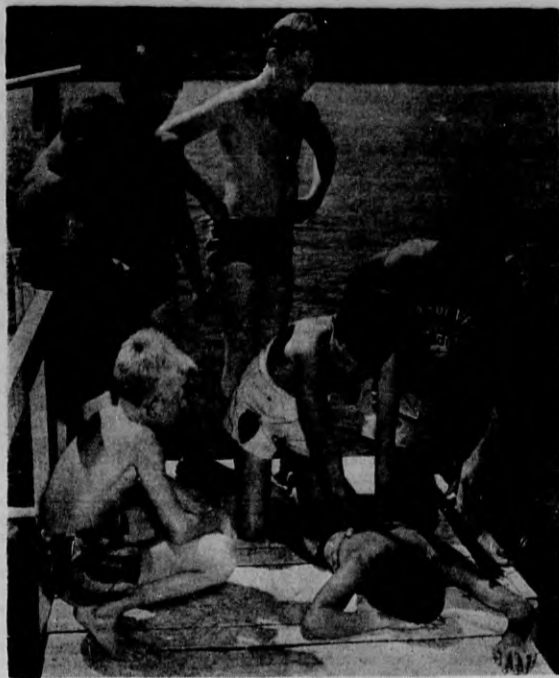

The "Rough Riders" of Spanish-American war fame were organized and commanded by Theodore Roosevelt.

To Conclude Series Of Organ Recitals

The current series of organ concerts being given by the Organ Institute Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p. m. in the Methuen Memorial Music Hall will be concluded this week when Ernest White will be the recitalist. Widely known throughout the United States and Canada for his organ recitals, Mr. White has until recently carried on a program of liturgical music in the Church of Saint Mary the Virgin in New York City which made the church famous. He has recently joined the faculty of the University of Western Ontario, where he will conduct a school for organists.

Mr. White's first program, largely contemporary music, will include compositions by Bach, Dandrieu, Karg-Elert, Tournemire, Messiaen, Weigl, Willaen, and Clark. In his second program, an orchestra of stringed instruments, conducted by Arthur Howes, will assist him in the performance of Handel's Fifth Organ concerto, and three Mozart Sonatas for Strings and Organ. The remainder of his program will consist of compositions of Couperin, Arne, Pachelbel, W. F. Bach, and Kirnberger. The orchestra will be heard in Vivaldi's Concerto Grosso in D Minor.

Tickets may be procured at the Hall and reserved by writing to Organ Institute, Box 50, Andover.

WINDHAM PLAYHOUSE

Wednesday evening, August 11, the Windham Playhouse opened its seventh week of summer theatre with the magnificent spectacle stage play, "Joan of Lorraine." This play, which took New York by storm, is the most costly production as yet attempted by the Windham Playhouse.

This magnificent production will have for its star, the outstanding young Hollywood actress, Ilyana Werner, who is considered one of the most glamorous actresses of Hollywood's younger generation. Miss Werner arrived at Windham last week and Windham Playhouse patrons will have this opportunity of seeing her in the much sought after role of Joan of Arc.

Augmenting the large regular Windham cast will be Roger Quinlan and Arthur Flynn. A Everett Austin will also appear as the Dauphin.

Performances will be from Wednesday through Sunday, curtain is scheduled for 8:30 sharp.

WEST NEWBURY THEATRE

The first summer theatre production anywhere of "Joy to the World," comedy hit only four weeks off Broadway, will be presented at the West Newbury Summer theatre the week of August 16, following the current production of "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Starring Alfred Drake and Marsha Hunt, "Joy to the World" was acclaimed by Broadway critics this spring as the season's most sparkling comedy. As soon as it ended its successful Broadway run last month, the West Newbury theatre began negotiating for summer stock rights. In a flying trip to New York, Producer Carl Friedman concluded the arrangements last week—and the Town Hall Players of West Newbury is thus the first summer theatre in the country to present "Joy to the World."

As up to date as the headlines in tomorrow's newspaper, "Joy to the World" is a satire about Hollywood in 1948. It takes movie producers and glamorous starlets on a dizzy whirlwind merry-go-round with some Senators and Congressmen, Washington investigators, news commentators, cocktail party hangers-on and the whole paraphernalia of contemporary American life where the headlines are made.

"Joy to the World" opens Monday evening, August 16, and plays through Saturday evening, August 21, with a matinee on Wednesday. Curtain for the evening performance is at 8:40. Tickets may be reserved by calling the box office, West Newbury 160.

Local Librarian On WCCM Friday

Friday morning, at 10:30 there will be another in the series of broadcasts by the Memorial Hall Library over WCCM.

Miss Miriam Putnam, librarian, will discuss a few of the books in the library collection which will help make for greater summer vacation fun. If you'd like suggestions of books that will tell you how to plan a camping trip, put on a barbecue or a picnic, how to choose a boat, or build an outdoor fire place. Why not plan to listen in.

These broadcasts are made alternate Friday mornings at the same hour.

Andover, Vale, Shawsheen

The Walnuthurst Dairy, owned and operated by Burten A. Jenkins, has served Andover families for many years.

The business was started by Mr. Jenkins' father thirty-five years ago, and very capable managed by his mother before and during the war years. Each has carried on the family tradition of good service, a clean modern dairy, and fine quality milk from a mixed herd which agrees with so many Andover "Better Babies".

The Walnuthurst dairy will see to it that you get special delivery of fresh milk in an emergency. The next time you need milk or cream delivered on short notice, call Mr. Jenkins and try his product. You'll find the milk as satisfactory as his service.

Mr. Jenkins is a product of the local schools (Punchard), and also attended Stockbridge, a part of Massachusetts State Agricultural School. He is a veteran of World War II, and he returned from service, took over the business from his mother and has been most successful.

