CONFIRMATION CLASS - Some 220 young people were confirmed Monday afternoon at St. Augustine's Church. Most of the group posed on the Church steps following the service, while

Congregational Delegates Here

South Church will be host to over 1,000 Congregationalists Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, for the 161st annual meeting of the Massachusetts Congregational Christian Conference.

Some 584 churches will be represented at the meeting, during which the Massachusetts Fellowship of Congregational Christian Women will also hold its sessions.

Of special significance throughout the three-day meeting will be the celebration of the 150th birth of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, which began in Andover.

Special commemorative services will be held in the First Church of Christ in Bradford Sunday afternoon, noting the fact that the Conference met there in 1810 and made the fateful decision to sponsor foreign missionaries. Andover Seminary students and several area ministers had met in Andover and decided to initiate the movement, then took their idea to the Conference.

Sunday night's supper arrangements have been completed, with three churches scheduled to serve

Confusion Rampant Over Zoning

Mass confusion appears to be developing this week over proposed zoning changes that proponents want considered at a special town meeting June 6.

The Selectmen called the session to consider inserting a permissive clause in the residential zoning by-law, thus allowing the Indian Ridge Country Club to be constructed in West Andover. The clause would serve to permit the country club, but maintain the residential character of the area. A provision would be included that construction must begin within a period of time, or the permission would be revoked.

As soon as word spread that a special meeting will be held, several other enterprises were suggested. All would require zoning changes.

A proposal for a motel at the Dascomb rd. interchange was announced last week in this newspaper, and nearby, Ronald Reader had acquired options on land for his proposed insurance office

Cross Purchased Andover Book Store

Jerome W. Cross confirmed this week that he has agreed to purchase the Andover Book Store, which will remain in its present location in the Andover Press building at the corner of Main and Chestnut sts.

Cross said a new corporation is being established, but that he will be the principal owner of the long-established business.

His new firm will take over management of the store by June 1. And within a month of that time, the office of the Cross Coal Co., at the other end of Main st. in the square, will be moved to the Book Store.

It was announced last week that Smart and Flagg Inc. had agreed to purchase the Press building.

John N. Cole II said this week that plans for the Andover Press are indefinite at this time.

Plans Set For Parade

The final plans for the Memorial Day Parade and Ceremonies have been completed by the Patriotic Holiday Committee.

This committee consists of Joseph L. Monan, past commander of Post 2128, V.F.W., who is also chairman of the committee and chief parade marshal this year; George B. Lumb, commander of Chapter 18, D.A.V.; Mrs. Louise Wolfenden, past commander of the All Womens' Post, American Legion, No. 474; Irving J. Whitcomb, past commander, Post 8, American Legion and Francis P. Markey, Veterans' Services agent.

The committee regrets to announce that the Phillips Academy contingent and the school band will be unable to join in the parade this year due to examination schedules on that day. A rifle platoon from Fort Devens and a Naval Reserve Unit from Lawrence, will be in line this year. Complete details of the parade and services will be announced later.

Any Gold Star Mother or member of any Ladies' Auxiliary who wishes to ride in the parade must submit their names to the office of Veterans' Services not later than May 20. Transportation problems require the early date, it was explained.

Children Took Historic Tour

The beautiful weather of Wednesday, May 4, gave 112 children of the West and Shawsheen schools of Andover a most enjoyable picnic day and historical tour combined, when the pupils of the 5th grades of these schools went on their annual tour of Boston historic places.

The tour was under the direction of Mrs. Edward Thompson of Pricilla Abbot Chapter, D.A.R., which has sponsored these tours for the past five years. Assisting her from the chapter was the regent, Mrs. Frank Hayes, Mrs. J. Keith Jones, Mrs. Leo V. O'Connor and Mrs. T. E. D. Collins. The mother who attended were Mrs. Malcolm Battles, Mrs. S. A. Batchelder, Mrs. Harold Haley and Mrs. Whitman from West Parish, with two of the teachers at the West School, Mrs. Almon Daniels and Miss Puzio.

The teachers from Shawsheen were Mrs. Margaret Singleton and Mrs. Pauline Durgin. The mothers who attended were Mrs. William Harnedy, Mrs. Anthony Zoccolin, Mrs. Leonard Demers and Mrs. Daniel Gill.

The historic places visited were the Old North Church, Paul Revere House, the battleship Constitution and Bunkerhill. At the last named place the children ate their lunches, and had a wonderful time talking over places which they had been studying about in United States history.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mackay and their family of Lowell st., spent Sunday with Mr. Mackay's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Davis of Salem Depot, N. H.

missionary work is carried out by the Social Outreach Committee, which only this week is sponsoring its second public supper in support of the mission program. A speaker at the affair will be Albert Mahaka, who first studied, then taught, at the mission.

The Schwyhart family includes five children, one of whom was born in that African country.

Support from the West Parish Church includes packages for the school and money to enable additional boys to attend school. A special project was undertaken recently, in which packages of sewing supplies were sent that enabled Mrs. Schwyhart to start a sewing project.

