Old Football Rivals Clash Here Saturday

One of the oldest and most hotly-contested football rivalries in New England will be renewed next Saturday at Brothers' Field, when Exeter and Andover clash for their 69th game.

The Andover-Exeter series began in 1878 and has been held every year, with one exception, since that date. Of the sixty-eight games which have been played, Andover has won 33, Exeter, 29, and the six remaining games were tie scores. Although the balance of games won is in Andover's favor, Exeter leads in points scored with 771 to Andover's 660.

Service Club To Hold Birdie Tebbetts Night

"Birdie" Tebbetts, Red Sox catcher, will be the speaker at the Andover Service club's meeting Thursday night, Nov. 18, at the Andover Inn. The dinner will be served at 7 o'clock, instead of the usual time.

Merrimack College Opens New Gymnasium

Merrimack college advanced another step in its growth Wednesday, Nov. 10, when the new gymnasium was officially opened. This new addition to Merrimack was made possible by funds realized through the efforts of the Merrimack college associates, the student body and the people of Merrimack Valley who helped make the penny sale, held last June, a huge success.

Located on the college grounds, between Haverhill and Elm streets, the steel structure is 100 feet in length and 70 feet in width. While intended primarily for indoor sports, many extra curricular activities—dances, meetings and social events of the college will be held in the new gymnasium. In addition to the gymnasium proper, the building also contains athletic offices and locker, shower and rest rooms.

Sports at Merrimack college are beginning to assume major proportions. The new gymnasium proves it.

TO ELECT OFFICERS

At a largely attended dinner meeting of the Catholic Men's club of St. Augustine's church Monday night a committee was appointed to bring in a slate of officers at the next meeting in December. Installation will be held with a ladies night program at the Andover Country club January 15.

Col. Charles A. Mahoney of Andover, Army provo marshal on leave from his post of duty in Japan, was the speaker of the evening. Community singing was led by James J. Sheard.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

ARMISTICE DAY

The first Armistice Day — on November 11, 1918 — was a day of rejoicing. It marked the end of a terrible war, and the news that the fighting had ceased made everybody happy. It was a day of fun and celebration.

But Armistice Day now is a solemn occasion. It marks the anniversary of the end of World War I, just as it did in 1918, but now it is a day dedicated to the memory of those who gave their lives that this country might survive.

In addition, now, it is dedicated to those who died in the Second World War, what the others did in the first. It is a day when we rejoice that those wars did end, and a day of solemn memories.

The further we get away from the two World Wars, the less significance Armistice Day will have. But that, of course, will not happen in this generation, not until those who lived the time through those wars have gone from the earth.

The Civil War was just as real once to thousands of Americans, but the years have lessened its significance. And the same is true about the Spanish-American war. If, in the years that are ahead, no other wars come to engage our efforts, gradually, through the years, the significance of Armistice Day will lessen in the same way.

We may never reach that happy day when the country's wars are so far behind, in years, that they are mere memories. But one of the fine things that all of us should dedicate ourselves on this anniversary is to a real, honest-to-goodness effort to keep our wars far, far behind us. We want a lasting peace.

THE CLOUDED CRYSTAL BALL

If there is one thing that the recent election proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, it was the fact that nobody can predict the future. We may have our fortune-tellers, or card readers or even our political pollsters. Any of them may, at times, make pretty good guesses as to what is ahead. But now we know they are not to be depended on. Even the weather forecaster, alas, is not right all the time.

If the political pollsters were accurate Thomas E. Dewey would be the president-elect. They all predicted his election by a wide margin. But most of the 45,000,000 or so men and women who voted decreed otherwise. It was what the voters decreed, not what the pollsters predicted that decided the election.

Various reasons have been suggested for the election result — overconfidence, labor, the farm vote, a desire on the part of the people not to change horses when things are going well financially. But looking for reasons is not going to do any good.

The plain truth is, that in free America, when the people go to the polls they are supreme. Nobody can tell any man or any woman how to cast his, or her, vote. Elections are never decided in advance. They are decided when the people have marked their ballots and the ballots have been counted.

The time has not arrived when we can give up the ballot box for pollsters. We doubt if it ever will.

IT'S NEVER TOO LATE

The Greater Lawrence Community Chest drive ended a little under its goal of $190,044. But it is not too late for us to help make up the difference. Possibly there are people who have not been solicited. If nobody called on you, and you did not send in your contribution, why not do so? Or, if you have contributed, why not add just a little bit more. The cause is one of the worthiest. The goal still can be reached.

