Selectmen Get Acme Decision

Town Counsel Vincent Stulgis has reached a decision about the type of operation Acme Concrete company is conducting on Fletcher st.

But his report, mailed to the selectmen, was not available this week. Atty. Stulgis said he would not release his findings until the selectmen approved the move and two of that body were at an assessors meeting in Providence, R.I.

Mr. Stulgis met with representatives of the firm and viewed the operation on Fletcher st. earlier in the month. At stake is the firm's contention that it is operating a contractor's yard in conformity with the town by-laws. The selectmen had said, in an earlier statement, that some activities there appeared to be outside the realm of a contractor's yard.

Acme originally asked appeals board approval of an application to manufacture and pour concrete castings on the property, the site of the former Cross Coal yard. (Continued on Page 12)

Bob Twigg went Easter shopping last week and from the looks of his face, he likes what he sees in the mirror. With him is his mother, Mrs. Helen Twigg of Summer st. Lots of folks were doing the same kind of shopping this week in preparation for Sunday's Easter parade. (Look Photo)

Debate Continues Over New Vale School Costs

Builders Urge Permit Rations

Controlled building — via rationed building permits — gained adherents this week.

And Planning board Chairman Lee Noyes, whose idea it was, said he believes some type of permit rationing will eventually be approved by the selectmen.

Nine local builders endorsed the plan, emphasizing their belief that a restriction on permits should be used to curtail building rather than rezoning to larger lot sizes.

Mr. Noyes has explained that (Continued on Page Nine)

Services Tomorrow At Baptist Church

Annual Good Friday services, sponsored by the Andover Council of Churches, will be held from 12-3 tomorrow afternoon at the Baptist church.

The Council has pointed out that the series of meditations on "The Seven Last Words" will allow persons to enter and leave the three-hour service during the organ interludes.

The order of worship will be as follows:

Noon — call to worship, hymn "There Is a Green Hill Far" (Continued on Page 12)

"How can we get a new school?"

That was the question uppermost in the minds of Ballardvale residents Tuesday night when they attended an open meeting to hear a discussion of the proposed South school.

The session heard many cost figures quoted as being within reason — but no agreement was reached.

Sharp Debate

Debate grew sharp several times in the meeting, particularly between Taxpayers association President Henry Wolfson and Frank Kiernan of the architectural firm. They differed on the value of cost statistics in an engineering magazine — Wolfson citing the figures to show that the school should be built for less than the architects estimate and Kiernan stating "you should read a book called 'Lying With Statistics'".

School committee secretary William Doherty differed with Wolfson over whether John Marshall, head of the state school building assistance commission cares about the construction of a building. Wolfson said he cared only about the educational facilities in the building — not about the materials. "Oh yes he does", Doherty retorted. (Continued on Page Two)

Flye Elected BPW Head After "One Man Rule" Charges Aired

Allen Flye was elected chairman of the board of public works March 21, but not before two board members sharply criticized former Chairman Sidney P. White and the methods used in temporarily electing Mr. Flye prior to town meeting.

At that time, Mr. White stepped down as chairman for the express purpose of allowing another board member to take over for town meeting. Mr. Flye was elected at that time, served through town meeting and then suggested that the board should organize anew for the year.

Member P. Leroy Wilson accused Mr. White of "running a one-man board" and "pulling a dirty, rotten trick".

Both he and Secretary Alex Henderson argued that former procedure had been for the member with most seniority to have the chance (Continued on Page 12)

NEW SCHOOL DEBATE RAGES

Cheaper To Build

Early in the meeting, John W. Priestly Jr., a partner in the Gilbert firm, told the group that the proposed type of building could be built cheaper because it is designed in units that a smaller contractor could build, rather than the older type of building which only a few contractors could handle.

A protracted debate over who erects the steel work and the cost of that labor found Arthur Solomon of Bancroft rd. pointing out that union labor is used, whoever does the work, thus failing to reduce the cost very much.

Considerable time went into the debate over state aid - with the architects insisting that the state commission gives careful attention to construction as well as educational facilities within the structure. Mr. Wolfson told the Vale residents that a taxpayers committee had talked with Marshall and believed he is only interested in educational matters, not construction.