SERVING IN RHODESIA - The Schwyhart family, which is, in part, supported by the Social Outreach Committee of West Parish Church, serves in Southern Rhodesia. Andover's churches have been strong in their support of missions since the founding of the movement 150 years ago.

An All-Family Affair

An example of the penetration of the CO-OP idea into family life is the Campbell Family of Burnham Rd.

Not only are Morris and Eunice Campbell CO-OP members, but each of the four children is a shareholder in the CO-OP - the source of the family's food.

Mrs. Campbell likes to Shop CO-OP because of the friendly atmosphere, the bargains, the refund...the wonderful oat cakes.

What does this all mean? That the CO-OP, with over 2300 members, is not only as broad as the community, but as deep as the families whose daily needs it satisfies.

Memorial Boulder Dedicated On 100th Anniversary Of Board

MISSIONARY BOULDER - Near Rabbit's Pond, where the young missionaries who were students at Andover Seminary once walked, talked and prayed, stands this memorial boulder and tablet. Dedication services were held at the site on the 100th anniversary of the founding of the American Board.

Fifty years ago, when the American Board celebrated its 100th anniversary, over 1,500 men and women attended special dedicatory exercises as a memorial tablet was unveiled near Rabbit's Pond. A special boulder had been carefully selected and placed at the site where the original band of seven students at the Theological Seminary gathered, talked and prayed about their plan to become missionaries, and their hopes that an American sponsoring organization would be established. The idea was first suggested by the Rev. C. C. Carpenter, himself a missionary and a long-time resident of Andover.

And it was he who found the boulder, weighing several tons, in its natural resting place in Carmel Woods. Assured by geologists that the rock would last for hundreds of years, the tablet was attached. The dedicatory exercises took place during the Congregational meeting of 1912, held in Boston. The 1,500 men and women who came to Andover by special train walked from the railroad station to the exercises, accompanied by guides who pointed out places of historical interest along the way. Later, the throng went to Bradford for luncheon and further dedicatory services, for it was in that community that the Conference met in 1810 and decided to form the American Board.

The exercises in Andover were even more fitting because descendants of the original group of seven were present and took part. Prof. E. Y. Hincks, D. D., gave an historical statement, briefly describing the reasons for the memorial. The tablet was unveiled by the Rev. James A. Richards, grand-

American pioneers in the most Christly of all enterprises, and in the hope of perpetuating and extending the spirit which fears not to do great, new things for God, but under the imperative of Jesus sees even the world grow small, I do now, by the authority of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, unveil this monument and read the inscription thereon".

Only One Church In Andover Then

The Church originated in 1710 and remained the only Church until 1816, when Bartlett Chapel at the Seminary was built.

nephew of James Richards. The Rev. George A. Hall, grandson of Gordon Hall, gave the prayer.

And the address was delivered by the Rev. Robert A. Hume D. D. of India, a graduate of Andover Seminary in 1873 and son of the Rev. Robert W. Hume, Seminary graduate of 1837, who was also a missionary in India.

The concluding hymn that day was "The Morning Light is Breaking", written by Samuel F. Smith while a student at the Seminary in 1830.

In dedicating the memorial boulder and tablet, Mr. Richards said: "In grateful memory of the

An overnight hike for the same weekend was planned.

A Court of Honor then awarded Tenderfoot badges to Kenneth Conway, John Deyermond and James Lowe, Senior Patrol Leader Joseph McEneaney, by earning the last two of 10 merit badges needed for Life Scout, was advanced to that rank and presented with his cooking and home repair badges.

An instruction period in Indian sign language, conducted by John Cussen, followed.

The climax of the meeting was the exhibition and judging of 12 war bonnets made by scouts of the Troop as part of the Indian folklore program. Because of excellence in workmanship, two bonnets, made by Bill McCarthy and Paul Martellucci, tied for first place. These scouts will be awarded special beaded rosettes to help decorate their bonnets.

The troop color was changed to orange by a majority vote of the scouts.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Leadership Needed

If the Recreation meeting held last night, and others in the future, do nothing else, they may at least give some leadership to the somewhat scattered semi-official activities in the community.

For we have an official Recreation Committee, a recreation Community Council, plus individuals who are independently interested. In addition, the School Committee is now taking part in the discussions.

Out of all of this, we hope some individual or some group will emerge as a leader and organizer, so that all the enthusiasm will be directed into an effective program.

If we are to expand the town's recreational activities, then there should be complete cooperation by all these groups and individuals towards this goal - without the differences that often crop up when separate groups go their own ways.

While there is always room for discussion and debate as to what might be the best recreation program, and how it should be started, this should be settled by everyone connected with the problem. And once agreed upon, all the energy should be directed toward getting it accomplished.

Sensible Decision

The Planning Board, which comes in for its share of brickbats along the way, used sound common sense in discouraging special town meeting consideration of several zoning changes - even though this decision may not have been popular.

We feel that it was a sensible decision, because that municipal agency and the Industrial Commission are assumed to be studying recommendations for the entire area near the new highways. And these studies should lead to constructive proposals next year at the annual town meeting.

It is high time that such studies were carried out to their ultimate conclusion - specific proposals for town meeting.

