Easter Egg Hunt To Be Held Apr. 12

The Andover Recreation committee is making preparations to make the annual Easter egg hunt the biggest and most successful event it has ever sponsored.

It has purchased 14,000 pieces of wrapped candy which will be hidden in and around the playground where, beginning at 2 p.m. Saturday, Apr. 12, the youngsters of the town will line up for the scramble to see who can find the most. Prizes will be awarded for those picking up the lucky pieces.

A separate hunt will be held on the high school grounds for the smaller tots.

Among the organizations who are cooperating with the recreation committee are: Andover Service Club, Andover post, 8, American Legion and auxiliary; the police department, the fire department and auxiliary police, and the Andover Youth Center.

Plans Being Made To Divide Central PTA Into Two Units

Women Voters Open Fund Drive

The campaign for funds to continue the work of the Andover League of Women Voters starts this week and will continue through April. The goal has been set at $825. The league, a non-partisan organization, works to promote political responsibility by encouraging informed and active participation of citizens in government.

In the coming year the league will stress its voters service program which provides information on election procedures and on can-

Red Cross Working To Complete Quota

Andover's original quota for the Red Cross drive is still only a little over three-quarters completed and now the tornado disaster has increased the amount of money which will be the chapter's share in carrying on the work of the organization.

The Red Cross is trying to do a tremendous job in the tornado-stricken area. It needs help. The work of feeding, clothing and sheltering the hundreds of people affected by the disaster is something all can aid by sending a contribution to the Red Cross headquarters at 8 Elm st.

Division of the Central PTA into two units beginning next September is being considered by a committee appointed at a regular meeting last month. One unit would serve the Central elementary school and the other would serve Pynchard and the Junior high school. Central is the largest PTA unit in Massachusetts.

The matter was first discussed by the directors who favored the idea and it was later presented to the Mar. 17 meeting when a poll showed general agreement with the directors.

The committee appointed to work out a practical scheme for the division and which will report at the annual meeting of the body May 21, is as follows: Mrs. Philip A. Costello, chairman; Mrs. Walter C. Caswell, Mrs. Glenn H. Roundy, Mrs. Cleveland Gilcreast, Mrs. Harold C. Goddard Jr., Mrs. Francis A. Barous, Miss Catherine Barrett, Mrs. John P. S. Doherty, Mrs. Walter E. Mondale, Harold Howe 2nd., and Mrs. Ralph

Tree Warden Wins Contest Honors

Tree Warden G. Richard Abbott won a tree identification contest at the University of Massachusetts last week.

The contest was held during a conference of tree wardens, foresters and arborists at the university. It consisted of identifying 21 trees and 21 insects and diseases attacking shade trees. It was prepared by Prof. Gordon King head of the department of arboriculture at the university.

Such identification would be required as part of a test for a person wishing to become a registered arborist as required by all of the New England states except Massachusetts. This state does not yet have a board of registration to protect its communities from unfit tree preservation workers.

Memorial Day Committee Makes Tentative Plans For Annual Observance

Junior League Nine Being Formed Here

Formation of a Junior League baseball team in Andover is under way.

This league is for boys from 13 to 15 years old. The Little League takes lads from 9 to 12 after which they can step into the Junior League and play until ready for high school baseball.

The Junior League in this area is sponsored by the Lawrence Lions club which has organized six teams in Lawrence and one in North Andover.

T. J. Scanlon of Summer st. is the Lions club representative of the league in Andover. It is expected that the local team will have the backing of a civic organization here, just as the Little Leaguers have the backing of the Boosters' club. Coach Walter Roberts of Pynchard will handle the team.

The Junior Leaguers play on a regulation diamond. It is expected that registration blanks will be distributed through the schools to give all boys in this age group a chance to sign up.

Plan Communion Breakfast May 11

The laymen's department of the Andover Council of Churches will hold a communion breakfast Sunday, May 11, with services at 8 a.m. in the Baptist church followed by breakfast at the Free Christian church concluding at 9:15 a.m.

