House Fire Proved Dangerous For Deputy

Deputy Fire Chief John Cole, responding to an alarm Friday, June 20, at the home of George Lybrand, 52 Shawsheen rd., narrowly escaped death when he entered a room from which all the oxygen had been burned. Taken to the Lawrence General Hospital in the Fire Department ambulance, Cole was discharged after treatment. Call firefighter Forrest Noyes was also treated by his own physician for a puncture wound in the arm and a bruised elbow. The alarm was sounded at 6:28 p.m., when Mrs. Lybrand saw the flames and smoke coming from the roof of her home. Cole, wearing a

Vote Reversed, Will Use Buses

The town will provide kindergarten transportation, to and from school, for all public schools and St. Augustine's parochial school. The School Committee reversed an earlier decision which had come under fire from parents in the South School district. In that decision, the Board had decided to provide transportation one-way - to school in the morning for the first session and home from school in the afternoon. George Schmidt and a delegation of parents appeared at the School Committee meeting Tuesday night and informed the Board the State Department of Education has ruled that transportation must be provided. He said the State Department had requested him to return with a formal appeal if the School Committee did not decide to

Seeks Transfer From Reserves

The Board of Public Works has asked for an emergency transfer of about $15,000 from the Finance Committee. The money will cover extra expenses for Shawsheen rd. Chapter 90 reconstruction, water department funds spent on lowering the water main along that road, plus water department expenditures for water main installations in connection with Route 28 construction. Members of the Finance Committee were told there is no "emergency" in the sense that the money is needed in a matter of days. But the funds will be needed before the end of the year they stated. Shawsheen rd. will take the bulk of the transfer - about $10,000. This will allow the town to go forward with extras not included in the state's plans. It was explained that the town must pay for all work, then receives reimbursement from the state for its half and the county's quarter.

The town's share of the proposed urban renewal project will be $755,460, according to rough preliminary estimates from Candeb and Fleissig, consulting planners hired by the Merrimack Valley National Bank to draw up an application to the federal government. The tentative estimates, which may be substantially reduced at a later date, place an over-all cost of $2,266,370 on the project. The government pays two-thirds of this, or $1,510,910. The firm is now drawing up the formal application, including an outline of the area to be considered, properties involved and their estimated fair market value and other data required by the government. This document, it is understood, requires the approval of the Housing Authority and Selectmen before it can be filed with federal authorities. Once the plan, as outlined in the application, is approved, sufficient funds to complete it are earmarked and set aside. At this stage, an allocation is made for detailed planning, with the government footing the bill. No town funds are involved in this planning stage, members of the local Renewal Committee have been told. The town gets into the act when the detailed plans are completed and have received federal approval. Then, the town meeting must take action to appropriate its share of the estimated cost and agree to follow through with the project to its completion. If this decision is not made, the town will not be required to pay any money for the plans — but if the decision is to go ahead, then the cost of the plans is added to other project costs.

Break Down of Costs

The detailed financial estimate, prepared by the consultants, shows a gross project cost of $2,322,370.

This is reduced by the money received from re-sale of property within the area — $556,000. This figure is further broken down into the re-sale of 10 acres for commercial use, $400,000 and 13 acres for residential, industrial and park use, $156,000.

The plan in its preliminary stage calls for acquiring 91 pieces of property — costing $1,992,700. Added to this must be the $244,670 at which the town hall and fire station are valued.

Thus the total cost of acquiring land is $2,237,370.

Under site preparation, the plan lists demolition of 100 structures, $35,000; streets, utilities, etc., $250,000. The total site development cost, then, is listed at $285,000.

Project planning and administration of project development will cost an estimated $300,000.

It has been explained, of course, that the town's share of the net project cost — $755,460 — would actually be reduced by the amount of money paid to the town for its property and buildings. Any utilities installed by the town within the project area would also be listed as credit items, further reducing the town's cash output.

Consultant's Opinion

A decision to file the application, the consultants have stated, must be made by the Board of Selectmen. In a letter to the local committee, Dean Boorman of the firm states:

"I checked further with Moe Fleissig as to whether town meeting approval is required for submission of the survey and planning application. He says that it definitely is not. Section 264 of the Massachusetts Housing Authority Laws states that the Board of Selectmen are 'designated as the governing body of the . . . town for such approval of a project as may be required by federal legislation'."

Renewal Area

The entire renewal area was outlined late in May, following a meeting between Mr. Boorman and the Urban Renewal Committee.

