Complain Of Bicycle Riding On Sidewalks

Numerous complaints of bicycle riding on sidewalks have been made to police recently. Only a few days ago a woman was felled by a bicycle rider and had to be taken to a physician for treatment. One man, who wears a hearing aid, reported that as he cannot hear the approach of bicycles he is afraid to walk on Elm street because of the speed at which some bicycle riders whizz past him. Police Chief George A. Dane warns parents and children that the practice must stop or offenders will go to court. The fine is $5.

"Night Before" Celebration To Open Carnival

"Stay Home and Stay Alive" is the pithy slogan adopted by the Andover Police and Firemen's Relief associations for their big Fourth of July celebration the week of July 3.

And in order to encourage people to keep off the highways over the holiday they have arranged an attractive program to get their carnival under way that week.

The program will start with a gala "Night Before" celebration which will include a horribles parade, fireworks on the playstead, outdoor acts and a gigantic bonfire at midnight.

Early reports on the horribles parade indicate that there will be many floats in line and that numerous groups of young and old are going to appear in unique costumes for the "Horribles."

Committees of police and firemen are receiving encouraging reports on every angle of their venture and look forward to a successful week of fun and entertainment at the playstead.

Their program will feature two afternoons for the children when special events will be staged for their enjoyment.

1950 Tax Rate Stays at $36

Andover's tax rate for 1950 is $36 per $1000, the same as it was for 1949.

This figure was reached after the board of assessors completed work on the assessed valuation of real and personal property, and was approved Wednesday by Henry F. Long, commissioner of corporations and taxation.

The $36 tax rate also bears out the prediction made by Chairman Roy E. Hardy of the board of assessors at the last town meeting. Although the appropriations of $1,142,429 were about $58,000 more than the year before he announced at that time that he looked for no change in the rate.

In the past few years the tax rates have been as follows; 1944-$28; 1945-$29; 1946-$36; 1947-$33; 1948-$34; 1949-$36.

The Andover Red Cross chapter is forming a local disaster committee to work with other chapters in surrounding communities for the purpose of extending mutual aid in the time of flood, fire or other emergency.

A group from the local chapter attended a disaster conference on mutual aid held recently in Lawrence. In the group were Ernest S. Young, chapter chairman; Miss Barbara Loomer, executive secretary; Mrs. Winsor Gale, volunteer service chairman; John M. Murray, disaster committee chairman; and Edgar C. Haselton and Awards for 1949 in connection with the program of national council of the Boy Scouts of America's "strengthen the arm of liberty" campaign will be presented to troop 72 of the Free church, John Souter, scoutmaster; to troop 73 of the South church, for work under the former scoutmaster, Leslie Mullin; and to troop 75 of St. Augustine's church, William Dolan, scoutmaster. The awards which are shields of silk in gold, red, white and blue, have been forwarded to Walter Caswell, district commissioner, for presentation to the troops and will be attached to troop flags.

The highest rank in the Boy Scouts of America is Eagle scout. A recent review of some old records back to 1929 revealed the following Andover boys who attained Eagle rank and the year the eagle pin was awarded: troop 71 of Shawsheen, Rene A. Richard Jr., '29, Elwood N. Chase 2nd, '30; troop 72 of the Free church, Harry Gouck Jr., '29, David R. Petrie, '29, Abbott Batchelder '30, Jack Arabian '45, Gregory Arabian '48, Thomas Burnett '49; troop 73 of the South church, Alvin J. Zink '30, George E. Hadley '30, Ernest A. Johnson '31, George Zink '34, Bruce Gesing '35, Foster Zink '35; troop 76 of Ballardvale, Arnold Schofield '43, Austin Day '44. It is interesting to note that during this 20 year period only 16 scouts completed "eagle" requirements. Since scouting started in Andover about 1910 there are, no doubt, others who were eagles in the early days of scouting. Active eagle scouts in Andover are Arnold Schofield, assistant district commissioner; Edwin Zelezny, post advisor of St. Augustine's church; Jack Arabian, assistant scoutmaster of troop 72 of the Free church and his brother, Gregory, of the same troop; and Thomas Burnett of Explorer post 72, also of the Free church.