BOOSTERS' DAY

Boosters' Day is at hand. The Punchard Athletic association needs every cent that the Boosters' club has planned to raise. Athletics at Punchard do a lot for all who take part in them. That has always been true in school sports. But the better equipped a school is, to give the pupils a chance to take part in sports under the best conditions, the better it is going to be all around. If you ever took part in High school sports, remember what it meant to you.

The number of small businesses in the country today per thousand of population is as large as at any time in our history. The authority for this is A. D. H. Kaplan, an economist who has written a report called "Small Business: Its Place and Problems."

What gives a report of this kind unusual interest is the fact that some years ago there was a widespread fear that small business was doomed, because of an inability to compete with large business. This fear made itself felt in various ways. One of them was an attempt to levy heavy, punitive class taxes against the chain retail system. It was argued that this had to be done to keep the independent merchant from extinction. Yet, as everyone knows, the independent has successfully competed with the chains, and does the largest part, by far, of all the retail trade in the country.

In this report, Mr. Kaplan says that "the small business man will strengthen himself by learning how best to compete for, not how to restrict, markets." That is the best possible advice. To again use retailing as an example, the largest stores now in business were small stores once. Many of them were single-man or single-family operations. Their owners learned how to compete for business, and how to make their stores attractive to consumers. Success followed.

Small business in the United States has always been distinguished by vitality and a progressive spirit. It is holding its own in the competitive scheme of things, and it is here to stay.

By SEN. PHILIP K. ALLEN

The principal business of the Division of Employment Security is the establishing or computing of benefit rates and the payment of those benefits. To give some conception of the size of the job which this division is doing, we need merely to point out that they receive quarterly reports from 90,000 employers and have to provide quarterly wage records for over two million insured potential claimants.

The employers' rates must by law be computed annually prior to March 31st. Since these rates are based on a full year's experience and since the last return is of a January 31st filing date, all computations must be made between the first of February and the 31st of March—a fantastically large job. Also by March 31st, the wage records of all two million employees must be on file, ready for use for claims.

The basic principle of unemployment compensation is that when an individual is unemployed through no fault of his own and is capable and available for work and is unable to obtain work in his own occupation, or in any other occupation for which he is reasonably fitted and has been paid wages in his base period of not less than $150, he may claim benefits. The base period is the calendar year preceding April 1st of the year in which he is unemployed.

These benefits cannot be accumulated, cannot be collected twice for the same period, nor collected more often than for 23 months of unemployment in any one benefit fiscal year.

For those who may be interested in the higher mathematics involved in unemployment compensation, herewith is the method used in establishing total benefits. (All others are advised to skip lightly by.)—"The total benefits which an unemployed individual may receive during his benefit year shall be an amount equal to thirty percent of his wages in the base period, or an amount equal to twenty-three times his benefit rate, whichever is the lesser." If, for example, an individual earned during his highest quarter $300, his weekly benefit rate would be $16.00 (from a convenient table). This multiplied by 23 would be $368.00. His total earnings, however, during his calendar year of employment totaled $800.00. Thirty percent of this figure gives $240.00, which is the lesser of the two. Therefore, he would be paid a weekly compensation based on $240.00. Those who, like the writer, are not blessed with a mathematical mind, will be glad to know that with the largest I.B.M. installation in New England, all the above figuring can be done automatically and the figures placed on individual wage cards. It has to be seen to be believed.

Approximately seven and one-half million wage cards indexed by Social Security number must be handled for each quarter in each year, some 30 million annually. There has to be, for example, a wage card for each change of employment that an individual might make. There are instances, believe it or not, of longshoremen who have had as many as 76 different employers in one quarter, or three-month period. One of these individuals, therefore, would have 76 separate wage cards.

The Board of Review is made up of three members appointed by the Governor and approved by the Council, acts in a quasi-judicial capacity, and is in the division but is not subject to its jurisdiction. Its function is to hear appeals on benefit claims and on employers' status.

Under this Board of Review some 16,300 appeals were received in 1947-48, and 20,500 appeals disposed of during that same period, points up the fact that they have The discrepancy in these figures a back-log of from four to six months' work, due primarily, to a cut in funds by the federal government.

Next week we will take up the Department of Mental Health.