It was bounded this way: Starting at the corner of Whittier and Summer sts., along Whittier to Chestnut st. and all the way to Central st., crossing Main st.; then along Central, to School, down School st. to Ridge st., across railroad tracks to include Smith and Dove property; then back across tracks at Buxton ct., including that way and Temple pl., and to Main st.; then up Main to Elm sq., along Elm st., to Summer, then along Summer st., to Whittier.

It was explained at the time that not every structure in the area would be razed. Some would not be touched at all, while others might become eligible for renovations to bring them up to the standard for their immediate neighborhood.

The new assessed value of every parcel in the area was obtained and the fair market value figured. In preparing the cost estimate, the parcels of property to be obtained for the actual project were given their fair market value, using the assessed value as a base from which to work.

Long Range Job

It has been assumed that one year would be needed to make detailed plans, once federal approval is obtained. This step itself may take several months following formal filing of the document. The Housing Authority, under the law, has primary responsibility for managing the urban renewal project. It may, as has been done here, appoint a citizens' committee to give assistance and advice.

Saltonstall's Letter

Meanwhile, Senator Leverett Saltonstall has written to the Board of Selectmen calling its attention to the availability of federal funds under urban renewal legislation. His letter reads:

"As you may know, I have in recent weeks been investigating all of the possibilities for Federal assistance in our Massachusetts communities, particularly those which have adverse employment conditions at the present time. I, of course, want to be sure that all of our communities have a fair share of the several Federal programs designed for community assistance. I am therefore writing to you to call to your attention what I consider to be a very excellent program in which I am sure you have considerable interest.

"A few weeks ago a meeting was held here with top officials in the Urban Renewal Administration. I acquainted myself with the status of various urban renewal projects in Massachusetts and discussed additional projects which might be undertaken which would inure to the benefit of our Massachusetts communities. Many cities have undertaken very energetic projects and a great deal has been accomplished in these communities. Other communities have not, however, taken full advantage of the program available to urban renewal. It is apparent in communities where projects have been started that a substantial economic gain can be realized. For example, a well planned project normally results in an increase in tax rolls, is helpful in attracting new industry, and provides more attractive and comfortable living quarters for the town's residents.

"There has been much discussion in Congress on steps which can be taken to aid local economic conditions in many communities. Here is one program in existence and available for use by all of our communities. I am therefore enclosing material describing the urban renewal program for whatever interest it may be for you. I certainly will be glad to assist in any way I can with projects which you may be interested in undertaking."

Vacation Reading

All Andover readers are reminded of the summer loan allowed those who wish to take a number of books at a time and to return them in the middle of September. Any book which has been in the library for a year may be borrowed, unless there is a special interest or reserve list for it. The number is not limited for adults; boys and girls may take six at a time, either for the usual two week loan or for the summer period. If adults accompany a child and give permission, the unlimited rule for children's books is the same as that for adults.

Waits Hearing On Check Charge

One man is in jail, awaiting a July 1 court hearing, and a second man is being sought, as a result of police investigation of 13 checks allegedly cashed late last week.

Gary James Thomas, 22, 22 St. Botolph st., Boston, pleaded not guilty in Lawrence District Court last Monday to charges of forgery, uttering and larceny by false pretense by check in the amount of $75. Special Justice William H. Daly continued the case to July 1 at the request of Chief David Nicoll and set bail at $3,000. Thomas was committed to jail in lieu of bail.

Police Sgt. William R. Hickey said an accomplice is being sought. In Court Monday, Chief Nicoll said Thomas is involved in passing about 13 checks. He asked a continuance, explaining that Haverhill, No. Andover and Methuen police, along with the Andover department, wish to investigate further.

Sgt. James Lynch and Officer William Maddox arrested Thomas in Haverhill last Saturday night. Sgt. Hickey explained that the men allegedly posed as investigators for a credit bureau, calling on one or more residents. After compiling a list of answers to questions, Hickey said the resident was requested to sign the list. This signature was then traced, Hickey continued, onto blank checks at the local banks. The resident already had supplied the information as to which bank handled the account and other pertinent data.

parents and friends who are present at these exercises - the first to be held in the new Andover High School.

It is most natural that those who, by their help and interest, have contributed to our experiences of the past three years, should be here to witness the symbolic close of this part of our lives.

Both the knowledge we have gained and the impressions that we have absorbed during this time will have great influence on us in the years ahead; therefore, these exercises are not only the culmination of the achievements of the graduates' progress through high school but are a representation of the achievements of those who have contributed to our practical education and to our personal development.

DEFINING AN IDEAL CULTURE

When we consider the culture of today, it is interesting to attempt to define what would be the ideal civilization. A famous poet once wrote that "a man's reach must exceed his grasp." By examining the characteristics of an ideal culture, we may better realize the virtues and attempt to eradicate the faults of our own.

