Pike School Graduated 28

Twenty-eight boys and girls graduated from The Pike School in Andover Monday.

There were 12 girls and 16 boys in the group, which is composed of representatives from six different communities in the Merrimack Valley.

The exercises, held in the school's assembly hall, featured songs rendered by the Eighth Grade Chorus under the direction of Donald Amy. The Rev. Ernest O. Brown gave the invocation and also offered prayer and benediction. William H. Harding, headmaster, presented the awards and diplomas.

Twelve members of the Class of '58 who have just completed four years of secondary school and are looking forward to college in September, 1962, were present. Four members of this class spoke briefly to the Pike School graduating class offering advice and reflections on life at the secondary school level. The speakers were (Continued on Page Two)

Site For Council Building Approved By Appeals Board

Council 1078, Knights of Columbus, has received permission to use Lowell st. land for its proposed new building.

The Board of Appeals listed a number of restrictions, while giving an affirmative decision.

The property, sold to the Council by Ernest Couture, contains about 6.8 acres. It abuts the animal hospital property to the west.

In its decision, the Board of Appeals noted that heavy opposition existed from residents in the area. But the Board felt that, although some residents might not understand, there actually could be an improvement to the neighborhood, as a result of the construction.

it also felt that the members "would not tolerate the conduct of activities on its premises which, in any way, would be detrimental to the Town of Andover or to the particular neighborhood". Completing its comment on this phase of the discussion, the Board's decision noted that "only the Selectmen" can grant a liquor license.

The decision stated the members' (Continued on Page 18)

David Eldridge, a teacher of physics at Andover High School for the past two years, will join a team of educators at Ohio University's teacher training project in Nigeria during the next two years.
Dean F. N. Hamblin of the College of Education said the group will leave sometime this summer for Ibadan, capital of the Western Region of Nigeria, to be ready for the September opening of the school year. Chief of party is Dr. Donald A. Green, assistant professor of education at Ohio.

"ANSWER ME IN ONE WORD"
 By Wendy Blackman

Three hundred years ago William Shakespeare wrote some forty plays; for three hundred years his plays have been read, studied, and acted. What makes his plays so admired? What makes them so great? Undoubtedly it is that what he wrote over three centuries ago retains life, vigor, and timeliness today. This fact, already presented in our year book, was the first to come to mind as we chose a theme for our graduation. It is a tribute to Shakespeare's true greatness that we show how his thoughts are so applicable to our way of thinking today.

As I pondered over the quotation, "Answer me in one word," I wondered what one word might best describe the most essential quality one must possess for a life that is rich and full.

My first thought was that it is Love; a love for living, of working with one's fellow man, of working for God and country. But Love cannot stand alone. When one thinks of Love, he automatically involves Faith. For if one loves a person or an ideal, he must place his Faith there; such Faith as that which you, our parents and friends, have had in us. You, in this Faith, have given us this beautiful high school and the best of teachers. For this and for everything, we say "and ever thanks."

However, Love and Faith combined are not enough. Perhaps Youth is the word I seek. I do not mean Youth in a physical sense, but rather Youth as a state of feeling, as an attitude toward life. The quality of youthfulness never gives up hope, but is always seeking new horizons.

Closely bound with this conception of Youth is continued Education. It is fitting that we think of Education here at our graduation, or rather our commencement, for in reality this is the beginning. Education is a broad term, encompassing wide areas. It can mean formal learning, or the education from living, from experience. It is ours to choose. We have received a firm base upon which we can build to make our lives like circles in the water that never cease to expand into ever-enlarging rings, strong and true.

Shakespeare did not use any word to embrace all these qualities; no dictionary contains such a word either. It seems, then, that there is no such word; that these qualities are not meant to be amassed into one all-inclusive word, but to remain forever, a question.

"HOW FAR THAT LITTLE CANDLE
 BEAMS"

By Renee J. Dubocq

To many a distraught sea captain of the eighteenth century, working his way home at the mercy of the raging seas, the faint beckoning glimmer of a waxen candle on shore was his symbol of hope. To the world, now struggling for international unity amid threats of war, youth, like the captain's candle, is the symbol of hope.