Residents of Ballardvale paid careful attention, Tuesday night, to everyone who spoke at the new South school. Here, most turn their heads to see as well as hear the speaker. The meeting was held in the Community room. (Leone Photo)

Another Impasse

Answering questions that had been asked of him by the school committee, Mr. Priestly told the group that corridor space in the new building would total 17.5 percent of the total interior space while a school in the town, which many persons feel is more compact, has 18 percent corridor space.

Complete disagreement resulted, however, when Mr. Wolfson read from a report of an architectural committee, appointed by the governor, which said long, narrow wings, long corridors and lots of exterior walls are not recommended because they cost more.

Kiernan said heating in the new building, despite its glass walls, would be no problem because the major problem is one of cooling after the students are in their rooms. He differed sharply with Wolfson over the report, claiming that the proposed construction in Ballardvale would not be more expensive than what might be called a more compact building.

Cost of the school, the architects said, was estimated at $17.35 per square foot - a maximum figure designed to prevent coming back to the town for more money. Kiernan said the building probably could be built for less than the total of $980,000 requested and that his firm would work hard to be sure that it was built for less.

Why, then, Mr. Wolfson wanted to know, couldn't an appropriation for less money be requested. He cited figures from the Massachusetts Northern Construction company of Lawrence - in writing - which offered to build the school for $725,000. That firm's bid also included the architects' estimate on equipment and site development, for a final total of $819,000. It also included plans and specifications for the building.

Mr. Priestly quickly told the gathering that such a method of doing business isn't proper - that construction companies don't include plans and specifications in their usual work. Several asked whether the town would then have to take whatever materials the company wished to use to meet its own price but were told that the bid specifically mentioned using the best materials.

Many cost estimates, on a per square foot basis, were thrown into the discussion, with the architects quoting a list of prices for schools they have built. Some were about $9 while others went into the high 'teens. They pointed out that the new school can be built for whatever the town provides - but room sizes would have to be cut down. The kindergarten, now at 1400 square feet, might come down to 1200 and some classrooms now at 900 might drop down too. Thus, the architects said it is possible to save $100,000 over the estimate but only at the sacrifice of space.

That prompted one woman to ask "What are we building, a school or a chicken coop?"

Less Money
The architects time and again accented their belief that the school could be built for less than $980,000 but said it had been their belief that the townspeople wished a fair estimate and would not welcome a second request for funds.

One man suggested that the way to get the school is to take whatever appropriation is granted and then ask for more later on.

The question uppermost in the residents' minds - how to get a school - went unanswered but several suggestions came out of the meeting.

It was suggested that parents in other sections of the town be warned that the Central school might well face double shifts, another new building isn't constructed to take the pressure of the up-town building.

Someone urged that complete plans and specifications be drawn. (Continued on Page 18)

SCHOOL FACTS AND

To the Editor of the Townsman: Why is it, Mr. Editor, that people who conduct their affairs with understanding and prudence suddenly go berserk when public expenditures come under consideration?

"Now under heated discussion is our proposed South school. Regarding this project we find ourselves in a dilemma. On the one hand, people are saying that if the price includes a swimming pool or an 18-hole golf course, I have no objection. And on the other I have heard someone seriously said that it would cost only a dollar or so to build a school! May I submit a few suggestions?"

"Suppose we begin by asking the construction cost of a school as proposed and for convenience, a million dollars. Suppose we take a million dollars and divide it by the number of pupils to be accommodated. The present design for a school calls for 20 classrooms, including kindergarten. The cost of construction on a per-child basis thus becomes $50, since the building is designed to accommodate 580 pupils, at an outlay per child of about $1700. The school would directly benefit at least 100 families at one time at a construction cost of some $170,000 per family.

"Were it not for that tax load borne by the town and industry, the cost of the new school would average close to $70 per man, woman and child and over $200 for every household in town.

"How about the current rate? If 10 percent of the construction cost is added to taxes, our tax rate will go to over $65. If we take 10 percent out of reserve, not think it doesn't cost an amount because it makes a difference whether we pay a dollar out of our pocket or out of our bank account, we still pay it with our own money.