An ideal culture is that which develops man to his most nearly perfect state. It is not compatible with complacency or lack of energy, for it seeks to utilize man's physical and mental powers to the utmost degree in promoting the well-being of the race.

In an ideal culture, man would emphasize his human rather than his animal characteristics. Thus, he would concern himself especially with the improvement of the intellectual abilities that are peculiar to humanity; and he would accept great wealth as logically inconsequential in the pursuit of this interest.

This vision of culture is highly idealistic; but its goal, the improvement of the valuable resources of our minds and bodies, is actually a practical one.

The people in an ideal civilization must obviously possess a very advanced set of values. Our American economy, because of its materialism, is sometimes difficult to reconcile with a rational sense of values. The urge to consume merely to meet the needs of production is placing an unhealthy emphasis on this consumption, and our present culture is about to be absorbed in ultra-luxurious living. Struggle for material improvement and social snobbery has retarded appreciation of the arts. The principal reason for a young man's seeking a fine education is too often the attainment of a lucrative position without sufficient regard for other and more important considerations.

The achievement of a fine culture is largely dependent upon our ability to see the benefits of it, and our willingness to put effort into action for it. It is extremely difficult, however, for our generation to summon the strength of character and will necessary to develop the personal values that will bring about this realization. We are hampered by the confusion of the increasingly numerous factors that influence our lives; and, because of this, we must feel a growing need to establish what one author calls "coherent philosophies of life, philosophies which do not begin and end with self-indulgence."

Valedictory

By Ruth Slade
We bid farewell today, not only to our school and to one another, but also to our childhood and adolescent years. In the course of three years, we have grown more than we can possibly realize; we have grown from children to young adults. As we receive our diplomas, our minds turn, undoubtedly, to what the future offers us. I could say that we may look forward to a bright future - glittering and untarnished; but, if I did, I should be painting a false picture. I am not being pessimistic, but rather, realistic. No future is without hardship or sadness - life virtually guarantees that to us; but life also offers much beauty and happiness. The complexity of life, as it relates to our future, is difficult to fathom. We live in a world of unrest. Our destiny is largely dependent on the course of world events. We cannot escape this, but we must not forget that we are individuals - of infinite value. In our homes and in our communities, we, personally, have the opportunity to mold much of what lies ahead of us.

In only a few years, we shall reach full adulthood and shall encounter the many responsibilities that accompany it. As we prepare to meet this challenge, let us never forget that each one of us has some control over his future; and that each one of us will have an increasingly important role in shaping the world community.

As the time comes to bid farewell to Andover High School, we appreciate, more than ever, the part it has played in our lives. Our school years together have provided, for our own development, a kind of "world in miniature" where we have had to learn that there is, for each of us, a time to lead and a time to follow; a time to work and a time to play; but, at all times, to contribute our fair share in the interest of our school community. In the larger community of the world ahead of us, our experiences here will be put to the test of their true worth. We believe that they will not be found wanting.

"CULTURAL REAWAKENING: THE RISE OF THE INDIVIDUAL"

Today, we are in great need of a "reawakening" — a modern day Renaissance. When there is less world hatred, there will undoubtedly be a universal increase in man's desire to perpetuate the abundances of life which lie beyond the bare essentials of existence. Until that time, only the smaller groups can hope to achieve some degree of this.

We must realize, however, that "culture" as a term does not apply to a small, erudite group of people who can afford formal education. A formal education is a very valuable tool, but it is only a tool. Its value depends upon its use. If used wisely, it offers intellectual stimulation that will provide great personal satisfaction of a lasting nature.

Formal education is not an absolute necessity. We all know of learned men and women who have had little or no formal education. These people, motivated by an intense desire to learn, have acquired education through perseverance. Their appreciation of learning is often greater than that of other people, for they better understand the difficulties of self-education.

We need vigorous, vital people who have a keen interest in life — people who will take advantage of the many cultural opportunities that are already present, and who will find ways to develop new opportunities — people who regard industry and hard work with admiration rather than scorn — people who will look beyond their own personal comforts. It is important to remember that, if we allow people to deteriorate physically as well as mentally, we are wasting our most valuable resource.

In our reawakening, the individual will rise in importance; he will be, at once, the core and the symbol of the civilization we strive to maintain and refine. Following the accepted patterns presents fewer problems than doing one's own thinking, but culture is strongly influenced by the person who thinks as an individual — the person who is frequently a non-conformist. This prototype will, paradoxically, not represent any one group of people, but rather, all groups — from the skilled laborers and craftsmen who pride themselves in their work to the conscientious leaders in business, education, and government.