As the youth of Andover, we have attempted to broaden ourselves under guidance received at home and at school; thus there has existed for us a dual environment which has molded our characters as the two hands that shaped the candle. It seems only yesterday that we enrolled in Andover High School as sophomores, struggling in vain for acceptance. As juniors, no longer scorned by upperclassmen, we became a vital functioning organ of the student body. As seniors, we have accepted added responsibility end, have enjoyed the short-lived prestige of our position. Past victories and disappointments have helped to develop in us strength and courage enough to battle difficulties and overcome them, love enough to be useful and helpful to others, faith enough to make real the will of God, and hope enough to remove all anxieties concerning the future.

After a candle has been shaped and lighted, it is capable of shedding its beams in any dark part of the world. The effectiveness of the candle depends upon how far it throws its beams. The effectiveness of a student depends upon how much of an effort he makes to succeed. However, there is more to life than just material success. As education lights the mind, so religion lights the soul; and from this combination comes the faith so essential for real success and complete happiness.

I would like to feel that each of us has lighted a candle this evening; a candle whose beam will in some way, large or small, meld with others to bring about a world in which faith is strong and in which the feeling of brotherhood will grow. The world is comprised of groups like ours. May our circle of light like the circle in the water never cease to enlarge itself.

"NOTHING WILL COME OF NOTHING"

By Dennis R. Houle

Today marks the end of a significant portion of our lives. We must realize that it really is an end; that now we must all embark upon our separate courses, leaving an environment which has, over the last few years, been of primary importance in the molding of our ideals and ambitions. We cannot allow ourselves to live in the past, which, after all, has been but preparation toward a successful future. Things are going to be different from now on, and our memories must be placed in proper perspective.

Most of us have been together here at the high school for the past three years, and in many cases have been together much longer than that. We have come to know one another, and have grown to recognize in one another those principles and ideologies which we respect, as well as those of which we are more highly critical. It has been largely through our associations with the diverse personalities which constitute our class that we have developed our characters.

We, of course, have shared a great many interests together:

studies, activities inside and outside of school; endless stories about our classmates and our faculty.

We may outwardly scoff at sentimentality concerning graduations; yet whether we wish it so or not, the years we have spent together have left their mark upon us; and throughout our lives we will find our thoughts returning to our high school days. We may wonder what- ever became of some member of our class, or we may recall the idiosyncrasies of a certain teacher, or we may remember a special date or party. But we will remember.

I think it fitting that we stop in the near future to evaluate just what these ideals and ambitions we have developed are. We might ask of ourselves whether or not they will prove beneficial in the kind of lives we wish to lead. Our lives must have direction, and we must satisfy ourselves that we have, to the best of our knowledge, chosen the proper direction to suit our needs and capabilities. It may well be that upon careful consideration, we will realize that alterations must be made. Above all, we must, as we plan our futures with insight and care, keep in mind that the world owes us nothing that we do not earn.

As we meet here together for the last time, I think we must pause to realize just what Andover High School has done for us and what it has meant to us.

"... MUST GIVE US PAUSE"

By Richard D. Sheaff

"Nothing will come of nothing" is an often-quoted expression which, especially now, warrants some attention. The basis for this quotation seems to indicate that something will come of something. The effects of these words are universal. If we care to look at the world's prominent men and women or to think back on the leaders of the past, we will observe the true meaning of achieving goals from sincere efforts.

However, it is not necessary to look that far afield, for we can find, in our own class, the results of "something will come of something." Many of us can look with pride towards our academic or athletic achievements. Some can be well pleased with accomplishments in specific fields, be it biology, bookkeeping, or basketball. But perhaps the greatest sensation of pride emanates from success based on self-satisfying effort.

The ability to strive is characteristic of every human being; some actively employ this trait for their own gain; others would rather pretend that any effort is futile. Unfortunately for them, monotony and conformity are the inevitable results.

These ideas merit deeper consideration. Let us look, in widely divergent fields, at a few persons who have made efforts to achieve worthwhile goals.