It would be folly to, in effect, spot zone for specific businesses or industries when a plan is so close to the stage where public action will be required.

Impact Of Growth

The town is only vaguely beginning to see the impact that two new highways can have.

Those who unofficially use Route 93 are aware of the traveling time saved, how much easier it is to get to Route 128 and beyond.

And when the road is officially open, thousands will suddenly become aware of Andover, as they drive through here.

The emergence of two or three business enterprises is probably only the beginning, as other businessmen become aware of the potential.

Thus Andover must be in for a period of healthy growth and development. This can only continue, for even as Route 93 nears completion, work is only starting on the new Route 110, which intersects Rt. 93 in West Andover.

Indeed, the town has barely started to feel the impact of these highways, and it probably will take 10 years or so to realize just what they mean to us.

Down the Years with The Townsman

50 Years Ago - May, 1910

The Rev. Frank Paradise of West Medford will be the preacher at the Seminary Church Sunday. He is the brother of Mrs. Henry W. Barnard.

The monthly meeting of the Andover Natural History Society was held in the archaeology building at Phillips Academy Tuesday evening. Prof. W. K. Moorehead read a paper on "The Indian in Early Andover History".

Arthur Johnson has been chosen valedictorian of the class of 1910 at Pynchard. Other honor and class day parts are: salutatory, Mildred Jenkins; class prophecy, Eva Howell; Ivy address, Esther Eaton; address to undergraduates, Thomas Kyle; president's address, James Anderson; commencement speakers, James Anderson, Florence Reilly and Anne Gillen.

Miss Clara Putnam, principal of the Bradlee School, took the pupils of the ninth grade to Boston to see the places of interest.

25 Years Ago - May, 1935

The valuation of the Shawshen Mills of the American Woolen Co. will not be reduced this year, according to a decision of the Selectmen-Assessors. The company had asked that a reduction of $100,000 be approved, similar to the reduction of last year.

The Patriotic Committee, in planning Memorial Day activities, has decided to have the entire parade visit all the cemeteries, rather than split up as has been the custom.

The Rev. A. Graham Baldwin of Phillips Academy has been elected president of the Andover Guild. Roy Hardy completed four years in that post and has retired from it.

The Natural History Society has voted unanimously to disband. At a meeting Tuesday night, the final vote was taken after hearing from all members. The Society was organized nearly 40 years ago by Corwin Palmer, superintendent of schools at that time.

For the second year in a row, Miss Alice Donovan has taken first place in the Lincoln spelling contest. A high school student, she first competed in that classification and then beat all other division winners. First prize is $10.

Work on the new school is coming along fast this week. The shovel is excavating for the new auditorium foundation, and some blasting is continuing.

10 Years Ago - May, 1950

Curtailling of postal service started yesterday, according to Postmaster Stephen A. Boland. Orders for the one-a-day delivery in most sections of town came from Washington, which is undertaking a strict economy drive.

The best juvenile angler in the trout derby last Saturday was David Markert, 4, of Chestnut st.

The first step in forming a Visiting Nurse Association has been taken. A Service Club committee met for the first time to begin formulating plans, under the chairmanship of Irving J. Whitcomb.

The police department war on people who dump trash and litter on the public streets continues, with the support of the Selectmen. That Board, meeting Monday, commended the department for its initiative and urged that all resources be used to continue the drive. Already there have been two violators in court.

The Boosters are planning the annual banquet for all athletic teams. The affair will be held next Wednesday evening at the high school cafeteria.

Civil Defense Display
A very worthwhile and interesting project has been carried on at the library during the past two weeks by one of the borrowers, Mr. John Carter, of the Civil Defense. He has provided a variety of pamphlets on all phases of home protection and preparation of food, water supply and shelters in the event of attack. To those interested he has demonstrated the use of geiger counters and dosimeters, and has run films on procedures in the event of such a disaster, and other films on the organization of Civil Defense. For those who have been unable to see the display, Mr. Carter plans to be present through Friday this week from 3-5, and 7-9 p.m. to answer any questions on the subject.

Civil War Group

The Andover Civil War Roundtable will meet at the library on Monday evening, May 16, at 7:45 o'clock.

Foreign Mission Movement Born Here In 1810

Fateful Meeting Held By Seminary Students

FIVE WERE ORDAINED - At an emotion-filled service in the Salem Tabernacle in 1812, five young men were ordained as missionaries. Despite the so-called sophistication of Salem in that day, and the bad weather, a large crowd turned out to witness the service. The members of the ordaining council are, left to right, the Rev. Jedediah Morse, Charlestown Congregational Church; the Rev. Edward D. Griffin, Boston's Park Street Church; the Rev. Samuel Spring, North Congregational Church, Newburyport; the Rev. Leonard Woods, Andover Theological Seminary; and the Rev. Samuel Worcester, Tabernacle Church in Salem. Kneeling at left is Adoniram Judson's bride. The young men ordained that night were Mr. Judson, Gordon Hall, Samuel Newell, Samuel Nott and Luther Rice. C.E. Dopler painted this scene a few years later, but it is believed that the likenesses are fairly accurate.