MEET —

GEORGE A. DANE

The reputation for being a "square shooter" which Police Chief George A. Dane has gained with jurists, attorneys and brother police officials was not gained overnight. It was earned through his many years as a patrolman, as a court witness and as a prosecuting officer, and it is known beyond the borders of our immediate group of communities along the banks of the Merrimack. It is also reflected through the operations of the local department where fair play is the guiding motive of the force in its relations with the public.

A member of the Police department for 22 years, Chief Dane is a graduate of the local schools and the Massachusetts State Police school, a member of the Massachusetts, the New England and the International Police Chiefs' associations through which he keeps in touch with all the newest police methods. He is also a member of the Eastern States Police Radio league and the New England Police Revolver league. Chief Dane is married and lives at 1 Clinton court, Ballardvale.

Do You Know Massachusetts?

DO YOU KNOW THAT . . . A total of 1,734,400 people were employed in Massachusetts in September this year, the largest in any September on record and within about one per cent of the all-time peak set up in June, 1943, as reported jointly by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries . . . Current employment includes 731,000 employees in manufacturing, 67,600 in contract construction, 135,500 in state and local government, 56,400 in Federal government and 743,900 in other non-manufacturing services . . . The first commercial laundry in the United States was established in Roxbury in 1847 by Daniel Whitaker and was known as the Boston and Roxbury Laundry; it is believed also to have been the first laundry to use power . . . Pioneer Valley and the area of Buzzard's Bay, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket led all other sections of Massachusetts in the gain of tourist business during August and September, compared with the same months last year, as shown by the Federal Reserve Bank's tourist index. Pioneer Valley gained 27% in receipts from tourist lodgings and 11% from hotels; Buzzard's Bay and the islands gained 15% from lodgings and 13% from hotels . . . Cost of food in Massachusetts dropped 2 1/2% between September 15 and October 15, but was still 95% above the average of the prewar years, 1935-1939 . . . Enrollment is still open in the State extension course on Principles of City Planning which meets Monday evenings at M.I.T.

U.N.'S WORLD SEAL

The official United Nations Seal, approved by the General Assembly in 1946, represents a map of the world, as seen from the North Pole, surrounded by olive branches. Centered on the Greenwich Meridian, it extends to 60 degrees latitude South. The map is inscribed in gold on a field of smoke-blue. Water areas are white. The seal, or emblem, is also featured in the United Nations flag, etched in white in the center of a smoke-blue field.

Views of The News

Henry Wallace and friends asked and take the package at face value. The wrapping is the lifting of the Berlin blockade. The price we are asked to pay is the surrendering to Russia of complete economic control of Berlin. And when the paper is unwrapped there'd be nothing in the box, because the blockade would be lifted around a Berlin where we'd have no control, where our position would soon be completely impossible. What we'd be exchanging—for nothing in return—would be Berlin, Western Germany, the success of the Marshall Plan, and Russian control of Western Europe.

A Pre-Election Offer

But always hoping that he could make the deal, Stalin tried again just a few days before the election. On October 28 he gave his script to Pravda, and the next day the world and Russia were informed of Russia's "honest intentions" and the West's "policy of aggression" in refusing to accept an agreement—on Russia's terms—of the Berlin blockade. Stalin thereby offered both candidates a pre-election day opportunity to gather votes by finding a "solution" to the Berlin crisis. If either or both decided to ignore the offer, Stalin had already labelled the parties as warmongers, since all who refuse to pay his price are guilty of showing the "necessity for a new war."

And a Post-Election One

But the offer wasn't to stop with election day. Whichever party was successful, it would be faced with the problem of attempting to reduce expenses or keep costs from mounting. And a very significant part of governmental expenditures would be earmarked for foreign commitments. Stalin knew that after November 2 either the Republicans or the Democrats would be making plans for future policy. To Stalin it matters little which party is in power. American policy goes forward, and Russian interests don't change. So Stalin attempts to create a dilemma for the government.

High-Pressure Salesmanship

To bring the situation into sharper perspective, Stalin helps to put communist agitation in France into full swing, where the government is challenged by the communist union of coal strikers. To what must have been Stalin's delighted surprise, John L. Lewis unconsciously aids the communist cause by condemning the French government's "interference" with the strike. In Greece, the fight between the government and communist guerrillas, aided from across the borders, causes Americans to wonder how successful their Greek policy has been. And in Italy the communists threaten to copy French communist methods. And for the weary world to witness, Stalin offers what appears to be the hand of peace. Quite a dilemma for the Administration. And Stalin meant it to be.

