High Praise

For Fred Collins

The School Committee has publicly parised head custodian Fred L. Collins for his devotion to duty and the excellent condition of the school buildings.

A school custodian for 35 years, he has been head man for 20 years. Supt. Edward I. Erickson proposed the citation, which was approved and spread on the records of the Committee.

The citation reads:

"As is so often the case in business, industrial, educational or other organizations, discussion of individual personnel matters focuses upon negative rather than (Continued on Page Three)

Apartment Area Included

A public hearing on six Planning Board articles — including the controversial garden apartment area — will be held Sept. 30 at 7:30 in the Selectmen's office.

The Board unanimously adopted five of the articles and, by a four to one vote, approved the garden apartment zoning for inclusion in the warrant. Atty. Walter Tomlinson abstained from the vote on rules and regulations for the area and on the vote to insert an article zoning a specific area. Members Archibald D. Maclaren Jr., Virginia Hammond and John N. Cole, with Chairman Donald Thompson, voted for the apartment articles.

Following a public hearing, the Board is required by law to reach a decision on each article and make this report available to town meeting. The Board can approve the articles, change them slightly, but not in substance, or vote to withdraw any or all of them. Members of the Board may also issue minority reports on any articles where a difference of opinion occurs.

Appeals Board In 3 Decisions

Two variances have been granted and another denied by the zoning board of appeals.

Denied was the petition of lphee E. In the Letourneau case the board found that it was without authority to grant the variance since the provisions of the by-law would not allow it. It would, in effect, be an amendment to the zoning by-law which is prohibited.

"This year, as in other years, our schools open doors to over three thousand Andover children. The appearance and condition of the buildings provide an important part in the total learning situation for these many boys and girls. EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Needed: Clean Tax Dollars

The importance of industrial growth - as a source of what may be termed "clean" tax dollars - has never been more apparent. Home owners in this community certainly must see this, as they, for the first time, are called upon to pay their share of the full cost of government.

Indeed, all over the state the same cry has gone up. For Andover taxpayers have much the same problem as their brethren. The small real estate taxpayer is paying a tremendous portion of the cost of government in most small communities - and in some larger ones - because there is no other source of income.

The industrial-residential balance has been destroyed. No longer are there enough industries in the communities, including Andover.

And what do we do about it?

Little, all too little.

It was revealing to see a news story in a Boston newspaper on this subject. Experts were quoted as criticizing the communities, and the state, for spending money on hoopla without possessing, first, the basic selling tools facts. In substance, the article said that too many industrial commissions are spending municipal dollars on expensive brochures, lavish advertising campaigns and on pensive brochures, lavish advertising campaigns and on general good will. Meanwhile, these commissions are spending little or nothing on proving their claims. They have few, if any, facts on their local industrial areas — no substantial surveys of existing or planned services, roads, utilities and the many other facts needed by any roads, utilities and the many other facts needed by any industry seeking a home.

This, we regret to point out, is true of Andover.

While we have spent no money on advertising - we have also failed to provide a real survey of the industrial areas. We have, as far as can be learned, no firm plans for developing the areas.

The facts needed by an industry seeking a location are not readily available and there certainly is no plan for the future as to the eventual construction of services within the areas. But these are facts that any industry would

It seems that in Andover we have paid lip service to the demands for industrial growth by zoning areas for industry. We have an industrial commission made up of businessmen and leaders in the community.

But we lack a plan. We have no engineering study of the areas nor data needed in any sales talk with potential developers or industrial concerns.

It's difficult to place the responsibility for this on any person or group. For there is considerable doubt in many minds that the town actually wants industry. Too many times we have seen residents, even, on occasion, town officials, heckle and badger existing industries. And we have heard prominent persons indulge in comments that indicate their basic feelings in this vital matter. An atmosphere of suspicion has been created in some circles, to the point that a firm wishing to come here might be so tied down by regulations, based on suspicion of its future course of action, that it would eventually refuse to locate in the town.

Still the town needs industrial balance - it needs tax dollars from other sources than the small taxpayer.

We should get on the ball; make up our minds to take positive action; then take it - not talk about it.

Their Job Is Worthwhile

It's remarkable how quickly the town has changed from a passive summer existence to the active pace of the fall.

The first working day of September was noted as being exceptionally busy - a sign of the interest and enthusiasm Fall Campaign in many local projects. And there are few more enthusiastic workers than those men and women who do publicity work for the many organizations.

