Town Recovering From Heavy Tropical Storm

Narrow escape was experienced by Miss Ruth Stanley, Andover st., local telephone operator, who was nearly trapped in her car on Chestnut st. during the height of the storm when a huge tree crashed over the vehicle. Miss Stanley managed to squeeze out of the car unhurt. (photo by Look)

Highlights Of Storm

Wednesday morning's bright sun was welcomed by all and afforded an opportunity to view the extensive hurricane damage which extended to all sections of Andover.

A great majority of residents agreed the storm caused more havoc than did the great hurricane of 1938. This was especially true of damage caused to public trees and those about local homes. In the 1938 hurricane the most severe tree damage occurred in forest lands.

Considerable loss was experienced by those who had stocks of frozen foods in refrigerators and deep freezers. When the electric current was cut off it wasn't long before the foodstuffs had become soft and in many cases had to be disposed of.

Although the fire alarm sounded from time to time as tree branches caused short circuits, there were no runs made by the fire department until after the storm had subsided.

An alarm from box 563, Shaw-sheen rd. and Lincoln st. came in at 4:54 p.m. and sent fire apparatus to the home of William Sobel, 16 Beech circle, for what was found to be a needless run. Seems the Sobel family had retired to the garage to use an oil cook stove to prepare a hot supper in the absence of electrical current in the home. A neighbor saw the reflection from the garage and called the fire department. Firemen retired without interrupting the evening meal.

Telephone lines in Andover suffered severe damage according to Manager Frank P. Desmond. A number of cables were broken off completely. Among these were cables at Elm and Summer streets, Chestnut and Central streets, Main and Phillips streets, and on Route 28. (Continued on Page Six)

Trees Uprooted
Homes Damaged
Lights Are Out

The most devastating storm since the historic 1938 hurricane struck Andover and other parts of New England at mid-day Tuesday uprooting hundreds of trees, snapping utility poles, smashing plate glass windows, cutting off power and for a time completely isolating the town from surrounding communities. The damage was expected to amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Accompanied by torrential rain, the storm lashed the town for more than an hour.

Shingles were torn from hundreds of homes, windows were broken, and fruit trees laden with fruit (Continued on Page Three) were leveled as the fierce winds tugged at everything in their path. Some of Andover's most beautiful shade trees which had withstood the hurricane of 16 years ago, gave way before Tuesday's storm and at times crashed onto the buildings over which they towered for generations.

TOWN MOPPING UP AFTER SEVERE STORM

During the height of the storm between noon and 1 p.m., few ventured from their homes. With highways blocked, traffic came to a standstill, and police and other town officials made their way about the center of the town on foot.

Public Works crews, placed on an emergency basis, were forced to stand by as the storm ripped through the town, but shortly after 1:30 p.m. went into action to clear the highways and restore the normal flow of traffic. Public utility workmen began the gigantic task of clearing away torn down wires and running new lines to provide electricity and telephone service.

Public safety officials reported no serious accidents or injuries attributed to the storm but there were many narrow escapes. One of the most spectacular occurred at the corner of Main and Locke streets where a motorist jumped from his car just as a huge tree was uprooted and crushed the vehicle, the trunk of the tree landing over the driver's seat and smashed the metal top.

Just as fortunate was Miss Ruth Stanley of Andover st., local telephone operator, whose car was crushed by a fallen tree on Chestnut street, near Central. With only inches to spare, Miss Stanley was able to extricate herself from the badly damaged vehicle.

Streets of the town were deserted as the 90-mile-an-hour winds ripped through the community. Motorists who tried to ride out the early stages of the storm were forced to pull into filling stations and other parking places as the full brunt of the storm struck around 12:30 p.m.

Every main artery in and out of Andover and Shawsheen Village for a time during the height of the storm was blocked. Emergency crews succeeded in opening some avenues of travel and motorists, by means of driving over private lawns and making other detours were able to proceed after the storm. Drivers of heavy trucks operating over Route 28 found themselves blocked as they proceeded down Main street. A number of them detached the cabs from their trailers and made for cover.

A gas main was broken by an uprooted tree adjacent to the A and P market and emergency crews hurried here from the Lawrence Gas company and shut off the supply.

A large plate glass window in the card shop at 92 Main street was smashed by the high winds; metal coping on the Memorial Hall library and other buildings was ripped off by the howling gale which swirled torrents of rain in its path.

Streets were littered with falling leaves and catch basins were blocked, sending rivers of water along the main streets of the town.

