Town detours hit roadblocks

Police details lacking for summer road projects

BY BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsman.com

One day last month, Fred Furnari was late for a work appointment because a contractor installing a new sewer line on River Road had dug a 10-foot-deep trench across the street he lives on.

On another day, the Furnari Farm Lane resident lost town water service. Then, with no warning, he lost electricity. For several days, he got no mail.

Several times, he said, home-health aides trying to get to the house to help his mother were unable to navigate the ever-changing network of detours and road construction blockades. He said they had to park a half-mile away and walk. Or else they would just turn around and go back to their offices.

Furnari has been at ground zero of what is probably one of the busiest and most disruptive construction seasons Andover has seen in many years.

River Road, now open to traffic, was rerouted for two months on a private sewer project that was only supposed to last a few weeks.

Elm and Chestnut streets are being dug up for water, sewer and hydrant work.

National Grid is in the process of tearing up streets and neighborhoods all over town to replace aging, underground electrical conduits. And paving projects are being done in earnest, taking advantage of warm weather and state and Andover Conservation Commission Agent Robert Douglas talks about the benefits that will come with removal of the Shawsheen River dam near Stevens Street.

Funds OK'd to remove Balmoral, Stevens Street dams

A federal grant of about $864,000 has given new life to a seven-year-old plan to demolish two dams on the Shawsheen River, creating improved habitat for migrating fish and potentially making life safer for people living along the river.

The Coastal Resiliency Grant announced late last month comes from the U.S. Department of Interior and will be administered through the Mass. Department of Fish and Game.

"We were excited to learn that the Coastal Resiliency Grant had been awarded," Town Manager Reginald "Buzz"

The Shawsheen River dam next to Balmoral Condominiums in Andover is slated to be removed as early as next year.

Stapczynski said. "The restoration and removal of two dams on the Shawsheen River has been a goal for the town for many years and we are excited to begin the process."

On June 23, Gov. Deval

Patrick announced that the Interior Department had approved $4.74 million in "coastal resiliency funding ... for dam removal and shoreline protection projects" in Massachusetts.

According to a press release, "the grant funds will support the removal of the Balmoral Dam and the Stevens Street Dam, the first and second dams from the ocean on the Shawsheen River. Both dams are aging and removing the dams will eliminate a safety hazard and open up habitat for migratory and resident fish."

The organizations that applied for the grant said a third dam at Ballardvale should also be removed, but that the owners don't want it taken down. For now, the Ballardvale dam removal is on hold.

College dorms plan draws fire

Merrimack neighbors organize in opposition to 5 new buildings

BY SARA BROWN
Staff Writer

Neighbors of Merrimack College opposed to the school's plans for five new buildings have formed a group and started a petition to protest the proposal.

The college wants to build four new dormitories with a community center in the middle on Austin Field — a tree-lined lot to the right of the college's entrance on Elm Street in Andover. Three of the proposed buildings would be located in Andover and two in North Andover.

The college met with neighbors back in June to unveil the plans. After the meeting, neighbors formed the Coalition for Merrimack College Smart Growth and launched the petition, collecting 400 signatures so far.

"We knew we had to unite when we found about this," Jennifer Ross of Andover said.

Members of the group say they feel like their concerns are being ignored.

"I feel like they are just not being considerate neighbors," Joanna Reck of Andover said. "They obviously don't respect us," Ross added.

However, a spokesman for the college said the school

Town vehicle policy overheats

Contract for new municipal services director renews debate

BY BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsman.com

A deal struck between the town manager and the new director of the Department of Municipal Services has sparked a controversy over the deployment of town vehicles.

Selectman Alex Vispoli wants his board to tighten rules on how town cars are doled out to department heads after Town Manager Reginald "Buzz" Stapczynski gave a 2008, high-mileage Ford Escape to Chris Cronin, the newly appointed municipal services director, as part of his compensation package.

Vispoli claims that initially, when the Department of Municipal Services was reorganized, Cronin, as the new director of the department, was not going to get a car.

Cronin's predecessors had town cars that they could use to commute to and from work and also during the work days and Cronin himself had been issued one in his capacity as acting director for two years.

Vispoli said when the contract with Cronin was finalized, the town manager changed his mind without telling anyone and included a car in the deal.

Wanted NY sex offender turns himself in

BY BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsman.com

A Level 3 sex offender wanted in New York state tried turning himself in to police early on the night of July 4 at the CVS store on Main Street, but it wasn't until he went to the station several hours later that he was actually arrested.

David A. Adams Jr., 52, of 1505 Herkimer Dr., Apt. 24, Utica, N.Y., was wanted by Utica police for failing to register as a sex offender. He had been convicted in 1996 on violent, armed rape charges. Since getting out of jail after an eight- to 16-year jail sentence, he had been required to register as a sex offender. According to Utica police warrant investigator Timothy Moore, Adams had complied with the law and had registered with local police over the years. But then, several months ago, he just disappeared.

Moore said Utica police thought he might have been killed and they were surprised when they got the call over the weekend that Adams was in Massachusetts.

"We were starting to assume something tragic had happened to him," he said. "I was surprised to hear from him. I'd really like to know

DAMS

Restoration, a Rhode Island nonprofit that has spearheaded the dam removal effort, said his organization, along with the state division of Fisheries and Wildlife, submitted the grant request. He said the federal government cut about 10 percent from the original request.

"The grant was less than the request," he said. "We may have to do some more fundraising. But we are full speed ahead to take these dams down in 2015."

Nick Wildman, priority projects coordinator for the state Fish and Wildlife department, agreed.

"The majority of the project costs will be accommodated by matching funds," he said. "This project looks to be well-funded. ... It's under negotiation to determine the exact scope and budget. We were not awarded our entire ask. We have to negotiate with grantors on how to accommodate the cuts."

Dismantling historic dams is not an easy — or inexpensive — task, which is why it has taken so long for the project to get going.

According to Townsman records, the idea of removing all three Shawsheen River dams was first proposed around 2007. Since then, Ardito's group, working with state and local officials, have conducted scores of studies, including sampling the sediment that has built up behind the dams to determine if it is toxic.

Ardito said the silt behind the Stevens Street dam did have some hot spots of contamination, meaning it has to be excavated and removed before the dam can be taken down.

"Any urban river is going to have some low levels of contamination in the sediment," he said. "You couldn't find any urban river that didn't have that. It has to be managed. In the case of Stevens Street, several thousand cubic yards of sediment will be released downstream."

According to Andover Conservation Commission Agent Robert Douglas, a mill at the site of the Stevens Street dam was once used to make gunpowder for the troops under Gen. George Washington's command during the Revolutionary War.

"It will be interesting to see what we find under there," Douglas said during a recent walking tour of the Stevens Street dam.

Douglas said the dam removal will improve conditions for migrating fish and other species that use the river habitat. However, they will only be able to go as far as the Ballardvale dam, which will remain in place.

The headwaters of the river are at the Hanscom Field airport in Bedford. The river is 25 miles long and flows generally northward through the towns of Bedford, Billerica, Wilmington, Tewksbury, Andover, North Andover and Lawrence, where it meets up with the Merrimack River, according to the Shawsheen River Watershed Association website.

The proposal to remove the dams has met with some opposition in the past, and remains controversial to some residents who live on or near the river.

Suzanne Roberts, who lives on Stevens Street, a block or so from the river, said Shawsheen is legally considered an "impaired waterway," and has no real hope of bouncing back from hundreds of years of environmental degradation.

"That, coupled with dramatic low flows due to many permitted and unpermitted withdrawals along the river leads me to conclude this is an experiment that is doomed to fail," Roberts said. "They are trying to reintroduce a species of fish that requires clean water to reproduce. The water quality is not that great and the dam removal will be at the expense of established mill ponds and wetlands that will turn into stinking mudflats filled with invasive species."

Indeed, a highly aggressive form of invasive species — Japanese knotweed — is already growing so thick along the river bank that it has obscured a kayak and canoe launch that was built several years ago as part of the post office expansion project on Stevens Street.

While the Stevens Street dam removal may be contentious, the removal of the Balmoral dam seems to be of little concern.

Don Robb, a Shawsheen historian, said the dam was built by William Wood as part of his Shawsheen Village project.

"Mr. Wood dammed the river and changed the course of it and lined the bottom and banks with granite," Robb said. "What he did was change something that had been there for centuries. Taking the dam out is putting the river back the way it was."

Legend has it that Wood, once the richest man in America, liked to listen to the babbling sound of the water going over the dam while he sat in his top-floor office of the American Woolen Co. headquarters, built adjacent to the river and the location of the dam. That building is now occupied by Balmoral Condominiums.

VEHICLES

"This was a surprise," Vispoli said. "The position changed and he told us he changed his mind. I am suggesting the board re-look at the town car policy and strengthen it ... so that any future vehicle that is proposed to be provided for someone's commute go before the board."

Selectmen on Monday night seemed inclined to agree, but put off a decision until the next board meeting later this month so that the wording of the town car policy can be updated.

Cronin, who lives in New Hampshire, said when he negotiated with Stapczynski on his new contract, he asked for a town car.

"We discussed it for a while," he said. "I wanted to keep one. We did survey other (public facilities) directors around the state. It's not like I was the only one. So I thought it should be part of my compensation and he (Stapczynski) agreed."

The town manager said that since a new policy went into effect in 2008, the number of vehicles used by town employees for personal use has gone down from 17 to just eight, with only five being used for commuting purposes.

He said the number of take-home cars will soon be reduced even further, as people retire and no replacement cars are given out.

Further, he said, letting Cronin have a car created "no net increase" in the number of vehicles going home.

"I exercised my authority," the town manager said.

Vispoli, however, said that Stapczynski shouldn't have the authority to give out cars to department heads.

"Right now, the policy

The following is a list of public employees with town-owned cars, what they drive and the approximate mileage and value of the vehicles, based on information provided by Town Manager Reginald "Buzz" Stapczynski last November:

- Director of Municipal Services Chris Cronin: 2009 Ford Escape, 130,000 miles, $20,000
- Water/sewer general foreman Mike Murnane: 2005 Ford F150, 55,000 miles, $16,030
- Water/sewer superintendent Moe Gray: 2006 GMC Envoy, 143,000 miles, $21,452
- Town engineer Brian Moore: 2006 Ford Escape, 88,000 miles, $16,061
- Vehicle maintenance superintendent Joe Favreau: 2006 Chevy pickup, 82,000 miles, $18,444
- Fire Chief Mike Mansfield: 2013 Chevy Tahoe, 10,000 miles, $29,916
- Police Chief Patrick Keefe: 2011 Ford Taurus, 42,300 miles, $23,615
- Police Commander Charles Heseltine: 2013 Ford Interceptor sedan, 17,000 miles, $24,404
- K-9 officer Michael Connor: 2013 Ford Interceptor sport utility vehicle, 5,000 miles, $26,017 provides him (Stapczynski) the authority to do that," he said. "My suggestion is that any future considerations go before the board. Former Selectman Mary Lyman and I worked on this several years ago when there were a large amount of vehicles going home. We worked to reduce that. The whole idea was to keep that number going down."