The committee in charge, from whom tickets may be obtained, consists of: South church, Dr. William V. Emmons and David P. Cardinal; Baptist church, Samuel B. Dimlich and Herbert H. Otis; Free church, Alex P. Black and Fred P. Fitzgerald; Christ church, Fay H. Elliott; West church, William Stewart; Cochran chapel, Alexander D. Gibson; Methodist church, Charles F. Allen and Calvin J. Seiferth; Union Congregational church, Percy W. Moody and Philip F. Wormwood. Thaxter Eaton is the department chairman.

Appointed Regular Police Officer

Edward P. Pettoruto was appointed a regular police officer by the selectmen at their meeting Monday night.

Officer Pettoruto, who has been a reserve since Oct. 17, 1949, fills the vacancy caused by the resignation of Officer Joseph E. O'Brien, and has been doing regular duty since the former police officer started on his leave of absence Jan. 1, 1952.

The appointment of Officer Pettoruto is dated Mar. 31, and carries a starting salary of $57. The new officer is married and with his wife and two children, Gayle 16 months, and Joyce five months, lives at 60 Magnolia ave.

Tentative plans for the proper observance of Memorial day were discussed at the initial meeting of the 1952 Memorial day committee Monday night in the office of the Veterans' Affairs agent.

Present at the meeting were Cmdr. Albert Cole Jr., and Vice Cmdr. Robert Volker of Post 8, American Legion; Past Cmdr. Thomas P. Eldred and Adjutant James Monan of Post 2128, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Comdr. Charles Lundergan and James Coleman of the Disabled Veterans of America; Comdr. Louise Woldenden and Vice Cmdr. Edith St. Jean of the All-Woman's post, American Legion, and Francis P. Markey, veterans' affairs agent, whom the selectmen have recently appointed permanent chairman of the committee. Mrs. St. Jean was elected secretary.

In making their preparations for the observance of the day set aside for paying respect to those members of the armed services who have made the supreme sacrifice for their country, the committee is putting considerable thought into the plans but the success of their effort lies almost wholly in the willingness of all veterans and servicemen of the town to turn out and participate in the exercises.

At present there are about 2100 veterans in Andover exclusive of those who have taken part in the Korean conflict or who are serving in the armed forces.

All servicemen are invited to take part in the observance honoring their departed comrades in the present conflict or past wars.

The committee will hold its next meeting Apr. 14.

Good Friday Union Service To Be Held

A union three-hour Good Friday service sponsored by the Andover council of churches will be held from noon until 3 p.m. next Friday in the Free Christian church.

In this service the seven local ministers will participate.

White Lines On Highways Are Guide To Safe Driving

"Every safety-conscious motorist should make it his business to know what highway markings mean," says a statement issued today by Police Chief George A. Dane and Registrar of Motor Vehicles Rudolph F. King.

Stating that the white lines painted on the highways of Massachusetts are of special importance in reducing highway accident frequency, they join in saying that the white lines have the following meaning:

BROKEN CENTER LINES: When used on 2 lane highways, mark the center of the roadway. Motorist must drive to the right except when passing a vehicle going in the same direction.

SOLID BARRIER LINE: marks areas where passing is prohibited. When used in combination with a broken center line, it is directional. If the solid line is immediately adjacent to the driver in the right hand lane, it should NOT be crossed; but, if it appears to the left of the broken center line at the driver's left, it may be crossed at the driver's discretion.

DOUBLE SOLID BARRIER LINES: Usually found painted in the center of 4-lane undivided highways. Use of this restrictive marking is predicated on the assumption that passing a car can be accomplished without crossing to the left of the center of the roadway.

DOUBLE SOLID BARRIER LINES WITH BROKEN LINE IN CENTER: usually found on 2 lane highways. This combination of barrier and broken center line pavement marking serves the same purpose as an island. It is completely restrictive and means no passing at any time.

DIAGONAL BARRIER LINES: used on 3 lane highways in advance of "No Passing" zones to regiment and prepare approaching motorists while entering the restricted areas.

TRANSITION BARRIER LINES: used at road width changes, from 4 to 3 lane, and from 3 to 2 lane, where opposing lines of traffic must give way to avoid head-on collisions.