Voted On Faith-Then Money Came

Practical problems faced the members of the American Board during its first two years - and the biggest problem of them all was money.

Adoniram Judson, one of the originators of the movement, went to London in 1811 to seek the support of the London Missionary Society. His was an exciting trip, for his ship was captured by a French privateer and he was made prisoner at Bayonne.

Judson reached London in May - but after six weeks of talking, he could report only that the Society would not jointly sponsor the venture, but would send the men out as its own missionaries.

This was reported to the meeting of the American Board in Worcester in September, 1811.

Old records indicate that the members' pride was hurt by the reply from England. The discouragement of those who wished to become missionaries also was evident, shown by the commissions brought back by Judson from England.

Thus the Board voted to become the sponsors of the missionaries, with or without money.

But after taking this vote, the funds soon began to come in. A shaky $1,400 beginning turned into a sound financial picture. By February of 1812, $6,000 was in hand and a legacy of $30,000 had been received.

The missionaries were outfitted and a full year's salary was paid.

An historic meeting was held on Andover Hill 150 years ago, setting the wheels in motion towards organization of the American Board Foreign Missions.

From that humble beginning - with six Seminary students and a handful of dedicated ministers and Seminary professors - has grown a missionary movement that has sent nearly 5,000 missionaries abroad and established more than 1,000 schools, colleges and theological seminaries.

This weekend, the 161st annual meeting of the Massachusetts Congregational Christian Conference will be held here, in celebration of this anniversary.

That organization was only in its infancy when it met in Bradford in 1810, with a small number of delegates who apparently anticipated that no great problems would be presented.

Instead, the delegates were faced with one great question - from which came one of the most significant decisions of its young life.

For at this meeting in Bradford, it was decided to form the American Board. The "why's" could be clearly seen. But the "how's" were left to settle themselves during the next two years.

Andover's seven young men - through four of their number - presented the case to the meeting, with the support of distinguished ministers.

Were it not for the devotion and determination of these seven, it's doubtful whether such action would have been taken.

Thus the beginning of the foreign mission movement in the United States can be traced, through them, to Andover Seminary and to that evening meeting in the home of Prof. Moses Stuart.

Attended Meeting

Through his doors the night of Tuesday, June 26, walked Adoniram Judson, Samuel Newell, Samuel Nott, Gordon Hall, Luther Rice, Samuel J. Mills and James Richards - all students at the Seminary and all dedicated to the missionary field.

Meeting with them and Dr. Stuart were Dr. Samuel Spring of Newburyport, Dr. Samuel Worcester of Salem, the Revs. Reynolds of Wilmington, Sanborn of Reading, Snell of North Brookfield, John Keep of Blandford; and Jeremiah Evarts, a tional details that later were to be adopted by the Association.

A day later, they sent word to the students to come to the meeting in Bradford. And after four of the young men had the opportunity to speak to the delegates, a committee was formed to make recommendations to the assembly before it adjourned.

The feeling apparently was friendly, because Drs. Spring and Worcester, advocates of the establishment of a foreign missionary board, were two of the layman. Professors Woods and Griffin of the Seminary faculty were also present.

Even this group was not unanimously in favor of the proposal - old records indicate that at least one man looked on the whole business as frivolous and without serious intent. But Prof. Griffin made an impassioned plea, and Mr. Evarts also strongly urged approval.

Thus Drs. Spring and Worcester set out the following day to Bradford - and on their two-hour trip, discussed many of the organiza-

Rev. Carpenter Was Missionary

Andover's connection with the missionary movement in the earliest days has carried down through the years.

One of the community's representatives to the field was the Rev. C. C. Carpenter, who was the first missionary to Labrador, accompanying the Grenfell mission. That gentleman visited Dr. Carpenter here on six occasions.

Phillips Academy boys raised money for the first pair of reindeer for the mission, and other residents also took part. One, Mrs. Charles Shattuck of West Andover, provided the mission with thoroughbred cattle.

Dr. Carpenter originated the idea of the Missionary Boulder at Rabbit's Pond, where the original missionaries walked, talked and three members of that committee. The following day the trio reported a favorable recommendation, and the conference voted to approve establishing the American Board.

They didn't have many ideas as to how the idea would be carried out - all the mechanics were left to Board members. But they were convinced that the action was necessary.

And two years later, proof of their wisdom was in hand, with the sailing of the first American-supported foreign missionaries for India.

His daughters, Misses Jane and Miriam Carpenter, live at 84 Central st.

248 Missionaries Went From Andover

As the birthplace of the foreign mission movement, Andover continued to support the work, and the Seminary continued as a training ground for missionaries.

Writing in the "Congregationalist and Christian World" in 1910, the Rev. C. C. Carpenter of Andover noted that 248 missionaries were trained, in whole or in part, at the Seminary. And 222 of them were commissioned by the American Board.

The aggregate service of them all, he noted at that time, was 5,000 years and many were still in the field.

In 1810 Meeting Held by Students

In Andover Hill 150 years ago, an organization of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, consisting of six Seminary students and a number of professors - has grown to nearly 5,000 missionaries abroad in schools, colleges and theological seminaries.