What Our Readers Say—

SCHOOL FACTS AND FANCIES

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN: "Why is it, Mr. Editor, that people who conduct their personal affairs with understanding and prudence suddenly go berserk when public expenditures come up for consideration?"

"Now under heated discussion is our proposed South school. Regarding this project we hear attitudes of ridiculous extremes. On the one hand, people are asking if the price includes a swimming pool or an 18-hole golf course. And on the other I have heard it seriously said that it will add only a dollar or so to the tax rate! May I submit a few facts?"

"Suppose we begin by rounding off the construction cost of the school as proposed and call it, for convenience, a million — yes, a nice cool million dollars. How will this cost break down?"

"The present design of the school calls for 20 class rooms, including kindergarten. The cost of construction on a per-classroom basis thus becomes $50,000 and since the building is designed to accommodate 580 pupils, the capital outlay per child or per seat is about $1700. The school should directly benefit at least 300 families at one time at an average construction cost of some $3400 per family."

"Were it not for that share of the tax load borne by business and industry, the construction cost of the new school would average close to $70 for every man, woman and child in town, and over $200 for every household in town."

"How about the current tax rate? If 10 percent of the construction cost is added to current taxes, our tax rate will go up $4 to over $65. If we take another 10 percent out of reserves let us not think it doesn't cost us that amount because it makes no difference whether we pay a bill out of pocket or out of our bank balance; we still pay it with our own money."

In effect this is the equivalent of $8 on the current tax rate — unless we want to indulge in self-deception.

"As for the future tax rate, a look at the last page of what the school committee calls the "brochure" is revealing. There, all columns are totaled except the last one on the future tax rate. By my uncertain arithmetic, that adds a total of $39.77 to future tax rates. Both add up to $48. for construction alone."

"Another point that needs clarification is the matter of interest, which adds almost a quarter million dollars to the construction cost and which we also have to pay. Some people say this item is offset by the state rebate. This is true, but let us remember that the state took this very money from our pockets in the first place. In fact, the state takes from us more than it returns so there is nothing "free" about state reimbursement. Moreover, let's not forget what it costs us in expensive design in order to qualify for state aid. It has even been said that we might be better off financially to forget about state aid. In any case, state aid is no manna from heaven, while interest is a large and inescapable cost of the job."

"Why are schools so expensive these days? Among the reasons are (1) we have to make them expensive to qualify for state aid; (2) the proportion of space devoted to classrooms has nose-dived to the point where only about one half of the total area is now devoted to teaching; and (3) certain strange things are being done in the name of "sound educational practice" which, in my opinion, have little or nothing to do with education. How it was ever possible for anyone to get a good education in a building erected a generation or more ago must be one of the most baffling of mysteries. But it is a current fetish that education depends on the design of the structure and we are expected to pay for the application of this theory whether it be true or false."

"I think it is the town's serious loss that our school committee members should have chosen to get themselves so bogged down in the technical details of building construction, which they cannot fully understand, that they can no longer afford to devote much attention to the purpose for which the buildings are erected and for which the committee was primarily elected. If modern architecture is such a boon to education, why do a lot of people believe that, as the quality of architecture goes up, the quality of education is going down? Isn't it high time that we stop confusing bricks and mortar and painting and flooring and ventilating and wiring and heating and plumbing with Education? Or could it be, Mr. Editor, that we are so resigned to the proposition that we don't know how to improve education that we cover up our failure by glorifying the housing?"

"Two more points and I will sign off. Let us bear in mind that although we are building 18 regular classrooms we have a net gain of only 12 because we eliminate six. From this realistic point of view the cost per regular classroom gained goes up to $85,000 and the cost of seats gained goes up about $3000 each."

"Lastly, let us not think that a new school solves the problem of overcrowding, because it doesn't. The very existence of a new school soon recreates the very problem it was intended to solve."

A new school acts like a magnet to attract into town new families with children of school age and the only thing that slows down this tendency is the rezoning recently enacted. Every new family coming into town with two children in the public schools represents a new capital outlay of $3,400 plus an operating cost of $500 per year. Almost never does such a family's taxes so much as pay for the cost of instruction, to say nothing about all the other town services.