Red Cross Forming Disaster Committee

Harold Rutter, vice chairman of the disaster committee.

Discussion of plans for the pooling of resources in the time of major disaster was led by representatives of state and area Red Cross chairmen. Andover is grouped with the following communities in this plan: Amesbury, Ayer, Bedford, Groton, Haverhill, Lawrence, Lowell, Methuen and Newburyport.

This committee will meet shortly with the selectmen and other town officials to allocate the work so that all the town's resources may be used in time of emergency without the overlapping or duplication of effort.

This committee's work will also dovetail with the plans of civil defense which are now being formulated throughout the state.

At a recent statewide disaster conference held in Boston for the purpose of affecting coordination of Red Cross and government functions in disaster relief, Chairman Young of the local chapter and Mrs. C. Edward Buchan represented the Andover Red Cross, while Police Chief George A. Dane, and Deputy Fire Chief Albert Cole Jr. represented the public safety division of local government.

Robert G. Hewson, Route 125, Andover by-pass, North Andover, received a degree of associate in engineering from the Lincoln Technical Institute of Boston on June 18.

New By-Laws For Red Cross

At a recent meeting of Andover chapter, American Red Cross, new by-laws were adopted. Revision was deemed necessary in order to conform with the national headquarters' revision and to increase flexibility for operation. Effective work on this project was done by the by-law committee under Samuel Resnick, chairman.

A report was also received at this meeting of the progress being made by the newly-created group to sponsor the visiting nurse program which the Red Cross must give up June 30.

It was voted that the nurse's car be turned over to the new organization upon payment of the token fee of $1 and that the nurse's supplies on hand be made available to them.

Prominent Vale Resident Dies

Miss Martha D. Byington, 77, a long time resident of Ballardvale and well-known throughout the town, died unexpectedly Saturday, June 17. Early in the afternoon she ran the lawn mower for a while and then attended to other things as usual until late in the afternoon when she was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage from which she died within an hour.

She was the daughter of George P. Byington, a Congregational minister who spent the last years of his life in Ballardvale with his family. Her mother was a niece of Dr. Stephen Tracy, a prominent resident of Andover about a century ago, and also a niece of William M. Evarts, member of two presidential cabinets and employed as advocate to argue such cases as that of the United States against England in the matter of the Confederate privateer "Alabama", the defense of President Andrew Johnson against his impeachment and others of prominence.

Miss Byington was born at Westford, Vt., Feb. 5, 1873. She was athletic from her earliest childhood. After graduating from Mt. Holyoke college in 1896 she became a teacher of physical culture, and was so employed until her mother reached 70, when she resigned to take care of her.

The family came to Ballardvale in 1906. Many years later Miss Byington suffered a fall on the ice of Foster's pond and was so injured that her muscles never fully recovered their former use.

Some years later she suffered a strain in jumping out of the way of an auto on Locke street, and the results developed into a very painful lameness which baffled several doctors until at length cured by a somewhat unusual surgical operation. The memory of this series of unsuccessful cures may have had an influence in her last years in causing her to be unwilling to ask for medical advice. She felt that what was happening to her was just the working out of the old Foster's pond shock and could not be helped.

Her most prominent position in Ballardvale was that of village librarian. The 'Vale branch started and grew up under her charge during the 30 years she held this position. In church work she served a long term as treasurer for benevolences, and shorter terms in Sunday school teaching and other lines of helpfulness.

She leaves one brother, Steven T. Byington of Ballardvale and several cousins.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon with services at 3 o'clock in the Union Congregational church conducted by the Rev. Paul T. Callahan. Burial was in Sanborn cemetery, East Hardwick, Vt.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

SWIMMING HAZARDS

Hot weather and the closing of schools for the summer make a combination which frequently means the opening up of the nearest swimming hole for many a youngster.

A most wholesome form of recreation and a fine body-building sport, swimming has its dangers which annually take their toll in young lives during the summer. Safety records show that drownings greatly increase at this time and are usually found to be the cause of most fatal accidents in June, July and August.

For many years municipal authorities have been aware of this danger and have been attempting with progressive success to take the hazard out of the sport by providing supervised bathing beaches where youngsters can frolic in safety under the watchful eyes of competent lifeguards.