That there were no serious injuries was attributed by officials to the ample warning residents had of the storm which began as hurricane "Carol" in the Caribbean Sea, a few days ago. Constant warnings were issued of the path of the big wind and early Tuesday morning the weather bureau announced that it would strike through eastern Massachusetts.

Hundreds of offices closed before the storm struck and the employees were sent home. Factories shut down because of the lack of power, but many workers remained inside rather than face the wrath of the howling gale.

As the storm abated, townspeople appeared in numbers and walked gingerly between the fallen trees, limbs and tangled wires. Amateur photographers by the score took advantage of the late afternoon sun to record pictures of the scenes of devastation about Andover.

TOWN MOPPING UP AFTER SEVERE STORM

storm kept in touch with cruising cars and personally toured the business area.

The Andover fire alarm sounded frequently, but this was due mostly to short circuits caused by falling tree limbs.

Mopping up operations by the Public Works department, in charge of Sidney P. White, began as soon as the winds died down. Additional employees were added as the men faced the gigantic task of removing the hundreds of fallen trees. Home owners faced the strenuous task on their own, clearing lawns and streets about their homes.

Electric current in some sections of Andover was restored late Tuesday afternoon while utility crews continued their work Wednesday.

During the storm Tuesday, many stores and restaurants in the business area continued their operations by candle light, while others closed their doors until Wednesday morning.

A woman making her way up Main street after the storm declared to a passer-by:

"I'm afraid to go home. I don't know what I'll find."

That was the predicament in which many residents found themselves as they reached home and sought out storm damage. Most agreed that it could have been worse, but everyone in Andover was glad that "Carol" had passed on into history as they turned their attention to the fourth hurricane - "Dolly" - which was reported building up off the coast of Florida at mid-week.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE IS CAUSED BY HURRICANE

Linemen scouted the town during the night and Wednesday morning and by noon had found at least 22 poles down. Lines were tangled and extensive damage caused to the system.

Manager Desmond said that an auxiliary generator was being used to provide electricity to the central office here and that service had been restored to all key facilities, including police and fire departments, doctors and nursing homes. When the extent of the damage has been officially determined,

Members of the police department, workers of the tree department and helpers were provided with sandwiches, cold drinks, doughnuts and coffee while at work on the clearing of the town Tuesday night. Rowland L. Luce, Leo Zalla and Francis Kelly of the Rockport Market made approximately 100 sandwiches for distribution. The Andover Chapter of the Red Cross under the leadership of Miss Barbara Loomer, provided coffee and doughnuts.

Mr. Luce recalled that during the 1938 hurricane when he was president of the Andover Square and Compass club, the members provided the workers with food and drinks.

A street sign which was blown along Park st., by the high winds injured Mrs. Hugh McLay of Tewksbury st., Ballardvale. She was taken to a doctor for treatment of a sprained ankle.

A tree limb which crashed through the windshield of a car owned by the Morrissey Taxi company injured the driver, Glenwood E. Gilbreath, 82 High st. He was given first aid at the fire station and was later taken to a doctor for treatment.

Police officer Robert Deyermann was in charge of the auxiliary police who aided in directing traffic throughout town. The auxiliaries were of great aid to the regular police and were stationed at many intersections to regulate the flow of traffic. They were also assigned to many danger spots where trees were down.

Health Dept. In Word To Parents

With the schools soon to open, the State Department of Public Health has some timely advice for the parents, especially those whose children are going to school for the first time. Mothers and fathers are urged to take the following steps:

1. Make sure that your children are in good physical shape. Are they fully protected against diseases like diphtheria, whooping cough, and lock-jaw? Now is the time for a complete physical check-up by the doctor and the dentist.

2. Have the youngsters been trained in avoiding traffic accidents? It would be a good idea to walk to school with them beforehand, showing them how to cross streets safely, watch the lights, and take no chances with speeding or careless motorists. On country roads, they should be taught to walk on the left side, facing traffic.

3. When school begins, see to it from the start that the children get up early enough to avoid rushing breakfast and the trip to school — and no staying up late the night before. This is important for both health and safety. A leisurely and nourishing breakfast is a "must" for the school child. Rushing to school increases the risk of getting hurt and puts the youngster in the wrong frame of mind for his morning's work.

4. Lunches are important too. If the school does not provide a substantial meal, put up one for the child to take with him. It should be well balanced and should include milk.

5. Teach the kindergarteners independence — how to put on their own coats and rubbers and take care of themselves in other ways.

6. Prepare the children for group contacts and for getting along with other children.

7. Remember that health and safety, like charity begin at home.

Essential To Security

In one of his recent columns Hanson W. Baldwin, military editor of the New York Times and a leading authority in his field, endorsed President Eisenhower's request to congress for a comparatively small fund to aid our ailing merchant marine.