We cannot form any guaranteed plan for the revitalization of our culture; we can only offer an approach to it. The true test of our civilization will be its endurance.

Honor Essay

THE GROWTH AND REFINEMENT OF CULTURE
By Priscilla Terrio

No civilization has ever reached the summit of human advancement. One, therefore, cannot examine a goal which has never been attained, but there still remains the important opportunity to profit from the mistakes of the past.

The Graeco-Roman civilization represented one of the more advanced states of human achievement. Individualism was perhaps its greatest incentive to progress. Under this spur were produced fine works of art, music, and literature. Architects, engineers, doctors, lawyers, philosophers, mathematicians, and scientists — all worked toward the perfection of their culture. Even the great accomplishments of that notable era, however, could not protect its society from vulnerability to decay. This danger has continued into the present century.

There is always the minute imperfection, which, like a rent garment, weakens the structure and brings about a slow destruction. Many times the underlying causes are quite obscure. They usually lie within the individual citizen — in his attitudes and his sense of values. Once a populace becomes selfish in a search for wealth and personal comfort, or once it becomes complacent, it develops that imperfection, that decline in ethics and morality, which is so self-destructive.

Since the depression of the nineteen thirties, we have worked together in an attempt to revitalize our economy. We have gone beyond this and accepted world leadership as a nation. We strive toward education for all and bring a high standard of living to more individuals than does any other country. Why is it, then, that the people of this country do not appreciate the efforts of the artist or scholar. It seems that in place of the fine arts (music, painting, sculpture, drama) low-grade movies, sensational novels, and mediocre television programs have been substituted to entertain people. Empty are the art galleries and the recital halls.

At present, we are caught in the lure and mysteries of a new age — the Atomic Age. We are committing ourselves to a race to produce men and materials that can outshine our rivals, but the spirit seems more one of inimitable rivalry. In this hectic, breath-taking race are we perhaps blinding ourselves to the great dangers hovering over our own civilization? Has not the emphasis shifted from advancement in fields of growth and refinement to that of destruction? Do we have the right attitude or has our sense of values become distorted? Is our culture declining? If so, the time to halt the regression is at hand. The responsibility lies within the individual citizen.

OUR CULTURAL DECLINE: REAL OR IMAGINARY
By Judith White

The development and advancement of human civilization to the highest attainable degree should result in the uniting of mankind for the common benefit of all. This premise, however, presents a disturbing corollary in the question: What will be the outcome of a deterioration of our cultural values?

First of all, man will begin to have a distorted sense of values. He will have neither an appreciation nor an understanding of the fine arts or of the more refined types of entertainment. Good reading, good music, stimulating and intelligent discussion, and some other type of cultivated entertainment are beneficial because they serve to improve the whole being and to make the mind more alert. Today, it is so much easier to watch television without having to exert any mental ability than it is to read and completely understand what the author is trying to express, that people have almost forgotten what it means to think for themselves. Today, one is in the minority instead of the majority if he does have that form of appreciation or understanding.

We may even consider the average child of today, and notice the effect which a cultural decline has on him. Again, they are in the minority who exert themselves either physically or mentally. Although our library, and, I am sure, many others throughout the country have established excellent facilities for children, how many take advantage of their opportunities in reading? It is true that the modern, well-established library attracts many children in the so-called "audio-visual" areas — sound and projection

Society

As we receive our diploma minds turn, undoubtedly, to the future offers us. We would say that we may look to a bright future — glittering and untarnished; but, if I did, I would be painting a false picture not being pessimistic, but realistic. No future is guaranteed or sadness — life also offers much beauty and happiness. The complexity of it relates to our future, is hard to fathom. We live in a time of unrest. Our destiny is dependent on the course of events. We cannot escape it. We must not forget that individuals — of infinite numbers in our homes and in our cities, we, personally, have the opportunity to mold much of the future ahead of us.

*NINETY PERCENT

The poised, smartly-dressed man at the left of course. You can tell at a glance... and that's why the Ninety-Percent Test is so important. People judge you by what they see (sometimes that's all they have to go on) and ninety percent of what they see of you is what you wear. The fresh finish of drycleaned clothes is more than an extra touch... like a flower in the buttonhole. It's an integral part of good grooming. The state of your clothes tells volumes about the kind of person you are. In fact, your clothes never stop talking about you. You buy your clothes to make a good impression. As you wear them, have them drycleaned often. A smart man takes care to keep that impression fresh.

techniques of some variety. These surely have a place and perform a definite service; they are, however, intended primarily to supplement reading — not to replace it.