Winston Churchill, during the dark years before World War Two was a man faced with obscurity. He had been detained from his office because of a previous tactical mistake. Yet Churchill was a man of effort. He did not give up as many others would have. Instead, he fought on, demonstrated his ability and integrity, and led England during its finest hour.

Robert Frost was different. Rather than lead a normally conformist life, he sought to express his ideals through verse. Frost, realizing that the life of no poet is easy, worked very hard to achieve his goal. As a result, today he is the unofficial Poet Laureate of the United States.

Finally, consider someone less widely known. Byron White, born and raised in a small Western farm town, enrolled at the University of Colorado where he was recognized both as an outstanding scholar and as an All-American football player. Later, after working his way through college, he played professional football. However, White still desired to strive for greater knowledge. Following the grant of a Rhodes Scholarship, he obtained his law degree.

this year accepted one of the highest honors in the land: an appointment to the Supreme Court. All of us cannot be Churchills, or Frosts, or "Whizzer" Whites, but all of us can make positive efforts towards achievement. Whether we wish to become scientists or businessmen, teachers or clergymen, the degree of success will be proportionate to the desire to strive and achieve.

It will be as true in the future, as it has been in the past, that the "haves" and the "have-nots" reflect back to the "dids" and the "did-nots."

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Harsh Measures Needed

Residents of Lovejoy rd. have expressed a very real fear that their country street will become a drag strip, once the planned reconstruction takes place.

The road is to be repaired and widened, via Chapter 90, this summer.

At a hearing last week, residents expressed concern that traffic will be worse, speed will be greater and that racing will become a danger to anyone living on the street.

Andover shares this problem of racing with all other communities — but we have to solve our own problem, in our own way.

The problem can be stated simply enough.

Too many younger drivers, using all types of vehicles ranging from new to souped-up older models, are racing on the roads. Of special interest to them are the secondary roads that have now been widened and made, in effect, into through-ways. But they also race on old, dirt roads — to see who will "chicken out" first, or who has the most skill in avoiding rocks and holes.

Is there a solution to the problem?

The police can't handle this alone — no community can station officers at every bad intersection, at every smooth road in the town. So it isn't enough to suggest that the police crack down through more enforcement. There just aren't enough policemen available for blanket coverage of the town all of the day and night.

But the enforcement we now have, if coupled with the harshest action by the Registry of Motor Vehicles, could do the trick.

We mean automatic suspension of the operator's license the first time he is caught racing or dragging, possibly even the first time he is caught speeding. And that suspension should be for a long time — maybe a year for those in the age bracket most susceptible to accidents caused by speed and neglect.

Prompt, stringent measures would go far towards convincing the younger people that they must slow down; that they must have some respect for other people.

It may be that every driver who finally becomes involved in an accident resulting from too much speed has, previously, had a record for speeding. But, because our laws do not make it mandatory, the operator has either regained his license very soon, or has never lost it. If the operator had, on the first proven offense, lost his license for a year, and then perhaps regained it on a probationary basis, we think he would be a more careful person.

These measures may be severe, but they are certainly warranted, based on the record of what is happening here and in other communities every day of the week.

Home-Grown Riddle

A bit of a riddle has been created during the latest discussions about acquiring land for school sites throughout the town.

No one seriously doubts the need for additional sites; it only makes sense to acquire them now, before available areas are sub-divided and, thus, more expensive.

But we just don't know, at this point, who has the responsibility for site selection.

We recall hearing several statements from the Land Acquisition Committee chairman, Harold Rafton, all to the point that his committee merely tries to acquire land pinpointed by the School Committee. In these statements, he declined to accept responsibility for choosing the site itself, based on the authority granted by town meeting.

At a recent discussion with the Selectmen, at least one member of the School Committee wondered aloud whether the Selectmen couldn't help in solving the problem of whether one, or two, sites are needed in southern Andover, and where. And the recreation was, as expected, "Who, us?"

Now the School Committee has designated its choice of sites — including a site somewhere in the "Scotland District" — south Andover. The letter pointedly went to the Selectmen, with copies to the Land Committee.