"Does the above mean that we should not have a new school? It is intended to mean nothing of the kind, but only to clarify some of the facts and fancies involved."

English Visitor Thanks Friends

Words of thanks from a visitor from England to many citizens of the town were contained in a letter received this week from Hilda G. A. Cummella.

She wrote The TOWNSMAN, asking that her gratitude for the hospitality shown her during a six months' visit be expressed.

"It has been even more wonderful than I dreamed possible," she wrote, "In England the hospitality of the Americans is a well-known fact but even so I feel I have had more than my share of it."

Writing from aboard the R.M.S. Newfoundland at St. John's, Newfoundland, she pointed out that members of the Margaret Slattery class at the Free church and members of the Christ church Friendly society admitted her to their circles. "It was gratifying to be one of them and not a stranger from across the ocean. I shall always remember this holiday as it has been so memorable".

During her vacation here, she visited with a cousin, Miss Grace Lake of Main st.; an aunt and cousin, Mrs. Annie and Miss Ruby Laurie of Whittier st. and several out-of-town relatives and friends.

"I had friendship extended to me", she wrote, "from numerous citizens" and may this message "expressing my thanks and appreciation, be given them"?

BUILDERS URGE PERMIT RATION

The town of Stoughton restricts its home construction permits with a maximum of 10 permits a year for each sub-division or parcel of land. No restriction is placed on individuals building their own homes, he pointed out.

So far, with the plan in operation for over a year, there has been no court test but Planning board member Robert MacMackin has said that state officials feel such a test might result in a finding against such a restriction.

Noyes said Stoughton's experience has been one of reasonable growth, with a steady rate of expansion but without any large developments such as have been proposed here.

"The major objective," he stated, "is to be able to tell, near the first of the year, about how many homes will be built and where so that the BPW and others can plan for future needs."

In Stoughton, Noyes explained, the selectmen, also acting as a board of health, applied the restrictions. They had the consent of the town's board of public works.

Local Adherents

The nine local builders who endorsed the program include James D. Hamilton, S. Abbott Batchelder, Alexander H. Henderson, Ernest N. Hall, Edwin G. Otto, Herbert F. Rines, George Cairns, Cottage Farm Inc. (Robert and Ann White) and C. Lincoln Giles.

They wrote, in part, "We hope the various boards will seriously consider this plan or one similar since we feel it would accomplish the purpose of restricting rapid growth of the town without interfering with the operations of local builders.

"We are fully aware of the town's problems in water, sewerage, drainage, schools and all other eventualities arising from too rapid growth. We feel, however, that it is not necessary to continue the present plan of increasing lot sizes each year to prevent this and wholeheartedly subscribe to the plan brought forward by Mr. Noyes."

Stricter Plan

Mr. Henderson would have even more strict controls, based on a suggestion made to the planning board. His proposal would have new homes held down to 120 permits a year. It was included in a letter to the planning board but Mr. Henderson said it is his own opinion and should not be considered to be a decision of the BPW.

His plan would work this way: no more than 20 permits a month; not more than five permits to any individual or family during the year; not more than 10 permits for buildings in any one sub-division or development in any year. He would have the number of permits vary from year to year as facilities become available.

Capital Expenditures

Mr. Noyes several times pointed to severe problems with vital facilities — water, drainage, sewerage — as the main reason for proposing the restrictions.

The plan would go hand in hand with a capital expenditures program, he said, so that the town might properly lay out the long-range plan with some hope that it could be completed without the pressures created by overwhelming growth.

That the selectmen may well take some action on the matter within a week was predicted by Mr. Noyes. He said he will be happy to discuss it with them and to help create a plan that would be suitable for Andover if the exact Stoughton system did not appear practical to them.

Realty Construction

It is expected that large developers will object to the plan for it would prevent any large-scale building projects. It was expected in some quarters that the Realty Construction company, which owns large areas off Elm st., may object. The firm had originally planned to build better than 300 homes on their property. Representatives of the firm are expected to attend Monday night's planning board session in connection with a public hearing on plans for homes in one section of their property.

Presidential Primary

The Presidential Primary will be with us soon - April 24 to be exact.

Already the nominees for Democratic and Republican town committees and for the state committees of both parties have been chosen, as have delegates to the national conventions.