Contrary to the basic ideals of culture which oppose the overdevelopment and special emphasis of any one thing at any one time, the world of today is accustoming itself to concentration and specialization, completely eliminating from consideration the broader design for living embodied in the liberal tradition. The current preoccupation with interplanetary communication and fortification is being overstressed to a point which poses a threat to the development of other phases of learning. A tremendous reserve of power, for destruction alone, is the chief result thus far.

The people of today are becoming more and more materialistic — considering with a selfish attitude only the individual benefits that they may receive from a cultural environment, instead of the manner in which the world as a whole can advance. What we find hard to comprehend is that deterioration is viewed in the light of history, and that our civilization is not the ultimate in perfection. If our cultural values are going to continue to become confused and weakened, we must be able to envision the reoccurrence of a Dark Age, with the realization that this period will once again be followed by a Renaissance.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Cooperation, Not Control

That easily-uttered, but highly meaningful word, "Control", is back in the news again.

And once more, it is used in connection with growth in our community. We've heard it used from time to time in connection with this problem, and on each occasion we have felt that it implied the imposition of someone's personal beliefs about the future of the community on other citizens, who had less opportunity to air their convictions. We have believed that the word "control" implied dictation, the use of official authority to force the growth pattern into a shape desired by a few; so that the town in future years would be pleasing to those few, whether or not the majority desired it that way.

The last time we heard this word, at town meeting, it was being used in relation to up-grading residential zones. The idea was to control growth through zoning. Town meeting did not accept the arguments. The zoning was not adopted.

Now we face the prospect of 3-500 houses in West Andover. Some of them will be built on land that was not zoned at town meeting. Others will be constructed in areas that are now within the boundaries of the "C" zone — acre lots. This substantial section was once to be zoned into two-acre lots, but the proposal was withdrawn from consideration at a special town meeting.

It is apparent to us that developers are now proposing to do exactly the things that were ascribed to them at town meeting. Townspeople did not vote to restrict their activities, by re-zoning.

Thus it would seem that the town boards now do not have popular backing in any effort to control and shape the growth. Town meeting implied this, by refusing to adopt restrictive zoning by-laws.

Something can, however, be done.

Cooperative planning, among developers and town officials, can go far towards helping the community solve its problems in this field. Not control — but friendly cooperation — is the answer.

This implies, naturally, that both the town boards and the developers will be willing to give and take, as they arrive at a satisfactory decision on how fast the town can absorb new homes. While the developer should not insist that he will build as fast as he wishes, when he wishes; so too should the town officials be reasonable in their demands on the builder.

While upholding rules and regulations, the boards should not use them as weapons to prevent building, for the sake of preventing it. Every effort should be made to agree on a rate of growth, obtaining a voluntary and friendly agreement from the builder that he will respect the decision.

This is the method we see as being reasonable. Any effort to "control", to dictate, should be abandoned.

Town Needs An Inspector

What this community apparently needs is a full-time inspector — an agent of all boards, who will constantly check to see that decisions of the various boards are followed to the letter.

There have been numerous instances when a board has reached a decision, only to find, later, that the persons involved have not complied fully with the board's wishes.

This is not to say that the three agents of the town — building, plumbing and electrical inspectors — are not doing their jobs. Theirs are part-time efforts, by direction of the town itself which appropriates part-time salaries.

It appears that we need a full-time man, in addition to these.

In our opinion, such a man would, for example, inspect all sub-divisions as they are being constructed. A road shown as 40 feet wide on the plan would not be installed 38 feet wide, if someone is watching. A water main shown on a plan as 500 feet long would not, years later, be found to extent only 400 feet.

Such activities by a town inspector would cut down to a minimum the problems that are faced in later years when it is found that developers and others have not done quite what they said they would do, when starting out on the job.

May Change Districts

Nearly everyone concedes that this will be a Democratic year.

In fact many observers feel that the Republicans are already, on the national scene, accepting defeat as a certainty.

Not so here in Massachusetts. A vigorous state ticket was nominated at the Republican convention and it would appear certain that each member of it will wage a strong fight.

Quite apart from the state-wide contests, however, is the problem of the local office holder. The state already has a Democratic House. The Senate is narrowly Republican — a condition that could all too easily be reversed if the tide towards the Democrats is too strong in November.

If — and this is not unlikely — the Democrats capture the governorship and both branches of the Legislature, Andover and other Republican communities may be legislated right out of existence as far as representation is concerned. Plans are already well advanced, among Democrats, for the re-districting for legislative seats. It has been stated that there will be such a vast change that only a handful of the districts will remain Republican. Present districts where Republicans are elected will be altered to make this virtually impossible. This could happen to Andover, which suddenly might find itself in a single district with a Lawrence ward. It is altogether possible that the town could lose its representation.