The riddle, of course, is which committee or board has the responsibility? Seems to us that the Selectmen would be in a poor position to make a decision; the Land Committee apparently feels it can not; and the School Committee won't.

CAPITOL COMMENT

BY YOUR CONGRESSMAN
BRAD MORSE

Movement of thousands of U. S. troops to Thailand and South Vietnam is being hailed, by some, as reminiscent of 1958 when President Eisenhower ordered the Marines to Lebanon. Ike's swift, decisive action prevented the collapse of the Middle East to Communism.

The situation in Southeast Asia, however, is far less encouraging. Many observers fear we have not moved swiftly enough. By insisting on a coalition government in Laos, which most experts agree would be Anti-U.S., we gave the Reds valuable time for a take-over of the little nation. The "cease-fire" agreement we negotiated in Geneva was never honored nor did the Kremlin ever intend it to be honored. For that matter, we never really demanded that it be honored. A statement by our roving ambassador, Averill Harriman, that "We really don't much care what happens to Laos" must have sounded like an open invitation to the Pathet Lao and their Sino-Soviet mentors.

Why should we care that this tiny nation, with its politically indifferent population of three million, has all but vanished behind the Bamboo Curtain?

Geography gives Laos its strategic importance: it borders on four non-Communist Countries: Burma, Cambodia, and, like a wedge, between Thailand and Vietnam, two of our most staunch allies. As Communists swarm over Laos, our position on both Thai and Vietnamese borders becomes increasingly critical.

Since 1954 it has been our firm intention to defend Southeast Asia. We have poured in hundreds of millions of dollars in economic, technical and military aid. The new Administration reiterated this determination in 1961 when Vice President Johnson, on his Asian tour, assured both Thailand and South Vietnam that we would block Communist advances in Southeast Asia. Attorney General Kennedy, just last February in Saigon, promised: "We are going to win in Vietnam. We will remain until we do."

In spite of our pledges, however, the situation has continually become more critical. Deployment of our military to Thailand and South Vietnam does recognize the commitments we have made, not only to this area of the globe but to the Free World as a whole. It is encouraging.

Southeast Asia, with its 275 million inhabitants, must not be sacrificed to Red China. Its waters are virtually indispensable to world trade. All of the major shipping between the Pacific basin and Indian Ocean must pass through these waters. The Strait of Malacca has been compared in importance to the Panama Canal. Nearly 90 percent of the world's demand for rubber is met by Southeast Asia. It mines 60 percent of the world's tin. Most of the world's copra, coconut oil, quinine, kapok, teak and pepper comes from this area.

Occupation of Southeast Asia by Red China would place Singapore, the Philippines, Australia, Japan, and our entire string of Pacific defense bases in immediate peril.

The loss of Southeast Asia would be a devastating blow to the Free World.

I do not believe that most U. S. citizens agree with U. N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, who said: "It really doesn't matter when one of these countries slips behind the Iron Curtain."

It matters terribly.

Mr. Fix-It

Most home-owners today are willing to tackle repairing, construction, painting, cement work, and up-keep in general, yet many of them know that they need a little more know-how in order to do a successful job. Libraries are well aware of this trend to the do-it-yourself system, and in recent weeks many feel that there has been an excellent handbook published which they can offer in full confidence.

The two volume "Audel's Do-It-Yourself Encyclopedia" has been added to the Memorial Hall Library and staff members are finding that it has many of the helps most asked for by readers. A few of the subjects included are built-ins, attics, basements, plumbing, cabinet making, floor installation, wallpapering, air conditioning, fireplaces, lawn mowers, and tile work. Step-by-step presentation with hundreds of unusual photographs and sketches help each project become a successful reality.

Ask for the set on your next visit to the library. It is ready for circulation, on the usual three-week loan period.

Recently, in Free Christian Church, Grace Isabel Klein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Klein, 4 Highland ave., became the bride of John A. MacPhee Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. MacPhee, 36 Duxfield rd., Worcester.