Both parties had already declared themselves in favor of Western union in Europe. They must, therefore, have reckoned the cost—increased armaments for the United States and the Western Powers, largely from the American pocket. For without solid American backing, Western union is nothing more than a blue-print on a draftsman's table. And now that Canada has announced its willingness to participate in a North Atlantic Pact, the dilemma multiplies.

Appreciating the dilemma, since he created it, Stalin is making the issue clear. In effect he says, Do you wish to undertake the expense of real defense against Russian advancement? Or do you wish to be able to gain popularity by reducing expenditures in foreign policy? Do you want to go on supporting the air-lift into Berlin or would you prefer to save the $210 that you are spending every minute, twenty-four hours a day, for the 600 planes that must be flown in daily? Would you like to have your problem in Europe simplified, in France, in Greece, in Italy and Turkey? If you do, the method is simple. It will cost you nothing, and you avoid the possible dangerous complications that could arise in Berlin. Just give Russia complete control of currency in Berlin in return for the lifting of the blockade. What have you got to lose?

Of course, Stalin doesn't promise that the blockade won't be applied again. Why wouldn't it?

Down the Years with The Townsman

Grange Fair in Town Hall. Friends of Miss Bessie B. Crockett of High street give her a surprise party and present her a large parlor lamp. The presentation made by Edward Little.

Master Arthur Gay Bickell host to 18 little friends at a birthday party at his home on High street.

Henry S. Graves, son of Prof. W. B. Graves, named assistant chief of the Forestry Department in Washington, D. C. He passed the examination with a mark of 98.

"C.C.C." writes: "In a recent bicycle ride across Massachusetts, I was delighted to find my road passing the famous 'Wayside Inn' and still more to know that the present landlord was an Andover boy—Edward R. Lemon, son of William Lemon, bookbinder at the 'Old Bindery'."

Football: Andover 0, Exeter 0. The directors of the Guild engage Miss S. M. Abbott of Boston to give instruction in cooking on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Cost of instruction: Ladies, $7 for 12 lessons; children, $1.20 for 12 lessons.

25 Years Ago—November 1923

We report: "The stone cellar walls have been completed and this week the bricklayers start laying the Flemish bond courses for Andover's first apartment house, Caronel Court Apartments."

Principal N. C. Hamblin of Punchard elected treasurer of the Essex County Teachers Association.

Miss Emily R. Thompson and Miss Frances Thompson of School street home after being in France and Italy since January.

Legion Bazaar held in Town Hall. The supper committee includes: Mrs. John Henderson, Mrs. Harry Gouch, Mrs. Timothy McCarthy, Mrs. Catherine Eastwood, Mrs. Joseph Miller, Mrs. Mary Garside, Mrs. Thomas Dea.

10 Years Ago—November 1938

The Merrimack Valley Wheaton club sponsors the film, "Romeo and Juliet," at the Andover Playhouse.

Announcement made that henceforth the "no school" whistle will be blown mornings 15 minutes earlier.

A new organization for the young women of West Parish formed at the home of Mrs. Theodore Peterson, Pine street. Mrs. Donald Savage to be chairman until an election is held in January. H. L. O. Fletcher, headmaster of Christ's hospital, London, speaks at Abbot Academy.

Only $2,452 outstanding in auto excise taxes here. Punchard seniors hold a dime dance.

And he doesn't promise that other points of conflict won't develop between the United States and Russia in the future. Because they will. That is the Russian method, for their objective remains unaltered—control of all the territory that they're allowed to get their hands on.

What Do We Gain? And Stalin knows that once we give in on Berlin we have lost more than face. We shall have sacrificed the hopes that millions of Europeans place in the United States. We shall have been labelled opportunist. We shall have scuttled our own Marshall Plan. We shall have forced ourselves to even greater military effort to prepare ourselves against an even stronger Russia expanding inexorably westwards.

To get us to dig our own grave would be ironical. If this maneuver doesn't succeed, others will be tried. The Russians are well acquainted with Western diplomats—they give it a curious Russian flavor.

OBITUARIES...

MISS NELLIE H. FARMER
 Miss Nellie H. Farmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Farmer, for many years a resident of Andover, died Friday, November 5, at the home of her brother, Dr. Chester J. Farmer in Chicago, Ill.
 Born in Brentwood, N. H., January 29, 1865, her early years were spent in Boxford and Arlington. She entered the employ of the Andover Press as bookkeeper, February 20, 1890 and in 1924 became assistant treasurer. From 1937 to 1945 she acted as payroll clerk until her final retirement in 1945 when she went to Chicago to make her home with her brother.