Vispoli added, "It's a huge benefit. It's reasonable to have a car available for someone to do their job around town. The issue is, we should not provide a car for someone to commute back and forth to work."

how he got there."

Moore said that Adams may have had some mental health issues that contributed to him leaving Utica and ending up in Massachusetts.

According to two CVS employees who were working the night of July 4, it sounds like Moore might be right.

They said Adams came into the store around 7:15 p.m. and was talking about how he had walked to Andover from Harvard Square and that he was being sought by police. He told them he was growing tired of being chased and was going to turn himself in.

That's when they called police.

At around 7:30 p.m., police showed up at the CVS and spoke to Adams outside the store. According to the police log, officers reported Adams "wants to turn himself in. He is homeless and thinks he has an outstanding warrant."

But then, the log states, "he checks out and is sent on his way."

It remains unclear why police didn't pick up on the fact that there was a felony warrant out for Adams' arrest in a national database based on his failure to register as a sex offender in New York.

"It was in there," Moore said. "I don't know if they made a mistake on their end. It goes through a nationwide database. It was in there, I know it was."

He said Adams "is a potential danger. He's done some despicable things."

According to the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services website, Adams raped a woman on Aug. 9, 1996, in Utica, a medium-sized city an hour or so west of Albany. The website said Adams did not know the woman he raped and that he used a sharp object and force to commit the crime.

He was sentenced to eight to 16 years in prison.

Andover police

Commander Charles Heseltine said Tuesday afternoon that he was looking into the matter and would be able to provide additional details after speaking with the officer and shift lieutenant who were on duty July 4.

Whatever transpired, Adams showed up at the Andover police station at around 11:30 p.m. to turn himself in. That's when he was arrested.

Heseltine said Adams "wanted to turn himself into police because he believed he had an outstanding warrant. He had a felony warrant for a (sex offense) issued out of Utica, N.Y."

He was taken to the Middleton Jail.

Moore, in Utica, said Adams would be extradited to New York, where he will be tried for failing to register as a sex offender.

DETOURS

private funding sources. Making matters worse is that the multiple detours — marked with a mix of cones, barrels and sawhorses — are often unmanned because there aren't enough police officers, retired cops or firefighters to work overtime details to direct traffic and answer questions from bewildered drivers.

"It happens this time of year with people using vacation time," Andover police Commander Charles Heseltine said. "All departments deal with it. But it's sporadic. We'll go a couple of weeks where we have more work than we have men available to work. Usually it's around these couple of weeks. Some weeks, there's no problem at all. It depends on how much work there is."

The problem has gotten so bad that Chris Cronin, the director of municipal services for the town, is considering getting training for some of his employees so that they can serve as flagmen in case no police officers, auxiliaries or firefighters are available to direct traffic around road construction sites.

"They would get some training, but they would not get a bump in pay, although they may want to negotiate it," he said. "We'd either agree or not because we have police officers. I'd sell that to employees that they'd be safer if someone were trained. Of course, if we did it all the time, police would grieve it."

Heseltine said the idea of using public works employees as flagmen was a new one that he'd never heard of.

"That's something he (Cronin) is going to have to take up with the chief," Heseltine said, referring to Police Chief Patrick Keefe.

To some extent, it's already happening.

One day last week, a public works employee was sitting in his truck near the three-way intersection of Haggetts Pond Road, Pleasant Street and High Plain Road. Every time a car would drive up, he'd get out and speak to the driver, explaining how far they could go, telling them to be careful and answering their questions.

While refusing to give his name, he noted that the officer who had been staffing the roadblock had left and that he was filling in.

The only difference, he noted wryly, was that he was getting his regular hourly rate while the police officer had been earning overtime.

A police officer on a paid detail directs traffic as work crews fill and pave a hole on River Road between Furnari Farm and Cobblestone lanes recently. With numerous construction projects occurring simultaneously, there hasn't always been enough detail staff to man all the roadwork.

According to Heseltine, anyone staffing a detour earns $40 an hour for a town job, paid for by taxpayers, and $45 an hour for a non-town job, paid for by the private company contracting the work, such as National Grid. The rates are fixed and apply to police officers, auxiliary officers (who includes retired cops) and firefighters.

He said when an overtime job comes up, an officer at the station will check the list of available police officers, followed by the list of auxiliary police officers, followed by firefighters.

Fire Chief Mike Mansfield said Andover firefighters have had a provision in their contract for 20 years that allows them to staff road details and direct traffic when nobody else is available to do it. He said they are compensated at the same rate as police officers.

Andover is one of the few communities in the state that allows it.

"They work for the Police Department when they do that," he said. "They are totally under their supervision. I have no control over that at all. They have to go through a training program and have to abide by the same rules and regulations as police officers."

Sometimes, however, particularly this summer as the weather has gotten warmer and more people are on vacation, nobody is available for overtime details, which has been vexing for people like Fred Furnari.

"There are a series of roadblocks on River Road and poorly marked detour signs," he said in an email to the Townsman last month. "This leads visitors and caretakers to get lost trying to get to our house. On many days, there are police details there who try their best to direct visitors. However, there are numerous incidents where the police details are absent and leave construction workers to watch the roadblocks."

Heseltine said if a major intersection is being worked on and needs an officer for safety reasons, it is within the town's authority to shut the job down if no officer is available.

"We try to do the best we can," he said. "If the job is a real safety hazard, we'll have to move people around. Other times, they (the contractor) can't work until the next day. We do it on a case-by-case basis. We'll work with the contractor the best we can to provide the safety that's needed."

He said the day shift commander works hard to stay on top of the situation and frequently drives around and checks on all the road details to "make sure all the safety concerns are met."

Cronin said he works closely with Chief Keefe on the issue and with the exception of a few weeks in the middle of summer, things go pretty well.

But, he said, things may get worse before they get better. While the River Road project has wrapped up, other projects are picking up that will require more roadblocks and detours.

Merrimack College is paying for a significant sewer project around its neighborhood, the town is replacing hundreds of fire hydrants, a Tewksbury water main project is going out to bid, and there's always ongoing paving projects.

For now, Furnari said, things appear to have improved, although he's worried about a new subdivision going in on Boutwell Road.

"The entire project has been a poorly coordinated disaster for residents who live in the affected area," Furnari said, referring to the River Road project, which was made worse by the Boutwell Road construction.

"Everybody is angry and frustrated," he said. "One day, I had to drive over my neighbor's lawn to get out to River Road."

The town worker staffing the detour on Haggetts Pond Road said people should look on the bright side. When the work is all done and the paving is completed, the roads will be smooth and pothole free.

Until next year, when the work starts all over again.

DORMS

is sensitive to neighbors' concerns and plans to host a series of public meetings in the near future.

"I have a preference to sit down with the neighbors," Chief Operating Officer Jeff Doggett said. "I don't think it's productive to talk through mediums and not face-to-face."

Neighbors say they are opposed to the new buildings because they will add to the growing traffic problem on Elm Street. The field proposed for the new dorms is often used for parking overflow during the college's big events, like graduation and championship hockey games. When it's empty, students play pick-up football and soccer games there.

"It will be difficult to navigate in and out of our driveways because of this," Ross said.

Neighbors are also worried about a potential increase in crime. According to a poster made by the coalition, there have already been two gun charges, five weapon charges and 30 arrests booked by Andover police on the Merrimack campus since September 2012. "I am fearful with the new students that will double or even triple," Ross said. "If something does happen, we are the ones who pay taxes to the police and fire departments, not the college."

"I used to feel my neighborhood was safe. I never had to worry about my kid riding his bike around. Now, I may have to think differently," Reck said.

According to Doggett, the college believes the new dorms will mitigate traffic problems by eliminating the need for hundreds of students to commute to the school.

"I don't believe we are the cause of the traffic problem, but we feel the impact of it," Doggett said.

He added that he was disappointed to hear about the neighbors' crime concerns, and thought that perhaps some of their fears transcend this particular project.

"I want to sit in a room with all of them and try to understand what that means," he said.

To spread their message, members of the coalition have started hanging posters around town and created a Facebook page. On Monday, several neighbors attended the Andover Board of Selectmen's meeting and plan to turn out for future municipal meetings. "I feel like we are David fighting Goliath," Steve McGrath of Andover said.

Neighbors may have little say in the colleges plans, due to the state's Dover Amendment. The law exempts agricultural, religious and educational corporations from certain local zoning restrictions, allowing them to build the facilities they need to provide those services. The Dover Amendment's educational exemption was used earlier this year by Spectrum Health Systems to open a methadone clinic in a busy Haverhill shopping plaza on the Plaistow, N.H., line. The coalition is considering hiring a lawyer to try to find a loophole in the law.

"This building doesn't serve an academic purpose. I could understand if it was a science lab or something, but it's a dorm," William Page of Andover said.

Doggett said college officials think the new dorms will be a positive addition to the school, community and town.

"The fact that we need more dorms is a sign of the (school's) momentum," he said. "It's good for the community because many complain about traffic. If students are living on campus, they won't have to drive onto campus. It's good for the town because students will want to go to movies and restaurants that will drive money into the local economy."

Doggett said Merrimack is willing to work with the coalition to address neighbors' concerns, but that the college can't regress and become smaller.

"We are not asking the college not to grow and flourish. We are just asking them to respect us," Ross said. "There are other spots to grow."

The college plans to break ground this fall.

Mary L. (Martin) Foster, 67

September 22, 1946 — June 28, 2014

ANDOVER — Mary L. (Martin) Foster, 67, a resident of Andover for five years, died at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston on Saturday, June 28, 2014.

Born in Chelsea, Mass., on September 22, 1946, she was raised in Revere and was the beloved daughter of Mary (Wilson) and the late Herbert Martin. Mary worked for the Chateau Restaurant in Andover as a lottery agent. In her spare time, Mary enjoyed decorating and painting in her home. She also loved going shopping with her sisters. Mary had a special love for her dog, Marley. Above all, Mary was a very devoted mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. She will be dearly missed.