TRANSVERSE BROKEN LINES: used to mark pedestrians' crosswalks. These serve a dual purpose of influencing pedestrians to cross highways at designated locations and to warn the motorists of crossing locations.

Report of Headmaster of Pynchard High School and Andover Junior High School

(The report of Harold Howe 2nd, headmaster of Pynchard High and the Junior High schools, and which is contained in the annual report of the school committee now the subject of controversy among some of our readers, is as follows:)

Mr. Kenneth L. Sherman
Superintendent of schools

Dear Sir:

This statement is presented as my second annual report as headmaster of the Pynchard High school and the Andover Junior High school.

In the Junior High school a variety of minor changes in programming have had desirable results. In the seventh and eighth grades the arrangement of students by divisions has been made to coincide with their arrangement by homerooms. This has made possible more homeroom activity of all kinds. There are fewer study periods for the seventh and eighth grades this year and more time in supervised class work. This has been made possible by the additional teacher provided for the Junior High school, and it is a major improvement in making the transition from sixth grade to Junior High less sudden. Another programming change which is directed toward improving this transition is that of giving each seventh grader the same teacher in both English and social studies in consecutive periods. This gives less pupils to each teacher and less teachers to each pupil in the seventh grade. I hope that this change can be extended to grade eight next year. All seventh and eighth graders have work in either shop or homemaking this year, another change which has been made possible by added teacher time. The grouping of pupils in grade seven remains the same as last year with one group of the four selected for outstanding ability. There has been some change in eighth grade grouping. The class was divided in half on the ability basis and each half then grouped heterogeneously to form two divisions. In the ninth grade a required social studies course in geography and current events has been added to replace the civics course which was put in grade ten a year ago. Ancient history has been dropped from the curriculum. The language requirements have been changed to demand three years of one foreign language from each student starting the classical curriculum in the ninth grade. Additional time has been assigned to Junior High students in physical education by reducing slightly the time for this in Pynchard.

In Pynchard there have been a number of curriculum changes. All students are required to take Red Cross first aid courses. Time for this is taken from physical education classes. The speech program has been reorganized and concentrated in the sophomore year, each sophomore being required to take speech as an extra course twice a week. New courses in music appreciation and in harmony and the theory of music have been added as electives. A beginning has been made on the introduction of remedial reading work for high school students, and there are plans for further development of this. The elective courses in dramatics and health and hygiene have been dropped from the curriculum.

In both Pynchard and the Junior High school there has been an increased amount of extra-curricular activity. A sailing club, a current events club, a Junior High school newspaper, and a bazaar which last spring raised over $1,000 for student activities are some of the additions to the extra-curricular program. There has been a revised and active Junior Red Cross. The student councils in both Pynchard and the Junior High are increasing in vigor and prestige. The new arrangement for having all student activities handle their financial affairs through one account, supervised by a teacher, has been most successful. The addition of a full time librarian to serve Pynchard and the Junior High has opened up new extra-curricular possibilities as well as making the libraries more effective in helping our classroom work. The generous support of the Pynchard trustees has made it possible to maintain an excellent library for Pynchard. We shall have to depend on the school department to rebuild the rather poor collection in the Junior High school. In addition to their support of the library, the trustees have contributed several major items of equipment to the school this year—an electric calculating machine, an electric typewriter, and a combination tachistoscope, micro-projector and slide projector.

The varsity athletic teams in both Pynchard and the Junior High school had a successful and active year. Junior High football had a large squad and unusual enthusiasm. It became apparent during the year that we would no longer be able to finance our varsity athletic program from gate receipts, and an appropriation for this purpose has been included in the 1952 school department budget.