Joining the South church, January 6, 1889, Miss Farmer took an active part in church work, serving as secretary and treasurer of the Primary department of the Sunday school, and serving a six-year term as deaconess. For many years she was also treasurer of the Woman's Union, an office which she held until she left Andover.
 Miss Farmer is survived by a brother, Dr. Chester J. Farmer of Chicago, an aunt Mrs. Sarah J. Kilham of Haverhill, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services, conducted by the Rev. Frederick B. Noss, were held at the South church Wednesday afternoon. Burial was in the family lot in Tewksbury.

THOMAS A. STEWART

 He is survived by two sons, James of Derry, N. H., and Thomas of New York; two sisters Mrs. Mark Keane of Andover, and Mrs. William McCarthy of North Andover, and two brothers, Joseph of Andover and James A., of Omaha, Neb.; two grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

 The funeral was held from the Prescott funeral home in Derry, Tuesday morning with a requiem mass at 9 o'clock in St. Thomas Aquinas church. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery.

 David D. Black, retired shoe salesman of 72 Elm street, died Friday morning, November 5, after a brief illness. A native of Lewiston, Me., he had lived here for twenty-two years and had always been interested in the affairs of the town. He was a member of St. Matthew's Lodge, A. F. and A. M., and of the Square and Compass club.

He is survived by his wife, Nellie C. Black; a sister, Mrs. Ralph P. Stevens of Berkeley, California, and several nieces and nephews.
 The funeral was held from the family home Sunday afternoon, November 7, with services at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Levering Reynolds, Jr., who also performed the committal services at Spring Grove cemetery.

The bearers were: George D. Cunningham, William Cunningham, Arthur Amodeo, Norman Swift, Raymond Webster and Garnet Doughty.

Ten inches of snow equals in content, on the average, about one inch of rain.

MRS. EMMA S. ENTWISTLE
 Mrs. Emma (Schoolgraph) Entwistle of Osgood street died Monday night, November 8 at her home following a long illness.
 Born in Vermont 73 years ago, she had been a resident of Andover for many years and was a member of West Parish church.

Decorator's Fine Workmanship Is Appreciated By Local Residents

Mr. Lori Di Stefani, painter and decorator, came here from France in 1933. He has had remarkable training in his profession. After seeing some of his work, we begin to realize the tremendous value of a European background in art of any kind.

Mr. Di Stefani studied under Demetrios, and in Paris, studied for years in perfecting color mixing, harmony and the kind of painting and decorating that would satisfy a perfectionist. He studied with artists and craftsmen who had the finest painters and decorators in history as models.

In Europe, artists in every line of work create for lasting beauty, as you can see when you admire the fine architecture, murals and paintings which have lasted for centuries. There is no definite line drawn between the artist and the man with a trade, in Europe, which is as it should be. A fine workman is an artist.

To be a top ranking painter and decorator, one had first, in Europe, to have the artist's eye for color and all its variations—to be capable of complimenting with color and fine workmanship, the personality of the client.

Mr. Di Stefani has beautified many Andover homes, the Administration Building, and the Smart and Flagg Insurance Building in Shawsheen. The Unitarian Church in North Andover, Holy Rosary

Church in Lawrence, the Stoneham and North Andover Schools have benefited by his expert painting and redecorating.

Whether you have a small home, a roomy colonial or an extremely modern dwelling, Mr. Di Stefani can, with his artistry, bring beauty and livability to your interior. If your home needs the services of an expert painter and decorator, call Andover 1438-W and let Mr. Di Stefani advise you. An most charming home will be the result.

Andover Girl Tells Of Work Abroad

Philadelphia, Nov. 9.—An American Friends Service committee worker who has returned from two years' work in Hungary, today told of her work there, the excellent progress made toward reconstruction and her pleasure in knowing the Hungarian people.

Rebekah Taft, whose home is Andover, Mass., worked for the past two years in Budapest as a member of the team of the Service committee, one of four relief organizations assisting in the recovery of Hungary. While in Hungary she also visited in rural areas, made many friends among Hungarians and had frequent contact with welfare and other government officials.