She is survived by her loving children, Terri L. and her husband, Christopher J. Bova of Georgetown, April I. Gagnon of Andover, Herbert E.

and his wife, Heather Foster of Florence, S.C., and Matthew D. Foster of Derry, N.H.; siblings, Judith Kelly of Middleton, Jane Agganis of Boca Raton, Fla., and Herbert Martin of Merrimack, N.H. She is also survived by 10 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and many nieces and nephews. Mary was also the loving mother of the late Mary Jane Foster.

ARRANGEMENTS: Calling hours will be held in the Burke-Magliozi Funeral Home, 390 North Main Street, Andover, on Wednesday, July 2, from 4 to 7 p.m. A funeral service has been omitted. Interment will be private. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made in her memory to Multiple Myeloma Research Foundation (MMRF), 383 Main Avenue, 5th Floor, Norwalk, CT 06851.

Darcy Scudder Kirk

ANDOVER — Darcy Scudder Kirk, 90-years-old and formerly of Andover, passed away on July 1, 2014 after a long journey with Alzheimer's disease. She was born Darcy Scudder on March 21, 1924 in Red Bank, N.J. Her family moved a few years later to Brielle, N.J., where she was raised. Her father was an architect and her mother a real estate broker. She had two older brothers, Henry and Joseph (Jody). As a young girl, she developed a love of animals and especially horses. After high school she went to college for two years, finishing in Washington, D.C. where she obtained work at the Pentagon during the World War II years. At the end of the war, she began a two-year position with the Red Cross in the Philippines working with U.S. troops still stationed there. Before her departure for the Philippines, she was engaged to a Naval officer, Charles (Charlie) Kirk. When she returned to Washington, D.C., they were married (in 1947). Charlie chose to stay in the Navy and they began a married life of travel and relocation through the Navy. They were stationed in London (England), Virginia, California and Ohio, finally settling in Andover in 1963 when Charlie retired from the Navy. Along the way, Darcy and Charlie had four daughters, Darcy Kirk (of Hartford, Conn.), Karen Rowland (of Deerfield, N.H.), Suzanne Martin (of Napa, Calif.) and Kathleen Brown (of Green Cove Springs, Fla.).

Once settled permanently in Andover, Darcy's life was busy with her husband's and daughters' activities, but most especially her horses. Darcy and Charlie purchased a property in Andover which had a barn and ample land for Darcy to return to her love of horses and animals. She began the next chapter of her life with raising and training horses. She drove buggies and sleighs, taught riding lessons and took her daughters to horse shows. She also had many dogs and cats and even a goat, for a while. In addition, Darcy was active with the local 4H and Pony Clubs where she introduced many young people to the love and responsibility that goes with caring for a horse. She was also active with the Town of Andover Historical Society and Christ Church Episcopal (including its Thrift Shop for over 40 years and its children's choir where all four daughters were members). Once her daughters were older, Darcy became a real estate broker, and later, a grandmother of five. She was well known and respected in her community as a town historian, an avid bridge player, and a great horsewoman.

Darcy and Charlie loved to travel in the United States as well as to exotic places like China, Africa, Egypt, Australia, New Zealand, Europe, the Caribbean and the Galapagos Islands. Darcy lost her dear husband, Charlie, in 1994, but she continued to travel with friends and her daughters, and especially loved to anticipate the next adventure. In addition to her four daughters, Darcy is survived by her five grandchildren, Molly Rowland, Alec Bates, Emma Bates, Morgen Johnston and Dane Johnston and her three sons-in-law, Kelley Bates, Don Martin and Tom Brown.

ARRANGEMENTS: A private family remembrance and burial will take place later in the summer. In lieu of flowers, please consider donating in her memory to the Massachusetts SPCA (MSPCA), 400 Broad St., Methuen, MA 01844. (978-687-7435) - this location supports an equine protection unit - Nevins Farm.

Leo J. Gravel Sr., 90

FALMOUTH — Leo J. Gravel Sr., of North Falmouth, died peacefully on June 30, with his family, after a short illness.

He was 90. Born in Central Falls, R.I., his family moved to Everett, Mass., when he was a young boy. He was the second child of 13 brothers and sisters. He was married to Mary Ruth (Melvin) Gravel for 67 years.

Leo joined the Navy at 17, the day after the Pearl Harbor attack. He served aboard a Navy "Oiler" in the Aleutian Islands for a year and then in the South Pacific aboard an Aircraft Carrier for two years. After his honorable discharge from the Navy, he worked as a tailor at the Fargo Building in Boston and other tailor shops in Charlestown. After he married, he lived in Quincy, Dorchester, and for 50 years, in Andover. He founded the Andover Hockey Shop in Shawsheen Square, Andover, in 1968, and it is still in business today. He was known as the "Mayor of Shawsheen" and said "he never met a kid he didn't like." He was a member of Andover Country Club, and the Martin Downs Country Club in Palm City, Fla. He was a sports fan and enjoyed watching the Bruins, Red Sox and Friday night fights. He was a lifetime member of the Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks Lodge #2070.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Ruth (Melvin) Gravel; his daughter, Karen McCabe and his son-in-law, James McCabe of North Falmouth. He had seven grandchildren, Leo J. Gravel III of Windham, N.H., Christopher Gravel of Windham, Cheri Boudreau of Manchester, N.H., Andrea Griffiths of Windham, Daniel Joseph (DJ) Gravel of Methuen, Alison (McCabe) Moorhouse of Bourne, and Colleen (McCabe) Gaffney of Falmouth. He also had 13 great-grandchildren. He was predeceased by his son, Leo (Sandy) Gravel Jr.; his two brothers, Kenneth Gravel of Revere, and Richard Gravel of Somerville; and a sister, Ruth Mabire of Pensacola, Fla.

ARRANGEMENTS: Visiting hours will be held Wednesday, July 2, from 4 to 8 p.m., at the Chapman Cole & Gleason Funeral Home, 584 West Falmouth Highway, Route 28A, West Falmouth. A funeral Mass will be celebrated on Thursday, July 3, at 11 a.m., at St. Elizabeth Seton Church, 481 Quaker Road, North Falmouth. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to American Heart Association, Heart Gifts Processing Center, P.O. Box 3049, Syracuse, N.Y. 13220-3049. ## Marie Rose (Robidoux) Audy

LAWRENCE — Marie Rose (Robidoux) Audy, passed away at her home surrounded by her family, after suffering a stroke in April. She was born in Lawrence and was the daughter of the late Rose A. (Betit) and Alfred Robidoux, originally of Quebec, Canada. She was predeceased by her husband of 28 years, Armand Joseph Audy, who passed away on June 28, 1976.

Marie was a generous, responsible, loving, and hard-working woman who spoke both Canadian French and English and attended Sacred Heart School through high school and Sacred Heart Parish until it was closed by the Diocese. To help her widowed mother, Marie took on a paper route, controversial for a girl at that time. After graduating from Sacred Heart High School, she worked braiding cord for parachutes and then joined the new Women's Army Air Corps. She graduated from the WAAC Army Administrator School at Sal Ross College in Alpine, Texas in 1943, was assigned to duty in Nashville, Tenn. and then promoted to Corporal in 1944. At Suison-Fairfield Army Air Base in California, she received overseas training then shipped to Hickam Field, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, where she worked as Clerk General in the Adjutant General's Department classifying confidential and secret correspondence. She received a Medal of Good Conduct, was promoted to Sergeant and honorably discharged Oct. 17, 1945.

In 1948 she married Armand J. Audy, also a former Army Sergeant and they had three children. Marie and Armand had a wonderful social circle of friends and were lifetime members of the American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Andover Sportsman's Club and the Benign Protectorate of Elks. Marie was also a member of the Rainbow Club and the Third Order at Sacred Heart Parish.

A skilled seamstress, Marie taught her daughters to sew. For many years she worked in the Accounting Office of the Lawrence General Hospital and after retiring enjoyed exciting trips with friends and family to Alaska, New Zealand, Ireland, France, Spain, England, Iceland and in the USA. Like her mother before her, she loved to play her favorite card game, 45s. She also volunteered to help clean Sacred Heart Church, stocked shelves for Neighbors in Need, and for years every Friday helped run the Lawrence General's Thrift Shop. After Armand's death, she continued maintaining the family pool where family and friends gather all summer to enjoy barbecues and swimming. She had a full and rewarding life.

She is survived by her two daughters, Joyce and her husband, Egils Zarins of Merrimac and Norma and her husband, Paul Gomes of Tewksbury; a son, Thomas and his wife Kimberly Audy of South Hampton, N.H.; 14 grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; a sister-in-law, Henrietta (Dembroski) Robidoux; niece, Linda Scherig of Andover and many nieces and nephews. She was also predeceased by her brothers, Alfred J., twin brother, Ernest B., Ernest J., Arthur J., Rudolph and Joseph P. Robidoux.

ARRANGEMENTS: A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated on Wednesday, July 9, in St. Augustine's Church. Visiting hours were held on Tuesday, July 8 in the Burke-Magliozi Funeral Home, 390 N. Main St., Andover from 4 to 8 p.m. Entombment with Military Honors was held in Sacred Heart's Cemetery in Andover. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in Marie's memory to Neighbors in Need, 276 Essex St, Lawrence, MA 01840, or to the American Cancer Society, 30 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701. ON THE WEB
andovertownsmen.com

Monday, June 30 Incidents

A 911 call at 12:23 p.m. reported a 35-year-old man's heart had stopped beating at Phillips Medical on Minuteman Road. Medical staff at the facility tended to the man and conducted CPR until the rescue squad arrived and took him to Lawrence General Hospital. Additional details were unavailable.

Arrest

A two-car crash on Dascob Road led to an arrest at 5:12 p.m. Jeremy Gleason, 22, of 697 Shawsheen St., Tewksbury, was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and making an improper turn after he allegedly jumped out of his car and ran into the woods following the accident.

Tuesday, July 1 Arrests

Three 19-year-old men were arrested and charged with trespassing after allegedly breaking into a man's chicken coop on Greenwood Road around 4:30 a.m. The owner of the coop called 911 and reported that he saw someone with a flashlight moving around inside the poultry pen. He said he also heard items inside the abbreviated aviary getting knocked over. Police arrested Michael DeLuca of 6 Norwich Place, Andover; Ian West of 18 Edgemoor Road, Gloucester; and Philip Pham of Saugus.