Satisfied consumers in Andover keep Mr. Jenkins and his employees remarkably busy all year round. Telephone 994 for service and quality. Milk is an important part of everyone's diet, and milk from the Walnuthurst dairy is the milk you need.

VIEWS OF THE NEWS

sia adopted less evident means of attaining her objectives, or at least made the attempt. She encouraged the fierce desires of nationalist Balkan races under Turkish domination, hoping thereby to see Turkey driven out of Europe and gain for herself the tangible rewards of Balkan gratitude in the form of control of the Dardanelles. By 1914 she had not only helped to secure the independence of Serbia, Bulgaria, Albania and others, but had spurred Serbia to resist Austrian demands that finally precipitated the first World War.

Czarist and Soviet Objectives
Meanwhile, the international scene had changed. By the turn of the century Germany seemed to be the dangerous power threatening the security of Europe. Austria had joined in an alliance with Germany because her own subject races might be inspired to revolt through the examples of Balkan independence. France and Britain saw Germany as the immediate danger, and were prepared to accept an "understanding" with Russia. That Russia joined them in the war against Germany in 1914 did not mean that her ambitions against Turkey were any the less. The alliance was merely a temporary measure of common defence against the immediate common enemy. Nor did the end of that war change the significance of Turkey and the Dardanelles in the international scene. Agreements were made to remove the tension by "internationalizing" the Dardanelles, but paper agreements could not eliminate Russia's ambitions, whether Czarist or Soviet. Clearly enough, when the time came, Russian pressure would again be brought to bear against Turkey.

U. S. Aid to Turkey

Turkey's neutrality during the recent war was undoubtedly desired as much by Germany as by the Western Allies, for a belligerent Turkey could well have become Moscow-dominated, even if fighting on Russia's side. As during the 1914-1918 struggle, immediate interests could not hide long-range ambitions. And today as Britain finds herself unable to play her former role in the Balance of Power—to prevent one nation from becoming so powerful that it can dominate Europe—so the United States, perhaps reluctantly but none the less necessarily, takes over the job. Since the enunciation of the Truman Doctrine—it should be properly called the United States doctrine—we have been sending military aid to Turkey in the form of planes, ships, guns, and instructors to teach Turks how to handle American equipment. The aid is listed at $100,000,000, but since surplus army equipment is being sold at 10 cents on the dollar the actual aid is much greater.

Russian propagandists naturally advertised America's aims as being interference in internal Turkish affairs, and probable domination of the country. But the United States military mission is attending strictly to business and avoiding politics. And Russia's position in Asia and Europe convinces Turkey that potential danger is from Moscow. Russian pincers are on western Turkey via the Soviet-controlled Balkans, and on eastern Turkey from Russia itself. If the Eastern Mediterranean and Iraq and Iran come under Russian control, then Turkey would be surrounded. The people of Turkey appreciate the threat and consequently accept American aid at face value.

Aid to Turkey is very clearly part of our international policy. Turkish troops and officers are trained under the supervision of the United States army; instructors from Fort Knox are teaching Turks how to use American tanks; and a modern Turkish navy is being developed for defense against possible seizure of the Dardanelles by Russia, with emphasis upon modern, long-range submarines crewed by men trained by United States submarine experts. A United States air mission is supervising Turkish expenditures on modern aircraft and training personnel. A special mission of United States engineers and surveyors is concentrating on the building of military roads between ports of the Mediterranean and Turkish outposts on the Russo-Turkish frontier. In effect, we are deliberately assisting Turkey to defend herself, on the theory that Russia would hesitate to attack a country well able to defend itself.

Why Aid Turkey?

It may be argued that we are interfering where we have no business, that we are exposing ourselves to trouble, and that we are straining Russo-American relations to breaking-point. Perhaps we are merely learning what international politics really are, and recognizing that self-defense must start a long way from home. History has demonstrated repeatedly that dictators cannot endure opposition and must expand. Wherever there is a country where opposing theories exist, then that country must be dominated. For that country may become the center of resistance to dictation. American opposition to Russia is not the cause of Russia's attitude to the United States. The very existence of a free country is the real cause of Soviet feeling. However, even dictators count the cost of overwhelming opponents, for defeat means the beginning of the end of the dictator's regime. Wherever the cost has been trifling, Russia has expanded. If that expansion continues, then Russia can threaten to dominate Europe. Twice has the United States fought in Europe to prevent the domination of Europe. We have learned that mere talking does not prevent expansion. Our policy in Turkey is recognition that Munich Pacts do not bring peace in our time, for despite ideals for a better world, ideals must still be tempered with practical politics in a world where power still counts. Our aid to Turkey may be a gamble. But Turkey without United

The Board of Public Works announced today that the estimated assessment for sewer construction on Burnham road and Dufton road would be in the vicinity of $4 per foot. The assessment for the sewer on Elm and Pine streets was $3.10 per foot.

States aid would be a sure thing—for Russia. And somewhere we must draw a line against Russian expansion. Turkey is a vital spot to start with.

You'll find him and his fellow workmen a familiar sight about town. They are part of the telephone team . . . most of whom live in this vicinity . . . who are interested, like you, in building a fine community. They are proud of the part their job plays in keeping New England growing.

Last year these men, working in every New England city and town, brought the total telephones in service to well over 2,000,000 . . . a new record.

Here in ANDOVER these men who install telephones have been making new friends. In the last three years they have added about 870 new telephones to bring the total number of telephones in service here up to 3990 . . . an increase of 28%. Like most of the other telephone workers who serve ANDOVER they are local people and, like telephone workers everywhere, they take pride in always doing everything possible to give you prompt, courteous and efficient service.