It's only fitting, at this beginning of a new fall and winter season, that we should mention the good work done by these folks - unpaid workers for projects or groups. No newspaper could cover the news events of their organizathoroughly as they can, themselves. And no newspaper would have the man-power available to attend these meetings and events, recorded so diligently by the volunteer publicity workers.

We welcome their assistance, for we can do our job better with their help.

We might add one further comment - specially for those men and women who never have done this sort of work before. Please stop in and ask us about news deadlines, preparation of copy and related matters. That way, we'll be able to work better together.

Garden Apartments

Substantial authority is handed the Appeals Board, under restrictions adopted by the Planning Board for garden apartment areas.

The Board of Appeals, the restrictions state, may, for several reasons, refuse to issue a permit for use of the area.

Atty. Tomlinson, during the Tuesday night meeting, commented that he still does not see how the town can be adequately protected against sub-standard multiple housing. He had previously raised the question, explaining that present development plans might be changed or the property change hands. The Planning Board's consultant agreed that the restrictions do not specifically protect the town against that possibility — but he said that a suggested population — density restriction would not be practical. He pointed out that an owner might live up to the restriction when renting the units, but "then the stock begins to fly and there is little likelihood that any action would be taken". The density provision would have limited the number of persons living in the apartments.

Monday's Hearing

The subject was fully debated last Monday night, as Samuel Rosen, the developer; Joseph Doherty, local real estate agent; and representatives of the developer sat down with the Planning Board, Selectmen and some interested citizens.

At that time, Mr. Rosen explained the project, which he said would answer a very evident need in the community.

The Selectmen were asked to file the application, as the Board did in Wilmington, without town meeting action. Haselton said did in Wilmington, without town meeting action. Haselton said he could not see how a special article could be inserted in the Oct. 6 town meeting, because the entire application and all the plans had to be re-drawn based on the new requirements.

Under the just-issued directive, Andover would be entitled to $500,000 in federal money — or about one-third of the amount estimated under the original plans.

Plans.
Haselton explained that application now does not mean the town must spend any money.

If the application is approved, the government would advance funds for an extensive plan. Then, the town meeting would act on going forward. But if the decision was against proceeding, there never would be any town money involved.
Only after the final plans are

2 Transfers Asked From March Funds

The Board of Public Works will

The Board of Public Works will ask town meeting to transfer funds for two purposes, when the special session is called Oct. 6.

By vote of the Board, an article will be inserted asking a transfer of $5,000 from the Ballardvale bridge fund to Shawsheen rd. funds. Members felt that this amount will be needed to finish retaining walls and other work left undone to date.

The second article will seek a transfer of $3,000 from the bridge fund to Ballardvale rd. fund — to allow completion of the road project this year.

It was explained that the bridge money is ample to allow the transfers and maintain a balance sufficient to meet expenses of rebuilding the bridge. That work is scheduled to start this fall and continue into next year, under state control.

year, under state control.

At the same special meeting, the Board will also ask voter approval of two betterment assessment articles which were turned down at the meeting last March.

One would substitute a one-third — One would substitute a one-third — two-thirds apportionment of the assessments, compared to the one-quarter — three-quarters method now in use. The second allows betterment assessments against estates for installation of trunk sewer lines, when the property is benefitted.

Pre-School Opens Monday Morning

Mothers of children enrolled in the cooperative nursery school, which will open for the first time next Monday morning, met Wed-nesday evening with the teacher, Mrs. Thayer Warshaw, for a period of orientation. In the school mothers will take

In the school mothers will take turns as teacher-assistant, so Wednesday's discussion gave them a chance to learn alot of the "how's" and "do's" of pre-school education. Meeting in the Lower Parish Hall of the Free Christian Church, where the children will come to school, there was opportunity to see the room, its equipment, and its storage area, as well as to learn the ropes of "housekeeping" and snack-serving.

wen as to learn the ropes of "housekeeping" and snackserving.

This was not the first gathering of the Free Church Co-Op PreSchool mothers. In fact, in recent weeks they have been gathering frequently to finish preparing equipment and play yard. Arriving many mornings soon after breakfast, the mothers, under the guidance of Mrs. Norman Viehmann, equipment chairman, have prepared fence posts, swing sets, and sand box for installation. And with the help of their children, who also attend the work parties, they have sanded and painted dozens of boxes and crates which, when finished, become hollow building blocks and shelving, respectively. Last Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon found numerous fathers doing the heavy labor involved in turning what was involved in turning what was