The meeting of the Massachusetts Convention was held here, in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the meeting when it met in Bradford in 1810, who apparently anticipated that the meeting would be held here.

At the time one great question - from the decisions of its young life, was decided to form the American Board. But the "how's" were not clear.

At the termination of these seven, it was decided to be taken.

The mission movement in the United States to Andover Seminary and to the Rev. Josiah Stuart.

Participants In Fateful Meeting

ACTIVE PARTICIPANTS - All the men pictured here took part in the earliest conversations about formation of a missionary movement. They met in Prof. Stuart's house here in 1810, a meeting resulting in the formation of the American Board within the following few days. At left is Mrs. Harriet Atwood Newell, who accompanied her husband on the first missionary voyage and who died not long after the death of the couple's baby. Samuel Newell was one of the founders of the movement, while Samuel Worcester, Jeremiah Evarts and Samuel Spring all attended that initial meeting here.

Night vs Day Contrast In Board's Operation

By Dr. Daniel Bliss
Secretary, American Board

When the American Board started to send missionaries to the field shortly after it was founded 150 years ago, the missionaries sailed from Boston or Salem or other American seaports in sailing vessels, many of them not too seaworthy, that took three, four or five months to reach their destination. Communications were so slow that sometimes it was a year before a round-trip message would be received back by the American Board. A year or so after missionaries were sent, the American Board would entrust a bag of gold to some reliable captain going to the country where the missionaries were stationed for their support for the next twelve or eighteen months.

Now, 150 years later, our missionaries can board a plane in Istanbul in the morning and have dinner that same night in New York City, so swift are our modern means of transportation. The executive vice president can pick up a telephone and talk to South Africa or Athens or Tokyo in a matter of minutes. Through the magic of credit, all the resources of the American Board are at the disposal with the votes, of course, of the Prudential Committee - of any American Board station in the world.

The significant changes that have come in these 150 years are what happens to every church that grows and develops and becomes a mighty institution. The American Board has established churches and schools and hospitals all over the world. They have taken root and grown and become independent, so that in most parts of the world the Christian church is indigenous and largely self-supporting. There is still desperate need for starting new work and bolstering old work that is still vitally needed. But the principal work of the American Board now involves close cooperation with other national and equal churches.

In 150 years, nearly 5,000 missionaries have been sent to 34 different fields abroad. More than 1,000 schools and colleges and theological seminaries have been established. A Christian community numbering 35,000 Christian nationals is related to the work of our American Board. More than $5,000,000 for the support of these enterprises is raised annually, $4,000,000 of this by nationals on the fields abroad.

This 150th anniversary of the American Board not only looks back but also looks forward. We need to assume an increasing share in the cooperative mission of ecumenical Christianity. Christianity is a minority religion in most countries of the world and we need to reach out to match exploding populations in Asia, Latin America and Africa. Never was national creative Christian leadership more needed today everywhere in the world.

Increasingly, we are coming to see that at the heart of the Christian church is the necessity to reproduce itself and carry its life saving, good news of the availability of God and the saving grace of Jesus Christ not simply to its own community but throughout this country and around the world. That is the way Christianity spread 2,000 years ago. Christianity is by definition a missionary religion. Every church therefore becomes a missionary church. Every church member must in himself be a missionary, else the magic chain of growth and spread by contagion breaks and the life dies. The American Board believes that Christianity will not die and it seeks to bend all its efforts to spreading the Word of Life everywhere.

Old Missionary Lane Is Now Known As Woodland Road

Missionary Lane - an old-time road - occupies its appropriate spot in the development of plans for foreign missions.

For this was one of the favorite "walks" taken by those serious-minded Seminary students, as they talked about and planned the foreign mission movement.

Many men and women driving along that street today, and seeing the commonplace name "Woodland rd.", wouldn't realize that it once played its part in the missions' history.

The street itself runs from Salem st. to Highland rd. And back in the late 1800's, it was surrounded by woodlands. Thus the modern name.

Whether or not the name is actually official remains somewhat of a mystery even today. For the old town records are reluctant to show when, if ever, the name was changed by vote of town meeting.

But usage changed what the voters probably did not, and after some years of discussion, the change was accomplished. By 1928-'29, the commercial directories no longer carried the name "Missionary Lane", although they had done so throughout the first 27 years of this century.

It was in 1901 that the first change was proposed - and that was by the Selectmen, William Goldsmith, Samuel H. Boutwell and John S. Stark. Town meeting held the list up for a year, giving anyone a chance to register objections.

Reading between the lines, these must have been many. Because in the 1903 town meeting, the name "Missionary Lane" was officially retained by the voters, while they accepted all the other recommended changes.

After that, the record stops. In 1909, a warrant article was approved for the extension of water pipes down "Woodland rd., as far as the residence of John Franklin". In the years between 1903 and 1909 there had not been any official change.

But in the memory of older residents, there had been continuing pressure that was effective, none the less.

Finally, the town simply posted it "Woodland rd."

The old name lingered on for a few years, used interchangeably with Woodland.