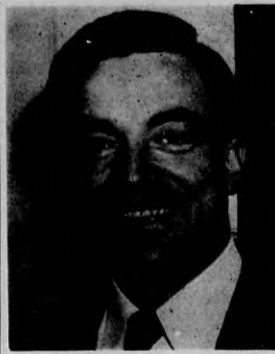

"The recovery and social welfare program in Hungary is an ambitious one," Miss Taft said. "It calls for building many greatly-needed social institutions. Old people's homes, day nurseries, and tuberculosis sanatoria are being established.

"Health centers are being established in all the little villages with nurses, clinics, beds for maternity cases, and facilities for testing tuberculosis. We are anxious to work in cooperation with the tuberculosis program and help establish sanatoria for children because there is a great need for this. There are 30,000 children who need to be under observation, and only 930 beds are available. There are 60,000 open TB cases among adults with only 7,000 beds, and there is not a single hospital for patients suffering from tuberculosis of the joints.

"The food situation is much better, due to a good harvest. Clothing is still very much needed. 'I enjoyed the people most,' said Miss Taft. 'They are delightful, they are charming, industrious, and very interesting. They are terribly proud. We are popular with the people as individuals, and one of the things we could do was to assure them that the people in other countries are interested in their welfare and are glad to hear of their progress.'

New Shop Features Children's Clothes

Andover's newest shop featuring children's clothes from tots to teens will open Monday at 77 Main street.

The new enterprise in the town's business section will carry only standard brands of clothing in the medium price lines for youngsters from 3 to 16.

Taking over a corner of the first floor in the Main street building, the owners of the new shop, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Swift of 41 Summer street, have converted the location into a modern display and fitting room. The interior has been attractively decorated in brown and yellow with a "Gulliver's Travels" mural over the fireplace.

The new owners, residents of Andover for the past year and a half, bring to the business a wealth of experience in this specialty line. Mrs. Swift for several years was buyer for Lord & Taylor's of New York City, and for Bonwit, Teller of Philadelphia. Mr. Swift has had 15 years' experience in the children's market. He has been general merchandise manager of Bonwit, Teller's in Philadelphia and served in the same capacity for the John Wanamaker store in New York City.

READING A WEEKLY BECOMES A RITUAL

Asked by a client why his advertising agency recommended the use of weekly newspapers, William Kelly of J. M. Hickerson, Inc., New York, wrote: "The position of the weekly newspaper in the small town is unique. Weekly newspapers are far more than just newspapers, they are an important part of country life. Reading them is no casual occupation but more a ritual. They are read thoroughly by the family and, according to a survey by the Research Company of America, each copy is read by 2.79 people outside of the immediate household. They are read more leisurely than are the dailies in larger cities. Ninety percent of all weeklies circulate in towns under 10,000 population. According to authoritative readership surveys, the readership of a weekly newspaper is more than five times as great as the readership of a large city daily."

to his service with the American Military Government in Germany the vision, charm and breadth of view of the scholar is evident from the address made to him in farewell by the rector and senate of Heidelberg university when he ended his service there. Rector Bauer spoke in part as follows: "Never shall we forget that you reopened our university in all faculties and how you have supported its reestablishment against infinite resistance. In carrying into effect the actions of military government you had to execute hard measures—the removal of a greater part of the faculty, the limitations of the student number by numerous causes. You have watched conscientiously that no disorder and no disturbance arose in the student body. You have done all this with that calm and clearness which never added an unnecessary sharpness to the severity. . . . But by far exceeding the tasks of a military government you have made the cause of re-establishing the university your own, like a good administrator who desires that what is put under him shall prosper."

Light refreshments will be served. The public is most cordially invited to share in this informal and friendly recognition of the place of books in the world today.

New Curio Shoppe To Open Monday

Monday, November 15, will find the doors of number 74 Main street open wide to the people of Andover. At 9:30 in the forenoon, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brooks, formerly of Cleveleys-Blackpool, England, will embark on their venture into American business. Their Curio Shoppe will offer the beauty of English and Continental antiques, china, silver and objects of art.

Before the war, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were the proprietors of the Cleveleys-Blackpool Curio Shoppe, which they closed when the disaster came. During the war, their daughter met and married a young Army doctor, Dr. Joseph Sapienta, and when he brought his wife and young son to the states, the Brooks' decided to come, too. They have been here for two years now and feel that during this time they have become well enough acquainted with the American taste in art to present it to us in their new Curio Shoppe.