Thus every thinking voter should consider whether the election of an all-Democratic Legislature, plus the governorship, would be of real benefit. For such a re-districting appears, to us, to be a bad thing.

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago — June, 1908

A meeting of the Fourth of July Committee was held Monday evening and there was a large turnout. Although it was reported that $200 has been raised, it is felt that twice this amount is needed for a first rate celebration.

On July 8 the Hargreaves Circus will be in town. It played here two years ago and gave good satisfaction.

There will be an open air service at the home of H. Sumner Wright on Burnham rd., under the auspices of the Second Adventist Church, Sunday afternoon.

The West Parish Congregation will be addressed Sunday morning by the Rev. Henry M. Penniman, professor in Beria College, Kentucky.

Tomorrow afternoon the Andover Cricket Club will play the Billerica team at that town.

John E. Smith and Andrew M. Ternan are on a business trip in Rhode Island for the Public Works Department.

25 Years Ago — June, 1933

Another landmark is to be torn down, starting next week, when the old building, familiarly known as the Valpey Block, will be razed to make way for a new brick structure.

A huge bonfire, two band concerts, a horribles parade, three hours of sports and races for the youngsters are on the bill of fare for Fourth of July.

Although Pomp's Pond officially opened Sunday, it had been a place of considerable attraction for the town's young people for a week before the official opening. Life saving classes and swimming instruction will be given there during the summer.

The Vacation Church School will open July 5, with its sponsors anticipating another fine year.

10 Years Ago — June, 1948

Agitation for a town parking lot grows greater every day, as the town prepares to put in meters. Both town officials and businessmen are concerned.

Frederick Allis Jr. is writing his impressions of the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia for the Townsman. The first article started this week.

Dr. Claude M. Fuess officially ends his tenure at Phillips Academy June 30. Col. John M. Kemper will assume duties as the 11th headmaster on July 1.

Sorority Planned Fall Activities

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will hold a progressive barbeque for members and their husbands, as the closing event for the year.

At a recent meeting, plans were also made for some of the fall activities, including a luncheon and fashion show Sept. 20 at the West Parish Church. The group will again sponsor the Heart Dance next February, for the benefit of the heart fund and is also thinking about again sponsoring the baby-sitter course at the Junior High School.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Marjerson. Concluding the evening, Harriett Eastman, Mary Clukey, Mary Lee Prochazka and Gloria Lyons presented a Gay Nineties review, in appropriate costume. They also impersonated some current rock and roll personalities.

AT SEMINAR

Two Andover residents attended an advanced-underwriting seminar at the Thousand Island Club in Alexandria Bay, New York from June 8-12.

They were J. Donovan Emery, 371 No. Main st. and Salvatore S. Cataudella, 40 York st.

HOUSE FIRE WAS DANGEROUS

protective mask against smoke and gases, entered an attic room where the fire apparently had been smoldering for some two hours. Other firefighters said he had taken only a few steps into the room, towards a window, when he turned and tried to retrace his steps. He collapsed, they said, at the threshold and fell down a flight of stairs. Firefighters pulled him from the house. Doctors later said the almost complete lack of oxygen in the room caused the deputy to collapse and could have been almost immediately fatal had he fallen inside the room.

The fire apparently started in the attic room, where Mrs. Lybrand had gone about 4:30. She left an extension light burning on a couch, officials stated, when leaving the room. On smelling smoke nearly two hours later, she was forced to run to a neighbor's home to call the Fire Department. Relief was sounded at 8:45 p.m. Heavy damage resulted, fire officials stated.

SEEKS TRANSFER FROM RESERVE

But this money is returned to free cash, not the BPW budget.

After $3,000 has been spent from the Chapter 90 fund, for lowering the water main along Shawsheen rd. before reconstruction. This is not reimbursable, the Board has learned, and must be paid for from the department budget.

Other water department expenditures, unexpected and not included in the budget, will include nearly $1,000 spent supervising and controlling a water main installation at Route 28 in West Andover; plus an estimated $4100 for a water main at Osgood st., underneath the new highway. Supt. Donald Bassett said future plans call for a 20-inch main under that street, but if it is not installed now, the state may not give permission to do the work a few years later. Thus he wants to put in the big pipe, so that future installations can be tied onto the ends of the main under the road.

The Finance Committee reviewed Shawsheen rd. problems with the Board, and studied a work sheet showing the items involved in that contract which exceeded state estimates.

They reached no decision on the requested amounts.

NO TRADE BOARD ACTION ON METERS

The Board of Trade has never taken any official action to request the Selectmen to abolish penny parking meters on Main st.