And why was the change desired? The "Missionary" part of the name wasn't in too much disfavor, according to one resident whose memory goes back that far. But in the heat of the argument, even that designation came in for some criticism.

The biggest reason, it is said, was prestige. At least one resident just didn't like living on a "lane".

First Group Was Trouble-Laden

Transportation in 1812 was a far cry from that of today.

The first missionaries took sailing ships, and faced long voyages before arriving at their destination.

The Judsons and Newells sailed from Salem aboard the "Caravan" Feb. 19, 1812. Aboard the "Harmony", out of Philadelphia, were the Notts, and the Revs. Hall and Rice. Both ships were headed for Calcutta.

The "Caravan" arrived in Calcutta June 17. The "Harmony" arrived a few days later.

But the missionaries were confronted by the hostility of the governor-general and the East India Company, which wanted no missionaries.

The Newells sailed for Mauritius - the Isle of France - where they understood missionaries would be accepted.

The others were to be sent to England, but through wearing disguises, managed to run away from Calcutta.

The Judsons got to Burma, and Hall and Nott reached Bombay. The latter were treated like criminals at Bombay, because the war between England and the United States was underway. They tried to escape to Ceylon, where they heard Newell had landed, but were arrested. Finally they were allowed to remain until their status was cleared up, and about two years later they heard that missionaries were to be allowed, under certain conditions.

The Newells, on their long trip to Mauritius, had a sad trip. A child born to the couple aboard ship died, and then Mrs. Newell died shortly after landing at the French island. Later he started to join the others at Bombay, but stopped at Ceylon.

With local approval and understanding, he remained and was later joined by other missionaries, including one of the original seven - James Richards.

Samuel Mills, the seventh of the original group to be mentioned here, did not go to India. His particular abilities were recognized to be inspirational and organizational.

In fact, he became chief fund raiser and a guiding hand to the movement in the United States.

SOUTH CHURCH WELCOMES CONFERENCE

meals. They are the Bradford Church, Ward Hill Congregational Church and the West Boxford Congregational Church.

Sunday night and throughout Monday and Tuesday, the Conference meetings will be held in Andover.

At 8 o'clock Sunday, a public meeting will be held in South Church. During the service, a procession of retired and furloughed missionaries and nationals will be held, featuring a display of flags representing countries that have been served by the American Board.

Monday's activities begin with registration in Fellowship Hall. The annual business meeting will be called to order at 8:45 at South Church. Town Manager Thomas E. Duff will bring the greetings of the community to that session.

Noontime Meetings
Six luncheon meetings, combining food and discussion, will be held Monday at 12:30.

The "Churches and Colleges" luncheon will take place in Christ Episcopal Church. Those attending the "Christian Education" luncheon will go to the Free Congregational Church. A discussion of "Evangelism" will take place at the luncheon served in the November Club on Locke st. The Abbot Academy gymnasium will be the scene of the fourth luncheon, where missions will be discussed. Those interested in "Social Action" will travel to the West Parish Church. And the sixth session, entitled "Town and Country Churches", will be held in the Baptist Church.

2 Afternoon Sessions
Two separate meetings will be held in the afternoon.

The Fellowship of Congregational Women meets at the South Church, while the Massachusetts Congregational Laymen's Council meets at the Free Christian Church.

The Women's group will continue into the evening, with supper served at the Junior High Cafeteria.

The Laymen's Council will remain at the South Church for its evening meal and continue its program.

Tuesday's Events
A joint Communion service will be held at 8:30 Tuesday morning, and conference business will be on the agenda at 9:30.

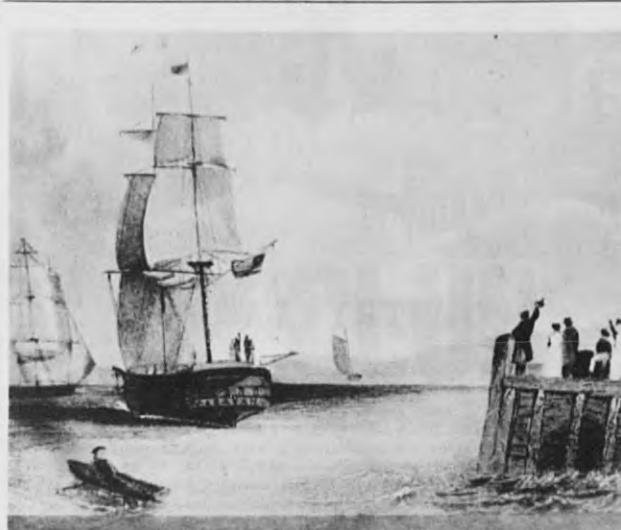

Meetings will take place throughout the morning, followed by a "Fellowship Luncheon" at 12:30 in the Fellowship Hall of South Church. The Conference will adjourn following this session.

Housing Problem

One of the problems facing the South Church during preparations for the Conference has been housing for delegates who wished to remain here for the duration of the meetings.

Dr. William V. Emmons, chairman of the Committee, said arrangements have been made for nearly 200 persons, many of whom will live in private residences. Others are being cared for in surrounding towns and commercial establishments in the general area.