Because it has been necessary to house two kindergarten rooms, we have been pressed for classroom space, as well as for space for student activities, since school opened in September. With the expansion of the activities of the music department we are seriously in need of additional space for group rehearsals as well as for individual practice on instruments. I strongly recommend that space be made available in the Jackson school for this purpose next year. Other problems which face us upon which I can only touch are:

1. The need for additional teacher time and additional space for practical arts work as a result of growing enrollment in these courses, particularly among the boys;

2. A better arrangement for scheduling student activities so that they will not interfere with each other and with curricular work, and so that a larger proportion of students can take part in them;

3. The desirability of longer class periods and therewith a longer school day during which most, if not all, homework will be accomplished;

4. The strengthening of our intramural sports program;

5. The development of our general course instruction so that it is more closely geared to the interests and abilities of the students in that curriculum;

6. A positive program for keeping our teachers well informed on the best work being done in their fields in terms of both subject matter and methods; (membership in the New England School Development council would be a sound move in this direction.)

7. The need for an increased awareness among the students generally of the significance of local and national economic and political developments and their background.

8. The development among the students of an improved attitude toward the importance of performing day to day responsibilities accurately and promptly.

Personnel changes have been numerous. We all regretted the resignation of Miss Fox who gave her working life to Pynchard High school. Miss Stevens has replaced her as head of the English department. The resignation of Mrs. Econ made way for the appointment of Miss Janetos as home economics instructor. Mr. Hart returned this fall as science teacher in Pynchard and Mr. Danforth, who had been substituting for him, moved to the Junior high school where he is teaching elementary science. In addition to this, Mr. Danforth has been appointed as teacher in charge of all audio-visual aids in Pynchard and the Junior High school. Mr. Congdon replaced Miss Bolton as a teacher of English in the Junior High school. Mr. Normandy is substituting in physical education for Mr. Dunn, who is on leave of absence for military service. In September Miss Loux came to the Junior High school from the Bradlee school to fill the vacancy left by Miss Hird and which was filled by Mrs. Douglass as a substitute last year. Mrs. Wilson is a new instructor in music. Mr. Wormwood has served since September as a substitute teacher in English.

This report is too short to mention in detail the conscientious work which has been the daily contribution of all the members of the teaching staff in both Pynchard and the Junior High school. Andover is fortunate indeed to have as teachers a group of people who are as generous with their time and effort and who are as genuinely interested in the welfare of the pupils as are the members of our Pynchard and Junior High school faculty. It is a privilege to work with them.

I would like to extend to you and to the school committee my sincere thanks for the backing I have

Comsr. Long Talks On Tax Problems

Speaking at a meeting of the Andover Service club last Thursday night Henry F. Long, state commissioner of corporations and taxation told members he had a plan for a state sales tax which would be available to any legislator desirous of using it.

The state official was introduced to a gathering of about 100 members and friends at the Andover Country club by Roy E. Hardy, chairman of the local board of assessors.

He discussed state tax problems and said that he favored raising the assessed real estate valuations in an attempt to level off tax rates.

He felt that revenue should not be earmarked for any specific purpose as is presently the case with the gasoline tax, as he felt there are times when the money could be put to better use.

At the dinner the invocation was given by the Rev. Robert J. McCune of the Ballardvale Methodist church. Two new members, Malcolm and Donald Lundgren, were voted into the organization. It was voted to give $10 to the Easter egg hunt and $25 to the Red Cross disaster fund.

At the next meeting, Apr. 10, Gen. George Harmon of Norwich university will be the speaker.

Estate Of $18,500 Left By Woman

In the will of Mrs. Caroline Whitehill late of Porter rd., provisions are contained for the disposal of an estate of $18,500. Two daughters, Gladys Whitehill Bolman of Gloucester and Ruth M. Whitehill of Andover are named executrices.

The will stipulates that a granddaughter, Annette Victoria Bolman, is to receive $1000, after which the remainder of the estate is left in trust for the benefit of the two daughters in equal shares. Another provision allows Ruth M. Whitehill to occupy the family home on Porter road if she so desires.

I would not protest you with another you had not already you believe education are a proper subject for discussion.

My purpose in presenting further is that citizenship demands people show a live school affairs and committee must take in presenting facts. Does this sound like so I am in very here because the first from Mr. Lewis' record the second part is from the school committee on which Mr. L. so much praise.