Four years ago, 2453 men and women voted in the primary - only a small fraction of the registered voters. But even that total was considered high, because the usual Presidential Primary vote is numbered here in the hundreds. In the 1952 primary, the big Taft-Eisenhower contest brought out the vote.

This year, with no Republican contest, many GOP voters are likely to pass up a chance to vote. Democrats, however, have a contest in that a close watch will be kept on the preferential, write-in vote for Kefauver and Stevenson.

We certainly hope that a large number of voters will concern themselves with the Primary, for it is in that way that the voter can express his opinion on the ultimate choice at the national conventions.

Moreover, there is an opportunity for men and women of both parties to select their representation to the state committees and the town committees - both organizations that play an important part in the town's political life.

The Primary should not be ignored. Please keep that date - April 24 - in mind as the day when all of us have a chance to once again exercise our greatest franchise.

B.P.W. Deserves Praise

The board of public works deserves a word of praise for its work in clearing the streets after three successive blizzards.

The men, though exhausted by terrifically long hours, did a good job on the storms and we should all be grateful to them for staying with the task until the roads were broken open.

As always when heavy snow comes, there have been a few complaints but all in all we feel that a fine job was done under adverse conditions.

BPW Employees Get Early Raise

BPW employees received their $3 pay increase last week, two weeks ahead of other town employees.

The board had originally voted to make the raise effective March 19 and refused to reconsider the request of Selectman Stafford A. Lindsay that the date be moved ahead to April 1 in conformity with other departments.

BPW Member Leroy Wilson is quoted as telling the other four members: "We didn't ask them what they were going to do. It's none of our business what they do and it's none of their business what we do. It's only the selectmen who're squawking, anyhow".

Chairman Allen Flye reminded the board that a strong argument for town manager has been a lack of cooperation and coordination between boards but no action was taken to change the date to April 1.

Member David Thompson made it clear that the board would have been glad to cooperate with the other departments if the information had been available in time - but he did not desire reconsideration now that the date for the raise had been set. Member Francis Reilly concurred, pointing out that the BPW set the date of March 19.

Secretary Alex Henderson said cooperation would be desirable but at the same time he wanted to be "fair" to the men in the department. He suggested a $6 Christmas bonus if the date was changed to April 1, thus assuring the men that they would receive their money.

Garden Club Will Meet Next Tuesday

The Andover Garden club will hold its first meeting of the spring season on the afternoon of Tuesday, April 3, at Peabody house. Coffee will be served at 1:30, to be followed by the meeting at 2.

"Spring Flower Arrangements", to be presented by Mrs. Norman M. Mitchell, is the program. Mrs. Mitchell, a resident of Maine, is well known in New England and is considered an expert in her field.

Assisting Mrs. Michael S. O'Brien, chairman of the hospitality committee, will be the following members: Mrs. John K. Colby, Miss Helen Tewksbury, Mrs. Harold W. Leitch, Mrs. Elbert C. Weaver, Mrs. Ralph B. Wilkinson, Mrs. George H. Jaspert, Mrs. I. Malcolm Humphrey, Mrs. W. Shirley Barnard, Mrs. George West-haver, Mrs. Joseph W. Byrne and Mrs. Foster C. Barnard.

The regular meeting of Pomona Grange was held in the Grange building yesterday. Delegates were present from all Granges in Essex county district. Mrs. Frank Foster, president, was one of the local committee which served a fine noon-time meal to the delegates.

Candidates for the Punchard baseball team were called out Tuesday afternoon by Capt. O'Connell.

Many local dogs were awarded prizes in the Kennel Club show in Haverhill last weekend.

The first dandelion of the season was picked last Wednesday by our fellow townsman, Peter D. Smith.

25 Years Ago - March 1931

The badly-decomposed body of a new-born baby boy was found in a wooded lane in Ballardvale near the No. Wilmington line Tuesday afternoon. A Punchard junior found the body when he was taking a short cut home. Police said the baby's skull was crushed and that doctors estimated it had been in the woods for about a month.

The number of books issued during the month from the library was 5709.

The music committee of Andover Post 8 met Tuesday night in Legion headquarters and discussed plans for organizing a band.