The Rev. J. Allyn Bradford, pastor, officiated before an altar banked with pink and white gladioli and peonies and the traditional wedding marches were played.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was preceded to the altar by Mrs. Linda Daniels of North Andover, who served as matron of honor and her bridesmaids, Miss Gail Patrick of Auburn, and Miss Dawn Turner of Bangor, Me., both of whom were classmates of the bride.

The bride wore a white silk organza over taffeta gown fashioned with a scalloped cap sleeves. The bodice and front of bouffant skirt featured scrolls of braided jeweled appliques of iridescents. A bustle back terminated in cathedral train. Her three tiered veil of silk illusion was caught to a jeweled coronation crown of pearls and iridescent drops. For her bouquet, she chose a cascade of rubrum lilies and ivy.

All the attendants were attired in orchid silk organza over taffeta street length dresses, featuring scoop necklines, fitted bodices and bowed backs. Appliques of lace flower rosettes complemented each dress. They wore matching pill boxes and veils and the matron of honor carried a cascade bouquet of yellow marguerites and yellow mums, while the bridesmaids carried the same arrangement with orchid mums.

Jeffery Barnes of Winston, Conn., was best man and the ushers were Peter Whitall of Boston, Michael Worna of Meriden, Conn., Harold Lunn of Lawrence, cousin of the bride and head usher; and Walter Kangas, cousin of the bridegroom of Boston.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua embroidered silk organza sheath with a matching petaled hat and bone accessories. She wore a corsage of baby pink rose buds. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a yellow silk linen sheath with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of talisman rosebuds.

A reception was held in the lower parish hall of the church where the couple received guests from

Object To Road Changes

Residents of Lovejoy rd. expressed strong objections to changing the character of their street, during a hearing June 9.

The meeting was called to go over plans for the Chapter 90 reconstruction of the street, eventually from Dascomb rd. to Lowell st. This year's work will involve only the portion from Dascomb rd. to the new school.

It is proposed that a 50-foot right-of-way be taken, with 26 feet of paved road surface to be constructed. The remainder of the land will be utilized for a sidewalk on the westerly side of the street, and for proper sloping.

In addition to increased traffic when the school opens next September, the street must be used by members or guests of the Indian Ridge Country Club. Some officials have estimated that as many as 1,000 cars may use the town street to get to the Club on a busy weekend afternoon.

Residents were specially concerned that reconstruction will bring speeding, racing and "dragging" by the younger set.

And they also objected to losing the character of the country road - pointing out that the new street will be a smooth through-way from Dascomb rd. to Lowell st.

Town Manager Thomas E. Duff noted, however, that the street is better to be wider than at present - because this would be safer than having so many cars using the narrow road. Speed takes place whenever a road is smooth, it was noted - thus resurfacing the present width would only lead to speeding on a dangerously narrow street.

Little Stories about Great Hymns
Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah

*Guide me, O Thou great Jehovah
Pilgrim through this barren land,
I am weak, but Thou art mighty
Hold me with Thy powerful hand.*

The composer, William Williams, was inspired to a dynamic practice of his Christian faith through an open-air sermon by the famous Welsh preacher, Howell Harris. Williams too became a powerful speaker and singer. His first hymn book appeared in 1744 when he was only 27 years old, and contained this well-loved hymn of faith and trust in the Lord.

WAS IT SET? Fire Chief Henry L. Hilton and Lt. Joseph E. Driscoll, State Fire Marshal's office, think incendiarism or vandalism caused this spectacular Shawsheen Heights blaze last Saturday night. The home, off Topping rd. on Woodland st., was vacant due to Route 495 land takings. The structure was destroyed, and firefighters had a big job keeping flames from spreading into the woods. (Frank J. Leone Jr.)

Middlebury College.

He became affiliated with the Lawrence newspapers as a reporter and was named assistant managing editor in 1950. He held that position until 1956, when he became managing editor.

Prominently identified with civic activities, Mr. Rogers took an active part in community affairs.

Early in 1959 he served as chairman of the Wilkinson Award Dinner sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and later was presented with a special tribute by the membership, for his efforts in behalf of the program.