A juvenile was arrested at 2:59 p.m. and charged with possession of a Class D drug, marijuana, with intent to distribute. Police were called about a suspicious car in the driveway at 12 River Road where they arrested the youth. No additional details were available.

Wednesday, July 2 Arrest

Deborah Luscutt, 63, of 176 Jenkins Road, was charged with operating under the influence of liquor and failure to stay right after a car crash on Jenkins Road at the North Reading town line around 11:36 p.m.

Incidents

A person driving by Andover High School on Shawsheen Road at 5:42 p.m. called police to report a middle-aged man putting on a bullet-proof vest. Police investigated and found that a baseball game was going on and the man was an umpire getting his gear on.

Several llamas escaped from their pen on Harold Parker Road twice during the week, including at 9:20 p.m. on Wednesday. The owner said they were "out grazing," but that he would keep tabs on them.

Theft

The general manager of Homewood Suites, 4 Riverside Drive, reported to police at 6 p.m. the theft of a petty cash box and ATM cash box. Both items were in her office, police said, and the office was locked. A small amount of money was in the petty cash box, but it was unknown at the time how much was in the ATM box. The company that owns the ATM was in the process of removing the machine as result of its lack of use. A window to the office was found ajar, which may have been the point of entry. Detectives responded for evidence. The case is still under investigation.

Suspicious activity

A Pleasant Street resident reported at 7:25 p.m. that someone tried to break into her home sometime in the last couple of weeks. She reported that entry had not been gained. Police canvassed the neighborhood, but didn't turn up anything.

Thursday, July 3 Incidents

Someone broke into the old Bancroft School and shattered some windows, it was reported at 1:05 p.m. The building is being dismantled and will be demolished soon.

A Greenwood Road man called around 3 p.m. to report that his house had been "egged."

Friday, July 4 Arrest

Anderson Soto-Tavarez, 27, of 198 Howard St., second floor, Lawrence, was arrested at 3:06 a.m. on Main Street and charged with operating under the influence of liquor — second offense, operating with a revoked registration and operating an uninsured motor vehicle.

Assault

A man reported at 12:05 p.m. that his 19-year-old brother was assaulted on Main Street. A summons was issued for the assailant.

Accident

Local police assisted State Police and the Fire Department with a rollover on River Road at 9:07 p.m.

Your Dental HEALTH by Nicholas T. Papapetros, DMD, FAGD
MANUAL OR ELECTRIC?
Do electric toothbrushes have any advantages over one another or over traditional manual brushes? One review of studies reveals that, in the short term (4-12 weeks), rotation-oscillation brushes reduce plaque and gingivitis more than ones with side-to-side motion. However, the difference was so small that no clear advantage was found. Another study showed that electric toothbrushes, which oscillate and rotate with additional pulsing bristles, removed plaque better than manual brushes, and a sonic brush was found to reduce gingivitis better than a manual brush. Then, there is the study showing that electric toothbrushes were no better than manual ones at controlling plaque. Whatever toothbrush feels most comfortable and promotes the habit of regularly brushing is ultimately the best choice.
Electric toothbrushes can also be beneficial for people who face dexterity problems or other illnesses which affect motor skills such as arthritis and rheumatism. # Powerful storm topples trees, utilities

BY PAUL TENNANT
AND BILL KIRK
Staff Writers

The fierce winds that bombarded the Merrimack Valley on the eve of July 4 last week sent trees toppling in Andover, knocking out power and causing minor flooding.

The wind gusts recorded last Thursday, July 3, between 5 and 5:30 p.m. reached 60 miles per hour, according to the National Weather Service.

While no injuries were reported, the storm that included pelting rain left considerable property damage in parts of town in its wake.

At Homewood Suites by Hilton Boston/Andover on Riverside Drive, the wind brought down a massive tree, which fell across the hotel's outdoor pool, putting it out of commission. The pool was still closed as of early this week and hotel staff were hoping to have repairs completed by the weekend.

Nearby on North Street, a pine tree 32 inches in diameter at its base came crashing down in Thomas O'Leary's front yard. O'Leary, who has lived at 142 North St., just across River Road from Greater Lawrence Regional Technical School, for 31 years, said the wind came from the northwest.

"It came up so fast," he said, and was accompanied by "so much water that I thought it was a tsunami."

The July 3 thunderstorm sent water pouring down North Main Street near Whole Foods.

Courtesy photo
A large tree fell across the pool at Homewood Suites by Hilton Boston/Andover on Riverside Drive during last week's storm.

"It was scary," he added. "What power?"

While the huge tree blocked his driveway, it did almost no damage, he said – just some scratches on his car.

"It fell perfectly," he said – almost as if a crew of professional tree cutters had done the job. O'Leary said the pine, which had a "good, long life," was expected to be removed by early this week.

He wasn't the only person in Andover to report downed trees last Thursday.

At 5:30 p.m., trees were reported to have fallen on Riverside Drive, Enmore Street and North Street, where a car was hit. A few minutes later, trees were reportedly blocking Federal Street as well as the ramp from Route 125 to Route 28 south. Telephone poles were reported down on Vine Street, with wires dangling in the road and tangled in tree branches.

At 6:32 p.m., a tree fell on top of a car, trapping a person, according to the log. The operator of the car complained of a wrist injury.

Trees were down on Belknap Drive, Blueberry Hill and Holt roads. Wires were down from a utility pole that was leaning over on Salem Street around 6:50 p.m.

At 7:23 p.m., trees were reportedly down at the intersection of Wethersfield Drive and Wildwood Road, blocking the way. Power was out on Rattlesnake Hill Road from downed wires at around 7:52 p.m.

At 10:27 p.m., a tree that had fallen on Orchard Street was still down after the tree department reported it couldn't work because of live wires.

With the Bald Hill compost site in town closed for the season, cleanup proved somewhat challenging for some homeowners.

The Department of Public Works reported there would be no special collection for downed branches from the storm. Property owners who needed to dispose of downed branches were advised that up to three bundles of branches could be left at the curb for collection each week. Loose branches would not be picked up, officials said.

The severity of the storm caused at least some people to wonder if the Merrimack Valley had been hit by a tornado. Not so, said Hayden Frank, a spokesman for the National Weather Service, in Taunton. The destruction that happened July 3 was "straight line wind damage," he said. He declined to call the damaging winds a microburst.

The winds were accompanied by heavy rains caused by instability in the atmosphere, along with heat and humidity, which created ideal conditions for the thunderstorms that belted the Merrimack Valley.

At least 5,100 homes and businesses in the Merrimack Valley lost power in the storm.

An automobile owned by Lawrence Gas Company and driven by William Isaacs was run into by another machine operated by a man from Revere last Saturday evening on Reading Road. Although both machines were damaged, the occupants were uninjured.

A meeting of the officers and members of the Andover Canoe Club was being held at the clubhouse last evening when plans were arranged for the regatta to be held on Saturday, July 18.

No one writes a more interesting book of Andover reminiscences than Miss Susan C. Jackson, and when this book takes on the added charm with the title of "Sequel to Old Andover Days," Andover readers are assured of a very attractive setting forth of this particular subject.

The Poms Pond bathing beach has been given a clean bill of health by the State Department after an examination undertaken at the request of the local Board of Health. The state engineers reported that the water "continues to be of a satisfactory quality for public bathing," the only defect being the presence of a "considerable number of organisms which, although not dangerous to the public health, might at times give the water an undesirable appearance and odor."

An Andover Booster in reverse managed to steal an amount estimated at between $75 and $150 from one of the booths at the Fourth of July celebration Monday night, according to a report filed by police. The theft was a hard blow to the committee, which had spent much time and effort on securing funds to finance the celebration.

The search for a new boys varsity basketball coach at Andover High School ended last week with the appointment of former Central Catholic High School and Salem State College star Dave Fazio. The 25-year-old Fazio, who spent the past two years directing the fortunes of the Dracut High boys varsity team, succeeds Tom Ryser, who resigned in late spring.

Suspicious man prompts police search

BY BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

A suspicious man seen running from a garage in a section of town hit by several housebreaks this spring set off a police search on Monday.

The search was initiated after a contractor saw a man running from the garage of the home he was working on at the corner of Pleasant Street and Bailey Road.

The man was described as being in his 40s, wearing a white T-shirt and red shoes, according to scanner reports. He took off into the woods around 3:30 p.m.

"When (the contractor) came out of the home, he saw a man standing next to his work van," Commander Charles Heseltine said.

"When the unknown man saw the contractor, he fled into the woods. Officers checked the area and did not locate anyone. Nothing was reported stolen from the vehicle."

Police also searched the yards behind homes on Old Schoolhouse Road and Pleasant Street before calling off the search by around 4:15 p.m. They, however, continued to send patrols into the neighborhood.

The area was the scene of several midday housebreaks earlier this year. A house on Bailey Road was robbed in March. In April, a house on nearby Greybirch Road was burglarized. Later in April, a house on Haggetts Pond Road was broken into. In most cases, electronics and jewelry were taken during the break-ins.

The rash of break-ins led to a community meeting attended by several hundred nervous residents. During one of the break-ins, a teenage girl was at home, leading residents to believe that the burglars could pose a threat to their personal safety.

Police said during the public forum that in most cases, the burglars are junkies looking for empty homes so that they can run in, grab some valuables and run out. The suspects usually then sell the stolen items for some quick cash to buy drugs, police said.

Growing on six decades

Spade & Trowel Garden Club celebrates its deep roots

Spade & Trowel Garden Club marked its 60th anniversary year late last month with a garden party at Belva and Frank Hopkins' Andover home. Members of various area garden clubs and presidents of other organizations also attended the June 28 event.

Founded in 1954 with the assistance of Ruth Cleveland of the Andover Garden Club, Spade & Trowel was organized for gardeners with daytime commitments, offering members evening meeting times to better accommodate their needs and schedules.

Spade & Trowel maintains gardens on Beacon and Stevens streets, the Castle Park wildflower garden, one of the Welcome To Andover signs, The Professional Center sensory garden and the West Parish Church garden.

Belva Hopkins, left, Peggy Turgiss and Lorraine Kerwin hold the honor of being the longest-serving members of the Spade & Trowel Garden Club.

For many years, the club has organized garden therapy programs for the town's senior citizens. Annually, it showcases a display of arrangements at Memorial Hall Library in Andover as part of its Books In Bloom event and also participates in the Museum of Fine Arts Boston's Art In Bloom presentation. In addition, the club awards an annual scholarship to a high school senior studying horticulture.