He said that merchant shipping had always been for the United States a key element of sound national defense. He pointed out that we are more dependent now on foreign sources for vital strategic raw materials than we were a decade ago. Uranium, manganese, oil and scores of other materials must be transported from across the seas if our war economy is to be maintained.

While he said our present merchant fleet is large in size he also added that 80 percent of the ships should be replaced in nine years. Without government action merchant shipbuilding will come to a full stop in the relatively near future.

Mr. Baldwin summed up the problem in these words: "The high cost of constructing and operating United States merchant ships is the major economic reason for the merchant marine's between-wars decline. There is no doubt, however, that the merchant marine is an essential element of our security policies as they are now envisaged."

Dogs By The Billion

During the summer months armies of Americans flock to summer resorts and amusement places where they give vent to an amiable weakness — their desire for the lowly "hot dog."

During the 14-week period beginning with Decoration day and ending Labor day, says the American Meat Institute, the incredible total of 2,624,640,000 "hot dogs", a string that would girdle the earth about eight times, will be consumed in this country. That works out to about 21 "dogs" for every person in the country between the ages of 5 and 60.

The "hot dog" is a true and lasting American institution. To many there would be something lacking in the best of all ball games without a "red hot" or two to flavor the proceedings. At carnivals the "hot dog" stands are as much a part of the affair as the rides and sideshows. At the cookout or home barbecue the "hot dog" is usually the chief item on the menu.

The season's consumption, incidentally, will be eight percent over last year's. The "dog" grows more popular every year.

SOLVING SIMPLE DISEASES

By Science Features

Don't think that doctors overlook common ailments just because they have not yet been able to cure the cold. Medical science is concerned with simple, annoying diseases as well as the deadly kind. For example, one very prevalent but not-dangerous disease called pinworm (there are about 210 million cases throughout the world) can now be cured by new drugs and diligence.

The most universal of all human parasites, these little white worms primarily affect children, causing a constant itching that disturbs sleep and may also interfere with the youngsters' eating.

In a recent report from Buffalo, N. Y., three doctors declared they found the antibiotic terramycin was "the most effective drug" for treating pinworm patients. A disinfectant, gentian violet, was also highly successful, they said, but often "cannot be swallowed by many children." Of 40 cases, 84 percent were cured with terramycin—a drug prepared in raspberry-flavored liquid for children.

Because the pinworm's eggs are well protected in a three-layer shell, it is difficult to destroy them. Furthermore, they can easily spread to other members of the family by contaminating household furniture, toys, clothing and even the air. The utmost personal vigilance is therefore necessary to help drugs destroy the pinworm and cure the infection.

Thorough washing of the body every day, especially hands and nails before meals, careful soaking and sterilizing of bed linen and clothing plus the scrubbing of toilet seats and personal articles are a few of the measures doctors say should be taken.

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago — September 1904

Traffic continues to be heavy on the Andover-Reading and Andover-Haverhill trolley lines. Several extra cars were run Sunday and big crowds were carried all day.

The Andover Brass band will furnish the music at the St. Lawrence's church barbecue to be held at Glen Forest on Labor day.

A Beverly boy while stealing a ride on a mail truck near his home met with an unusual accident. He lost his balance and fell to the ground where an automobile passed over him.

Andover people registered at the St. Louis World's fair are: F. Abbott Goodhue Jr., Dr. Edward C. Conroy, Roger Sherman, George W. Low, W. H. Donovan and S. J. Keaton Jr.

There are very interesting rumors about big schools in Andover this year. While officials, themselves, are not sure of how many pupils will actually "turn up" it is impossible to make an accurate forecast of the opening attendance.

An enjoyable family gathering was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. W. Barnard in observance of the 90th birthday of Mrs. Barnard's mother, Mrs. Mary Foster.

The B & N St. Ry. Co. has issued orders to equip all open cars with a guard rail which will prevent passengers from getting off the cars on both sides.

The new building, in which the central heating plant for the schools will be located, will be ready before Oct. 1. It has been built with a view to subsequent additions.

Russia's cup of humiliation is full. Despite her bulk of men and territory her defenses around Port Arthur are crumbling before Japanese shot and shell, and she lies helpless waiting for the final blow.

The military companies of this vicinity will leave for the South on Saturday to participate in the maneuvers in Virginia next week.

25 Years Ago — September 1929

A tax rate of $25.50 has been announced by the assessors. The increase is very low compared with the surrounding towns.

The playground season will end tonight with a field meet.