The delegates were expected to be mobile, however, with many preferring to commute to their homes daily.

INDIA BOUND - The Caravan set sail from Salem in 1812, carrying some of the young missionaries on their way to India.

Members of that committee, following day the trio reported favorable recommendation, and conference voted to approve publishing the American Board. They didn't have many ideas as to the idea would be carried out - the mechanics were left to the members. But they were convinced that the action was necessary.

Two years later, proof of wisdom was in hand, with sailing of the first American Board's first foreign missionaries for India.

Missionaries From Andover

The birthplace of the foreign mission movement, Andover continued to support the work, and the party continued as a training ground for missionaries.

In the "Congregationalist Christian World" in 1910, the C. C. Carpenter of Andover stated that 248 missionaries were sent, in whole or in part, at the Seminary. And 222 of them were commissioned by the American Board.

The aggregate service of them is noted at that time, was 15 years and many were still in the field.

Wedding . . .

McCarthy - O'Neil

At a nuptial Mass at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, April 30, in St. Augustine's Church, Miss Irene W. O'Neil, daughter of Joseph O'Neil, 49 Red Spring rd., became the bride of William N. McCarthy Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William N. McCarthy, 75 Beaumont st., Springfield. The Rev. Neil J. Crogan, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Miss Mary F. Lanigan presided at the organ and the soloist was Mrs. Mark McCormiskey. White anemones and shasta daisies adorned the altar.

Entering the church with her father, the bride wore a waltz length gown of imported Chantilly lace with a sweetheart neckline, encrusted with seed pearls, and a fitted bodice and cap sleeves in a fitted bodice and a bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was attached to a matching half hat and she carried a white prayer book topped with white Georgette Orchids and Stephanotis streamers.

Her honor attendant, Mrs. Mary Broder, wore a street length gown of pink organza with a scoop neckline and capelet sleeves in a fitted bodice. The bouffant skirt was accented with a deep rose back bustle and cummerbund. She wore a pink silk organza headpiece with a matching veil and carried pale blue feathered carnations and ivy in cascade effect.

The bridesmaid, Miss Winifred Leaman, wore a similar costume in blue and carried pink carnations with ivy.

The junior bridesmaid, Miss

Barbara Jean O'Neil, wore a pink organza frock with a shirred bodice and bouffant skirt. She wore a headband of pink rosebuds and carried a miniature bouquet of blue, pink and white feathered carnations and ivy.

Donald Baudin was best man for his cousin and the ushers were William O'Neil, brother of the bride, and Robert McGarron, her cousin.

2 Appeal Board Requests Denied

After failing to work out an agreeable solution for the improvement of the property, the Board of Appeals has turned down an application by Thomas L. Barron for permission to put up a two-bay gasoline station and store at Haggett's Pond rd. and Lowell st.

In a decision rendered this week, the Board stated that it had attempted to work out some solution to the problem with Mr. Barron because the Board felt that the request would be a legitimate extension of a non-conforming use. When a solution could not be reached, the Board denied the petition.

The present business is located in a Residential C area, and exists as a non-conforming use because it was there prior to adoption of the zoning by-law. The Board noted that the property "was in a rather shabby state of repair and that a large number of commercial vehicles appear to be garaged there".

In another decision, the Board turned down a request by Frederick E. Neergaard to divide land on Summer st. so a one-family dwelling could be built. The Board indicated that the resulting lot would not be in the best interests of the neighborhood.

The Board also stated that, while it does not consider the number of tax bills or the amounts when making decisions, it would seem fair that the applicant receive only one bill, and that based on an assessment for one lot.

Mr. Neergaard told the Board earlier that he gets three bills, based on three small lots. His home stands on one part of the area, and he sought to divide the total land so that a second house could be built. The Appeals Board indicated that it could not act because the property had not been placed in separate ownership prior to a state law on this subject.

CONFUSION OVER ZONING PROPOSAL

building. The area is Zone C residential, thus requiring changes if the plans are approved.

In another section of town, a suggestion for an apartment district near the veterans' and elderly housing area has been made.

In West Andover, Fred Doyle has asked that his lumber yard area be zoned so that he can continue his business there without operating under the restrictions applied to non-conforming uses. This step was suggested by the Board of Appeals some time ago, when it denied Doyle's request for expansion.

Still another proposal concerns land at the junction of Stevens st. and North Main st., now residential. It has been rumored that owners of that property wish it zoned for business.

The Planning Board, in the face of mounting requests, decided Monday night that it will not sponsor any articles in the warrant other than the country club.

However, applicants may draw their own articles and, accompanied by a petition with 100 signatures, insert them in the warrant.

The Planning Board must hold a hearing on any zoning changes that are proposed, giving 21 days notice. As the hearing must be held prior to town meeting, the members noted Monday that time is fast disappearing for the insertion of special articles.

The Board's decision not to consider any zoning changes except one caught the Industrial Commission by surprise.

That group, believing that an over-all zoning change along Route 93 is desirable, recommended to the Planning Board that specific changes be made.

Secretary Joseph Doherty said the Commission was under the impression that the Planning Board wished to propose area changes, rather than the specific zoning alterations.