Over the years, Spade &

Trowel and its members have received many awards, individually and as a club. The club's first award, a silver bowl, was given by The Eagle-Tribune for community service. Among other awards include a Publication Award, a Club of Distinction and a Website Award from the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts. As part of the club's education programs, members have traveled to Longwood Gardens in Pennsylvania, Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, Stowe Garden Festival in Vermont and Coastal Maine Botanical Gardens in Boothbay, Maine.

The self-described small, friendly club invites interested gardeners to join. Spade & Trowel will continue its 60th celebration in October with a flower-arranging demonstration at West Parish Church. For more, visit www.spadeandtrowelgardenclub.org.

Piano participation

Students from the local piano studio of Leslie Kaplan recently participated in the National Guild of Piano Teachers. Founded in 1929, the guild is the largest, nonprofit organization of piano teachers and students in the world. Students prepare appropriate repertoire in addition to musicianship phases and are judged on accuracy, phrasing, pedaling, dynamics, rhythm, tempo, tone, interpretation, style and technique. The Andover students who performed at the guild are, front row, from left, Monique O'Toole, Bethany O'Toole, Emeline Palfrey, Will Qian, Nikhil Gorur, Will Rickards and Eric Bishop and, back row, from left, Meghan McDonough, John Moreland, Scott Jackson, Hannah Chen and Jessica Siu. Angel Cleare is missing from the photo.

A boost for ACE

Andover mother to promote, raise funds for education group

School may be out, but that doesn't mean the Andover Coalition for Education isn't still in session.

ACE, which aims to support curricula-enhancing initiatives across the Andover Public School system, has hired an Andover mother with two children in the local schools as its first part-time director. Jennifer Srivastava is being charged with developing community awareness of the organization and raising money to support its work.

Following the lead of other successful school districts in Lexington and Newton, ACE is looking to double its fundraising efforts in the coming year, Srivastava said.

ACE's board of directors and advisory board donated funds to support Srivastava's hiring.

Founded in 2005, ACE has been helping schools "produce resourceful adults, productive workers and responsible citizens by ensuring that true innovation and creative global thinking remain strong in Andover's schools — regardless of the school budget," Srivastava said.

Srivastava and her husband have been residents of Andover for eight years and have a third-grader at West Elementary and a first-grader at Shawsheen School.

Jennifer Srivastava

Prior to joining ACE, Srivastava, who holds a bachelor's degree from Tufts University in Medford and a Master of Business Administration from Boston University, worked at Children's Hospital Boston, raising funds from individuals and family foundations. She continues to provide consulting services to a consortium of children's hospitals across North America.

She also serves as the Parent Advisory Council president for Shawsheen School, coaches her daughter's soccer team, co-leads a Daisy Troop at Shawsheen and is involved in other nonprofit groups throughout town.

"I'm excited about this opportunity with ACE. It's an opportunity to merge my commitment to my children's educational path and professional background," she said.

She said she is eager to spread the word about the great work of ACE and to educate the community.

"ACE provides invaluable resources to ensure we are the most competitive school system in the state," she said.

Alternatives needed for road details

This has been a summer of discontent for many Andover residents and area commuters trying to navigate the town's highways and byways. A myriad of roadway construction projects have left people frustrated and angry over shifting detours and poorly staffed roadblocks.

All over town, contractors are digging trenches, replacing pipes, installing new hydrants, replacing underground electrical conduits and repaving pothole-marred streets. The good news is that most of this infrastructure work improves the town in the long run with better water and sewer service and smoother roads. Some of it is for private gain such as a subdivision, but as long as the work is done within the parameters of town laws, that's OK too.

The bad news is that since all the projects are going on simultaneously, there aren't enough people to staff the detours to help people figure out how to get from point A to point B. In the case of River Road, detours were needed for weeks to get people around an unusually difficult private sewer project.

Generally, police officers can be seen at road details, wearing their bright yellow or green vests over their uniforms, directing traffic and keeping an eye on things. This summer, as vacation time has piled up and more road jobs are underway, there has not been enough officers available to do that work. The department has dipped into its auxiliary police force, which includes retired officers. Firefighters have been called on to direct traffic in some places.

Still, it hasn't been enough. At a rate of $40 to $45 an hour, it seems like these would be easy jobs to fill. But lately, they haven't been. In addition to roadblocks and delays, people trying to get around town may have been befuddled by seemingly haphazard detours with nobody on hand to tell them where to go.

Municipal Services Director Chris Cronin has proposed training his public works employees to direct traffic, which seems like a good solution in the case of an emergency. We're not saying this is an emergency, but it might be better to have a back-up plan like Cronin's rather than shutting down jobs when there are no officers available for a road detail.

Cronin also suggests paying his workers at their standard rate of pay, which would be markedly less than what police earn. While this idea may be greeted with grievances by police, as Cronin rightly points out, it would save money and solve a problem — both at the same time.

Ultimately, it is taxpayers and ratepayers who foot the bill for costly overtime details. Sewer and water pipe projects, for example, are town jobs that call for the lower — but still high — $40-an-hour rate. Flagmen working for the town would be making a lot less, presumably, meaning sewer and water rates may not go up as much. Same goes for gas and electric projects. Every time an officer stands at a hole dug by the gas company, that cost is passed along to ratepayers.

So maybe it is time to bring in lower-cost flagmen, if not just for safety's sake, then for the sake of the taxpayer/ratepayer who cover their costs as well.

WEB QUESTION

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

All the construction projects in town has made detail staffing a challenge. Should officials consider training public works employees to fill in as flagmen?

YES. Having a team of trained public works employees to serve as flagmen will help to fill the gaps when there are not enough police officers, auxiliary police and firefighters available to staff projects requiring details.

NO. Detail work is a matter of public safety and should be left to those workers in the public safety sector.

NOT SURE.

LAST WEEK'S QUESTION

Town unions are being asked to take responsibility for bringing down skyrocketing retiree pension and insurance costs. Do you feel concessions are in order? With 430 votes, the answers were:

NO. Town employees deserve all of the benefits their predecessors have received upon retirement. 293 votes, 68 percent.

YES. Public pension and health benefits have grown out of control and should be brought in line with the private sector. 133 votes, 31 percent.

NOT SURE. 2 votes, .5 percent.

OTHER. 2 votes, .5 percent.

FIREFIGHTING FESTIVITIES FOR THE FOURTH

Gus Callahan queues up for a chance to ring the fire engine bell during the Fourth of July festivities at The Park at Chestnut and Bartlet streets. The town managed to hold its annual July 4 activities last Friday before the inclement weather moved in later in the day.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Be proactive about saving Andover Bookstore

Editor, Townsman:

Ask yourselves, "What if we wake up one morning to find we no longer have a bookstore?"

We, as the Andover Bookgroup, are very concerned about the recent news that Phillips Academy has severed a 205-year relationship with Andover Bookstore, putting the bookstore's long-term viability at risk. Several Phillips Academy faculty wives and their community friends started our book group, which has existed since the late 1970s. Since that time, we have regularly ordered and purchased books from the bookstore. In that process, we have built relationships with the staff and the owners. An independent bookstore is part of the cultural fabric of Andover. It would be an enormous loss to the town if the bookstore, in business for 205 years, fails. It is the second oldest bookstore in the country!

Ask yourselves if it is a satisfying experience for Amazon to tell you what you should read based on the purchases you have made or is it more enriching to have a personal interaction with your local, experienced bookseller, to sit down and enjoy a cup of coffee by the cozy fireplace, listen live to an author or poet or have your child enjoy story time with Susan Lenoe?

While we cannot control what Phillips Academy does, we can control how we make our decisions and where we make our purchases. Please, patronize our local independent bookseller. Be proactive. Support Andover Bookstore.

On behalf of all 16 members of the Andover Bookgroup,

KAREN HERMAN

Golf outing raises critical funding for Jimmy Fund

Editor, Townsman:

Jimmy Fund Golf extends its sincerest thanks to the organizers and sponsors of the 23rd Annual Legal Sea Foods Golf Outing held on June 24 at Indian Ridge Country Club in Andover. Special recognition and appreciation goes to Jeff Lipson of Boston and the committee that organized the 23rd annual event.

The dedicated sponsors, participants and volunteers helped raise critical funds to support the Community Benefits Fund at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The 23rd annual Legal Sea Foods Golf Outing is one of the many golf tournaments that will be held in 2014 to raise funds for the Jimmy Fund and Dana-Farber. The presenting sponsors for Jimmy Fund Golf's 2014 season are American Airlines, CHAMP Spikes, Dunkin' Donuts, '47 Brand, HomeGoods, The International Golf Club and Wicked Local.

Jimmy Fund Golf is the oldest and largest charity golf program in the country. Now in its 32nd year, Jimmy Fund Golf has raised more than $97 million to support adult and pediatric cancer care and research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and will surpass the $100 million fundraising mark in 2014. From 18-hole golf tournaments to mini-golf events and day-long golf marathons, golfers of all ages and skill levels can conquer cancer through Jimmy Fund Golf. ### Fiscal mismanagement demands zero tolerance

Editor, Townsman:

Facts disclosed at several recent Andover Board of Selectmen's meetings and recent actions by Andover's town manager make clear that Andover has a major problem in Town Hall's corner office. That our town manager is now spending his time promoting a "be nice policy," which, as his own comments indicate, is really his attempt to blame Andover residents for uncivil behavior toward Town of Andover employees, is one more example of town management problems that originate not at the desks of town employees, but in the corner office of Town Hall.

As is well known, organizations take on the attitudes and personalities of their leaders. So if town employees are uncivil and residents are irritated by discourteous behavior of town employees, maybe Mr. Stapeczynski should look into a mirror to understand why. He didn't need a stage to announce a "policy" that merely expects of town employees what every well-run company in the private sector expects of its employees, every day: to treat customers with courtesy and respect and never tolerate uncivil behavior by its employees. Stapeczynski could have, without the need for fanfare, communicated his expectation that town employees deliver courteous customer service ... 23 years ago when he was first hired as Andover town manager. Interesting how a routine good-management practice got turned into a "show-and-tell" public event just as other aspects of our town manager's performance are getting scrutiny by town residents.

As was reported in both The Townsman and The Eagle-Tribune, Stapeczynski disclosed, to the surprise and displeasure of selectmen, and only as the result of questioning by town residents at a selectmen's meeting held after Town Meeting, that he did not keep the selectmen informed of the deliberations to decide which health plan to use for the town; that he allowed the unions to run out the clock in making this expensive decision; and, most disturbingly, that he signed the agreement committing the town to a particular health insurance provider before advising the selectmen of his plan to do so and before giving town residents the opportunity to vote at Town Meeting on the amount to be authorized, as is our right, on this multi-million-dollar item.