The B.A. McDonald Miners by their 5-0 victory over the Legion at North Andover last night won the second half honors in the Greater Lawrence league. The Miners will close their regular season this evening by meeting the K. of C. at Lawrence.

More than 100 workmen are engaged in the reconstruction of North Main street from Stimpson's bridge over the Shawsheen to Elm square. Water mains are being renewed, sewer connections are being relocated and renewed, and a change of grade will necessitate the relaying of about 1600 feet of the main sewer line. Gas, electric, telephone and street railway companies have their workmen replacing and relocating their various systems.

The Pynchard schools will open

Wednesday, Sept. 4, and the grade schools the following Monday. Several new teachers have been chosen to fill vacancies on the school staffs.

Chris Murphy of Pearson street, Andover's well-known dancer, is making a big hit at Old Orchard beach with Jean's Palace Ballroom Arcadians.

The fire department had several calls Monday and Tuesday for serious brush fires in West Andover, the Carmel woods and Ballardvale. The more serious was one off River road Tuesday noon. Box 4 sounded, then Box 15 for more help. Aid was also secured from the state which sent a brush fire truck, and finally with the aid of a thunder shower the fire was extinguished. At the height of the Tuesday storm the steeple of the Congregational church in Ballardvale was struck and Combination 3 responded. The storm also gripped the fire alarm system and destroyed the radio which has been installed in the central fire station.

10 Years Ago — September 1944

The public schools will reopen Wednesday. Extensive repair work has been done on school buildings during the summer.

Pvt. Julius H. Cieslik, 32, died Aug. 4 in Italy of wounds received in action, according to word received by his wife, Mrs. Helen (Sharps) Cieslik, 68 Essex st.

The playground season will close this week with several events scheduled for Thursday night.

A tin can collection will be taken up Sunday, Sept. 10.

An exhibition of portraits of celebrities of Andover, England will be sent here soon to be placed on exhibition.

Pomp's pond closed Aug. 26 for the season. Miss Marjorie Foster was in charge this season.

James J. Hart has been appointed faculty manager of athletics at Pynchard, taking the place of William McDonald who is on leave.

At the height of the Tuesday storm the steeple of the Congregational church in Ballardvale was struck and Combination 3 responded. The storm also gripped the fire alarm system and disabled the radio which has been installed in the central fire station.

Monday at the corner of Main and Chestnut streets, was blown down by Tuesday's gale. Workmen had the task to do over again on Wednesday.

All firemen were summoned for emergency duty at 11 a.m. Tuesday and remained at their stations throughout the storm period. They were dismissed by Chief C. Edward Buchan at 4:40 p.m. after the hurricane danger had passed.

Operators of garages and filling stations where the power was cut off rigged up auxiliary motors and managed to provide gas for motorists Tuesday evening.

Farmers reported the storm destroyed the corn crop. Orchardists bemoaned the destruction of bumper crops of apples and peaches. And all this was without counting the damage to farm buildings and other equipment caused by the storm.

Numbers of local residents who were spending vacations at seaside resorts rushed back home in the face of the storm when most beach areas were ordered evacuated. Many of the vacationists had planned to be away over the long Labor Day holiday.

Additional workmen were engaged by the Board of Public Works in the aftermath of the storm, while outside trucks were hired to haul away the broken trees. Department officials stated the crews would be continued at work Saturday, not a normal work day.

Television antennas by the hundreds were blown down by the 90-mile-an-hour gusts. Some disappeared entirely from the areas in which they had been located.

The only low-priced V-8

Why is Ford the only low-priced car to offer you a V-8? It's not because other manufacturers don't know there's nothing quite like V-8 power. They do, but they "reserve" their V-8's for buyers of their more expensive cars! But Ford believes low-priced car buyers are entitled to V-8 power. And, thanks to the miracle of Ford production, it's yours for LESS than most "sixes!"

The most modern V-8

It is interesting to note that the lowest-priced V-8 is also the most modern. Ford's brand-new V-8 has a deeper "Y"-shaped block. This gives smoother, library-quiet running. And because of its new short-stroke design, there's less power squandering piston rub. You'll find it gives the kind of action you've longed for... eager, really effortless "Go" at ALL driving speeds.

The favorite V-8

Ford has built nearly 17,000,000 V-8 engines! And it's experience that counts in engine design. That's why Ford, the V-8 leader for 22 years, is now able to step still further out front with more than ordinary V-8 power... Y-block V-8 power! To see just what this means in extra driving pleasure, come in and enjoy a Test Drive in the amazing '54 Ford today.