The Commission suggested zoning a triangle, bounded by Route 93, Dascomb rd. and Route 93 be zoned for industry. This area abuts an industrial section of Tewksbury. Another recommendation from the Commission urged re-zoning of a strip along the west side of Route 93 to within 1,000 feet of the Lowell st. interchange, from Dascomb rd.

A third recommendation was to have some of the industrial area in West Andover revert to residential.

However, the Planning Board decided Monday not to propose even this general re-zoning until further study has been given the subject.

One of the problems facing the Board is the preparation of appropriate rules and regulations for the areas, including the uses permitted.

It was explained that so many suggestions have now been made for specific sites, and for various uses, that considerable attention must be given to writing the regulations in a way that will allow full use, but maintain necessary restrictions.

As an example, the Board felt that creation of a shopping center area in the Dascomb rd. section, so that a motel could be erected, would also leave the door open to the construction of stores. This has not even been suggested by the applicant, but under present zoning, the shopping center regulations are the only ones that could apply to the area and accomplish what the applicant wishes.

Thus the confusion that might develop after hasty action was believed to be a compelling factor in refusing to consider any articles now.

The Board and other town officials have stated their individual beliefs that zoning should be taken up at regular town meetings, when more voters are present.

In the face of this decision, it was reliably reported that the motel project will be before the voters June 6 at Memorial Auditorium, providing a petition is circulated in time.

One resident of the area, Vincent Treanor, warned at a public hearing last week that he would oppose any so-called spot zoning in the area, even taking the issue to court if necessary.

Other residents are known to be opposed to zoning for business or industry in what is now a one-acre lot residential zone.

One additional project in that neighborhood - a proposal by the Knights of Columbus Council to use two buildings on Osgood st. belonging to Andrew Pendleton as Council quarters, will come before the zoning Board of Appeals June 2.

As the organization is of a non-profit nature the law allows the Board of Appeals to grant a variance if it agrees to the proposal, instead of requiring a zoning change.

Art Exhibit Is Scheduled May 22

Sunday, May 22, from 9-5 o'clock, the public is cordially invited to attend an exhibition called "Creative Thoughts" by the Art Department of Andover High School.

The students will present their original works of art. Their ideas are born through observation and imagination, given mental growth and significance through a knowledge and understanding of the structure of design, color-line, space-light, and form, and finally made visual through ingenious application of varied media. Andover High School art students have learned that art grows out of their awareness and perception of life and their discernment of things seen and not seen.

The result is a lively, fresh, and interesting interpretation of life.

Senior Production Coming May 20

May 20th and 21 are the dates for the Andover High School Senior Class Production "Weekend at Andanno".

The production depicts a weekend at Andanno College at the Alpha Sigma Chi Fraternity. The theme is divided into two acts: Friday night, the fraternity party before the big football game with the North Andanno Knights; and Saturday night, the big victory party.

Robert Twigg is the chairman of the production and Mrs. Madeline Simeone is the overall advisor.

Tickets are available and may be purchased from any high school senior.

MEMBERSHIP OVER LAST YEAR'S TOTAL

The Andover Youth Center wound up the year with 1,128 paid-up members, according to Director Donald D. Dunn.

This was an increase of about 100 over last year, he explained, even though the six-year-olds were not taken into membership in the past season.

A 56-foot building with some 2,000 square feet of space will be built on the lot now being excavated on North Main st., across from the Tyer Rubber Co.

Charles Nigrelli, 29 Sutherland st., has purchased the property and plans to operate his photo studio there.

Mr. Nigrelli's "Charles Studio" facilities were destroyed in a Lawrence fire some weeks ago.

He said portrait, commercial and industrial work will be handled at the new studios, as well as the accompanying processing activity.

Mr. Nigrelli emphasized the value of the Andover location, with access through the new highways, in announcing his intention to build here.

The planned building will be semi-colonial, with a brick facing. Of one-story construction, it will be constructed near the sidewalk, with ample parking facilities at the sides of the building.

Excavation has been underway on the site all week, Mr. Nigrelli said the construction of a retaining wall at the rear of the property is taking considerable time, but expressed the belief that actual construction of the building will be finished by July 1.

The area is zoned for business, and a building permit has been issued for the new studio, with an estimated cost of $16,000.

Miss Frances Lamb of Brookline spent the weekend with Mrs. William Stewart of High Plain rd.

Hearing June 2 On Council Plan

A hearing will be held by the Board of Appeals Thursday, June 2, at 7:45 in the town hall, on the application of the Knights of Columbus for permission to renovate buildings on Osgood st.

The local Council's building committee seeks to renovate the barns owned by Andrew Pendleton.

As a fraternal, non-profit organization, the Board of Appeals has the authority to vary the zoning by-law and allow the use in a residential area.

Grand Knight William Tammany said the larger of the structures would be used for Council rooms and a large hall upstairs. Banquet facilities would be available, he stated.

The smaller building would be converted for youth activities, he explained.

Tammany said there would be ample parking facilities on the premises, and there would be no need of cars remaining on the street.