Since we are all a principle, why all the feathers? This criticized squarely at the discretion pious statements on the one hand, a satisfactory performance. What Our Readers Say —

MORE SCHOOL BUSINESS

Editor of The Townsman:

I would not presume to burden you with another communication if you had not already shown that you believe educational policies are a proper subject for public discussion.

My purpose in pursuing this subject further is that I believe good citizenship demands that 1) the people show a lively interest in school affairs and 2) the school committee must take the leadership in presenting facts to the people. Does this sound like heresy? If so I am in very heretical company because the first part is taken from Mr. Lewis' recent letter and the second part is taken verbatim from the school committee's statement on which Mr. Lewis lavished so much praise.

Since we are all agreed in principle, why all the fuss and feathers? This criticism is directed squarely at the discrepancy between pious statement of purpose on the one hand, and less than satisfactory performance on the other. Either the school committee is setting a fine example of democratic responsibility toward its public or it isn't. Mr. Lewis thinks it is, and I don't; the issue is as simple as that. To help arrive at the truth suppose we examine the available records.

Because the word "report" has been used both in connection with the pamphlet as a whole and with material on page 6, I shall, to avoid confusion, use that word to mean the complete pamphlet and shall call that part signed by the secretary a statement.

The very first sentence in the secretary's statement makes it crystal clear that the school committee is issuing no report of its own; they don't even label it a "report" as they do all the others. The Townsman added such an identification to conform to journalistic practice. Why Mr. Lewis won't take the committee's word for this I wouldn't know. Here's a declaration that comes straight from the horse's mouth.

The school committee doesn't reveal its duties but it seems to me that the position of the school committee, like that of a board of directors, is midway between the schools and its public. Although its function is to direct the schools, it is elected by the people to perform a public service, and so is under obligation to give the people an impartial and detailed statement of educational aims, problems, methods, costs and results. Operating in the public interest, its report should be objective and judicial.

Yet, by its own admission, it substitutes its chief administrator's report for its own. In so doing the committee lays itself open to the charge that it evades its own clearly stated aim and its clear moral responsibility to the public which elected it and footed all the bills.

But far more damaging to the public interest is the fact that in using the superintendent as its mouthpiece, the committee is passing off on the public a subjective statement instead of an objective appraisal. The superintendent is not an elected official, is not accountable to the public, and quite properly has his personal interest to protect. As the self-satisfied report of an administrator, his views are understandable but as a report of the representatives of the public's welfare it is indefensible.

Where the superintendent's statement is glib, the committee's is glum. This confusion of function makes it look as if the tail is wagging the dog.

The poor public caught in the middle, is left with no reliable appraisal of what is going on in our schools, and why and how. I don't believe the public is so gullible as to accept a star-studded substitution at face value. The public is entitled to fair information; what it gets is indoctrination.

Under the circumstances part of the public becomes apathetic, thinking the situation is hopeless, some people become belligerent, a few are content to look upon the school committee as a sacred cow, while still others, perhaps naive, are hopeful that the situation can be straightened out. But in every case the people are not being given the truth about educational policies and practices by our school officials.

Suppose now we search further for reliable data. Mr. Lewis tells us that our capable finance committee and taxpayers committee have gone over the budget for us. Is he suggesting that the people should have such implicit faith in them that the people should surrender their own rights and obligations? The finance committee itself reveals no smug "papa knows best" attitude.

If he will reread this committee's report he will find advice on the need for rigid control of expenses, and a statement of the committee's duty to recommend each departmental appropriation "in detail." But I can't find any evidence that they have applied either of these things to the school budget. Certainly, the finance committee members are capable individuals but I wonder just how proud they are of their contribution to public understanding of this problem.

Let's turn next to the taxpayer's report. They too accept the committee's original figure but add that unless school expenses are "rigorously controlled" our economy will be seriously threatened. Are they working both sides of the street?

At whom are both groups directing their urgent appeals for rigid control? I see no evidence that they take their own advice. If this budget seems to baffle the experts, is it fair to blame the average citizen for being bewildered? He certainly gets no help from these committees, and the fact that they have gone over the school budget seems to me to prove exactly nothing. Either town meeting is the proper place for the public discussion of public business or it isn't. And you can't discuss a complicated budget intelligently without lots of facts.