With Ball-Joint suspension

Only Ford and two other (higher priced) cars have Ball-Joint Front Suspension! Because of it, you'll find these new Fords take the corners almost as if they were on rails... handle easier, even on rough, rutted roads... and give you a smoother big-car ride. What's more, 12 of the 16 major wear (and lubrication) points are eliminated, and that "new car" feel lasts longer.

With way-ahead styling

Just look at Ford's clean-cut beauty. No humps or bulges mar its long, low lines. It will still be right in style years from now, when other low-priced cars are "old hat." Yes, in looks and engineering Ford is years ahead. That's why Fords return more of their original cost at trade-in time than ANY other car. Used car surveys prove it!

NEW BOOKS

The Fives and Sixes Go To School, Sheehy.

Written for teachers, this book can be of help to parents in launching children's school careers auspiciously. Deals with such subjects as the arts, music, reading, writing, arithmetic, building schools for young children and teacher-parent responsibility and opportunity in a developing program.

Dear Parents, O'Daly.

A plea for parents and teachers to understand one another and to work together.

Effective Home-School Relations, Hymes.

Points up the need for Fostering "the kind of community understanding that makes for more successful teachers, happier parents, abler children."

Spanish Temper, Pritchett.

A well-known author and literary critic, lover of Spain since youth, writes sensitively and well about a country, whose natural grandeur is unrivalled on the continent, — a country not really European, but more than half North African — and of a people, fiercely individual, unchanging, torn between extremes, skeptical, believing, sombre yet colorful, not Spaniards first but Adalians, Basques, Catalans.

Future Indefinite, Coward.

The second part of his autobiography, begun in "Present Indicative" covers the war years, 1939-1945 and his contribution to empire morale. Written in a witty and engaging fashion by an extremely versatile man who is more than sybarite and sophisticate.

American Ways of Life, Stewart.

Mr. Stewart has brought an informed mind and facile pen to his consideration of our customs, habits and attitudes. A dozen subjects are entertainingly discussed — the land and people, language, religion, food, drink, clothing, sex, personal names, holidays, arts and play. He concludes that much of what we are is inherited, affected, of course, by our environment and that we are natively creative almost only in the field of play.

Catholicism in America, Commonweal.

A provocative examination of American Catholicism as it relates to our American heritage and to the future of the United States, by seventeen contributors, only two of them non-Catholic, who discuss very frankly such subjects as science, politics, education, literature, the movies, social reform, clergy and laity, separatism.

4,000 Years Under the Sea, Dirole.

The first chronicle of undersea archaeological exploration which examines the ocean floor and is thereby able to place relics in their historical place and to reconstruct the dramatic story of their submersion.

Traffic Regulation And Control Plans

The Massachusetts Highway Safety committee has announced that plans for the control and regulation of traffic on the Commonwealth's highways over the Labor day holiday weekend have been completed.

Governor Christian A. Herter, honorary chairman, and Registrar of Motor Vehicles Rudolph F. King, chairman of the committee, today expressed personal concern over expected traffic conditions during the coming holidays.

"We have every reason to believe that all previous records of highway travel in Massachusetts will be surpassed during this 1954 Labor Day weekend and every possible precaution will be exercised to keep traffic accidents at a new low," said the Governor and the Registrar.

"This year's Labor Day weekend traffic volumes will exceed any experiences yet encountered and will demand the full and complete cooperation of every motorist and pedestrian with the efforts of nearly 7,000 state, community, Metropolitan District, and Registry of Motor Vehicles enforcement officers engaged in the control and regulation of traffic. All flagrant violations or complaints of a serious nature reported will be promptly dealt with and point assessments will be made according to point schedules now in use.

"Safety for every highway user can be a reality rather than a mere hope," said Registrar King, "but it means that this sincere appeal must be given serious consideration by every one. The Massachusetts Highway Safety committee is doing its part planning a Labor Day weekend safety project, which, if given the proper public support, will make our highways safer than ever before."

Once again, a state-wide central communications and report system employing telephone, teletype and radio facilities will be used. Located at Registry headquarters, 100 Nashua st., Boston, it will link all police stations and Registry branch offices on a 24-hour basis, assuring immediate knowledge of and attention to any unusual situation or development which might be observed.

The report center will also be the source of all public information data released for the purpose of keeping motorists aware of latest news and developments concerning the enforcement and control project.

"This will be one of the most significant safety efforts ever promulgated in the Bay State and any success achieved in the prevention of accidents on the highway will depend in great measure on public support. We will sponsor no spectacular gimmicks nor will we indulge in any fanfare or needless effort," stated Chairman King.

"We want only to save lives and prevent injuries to motorists and pedestrians and will seriously endeavor to accomplish this objective."