The annual banquet of the Thimble club was held in the assembly hall of the Square and Compass club Monday evening. Some 56 persons attended the banquet and entertainment.

A state school for the development of retarded children will be built in Ballardvale and West Andover on a tract of land that includes some 1000 acres. First payments on the land were made Tuesday in the state house. The building will come under the supervision of the department of mental diseases. Actual construction, it is reported, will not start for a year while engineers and architects complete the plans for a number of small buildings.

The annual Easter Egg hunt will be held Saturday if weather permits or on Monday afternoon at 4 if inclement weather forces the postponement. Hundreds of eggs, baskets and other Easter delights will be hidden for the youngsters.

The Andover Choral society will sing "Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise'" Sunday afternoon at 4 in the Free church under the direction of J. Everett Collins.

10 Years Ago - March 1946

Sidney White was reelected chairman of the board of public works at that body's organizational meeting Monday night. Sam Caldwell, newly-elected member, was named secretary.

The next regular meeting of the AMVETS will be April 2 in town hall. Although the post now has 32 members, its charter is remaining open until it reaches 43 - the number of the post itself. Joseph Serio is commander.

Seven students will take part in the Barnard essay competition, following announcement in assembly this week. Judging will take place April 12.

Officers of the County Pomona Grange were entertained Tuesday night at Grange hall by members of the local Grange.

The annual visitors' night of the Shawsheen Village Woman's club will be held April 1 at 8 in the auditorium. J. Anton de Haas, professor of international relations at the Harvard graduate school of business administration, will speak to the group.

Members of the Service club heard a nationally-known educator call for civilian control of the atom bomb at the meeting this week. Dr. Homer L. Dodge, president of Norwich university, said "the wisdom of our statement has not kept up with the knowledge of our scientists".

The North District Improvement association met Thursday night in the North school and enjoyed a "pot luck" supper.

Jack Driscoll, building inspector for the past few years, has indicated that he will resign the post. It has paid $500 a year. No appointment has been made yet, however.

FLYE ELECTED AFTER CHARGES

to be chairman and Mr. Henderson cited the selectmen as an example of a board using the seniority system.

Mr. Wilson referred to "a dirty trick" in terms of the previous election of Mr. Flye but said he wasn't criticizing Flye, rather that "the whole thing I didn't like was the way the trick was pulled this year . . . no reflection on you, Allen, but it was a rotten, dirty trick . . . he just wanted to do something before he got off and he did".

Mr. Henderson told the board the matter left a bad taste in his mouth because, whether it was rigged or not, it looked that way. He further said he had been told what was going to happen and it did.

During the discussion, Mr. Thompson nominated Mr. Flye and Mr. Henderson nominated Wilson, who refused due to pressure of business. Wilson then nominated Henderson. Neither nomination was seconded for some time, until finally Member Francis Reilly said he believed Flye would make a good chairman and seconded the motion for his election. When Mr. Thompson moved the nominations be closed, it was pointed out that the Henderson nomination hadn't been seconded so Mr. Thompson seconded it. Flye was elected and then came the problem of electing a secretary.

Mr. Henderson finally agreed to take the job, which he resigned some weeks ago when Mr. Flye was first elected, on condition that votes be taken in executive session rather than when the people are in and embarrassment might result from making a decision in front of them. He also took issue with a practice of not reading the minutes of the meetings, which he said were six months behind. A special meeting was set for this week to go over the reports.

Mr. Henderson made it clear that he was not fooling about having decisions made in executive session and said he would resign if it is not followed. The problem of a reserved parking space for Mr. Henderson was also brought up but no conclusion was reached. He has said several times that a space should be reserved so that he can go into the town hall on town business without getting a ticket for parking.

The petition was turned down by the board. It was some time afterwards that the selectmen told the town counsel to inform the firm that it appeared to be operating in violation of permitted use of the property and that the operations must stop. It had been anticipated that the selectmen would view the premises with representatives of the firm and the town counsel but it was left to Mr. Stulgis to watch the activities there and report his decision.