President George Lister said this week that the Board never voted on the subject, nor has any decision been made by the Board to request or even approve the move.

The Selectmen announced last week that the penny meters would be removed this summer, at the request of the Board of Trade. The TOWNSMAN reported this announcement in last week's issue, stating that the move had the "backing" of the Trade Board. This, President Lister commented, is impossible because there has been no vote taken. Individual members of the Board, at several meetings, have spoken in favor of the step, he explained, but nothing further was done on the subject.

But one of the parents asked: "Are you going to say that five-year-olds can walk two miles and high school students only one-and-a-half?" Normally, elementary school students walk if they live within a mile of the school and a mile-and-a-half is the limit for the others.

The School Committee decided this spring to provide early morning and mid-afternoon transportation. Thus, with the kindergarten on two sessions, each child would get one-way transportation.

But residents of the South School district complained that they could not handle noon-time transportation themselves. Lack of automobiles during the day, insurance problems related to private car use for the purpose and the distribution of homes in the area were all cited as reasons why the families could not handle the noon-time transportation.

A smaller delegation of parents at the meeting Tuesday night heard member Frederick Allis Jr.

offer the suggestion that parents in the West School area have succeeded in solving the problem over the past few years, as have those in Shawsheen. Only the Central School has had transportation at noon, but this too is to be abandoned this year under the Board's decision.

One of the parents said he had tried to plot the distribution of kindergarten homes, both in the South District and the others. While car pools and other arrangements may satisfy other areas, he said it would be impossible to form car pools for the South School district. "We can't cope with it. And I'm surprised the others haven't complained", he told the Board.

School Committee Chairman Roy A. Russell agreed that the location of the South School, compared to those in a more heavily populated area, would have some bearing on a decision. And he explained that the Committee would have to decide whether the abandonment of all noon-time transportation is a "necessary economy or being pound wise and penny foolish".

Supt. Edward I. Erickson defended his former estimate that the price tag would be in the neighborhood of $6400. He said the extra trips would average out at about 20 miles a day for each school, including St. Augustine's. The latter school was not included when the $6400 estimate was made, he stated, but certainly would have to be included if kindergarten transportation is provided at noon for public schools. This would have the tendency to increase the original estimate, he believed.

Some of the parents pointed to the state reimbursement for transportation, citing over-all expenditures in this field for 1957. A sum of $37,000 was spent, they said, with about $18,000 coming back from the state. The extra transportation requested for the kindergarten would also be reimbursable, they explained.

Says No One Takes Stand

"No one wants to make a stand in this town", charged Board of Public Works member Francis P. Reilly at Monday night's Board meeting.

He referred to problems confronting the town which, because "No one wants to be the bad guy", have been allowed to continue indefinitely or until the town picks up the tab for the remedy.

Board consideration of a Lupine rd. condition brought on the comments.

C. Lincoln Giles, who had installed a drain on private property off Lupine rd., and then across the street, had been given Board reassurance that the town would resurface the street excavation. But Highway Supt. Stanley Chelbowski told the Board Mr. Giles does not intend to do any further work towards putting the street in condition for surfacing, beyond backfilling the trench. Board members agreed gravel is needed on the road, prior to a surface job.

Member Albert Cole Jr. commented that the Board did not specify that Giles should do this preparatory work. And Member Mason Arnold said the installation of the drain was of some benefit to the town, hence the agreement to do the resurfacing.

Chairman Alex Henderson suggested requiring a 100 percent bond of all contractors disrupting road surfaces.

During the discussion, Reilly commented that the failure to take a stand, not just in the Lupine rd. case, but in many others as well, was at the root of many current problems. He spoke of newly-accepted streets that he believes were in no condition to be accepted, "but the selectmen wanted to accept them".

"Howell dr. is a disgrace", he commented, "and I'll bet you spend $700 in Hurd's development before the end of the year". (This is the Braeland area off Elm st., near Merrimack College. Many of the streets were accepted at town meeting.)

Reilly charged that decisions are made "because we feel we owe someone something. No one wants to tell them they're wasting their time".

Also coming under criticism was the procedure for allowing utility installations. The Selectmen are charged with the responsibility for approving requests from the Gas, Electric or Telephone Companies for under-street installations. The BPW is notified of the Selectmen's decision. But Reilly felt that proper resurfacing has not resulted. "The Public Utilities come in; the Selectmen okay it and we can't do anything", he commented.

Parking Problems Were Discussed

Off-street parking and possible town participation in the creation or maintenance of that parking were subjects of a conference Monday night between the Board of Selectmen, Finance Committee and a representative of the Board of Trade.