Realizing that many adventurous youths, and grown-ups too, give little thought to personal safety when an inviting pond or stream is near for a cooling plunge, safety officials have come forward with some timely suggestions which should be stressed every year at this time.

One is, never swim alone. When other swimmers are around it means that there will always be some help at hand if needed. Another is, never dive into unfamiliar waters as a rock or submerged log may be hidden just beneath the surface where it may cause a swimmer to be knocked unconscious.

Simple precautions these, but many a life has been lost in the past by swimmers who have not heeded them.

Locally, Andover will open its only supervised bathing beach at Pomp's pond Sunday. An aquatic program has been arranged for the eight-week season, together with other entertaining features such as corn roasts, story telling and community sings which should prove attractive to town residents who want to have a swim without going miles from home.

BY LEONARD F. JAMES

"The Lord will only keep those who are resolved to stake their strength to the uttermost and to concentrate their will." This warning by the Chancellor of Austria was not listened to by his people, and the little nation went under the Nazi heel in March 1938. The first objective laid down for Germany's expansion was achieved. Now for the next—Czechoslovakia. Or would Britain and France begin to realize what appeasement could lead to?

Is Aggression Hypothetical?

"I give you my word of honor," said Georing to the Czech minister in Berlin the night Germany took over Austria, "that Czechoslovakia has nothing to fear from the Reich." That was the lullaby designed to sing the nations to sleep while Germany acted. And Hitler was convinced that he only had to sing it enough times to be believed. For he knew that nations really wanted to be so persuaded. Had not Anthony Eden, then foreign secretary, said in 1936 "nations cannot be expected to incur automatic obligations, save for areas where their vital interests are concerned." Lord Halifax soon echoed those sentiments, "We are unable to define beforehand what might be our attitude to a hypothetical complication in central or eastern Europe." Put brutally, if war doesn't immediately affect us it doesn't concern us.

Squeeze on Czechoslovakia

Why did Czechoslovakia figure so important in Germany's plans? She was, in German eyes, a dagger pointed at the heart of Germany. She possessed about half the war potential of eastern Europe, had easily the best equipped army, and munitions factories second to none. And above all its defenses bordering on Germany were as good as any on the continent. If Czechoslovakia should fight with any other nation against Germany, the Reich would have a doubtful chance of success. For German victory in Europe, Czechoslovakia must be eliminated without a fight. How to go about it? A good excuse was ready to hand. About twenty percent of Czechoslovakia's inhabitants were German, an arrangement set up at the 1919 peace conference when this new nation was created. Unfortunately Czechoslovakia wasn't too able in administering her minorities, but was smart enough not to give any important government positions to Germans. And as it turned out, she was right. The nazis in Czechoslovakia followed the same tactics that communists do the world over—demand the four freedoms while they are a minority, get a majority, and then kick out all rights for everyone except nazis—next night a band concert will be held in the park.

Miss Frances Keaney of Main st. was a member of the class graduated from Vassar last week.

or communists. The Germans living in the Sudetenland were of great concern to Hitler—and not by coincidence. They must be brought into Greater Germany. Not by moving them into Germany, but by moving Germany's border out to include them!

Britain Blind To Aggression

Could it be done by Hitler without war? If Mr. Chamberlain was any guide, most certainly. Not for nothing was he nicknamed J'aime Berlin by the Czechs. Less than two weeks after the rape of Austria, Chamberlain made Britain's position relatively clear. Not what she would do, but what she would not do. The British government, he said, were neither prepared to support France if called upon by Czechoslovakia under the terms of the French-Czech Agreement, nor to declare her readiness to defend Czechoslovakia against unprovoked aggression. Then what was to be England's position? Czechoslovakia was assured of England's good offices but was advised not to assume the use of force nor even to talk about it. It could do no good, only harm.

Hitler shrewdly estimated the situation and gave the signal to Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German Party. Henlein sent his demands to Prague, insisting upon the creation of a separate Nazi state inside Czechoslovakia, the complete orientation of her foreign policy with Germany's, and the prelude to what would be total acquisition by Germany.