The following year, Governor Dummer Academy elected him president of the Alumni Association and executive committee. Earlier he had served as a member of the Board and as vice president.

He was active in the United Fund, and in the affairs of the Community Chest.

Mr. Rogers was elected president of the United Press International Newspaper Editors of Massachusetts, at the annual meeting last year. He was to have presided over a business session last week in Boston.

He was affiliated as a director with the Eagle-Tribune Publishing Co., the Eagle-Tribune Realty Co., The Consolidated Press Inc. and the Andover Publishing Co.

He also was a director of the Merrimack Cooperative Bank and the Bon Secours Guild. He was affiliated with the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Rotary Club, The Eagle-Tribune Associates, Vesper Country Club, the Men of Merrimack and the Lanam Club.

He married the former Joyce Demers in January, 1953, and the couple have three children, Amy, Allan Buttrick Jr., and Walter.

Besides his wife, children and parents, Mr. Rogers is survived by two brothers, Irving E. Rogers Jr. and Alexander H. Rogers II.

APPROVE SITE FOR COUNCIL BUILDING

belief that the Council has tried hard to find a good location for its quarters. Lowell st., the decision continued, is a through-way and is not primarily an access to residential homes.

Within the law, the decision said, the Board can allow a variance when this will be good for the neighborhood - and within the law, this could well be the case, it stated.

In its restrictions, the Board listed the following:

No structure or driveway can be built within 75 feet of the westerly lot line; the main building will be set back at least 100 feet from Lowell st.; only one driveway will be allowed from Lowell st.

Parking will be in the rear of the building, behind a ridge; detailed plans must be submitted to the Board for approval; no outside loudspeakers are allowed, only an identification sign, as approved later, can be installed, and only that lighting required by the police department for safe driving and parking of cars will be approved.

There can be no outside picnics, dances or similar activities after dark, and all outside activities are confined to the rear of the building.

The Board requires that detailed plans must be presented for approval within one year, or the permit is void.

The area involved has about 234 feet of frontage on Lowell st.

Almost directly across the street, the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Lawrence has secured an option on land for a Church. A hearing on a variance to allow this is advertised this week. Not too far up the street, land has been purchased by the Methuen Gospel Hall, for its new Church. The location of the two churches was mentioned during the hearing, as was the possible noise, traffic and disturbance. The decision took note of all these, also agreeing that some outside rentals will be needed by the Council to finance the structure.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Duke and family, formerly of Andover st., are now residing on Lowell Junction rd.

Board Of Trade Votes To Affiliate With G. L. Chamber

The Andover Board of Trade has voted to affiliate with the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce.

The vote came at a meeting June 7.

Many services become available to the local Board as a result of the action.

The Andover Board of Trade retains its own officers, makes its own policies and establishes its own committees.

The Chamber will assign a member of its staff to work with local merchants and committees. Andover businessmen, on the other hand, will be invited to join Chamber committees, working hand-in-hand with other businessmen with similar problems.

The meeting, held at the Library, heard a thorough discussion of the proposal.

In summarizing the proposals, it was noted that the Board of Trade would gain the advantages of a trained staff, in its retail promotions, in helping solve community-merchant problems and in building a stronger organization.

Local businessmen would gain as would the Chamber, by having the chance to serve on Chamber committees working on area problems, and by taking part in Chamber courses.

Approve Bid Call For Recreation Site

The Selectmen have given the School Committee permission to call for bids on basic drainage and sub-grading at the High School.

The approval came after the Selectmen reviewed plans for the play fields, at a joint meeting Monday evening.

The only addition to the specifications, as drawn up by the architects, is the inclusion of a clause requiring that a ground cover be maintained, so that dust storms do not develop. Selectman William Stewart expressed the fear that, if loam is not replaced this year, the sand or gravel might blow around the neighborhood and be a nuisance.

Supt. of Schools Edward I. Erickson told the Selectmen that it will be another three or four weeks before bids can be received, based on even a slight change in the specifications. And he hoped, aloud, that the project can be done this summer, prior to the beginning of school in September.