W. R. Hill, chairman of a special Trade Board committee on parking, outlined his group's plan to convert property along the rear of stores on the west side of Main st. to parking. Land owners have agreed to lease the property for the purpose, he disclosed, without cost to the Trade Board. But he estimated that $20,000 will be re-

BOARD TOLD ABOUT NEW WIRE INSTALLATION

The Board of Public Works is anticipating a request from the Electric Co. for removal of "several typed pages" of trees, in conjunction with the installation of a power line.

Chairman Alex Henderson told the Board Monday night that the formal request has not been received, but stated that hearings would have to be held on the tree removal requests. He did not specify the area involved. But he told the Board that house services will be fed from the line, with transformers installed at intervals for this purpose.

Officials at the Electric Co. said specific plans would be disclosed within the next three weeks, as soon as details are worked out.

quired to fill, grade and hard-top the area, plus straighten out a curve in Rogers Brook with a culvert and cover it. In all, there will be room for 165 cars, including the present parking lot of the Merrimack Valley National Bank. Hill said the Board could anticipate parking 6-700 cars a day in the area, with free parking privileges. The figures were contingent on purchase by the Savings Bank of a house to the rear of their property.

Although no specific suggestions were made, it was plain that the Trade Board group feels that the town might assume some responsibility for the Brook correction and possibly for maintaining and policing the area after it is constructed.

Legal to Spend Money

Town Counsel Vincent Stulgis said the town is legally entitled to lease land for off-street parking for not more than five years at a time. But he suggested it would be better for the Trade Board to incorporate and itself lease the land from individual owners; in turn leasing the entire area to the town.

Money from parking meter receipts may be spent to lease, construct, maintain and police such an area, town counsel stated. This may be done even if the area is free, providing it is within a stated number of feet from an area with parking meters.

Hill said the Trade Board contemplates selling sufficient shares of stock to finance the construction phase. And the Board then has considered assessing each business, on the basis of probable benefit, to liquidate the shares.

He stressed that, while merchants undoubtedly are helped by off-street parking, it is also a civic responsibility. Selectman Stafford A. Lindsay told the meeting that a recent state assessors session was devoted to this problem. The consensus of that meeting, he said, was to undertake off-street parking regardless of individual benefit to the merchants. This opinion resulted, he explained, from a belief among assessors that taxable property would depreciate in value if parking is not provided. This is specially true, he stated, if there is a shopping center within five miles of the town's retail center.

There seemed to be some agreement that Rogers Brook is a town responsibility. Finance Committee member Richard Zecchini stated flatly that he could see no reason why individuals should bear any responsibility for Brook control which is the drainage from the east end of town. Mr. Hill said the sum of $5,000 has been estimated as sufficient to straighten out the small section involved in the parking area.

And he also assured the group that the merchants are willing to spend their money for parking but would like the moral support of the town and some financial help. Specific amounts are yet to be determined, however.

It was agreed that the Trade Board will list its estimated expenditures and specifically request, at another meeting, the town to take action. This will give the Finance Committee an opportunity to make a specific decision.

FinCom Chairman Robert Waters assured Mr. Hill "You'll find us sympathetic" when the time comes for a decision.

Cost Accountants Enjoyed Party

Over 128 members and guests of the Merrimack Valley Chapter of the National Association of Accountants attended the annual "Ladies Night" at the Hillview Country Club in No. Reading Friday evening, June 20.

A very interesting program was presented by Robert M. Wood and his committee. A dinner, followed by entertainment, door prizes and dancing was enjoyed by all.

A magician, using Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Valentine, William Weaver and Ernest Birdsall as part of his act, added a humorous note to the party. Hollis P. Fowler, retiring president of the local chapter of National Association of Accountants, was presented a gift from members of the chapter by Nelson Schwaner, incoming president.

Drive it on America's new Interstate System highways

New-type, sound-conditioned concrete will still be fun to drive in '75

Not a "thump" to be heard on this continuous-laid concrete. It's almost like riding above the pavement, instead of on it. Sound-conditioned concrete has no joints . . . only tiny, sawed cushion spaces. You skim over them and don't know it! "Air-entrainment" prevents surface roughening, keeps concrete smooth. Laid flat, new-type concrete stays flat and will last 50 years and more.

The Interstate System is planned for the traffic of 1975 . . . when concrete laid today will still be "new" and fun to drive.

Built-in safety for Massachusetts highways

The grainy texture of new-type concrete resists skids even when wet. No unevenness, no "fighting the wheel." It reflects light, too. You see up to 4 times better at night on light-colored concrete than on a dark surface.