Can See Only "Peace"

The British and French governments intimated that they hoped Hitler could "persuade" Henlein to accept concessions—as though Henlein weren't a stooge. From now on it becomes clear that Chamberlain showed increasing irritation with the Czechs. In fact he came to regard Czechoslovakia as an obstacle to his objective of avoiding war. Its independence and integrity were becoming a secondary by comparison with the preservation of peace—whatever that word could really mean by this time.

The stage was now set for the contest. If Czechoslovakia were attacked, would France and Britain come to her aid? Would Germany back down if faced by the determination of others to join together against her, even by going to war? Or could the Czechs be persuaded to give a blank check to the Germans, and so purchase "peace in our time"—not for herself, but for others? That would suit both Germany and England. So Chamberlain went to Germany and came back with the conviction that if "peace" were to be

Hitler must march into Czechoslovakia later the Czechs by the British and they must accept the terms of the Sudeten Agreement. The message of the proposal by Chamberlain would constitute "aggression" by her. And then Chamberlain addressed over the radio. "How may sympathize with the neighbor, we cannot involve the whole world in a war simply because of a small country."

That was the error that Munich, England and Italy sold Czechoslovakia without even asking a single question.

The next day she occupied the Sudetenland, and Czech ceased to exist. In short months Poland and the war was on. This all begin? In 1937 invaded China. It was Hitler rearm his military the Rhine then on, appeasement into the ring.

Entering the church with her father the bride wore a gown of nylon and chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a matching lace cap trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade of gerbera lilies, stephanotis and pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Bette Cronin of Andover, maid of honor for the bride, was gowned in frosted organdy over pink with matching picture hat and mitts. Miss Mary Espinola of Lowell and Mrs. Barbara Jackson of Methuen were the bridesmaids. They wore frosted organdy over aqua with matching picture hat and mitts.

cept, Hitler must be allowed to march into Czechoslovakia. A few days later the Czechs were informed by the British government that they must accept military occupation of the Sudetenland by Germany. The message even contained the implication that rejection of this proposal by Czechoslovakia would constitute "provoked aggression" by her against Germany. And then Chamberlain, in an address over the radio, gave his stand away. "However much we may sympathize with a small nation confronted by a big and powerful neighbor, we cannot undertake to involve the whole British Empire in a war simply on her account."

And Peace Costs War

That was the end. On September 30 at Munich, England, France, and Italy sold Czechoslovakia to Germany without even the courtesy of asking a single Czech to watch the deal. The next day Germany occupied Sudetenland. Six months later she occupied the rest of the country, and Czechoslovakia had ceased to exist. Within a few short months Poland was invaded, and the war was on. Where did this all begin? In 1931 when Japan invaded China. It continued when Hitler reamed his nation and re-litigated the Rhineland. From then on, appeasement beckoned war into the ring.

This is the lesson of appeasement, of thinking that peace is the absence of war. Stalin probably doesn't read the Bible, but he certainly understands the verse from St. Luke, "What king, going to war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand?"

SPYRIDAKIS -GIGIS

At a 4 o'clock ceremony June 18 in St. Constantine and Helen church, Lawrence, Miss Helen F. Gigis daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a shell shaped seed pearl tiara, and she carried a cascade of white gardenias and white rosebuds.

Miss Elizabeth Gigis was maid of honor for her sister and wore white organdy over yellow taffeta. Miss Bessie Dantos and Miss Dorothy Christie of Andover and Miss Irene Rokel of Lawrence were the bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in white organdy over lime taffeta and carried colonial bouquets.

SUMMER HOURS

This summer, during the months of July and August, there will be a change in the hours during which the Memorial Hall library will be open to the public: the main reading room will be open each day from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., Monday through Friday, and will be open 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. Saturday. This should make it easier for those who enjoy evening visits, but have had trouble in the past remembering which nights the library was open.

The young people's room will be open from 10 a. m. to noon, and again from 2 to 5 daily, Monday through Friday, and on Saturday from 10 to 12 noon.

SUMMER READING

Special reading lists have been prepared for boys and girls who come to the young people's room of the library. Each grade has its own list and with it each child receives a copy of the booklet "My Reading Record." After reading ten books, five of which must appear on the list, each reader is entitled to attend the September party for summer readers. The lists include some new titles, some old favorites, some standard books and some because they are just right for today's boys and girls.