This failure to keep his bosses apprised during the weeks of discussions that preceded Town Meeting on the health plans being considered, compounded by his obligating Andover to the most expensive of the two plans offered to Andover before voters at Town Meeting voted to authorize this particular expenditure, has cost the residents of Andover $680,000 in absolutely unnecessary town spending this year compared to the plan with identical health insurance coverages that was offered to Andover by Tufts. That Stapeczynski was also a member of the board of directors of the group whose more expensive health plan the town is now contractually obligated to use was conveniently never mentioned by Stapeczynski at Town Meeting when this spending authorization came up for a vote. Stapeczynski's recent resignation from that board doesn't put that $680,000 back in the taxpayers' pockets. Too little, too late.

For Selectman Brian Major to defend Stapeczynski as these facts were disclosed after Town Meeting and to casually refer to them as a mere "learning moment" shows the extremely low performance bar Major has for our town manager. It also showcases how Major has become an enabler of the overspending habits that have become the norm at Town Hall during Major's tenure as a selectman.

Contrary to Major's cavalier attitude towards big-dollar mistakes, there should be zero tolerance for "learning moments" for any town official that end up costing taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars, let alone million-dollar "learning moments" for a town official who has been a town manager for over 25 years, as Mr. Stapeczynski has. Add in the facts that almost all of the $300 million plus in unfunded liabilities for which Andover's taxpayers are on the hook has accumulated on Stapeczynski's watch over the past 23 years, the lax training and management of the public works employees whose inept handling of the cleaning of a town water tank resulted in spilling toxic sludge on a resident's property that cost Andover residents over $1 million to get cleaned up, and major capital projects that have routinely come in over budget and late throughout his tenure and it is clear that Andover has a problem in Town Hall. We deserve better than having to repeatedly pay millions of dollars for "learning moments" for highly compensated town officials and "be nice policy" grandstanding intended to deflect where the real problems in Andover governance reside.

Independence Day, Andover style

Tropical Storm Arthur may have doused some communities' Fourth of July plans. But Andover managed to pull off its holiday festivities in between the raindrops and wind gusts.

The July 3 fireworks went off as planned from Andover High School. The next morning, the Andover Firefighters Relief Association was able to serve up its annual Independence Day pancake breakfast in The Park at Chestnut and Bartlet streets.

The Horribles Parade made the rounds through the downtown without interruption, too.

Judging by the pomp and patriotism, the celebration was befitting the nation's birthday.

Patrick Doerr treats his daughter, Helena, 3, to a ride on his shoulders as they walk through The Park during the town's Fourth of July celebration.

Out & About: A Celtic newcomer to Concerts in The Park

The Celtic rock band Beyond the Pale makes its Concerts in The Park debut next week when it takes the stage at the bandstand in The Park on Wednesday, July 16, from 6 to 8 p.m.

The Merrimack Valley-based band plays an array of music, from traditional Irish and contemporary Celtic tunes to classic rock selections and just about everything in between, including some original works.

The five-piece band formed more than 15 years ago and has released two CDs. It features the veteran rhythm section of Genn Arlequeeuw on drums and Ken Bechard on electric bass together with front man Sean Buckley on acoustic guitar, Joe F. Hanley on mandolin and powerhouse fiddler Charles Landry.

Beyond the Pale's appearance is sponsored by AndoverLaw P.C. at One Elm Square.

The free family concert series continues on Wednesday nights through Aug. 13 at The Park at Chestnut and Bartlet streets. The rain location is the adjacent World War I Memorial Auditorium at 36 Bartlet St. Visit www.AndoverDCS.com for more.

who comprise Saltbox Gallery, a traveling group of painters, illustrators, jewelers and wood craftsmen who hold their next show this weekend on Plum Island. "The Art of Summer" takes place Friday through Sunday, July 11 through 13, at Plum Island Taxpayers Association (PITA) Hall, 8 Plum Island Blvd., Newbury.

An animal portraitist, Cook draws and paints all animals with great attention to their personality. The exhibit will also feature botanical art, cut paper illustrations, oil paintings, watercolors, jewelry, carved wood birds and wooden bowls and lamps.

The Saltbox show and sale runs Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with an artists' reception from 6 to 9 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Email saltboxgallery@gmail.com for more.

Landscapes en plein air and more

Watercolorist Ann Jones

treats viewers to her landscapes and more as this month's featured artist at Memorial Hall Library, 2 North Main St., Andover.

A primarily self-taught artist, Jones enjoys working en plein air whenever possible to allow her to capture what she calls the luminosity of the locale before her.

While she draws inspiration from all around the Merrimack Valley and North Shore, she also likes to record her travels to such destinations as England, Egypt and Nova Scotia in watercolor, too. During the winter months when working on location is difficult, her focus is on interiors, figures and still lifes.

A Groveland resident, she is president of the Greater Haverhill Arts Association and a member of the Newburyport Art Association and New Hampshire Plein Artists. Her paintings have been juried into many regional shows and received numerous awards.

Jones' work will remain on display on the first and second floors of the library throughout July. For more on her work, visit www.annjonesart.net or contact Memorial Hall Library at 978-623-8401.

Local professor's father inspires world wars exhibit in his home city

By LAUREN DiTULLIO
Staff Writer

History professor Richard Padova is passionate about the past. And the Andover man has had to look no further than his own father, Salvatore "Sam" Pauta, to enjoy a living history America's history. Pauta, a World War II veteran who has lived in Lawrence his whole life, sparked Padova's interest in finding out about the city's role in the battle.

So to commemorate the centennial anniversary of World War I and the 70th anniversary of D-Day, Padova, who teaches at Northern Essex Community College in Haverhill, decided he wanted to put together something special. He drew from his collection of personal memorabilia, his father's possessions and the archives at the Lawrence History Center to create a portrait of the two wars in his home city.

His exhibit opened last week in the third-floor gallery of the Heritage State Park visitor center in Lawrence and will remain on display through the summer.

"I really wanted to look at the local connection, but also capture the global perspective," said Padova, who coordinates Lawrence's annual July 4 celebration.

Richard Padova of Andover poses with the exhibit he has curated on Lawrence soldiers' involvement in World Wars I and II. Padova was motivated to learn about the city's role in the wars by his father, a World War II veteran.

The exhibit consists of glass display cases organized around various themes. Models of planes and boats demonstrate the logistics of combat, while more personal items such as postcards and photographs highlight the loyalty and support that Lawrence citizens showed soldiers from their city.

One case details the life of Maj. General Edward Sirous, who served in both world wars. Sirous, who rose through the ranks of the Army, chronicled his experience in a book titled "Smashing Through the World War."

"Edward Sirous was a real proud son of Lawrence, which is part of why I chose to focus on him," Padova said.

Many of the exhibit items have an even greater personal significance to Padova. A mannequin displays a well-preserved World War II Navy uniform that belongs to Padova's father. A banner from the now-defunct Lawrence chapter of the Italian American World War Veterans hangs on one wall, near a ledger of notes from the group's meetings. Padova's father's name can be seen in one of the notebooks. "Sadly, my dad is one of the last surviving members of that organization, which was important to those who served in its time," Padova said.

The exhibit was funded by the Lawrence Heritage State Park, Lawrence History Center and Lawrence Public Library, as well as a grant from the Service Center of Greater Lawrence, Inc.

Rogers Center keys up summer music and movies

The Rogers Center for the Arts at Merrimack College in North Andover launches its free summer series next week with a lineup of concerts and musically inspired films that span the genres.

The 2014 Summer Series kicks off on Wednesday, July 16, with a concert by The Jazz Disciples, a nine-piece band providing the full complement of Dixieland, American Songbook, big band/swing, gospel and popular jazz styles.

On Wednesday, July 23, settle in for a film screening of "The Glenn Miller Story." The musical biopic follows Glenn Miller's rise from trombone player in the pit orchestra to leader of the most successful big band of his era to his untimely death as a member of the U.S. Army Air Force Band in 1944. This musical romp of a film provides audiences with a large dose of the best of Miller's big band sound and features memorable performances by two box office stars of the time.

"Blues in the Night" — a classic "band on the road" film — is on the schedule for Wednesday, Aug. 6. The movie traces a jazz band as it travels from one small-time gig to another, always hoping for a big break, but repeatedly denied fame thanks to the band members' personal demons. This melodramatic film reaches its climax when an unrelenting depiction of a murder/suicide retrospectively sets the tone for an exploration of the strange places music can take listeners.

Live music returns to the stage on Wednesday, Aug. 13, with a performance by Gerry Johnston. Combining his love of a variety of musical styles, Johnston has made a career out of performing selections from "The American Songbook" on solo classical guitar. His play list includes some of the great jazz and popular standards from the likes of Duke Ellington, George Gershwin, Ann Ronnell, Richard Rodgers, Henry Mancini and a host of others.

The series comes to an end Wednesday, Aug. 20, with the film "Young Man with a Horn," loosely based on the tragic life and death of jazz great Big Billie Holiday. After flourishing in the jazz scene of the 1920s, the Beiderbecke-inspired character played by Kirk Douglas eventually turns to booze and bleak desperation before being saved by friends and band mates played by Doris Day and Hoagy Carmichael.

The two concerts start at 7 p.m., while the films open with commentary at 6:30 p.m. followed by the screenings at 7. The films are sponsored by the Tambakos Fund created by George Furth in memory of Merrimack College alumnus Peter Tambakos.

and Tax planning is what they do exclusively. Continuing their legal education constantly in this field, clients can be assured their beneficiaries will receive not only what they wish for them to receive, but all the law allows.
Attorney Marybeth McInnis, together with her father, Attorney James McInnis, believe foremost in establishing a good working relationship with clients. This happens when clients are comfortable and confident that their decisions and wishes will be heard and respected. For much of their work, McInnis Law Offices charges a flat fee so clients can feel free to explore their feelings, express their wishes, and become informed by asking questions.
Estate planning gives a person the opportunity to determine themselves, within the boundaries of the law, how their assets are distributed. Dying without a will forces the state to take charge. Children and family members in that situation are subject to the decisions of strangers. For the elderly, selecting someone they trust to have Power of Attorney is a decision that should be made while healthy and clear thinking because it is as important a decision as one can make in a lifetime.