Poor's Carriage Shop One Of Thriving Frye Village Firms

Original Shops of the Poor's, Frye Village. Established 1833

By Kay Noyes

Today, with a new generation discussing locations for industrial sites, few realize that Frye village, or Shawsheen, was in the 1800's a thriving manufacturing center. The village boasted a saw mill, flax mill, blacksmith shop, store, slaughter house, ink shop and carriage shop all within a stone's throw of one another and blending harmoniously into the business scene.

Village Smithy

One of the most enterprising of the lot was the carriage shop run by the Poor family and first established in 1833 by William Poor, who started with a small blacksmith shop in the village square. The first steel-backed scythe was hand-forged by this enterprising gentleman in his little blacksmith shop and from the early stages of his business ventures his wagon business developed into a very prosperous livelihood which soon required the addition of several more substantial buildings. In 1895, William Poor retired from active participation in the business he had founded 63 years before.

Upon his retirement, this thriving business was managed by his son, Joseph, who continued on in his father's footsteps forging fine iron items and making the celebrated meat carts whose construction was given such loving care by the Poor family. In the ensuing years, ill health compelled Joseph to dispose of the wagon business and the original shops in Frye village then became the property of Tuttle and Morrison, who carried on in this location for several years before moving to more spacious quarters on Park st.

The large carriage house on the right is still standing but was moved from its original location at the junction of Main and Poor streets by William Wood when in the process of developing this model village he purchased the tract of land and relocated the building on his personal property.

Meeting Place

Although the carriage shop was not a show place of architectural beauty, it played a stellar role in the social and political activities of our town for here, "Cracker barrel and pot-bellied stove" debates were held by the male citizenry of Frye village and it was here that another link in the underground railroad was forged.

Helped Slaves

After leaving the Jenkins farm the wayfarers were assisted in their flight by the efforts of the Poor family along with other well-known business leaders of the village. One of the more important figures in the escape chain was Joseph Poor whose evenings were frequently interrupted by mysterious late callers. Under the cover of darkness Mr. Poor would harness his mare, Nellie, to a covered wagon in which at various intervals he had transported several hundred of these unfortunate people on their north-bound journey to freedom.

Henry Box Brown

An ingenious slave of that time was Henry Box Brown who offered a friend in Virginia $166 to aid him in his escape. The friend, probably influenced by the goodly sum, agreed and nailed Brown in a coffin-like crate and shipped him all the way from Virginia to Philadelphia. After his freedom flight to northern New England was accomplished and the notoriety of this escapade greatly publicized, it was generally believed that this enterprising man was given sanctuary and transported to his destination in Salem by the ardent abolitionists in the carriage business.

Cancer Fund Drive Has Begun Here

The 1956 Cancer fund drive is underway here.

Chairman Ernest S. Young announced this week that special gifts and industrial solicitations are being conducted now, with a house-to-house canvass planned for April 24.

The nation-wide fund drive seeks funds to support research projects in an effort to find a cure for the malignant disease; to assist patients financially when they need hospital or out-patient care and to further educate the public in the symptoms of cancer in an effort to more quickly diagnose cancer so that treatments may be started. Mr. Young pointed out that national statistics indicate one patient is cured of each four who have cancer, while a second patient might have been cured had a prompt diagnosis been made.

Co-chairmen of the house-to-house drive are Mrs. Frederick Worthen, 18 Stinson rd. and Mrs. Gerry Lebach, 10 George st.

Special gifts chairman is Adair Miller, 234 So. Main st., while David L. Markert, 144 Chestnut st., is serving as business and industrial chairman. Mrs. Robert E. Marland is secretary.

Ten others are working on special gift solicitations, according to Chairman Miller. They include Mrs. William Bakrow, Mrs. Stephen F. Brennan Jr., Lyman G. Ballard, David L. Darling, Dr. Douglas M. Dunbar, Mrs. Ralph H. Kimball, Mrs. Harold H. Short, Mrs. David M. Thompson, Mrs. Frederick F. Stott and William V. N. Washburn.

He also suggested that the school committee might well offer town meeting its choice of buildings of different materials - but the same plan. He said that would allow the voters to make up their minds on what was wanted in the way of schools - one with poorer materials and high maintenance costs, better materials with maintenance or the best materials and no maintenance problems.