There is a fifth potential source of information. One of the primary benefits of national elections is the educational job done by bringing issues before the people. In our town elections it is not considered dignified to raise any issues. This constitutes another wall of silence and helps to put the citizens neatly over a barrel.

For all its capabilities, how can the finance committee, or anyone else for that matter, possibly evaluate a price tag intelligently without understanding what we are buying? Transcending school costs, yet forming the only sound basis for evaluating costs, are school policies, methods and results. Without a full and frank description of these things, not even an Einstein can evaluate our school budget. Is it no one's job in this town to provide these facts to the public freely, without being needed?

Mr. Lewis is very happy when people show a private lively interest in school affairs but he too opposes telling them very much publicly. He is happy only when they have to come and get it. I think you can't discharge a public responsibility by clamping up in public.

In short, I believe the school committee has the primary obligation not only to educate our children, but to educate the public as well. Their job is bigger than they think, but if they can live up to it, they will not only grow in stature, but also in public esteem to which their many hours of important and unpaid service should entitle them.

Dino G. Valz

P.S. On second thought I withdraw my suggestion that we let our young hopefuls into town meeting. Let us feed them democratic platitudes but shield them from witnessing public frustration. They are too innocent to be disillusioned so soon.

White Lines On Highways

It is estimated that by May 1 there will be more than 1,300,000 vehicles on the highways of Massachusetts.

The constant increase in the number of autos and trucks registered each year places an ever-growing responsibility on motorists to be more careful in the observance of all safety measures.

One common safety measure for the reduction of accidents on the highways is the system of painted white lines that mark all well-traveled roads today.

"Painted lines on Massachusetts highways," says a statement just issued by Police Chief George A. Dane and Rudolph F. King, registrar of motor vehicles, "are life-lines for motorists and pedestrians."

This system of road markings, they advise us, is in accord with established uniform standards. They can be easily interpreted by motorists and, if obeyed, are of primary importance in cutting down accidents.

But how often in the course of ordinary travel does one see them disregarded by the "smart" driver or the speeder who crosses the solid barrier at a curve or in a "No Passing" zone!

These restrictive barriers on the highways are for the protection of all. Maximum safety benefits can be realized only when motorists understand their meaning and observe them.

Some 5100 miles of white lines were painted on our state highways last year. Motorists should bear in mind that they have a purpose and make it their business to know what the markings mean.

Digitoxin, for example, is commonly prescribed in certain heart conditions and is so potent that its usual dose is only 1/600th of a grain. The usual dose of atrophine sulfate, another frequently prescribed drug, is only 1/120th of a grain.

didates for state and national offices. In the fall this program will include a voters booth in front of the town house, the publishing of replies to questionnaires sent to candidates, a candidates meeting, information about questions on the ballot, and a campaign to register new voters.

A substantial part of the money necessary to sustain these and other activities comes from membership dues, but dues are kept very low to encourage wide participation in league affairs. Thus most of the needed money is raised annually through the solicitation of both members and non-members in Andover and North Andover.

PLAN TO DIVIDE CENTRAL PTA

The original suggestion that the Central PTA divide into two groups was made by the state PTA organization, which pointed out that the Andover Central was the largest in Massachusetts and that experience had shown smaller organizations to be more effective.

One of the problems of the Central PTA has been that programs directed toward Junior high and high school parents and teachers would not necessarily interest those of the elementary schools and vice versa. The proposed arrangement would do away with this difficulty.

Vesper Service At West Church

Scouts To Canvass For Blood Donors

At 10 a.m. Saturday, Apr. 5, the boy scouts will meet in the Memorial Hall library to see a movie entitled "Blood and Bullets". This will mark the beginning of their canvass of the town to get blood donors for the visit of the bloodmobile, May 2, at the South church.

The success of this project depends on the people of Andover, as 210 people must be registered in order to get the quota of 150 usable pints.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gilcreast of Bartlet st., will leave Apr. 9 for a three months' trip to Europe during which time they will visit their son, John, in Beirut, Lebanon, who is with the Trans-American Pipe Line Co.