Attorney Marybeth McInnis grew up in North Andover and continues to live in the community with her husband. She is a member of the American Bar Association, the Boston Bar Association's Estate Planning Committee, and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys. She is also a Director of the Friends of Merrimack College, Trustee of the James W. O'Brien Foundation, Inc., and is also licensed to practice in New Hampshire as well as Massachusetts.

South Church names new senior pastor

Rev. Dana Allen Walsh has been elected as the 18th senior pastor of South Church in Andover.

Walsh, who will officially join the parish July 15, replaces Rev. John Zehring, who retired after an ordained ministry of more than 30 years, the last five as the senior pastor of South Church.

She comes to South Church from Hancock Church in Lexington, where she has served since 2006.

“We are thrilled to welcome Dana to South Church and the Andover community,” Thomas Arnold, co-chairman of the church’s search committee, said in a press release. “She serves with creative energy, intelligence, engagement and deep spirit and will be a vibrant addition to our church and the wider community.”

Debbie Andrews, co-chairwoman of the church’s search committee, added, “Dana has earned widespread respect for her effectiveness as a preacher and leader, helping people understand and act upon issues of social justice, and engaging with seekers of all ages. She is highly regarded as a person of faith and for her maturity and compassion.”

In her eight years at Hancock, Walsh worked closely with the senior pastor, regularly participating, planning and leading worship services. In recognition of her contributions and increased leadership in the church, she was promoted from associate to minister in 2011.

At Hancock, she served as co-president of Lexington Interfaith Clergy Association and she created a town interfaith garden that yields more than 1,000 pounds of produce annually for a local food pantry. She also has led four international and nine regional adult and youth mission trips.

“When I look at South Church, I see a vital congregation, which seeks to build on its strong history as a leader and pioneer in the United Church of Christ and Andover community,” Walsh said in the release. “I see an active congregation whose members believe our Christian faith impacts all of who we are and how we live in God’s world. When I look at South Church, I see a congregation that I am honored to become a part of.”

Walsh grew up in Connecticut and graduated from the University of Mary Washington in Virginia with a Bachelor of Arts, cum laude, in international affairs. She received her Master of Divinity from Princeton Theological Seminary in New Jersey and was ordained in 2006.

She and her husband, Sean, and son, Leighton, will live in South Church’s parsonage on School Street. He is the English Department chairman and drama director at Malden High School.

Double the love

Sisters pair up to donate ponytails together

Two Andover sisters started their summer vacations with a selfless act of kindness — a pair of donations to Locks of Love.

Eleven-year-old Isabel Marble and her 8-year-old sister, Anna, both cut 10 inches of their hair off to donate to the nonprofit organization that provides wigs to children in need.

It was the third donation to Locks of Love for Anna, who just completed the second grade at South Elementary School, and the second for Isabel, who graduated from fifth grade at South last month.

The girls, who previously had made their Locks of Love donations in alternating years, were happy that both of their hair had grown long enough this time so they could share the experience together. They went to Snip Its in North Andover

Local foursome aces Boys & Girls Club tourney

The Andover foursome of Patrick James, Adam Geaslen, Ryan Byrd and Dan Bryant made up the winning team at the 35th annual Boys & Girls Club of Lawrence Golf Tournament last month at Indian Ridge Country Club in Andover.

About 220 golfers participated in the tournament, which raised more than $160,000. After the day of golf, which also featured gifts, contests, raffles and continuous refreshments, attendees enjoyed dinner and cocktails while bidding on dozens of silent and live auction items.

The keynote speaker was 2010 BGCL Youth of the Year Greydy Diaz, who interned at NBC Sports before graduating in May from Fairfield University in Connecticut. Larry Yameen of Lawrence was recognized as chairman of the Golf Committee.

The event is one of the club’s largest fundraisers, providing a significant portion of the annual operating budget. The club provides programs focusing on academic success, healthy lifestyles and community involvement for 3,400 area youths ages 7 to 18 at two locations. For more information on the club, visit www.lawrencebgc.com.

Birthday bash

The Center at Punchard in Andover feted some of the town’s most veteran residents this spring when it observed Older Americans Month with a Birthday Party especially geared at those Andoverites 85-plus. Guests of honor were treated to cake, ice cream, transportation and special accommodations, including valet parking. Among the 85 and older set enjoying the festivities as they waited for the cake to be cut were, from left, Hilda Lange, Antonette Fascione, Priscilla Thomas, Betty Hancock, Ellie Agustino, Anne Santarlasci and Carol Durso.

WHAT’S HAPPENING: CENTER AT PUNCHARD

The Center at Punchard (The Center), 30 Whittier Court, Andover, has several upcoming programs. Here are some of the highlights:

“Healthy Eating Tidbits: The Mediterranean-Style Diet.” Friday, July 11, 9:30 a.m. Authors of the “Mediterranean-Style Diet” will discuss its effects: decreased cholesterol, improved blood pressure and weight loss; a healthy breakfast will be provided.

Special Tasting Tour – Portsmouth, N.H.: Friday, July 11, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Learn some of Portsmouth’s unknown history on this guided tour with a five-part lunch; $61/$59.

“Driver Safety: Who is Safe to Drive?” Monday, July 14, 1:30 p.m. As people age, changes occur in physical functioning, vision, perception and processing abilities that could make driving unsafe. Learn about warning signs to consider, adaptive equipment and car fitting. An evaluation by a driver rehabilitation specialist from Northeast Rehab will be available. Root beer floats will be served; $3.

Summer Outdoor Grill Nights: Thursdays, July 17 and 31, 5 to 7 p.m. Menu selections include salad, drink and dessert as well as a main protein; prices start at $5 for a complete meal. Includes an optional BoomerVenture Screening Room feature movie each evening. All are welcome; reservations and advance payment required.

One family’s diplomacy

Former Andover couple welcomes exchange students for quarter-century

BY GAIL MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

Family photographs fill the fireplace mantel in Dana and Ginny Cohen’s home. The images brim with smiling faces at weddings and informal gatherings. But this is only the global edition of the Cohen family.

Since 1989, the Cohens, who lived in Andover for 17 years before moving to East Gloucester, have hosted numerous children through AFS Intercultural Programs, an outgrowth of American Field Service, created in 1914 during World War I.

Over the last quarter-century, the couple has taken in a veritable United Nations of students from four continents, starting while living in Andover with two students from Germany and Spain through a Girl Scouts International program. From there, the floodgates were opened to students from Sweden, Argentina, Finland, Thailand, France, Brazil, Slovakia and beyond.

Their most recent “children,” who just completed a year at Gloucester High School as honor students, hailed from Egypt and Spain.

Farrah Moussa joined the household as part of the Youth Exchange and Study program, run through the Department of State, which provides a one-year scholarship for teens from countries with significant Muslim populations. The program was started in the shadow of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks. Paula Valverde, meanwhile, arrived from Spain through the traditional AFS program.

Soon, they both will be embarking on the next chapter in their lives. Moussa will return to North America in the fall as a college student at Quest University in Vancouver, while Valverde will start her senior year of high school in Spain.

The Cohens, who also have hosted students through Rotary International and the A Better Chance program, take their jobs of parenting very seriously. They say the exchange students become more like family members than guests in their home.

“We love parenting. It keeps us young and we learn about the world,” said Dana Cohen, an optician by trade.

The couple’s own two daughters have enjoyed the experience as well, not only as hosts but as visiting students. Their older daughter, Rachel, went to the Netherlands for a year in 1996 through AFS, and their younger daughter, Laura, spent the summer in Italy in 2000.

Friends and family often ask the Cohens about their penchant for embracing such a “revolving door” of world connections to enhance the greater good of cultural understanding. They are asked, “Do you ever plan to empty nest? and “How can you risk loving a child that you may never see again or possibly lose contact with?”

Their answer is simple. “Over the past 24 years, it has been our family’s ministry, our passion, our way of giving back,” Ginny Cohen said. “We initially wanted our children to experience living with someone from a different culture with the hope to break down some of the prejudices we were brought up with.”

“We wanted our children to be open and affirming to all people. What better way than to bring teenagers of diverse religious, ethnic and racial backgrounds into our home?”

My 2014 World Cup odyssey began June 11 upon leaving Boston and ended three weeks later back in Boston on July 2, after the elimination of the U.S. team.

Over those 22 days, I traveled through 11 cities on 17 flights covering 11 World Cup matches. The competition was intense, the camaraderie was passionate, the fans were obsessive and the World Cup as a whole was colorfully vibrant.

I have been fortunate enough to experience 28 years of covering the world's biggest sporting events — from Super Bowls to the World Series, NBA Finals to the Stanley Cup, not to mention the Olympics, yet nothing compares in totality to the World Cup. This is the world's Super Bowl — make that many individual Super Bowls played over the course of a month.

As with the Olympics, there is a heightened sense of national pride and an increased competitive spirit when athletes compete for their countries. National heroes were created during every game, and great euphoria and even greater disappointment accompanied each final score.

Combine the great action on the field with the passionate emotions in the stands and add in a rainbow of colors at every turn — from the players' jerseys and cleats, to the fans' elaborate wardrobes, to the stadium décor and the fields, to even the game balls — and you have a sports

BIRD SIGHTING

Tyler Bird of Andover, shown in 2013 playing for St. John's Prep in Danvers, tries to bang the puck past Austin Prep's goalie. Bird was selected by the Columbus Blue Jackets in the fifth round of the recent NHL draft.

Rugged Andoverite picked in fifth round of NHL draft by Columbus Blue Jackets

By PHIL STACEY
Sports Writer

He had heard he'd be selected in the fourth round, fifth round, sometime before the seven full rounds were completed ... or maybe he wouldn't get drafted at all.

So Tyler Bird of Andover tried to put his mind at ease during the recent National Hockey League draft. As it was taking place, he went to a friend's house to relax and made an effort to not think about the outcome.

Then he got a text from his adviser telling him he had been selected by the Columbus Blue Jackets in the fifth round (137th pick overall), and any anxiety was washed away like a sand castle against a raging tide.

"A couple of teams I had interviewed with had told me the fourth round was where I should start paying attention (to hearing his name called), but you never really know. So when I got that call, I was pretty excited," said Bird, who turns 18 on Aug. 14.

Tyler Bird

Last Sunday, the 6-foot-2, 205-pound right-winger got his first taste of the pro life when he traveled to Ohio for Columbus' Development Camp for its recent draftees and other young newcomers to the organization.

He'll likely play three or four years for Brown University in Rhode Island before both he and the Blue Jackets hope he's ready to make the leap to pro hockey.

