LOWELL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Cooperation Needed

The efforts of a group of local businessmen to form a new board of trade should be met with the united support of every merchant and tradesman in town.

Andover needs an organization through which the businessman can function, an organization which will represent him and

This subject which has been in the discussion stage for the past few years, was brought to a head last Christmas when Andover's meagre Yuletide decorations were compared with the gay holiday garb of many other communities.

The Townsman last December 14, noted that "discussion of Christmas decorations always leads up to the fact that there is no organization in town that functions strictly as a businessman's group through which he and his fellow merchants can take united action on Christmas decorations and other matters in which they are primarily concerned.

"Several of the town's merchants have expressed a desire for such an organization to advocate and encourage policies that affect the businessman and his workers, and which could speak for them on questions like store hours, holiday closings and kindred subjects.'

Now that the officials of the Andover Service club and its merchants' committee have taken the initiative in getting the ball rolling, the cooperation of all concerned in such an organization should be forthcoming for their own interests and for the good of the town.

The matter of decorations at Christmas time is one in which tradesmen, civic organizations and individual citizens have expressed considerable interest. Something constructive is going to be done about it this year, but to make it definitely successful it needs active support. With a good showing this year something on a little wider scale will be attempted in successive

The new organization deserves a good start. With an energetic board of trade functioning here other projects could be under-taken which would work to the advantage of the merchant and

INTERNATIONAL WHIRLIGIG - By John Fisher

Plucky Poland Still Resists Harsh Communist Regime

Stalin is not very successful in his high-pressure attempts to scare non-communist Poles into loving Russia, the nation they loathe.
Although "Cassandra" Molotov

at Warsaw recently warned those with a thirst for Titoism that the Balkan rebel would soon be rubbed out, the plucky Poles continue to drag their feet in the Moscow-inspired drive to turn their proud ountry into a Soviet colony.
Stubborn nationalism survives.

Therefore, several new oppressions Therefore, several new oppressions have been undertaken by President Boleslaw Bierut, the Kremlin stooge, to jam his recalcitrant people into the communist matrix. These controls affect soldiers, workers, farmers, women and youth. Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Shukov recently was taken out of moth balls to urge Rokossovsky's unreliable satellite troops to be loyal to the Soviet army. But even the pleas of this once-heroic figure cannot erase the hostility of Russophobe junior officers and enlisted men.

Communist cells have been set up in the armed forces. Civilian commissars indoctrinate soldiers in Leninism and, according to General Melenas, the propaganda boss, teach "burning hatred for Anglo-American enemies of peace, socialism and democracy."

Forced Labor of Women and Children

On the economic front, the output, scheduled in the Six-Year Plan, has sagged. Hence longer hours without extra pay are manda-tory in industry. Previously, voluntary overtime was heralded as a noble example of patriotism. But enthusiasm for extra exertion was doused when a much ballyhooed foundry shock-worker, who had broken all individual production records, collapsed from overwork and died.

The slave-driving decrees precipitated a lump of strikes among angry longshoremen and coal miners in Upper Silesia, even though walkouts in this worker's paradise are tabooed by law. The strikes were ruthlessly broken by the UB (security forces.) Now the abashed workers must endure Marxist refresher courses hammered into them by communist agitators.

Persuasion and pressure are used to push women into industry. The Sejm (Parliament) recently repealed prewar legislation that barred them from heavy and dangerous work. Approximately 1,500,000 are now employed, three times the prewar figure. This number is to be doubled for the Six-Year Plan that ends in 1956.

Child labor also has been introduced in textile factories, steel mills and mines. The ZMP (United Polish Youth) funnels its members into trade unions. Among the special assignments of teen-agers are to engage in work races, known as "Junior Socialist Emulation," and to spy on lazy youngsters and those who break or steal government tools.

Resistance and

Sabotage Rampant

So fierce is peasant opposition that Warsaw no longer compels farmers to deed over their precious land to collectives; they are required only to lease it. But they still resist, slowing down cultivation and harvesting. So field worker "brigades" are drafted, subject to semi-military discipline. Every morning before work, the field hands must listen to long-winded lectures on correct politics. Despite oratory and lash, inde-pendent-minded Poles balk at becoming Russia's serfs. The Red government openly admits the people frustrate its orders.

"The bourgeois sections," wails President Bierut, "are resorting to sharper forms of struggle, merging diversion, sabotage, espionage and underground gangsterism with the activities of carefully masked imperialist agents." If Americans get their "greedy claws" on Poland, he moans, it would mean "hunger, mutilliation and death."

Sabotage abounds in factories. Costly machinery is exposed to rain. Pilfering is so common that guards search every home-going worker at night. Red bosses are frequently arrested for winking at abuses. Grain-hoarding peasants are raided and their home is placarded with the sign: "Here lives an enemy of the people," Fulminating against "remnants Fulminating against "remnants of the old order," Bierut warned, "The sword of retribution will come down on these elements wit all the severity of the law. We will vigorously smash the resistance of the class enemy and imperialist diversion."

In recent months several con munist bigwigs have been give long prison terms for failure to their duty. Members of the Cathol Work Party have been found gull of liaison with so-called sub versive Poles and foreign imperial ists. More than 40 persons have been sentenced to death for sabotage.