After playing his first three years of high school at St. John's Prep in Danvers, Bird transferred to Kimball Union in New Hampshire for his senior year last year. There, he netted 33 goals and 27 assists for the 26-6-5 New England Prep Simmons/Piatelli champions. His linemate was former Pinkerton Academy standout J.D. Dudek, who was chosen 15 picks after Bird by New Jersey.

"One of the Brown assistant coaches talked with my head coach at KUA (Tim Whitehead, the former UMaine and UMass Lowell coach) and was really impressed with how I did there," said Bird, who'll begin school at Brown Aug. 30.

"I think I was most able to improve on my scoring touch there. ... I was shooting it more and making things happen with the puck."

Bird interviewed with seven NHL teams at the NHL Draft Combine in Toronto in May and estimated he spoke to 15 or 16 clubs in all.

He realizes he has a long way to go before tugging on an actual NHL sweater.

"It's exciting to be picked by a team, and now to go to (development) camp and skate there and see some fans," Bird said. "But I still have to focus on the now and how I can become a better player and help Brown University hockey right away. This is just a first step for me. There's a lot more I have to accomplish."

Prep pipeline to pros

Five members of the 2010-11 St. John's Prep hockey team have been drafted by the NHL. That's believed to be a first for an MIAA school.

They were: Newburyport's Shane Eiserman (fourth round, 2014), Andover's Tyler Bird (fifth round, 2014), North Andover's Brian Pinho (sixth round, 2013), Reading's Sam Kurker (second round, 2012) and North Andover's Colin Blackwell (seventh round, 2011).

Andover Americans' Prakash, McConnell lead with long ball

Jakoby Stanley had hitters guessing, striking out seven over five innings to boost Andover American past North Andover National 12-3 last Wednesday, July 2, in District 14 pool play.

Amogh Prakash led a long-ball attack with a three-run home run, while Max Byron had a two-run homer and Patrick McConnell added a solo blast. Alex Weinreb relieved Stanley and shut the door with a 1-2-3 sixth inning to close out the win.

Patrick McConnell hit two home runs to help Andover American top Billerica National 13-2 last Tuesday, July 1. Amogh Prakash remained red-hot with a two-run homer.

Evan Doherty and Michael Slayton each knocked home runs to lead Andover National to a 17-1 drubbing of Tewksbury American last Monday, June 30.

Andrew Kennefick added a pair of hits, Jacob Lapp and Sean Sullivan each stood out on the mound and Alex Lane excelled at first base for the winners.

slam to help Andover American roll over Billerica American 17-1 last Sunday, June 29. Jakoby Stanley, Patrick McConnell and Jake Clinard combined for the win on the mound.

Andover National couldn't bounce back from a tough first inning this past Sunday, falling to North Andover American 14-4.

Legion baseball

Gillette, Selima stay red-hot for Legion

Cedric Gillette continued his dynamic debut season with Andover Legion, throwing four innings of shutout, one-hit ball to help Post 8 roll over Saugus 12-0 this past Sunday.

Andre Selima kept swinging his hot bat with a home run, another hit and three RBIs for the winners. Scott Leslie and Corey Stillings added three hits each, while Cam Farnham, Scott Allan, Max Novick and Tim Kalantzakos chipped in with two hits apiece.

Scott Allan earned his third win in as many starts, allowing just two hits and two walks in a complete-game effort to lead Andover Legion to a 2-1 thriller over North Andover in a game on June 29.

Scott Leslie crossed the plate for both of Post 8's runs. In the fourth, he doubled and scored on a hit by Dillon Preston. Then in the sixth, he was standing on third when Max Novick drew a walk with the bases loaded for the winning run.

ANDOVER LITTLE LEAGUE UPDATE

Brewers battle to 2014 Majors championship

Backed by strong pitching, solid defense and timely hitting, the Brewers defeated the Indians in the finals of the Andover Little League Majors Division last month to secure the 2014 championship.

The Brewers set the offensive tone of the game in the first inning with towering home runs by 12-year-olds Ben Weeden and Aneudy Moreno, who later added another home run to his game stats. The bats were hot for their teammates, too, and by the end of the game, every player in the Brewers' lineup had contributed to the team's performance.

Although the Indians led the league in runs scored this season, Brewers pitcher Jason Denoncourt, 12, carried a no-hitter into the sixth inning, when Indians lead-off batter Andrew Komouras smacked a home run to center field on what was Denoncourt's final pitch of the outing.

On defense, 12-year-old Michael Leone led the Brewers with big plays at shortstop, including a deep up-the-middle grab to enable him to throw out a speedy runner at first base and a diving play later in the game that took away a hit from the Indians.

The championship game capped off a season that saw the Brewers battle to overcome a winless start in their first four games to then go on to drop just two additional games the entire rest of the way to the finals. Parents of the Brewers players cited the chemistry and leadership shown by the teammates, and commended the team for playing as a unit, not as individuals.

finals marked the end of the inaugural season for the new Deyermund Park fields on Blanchard Street. They were dedicated and christened on a rainy spring afternoon in April with a "Sand Lot" game incorporating players from all of the division's teams, with play culminating with the finals last month.

Unbeaten Blue Jays win 9-year-old Division crown

The Blue Jays went undefeated to capture the first-place crown in the Andover Little League 9-year-old Division this season.

The team recorded a 15-0 record on its way to the championship. It's the first undefeated season for a team in the division in many years, coaches say, and the first at the new fields at Deyermund Park, which officially opened this spring.

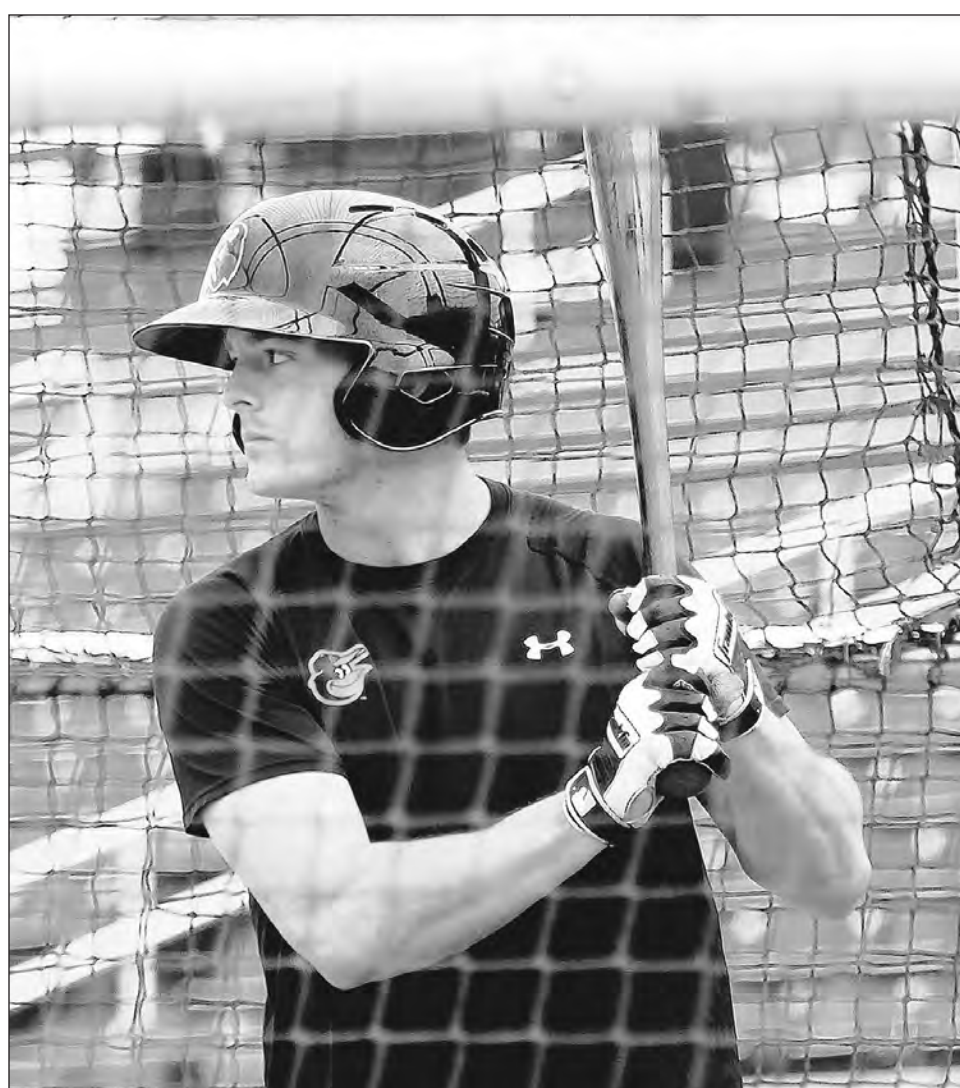

The team includes Joshua Berman, Chase Lembo, Ryan Mittelman, Jaiden Brown, Kian Sayan, Jake Sullivan, Neel Metlapalli, Campbell Allardi, Brendan Carroll, Daniel Stump and Anthony Morgante.

Coach Joel Mittelman was aided by assistant coaches Andrew Berman and Jeremy Brown, with Nick Lembo as team manager.

Young Yaz hits for cycle

Andover's Mike Yastrzemski — the grandson of Hall of Famer Carl Yastrzemski — hit for the cycle last Saturday to lift the Frederick Key, the high Single-A affiliate of the Baltimore Orioles, to a 17-3 win over the Lynchburg Hillcats.

His triple came in his last at-bat. On the day, Yastrzemski went 5 for 6 (one single, two doubles, one triple and one home run) with five RBIs and three runs out of the leadoff spot. The terrific performance boosted his average to .321.

COMMUNITY SCOREBOARD

Burns scores Independent School League honors

Lawrence Academy junior Brian Burns received Honorable Mention from the Independent School League for his performance as second baseman on the Spartans' baseball team this spring. Burns' coaches also recognized his growth throughout the season with the team's Most Improved Player Award.

Coach Chris Margraf said in a press release that, in a season that produced a 7-12 record, "strong pitching and solid defense allowed us to remain competitive in every game." Burns' performance at the plate (.324 avg., 12 hits, 7 runs scored, 6 walks) also contributed to the team's successes, he said.

In March, during Lawrence Academy in Groton's two-week experiential learning session known as Winterim, Burns immersed himself in a program that taught and let him practice skills needed to be a sports journalist. He observed events, conducted interviews and learned how to pitch and write a story. He is the son of Carla and Robert Burns of Andover.
