Pension OK'd for Retirement Board chairman

By BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsman.com

The Retirement Board recently approved a disability pension for its own chairman worth up to $62,000 a year, not including so-called annuity payments he is also eligible for.

James Cuticchia, a lieutenant with the Andover Fire Department, was injured on the job in February 2013. Although the specifics of how he was injured were unavailable, documents provided by the Fire Department show that he hurt his back. Cuticchia is also chairman of the Andover Retirement Board, which approved his disability pension following a lengthy medical review and numerous surgeries over the last 1 1/2 years. The four-person board voted 2-0 in favor of granting Cuticchia the disability pension. He recused himself from both the discussion and the vote on his pension.

Elena Kothman, executive director of Retirement Services, and Town Accountant Theo Moccia both voted in favor of awarding the pension. The fourth board member, Anthony Stankowicz, was not present.

Normally, there would be five members voting, but there has been a vacancy on the Retirement Board for two years because the Board of Selectmen has been unable to decide on a replacement.

The pension was also approved by PERAC, the state's Public Employee Retirement Administration Commission.

Cuticchia did not respond to requests for an interview. According to Kothman, Cuticchia was allowed to sit in the room as the board deliberated on his disability pension.

"He did not participate in the vote or the discussion," she said. "He talked to the board's attorney, who said he didn't have to leave the room,

Demolition day arrives for original Bancroft School

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsman.com

With the new Bancroft Elementary School looming in its shadow, the old Bancroft began to see its final fate this week. Representatives of Skanska USA Building, the contractor in charge of both the construction and demolition projects, expected that the old school built in the late 1960s would be fully leveled by early next week. Heavy equipment began pulling apart the original school piece by piece on Tuesday morning. The scraps were then loaded onto trucks and transported away to be properly recycled.

All of the debris is expected to be removed from the site by the middle of August. Eventually, the school's old footprint will be used for playgrounds, a basketball court and part of a soccer field. The final site work on the property, which is adjacent to the campus of Phillips Academy in the center of town, is expected to be completed sometime in October.

Come Aug. 27, students, filled with a sense of both excitement and curiosity, will enter the new Bancroft Elementary School that sits just yards away from their former school. In contrast to the chalet-inspired exterior and open-concept floor plan of its predecessor, the new, larger Bancroft has a more modern feel with a spacious gymnasium and contemporary library. It will accommodate up to 680 students in kindergarten through grade five, about 180 more youngsters than the original.

Joining forces against pipeline

Route through conservation land deemed 'unacceptable'

By TIM LIMA
tlima@andovertownsman.com

With the threat of a high-pressure natural gas pipeline looking to carve a path through town, local officials and residents this week charted their next step in seeking to alter — if not entirely stop — the project.

The Board of Selectmen joined residents in voicing their concerns Monday night for Tennessee Gas' proposal to bring a 418-mile pipeline filled with natural gas from Pennsylvania to Dracut that includes a separate, lateral line through Andover en route to Lynnfield.

While those attending unanimously opposed the plan that energy company Kinder Morgan presented on behalf of Tennessee Gas at a community meeting earlier this month, an appropriate course of action was heavily debated.

Selectman Paul Salafia said the thought of intercepting 60 percent of Andover's conservation land with a 30-inch pipeline, requiring what Kinder Morgan representatives have indicated would be a 50- to 100-foot right of way, "is unacceptable."

"We need to press them hard to seek alternative routes," Salafia said. "We should wave the flag and tell them they can't do that."

Salafia said town Conservation Commissioner

Abbey Bridal to close doors after 35 years of weddings

By JUDY WAKEFIELD
jwakefield@andovertownsman.com

The last few weeks at Abbey Bridal Shoppe on North Main Street have been a bit like the famed "running of the brides" at the former Filene's Basement in Boston. All wedding gowns and accessories — including veils and shoes, not to mention bridesmaid and mother-of-the-bride dresses — are being sold for half-price. The sale is in anticipation of the longtime shop's closing at the end of September.

After 35 years in the bridal business — 30 at its current location at the corner of Windsor Street in the Shawsheen section of town — owner Lorraine Tremblay

Davis is preparing for retirement.

"It's been busy, busy, busy," she said.

It wasn't supposed to be a retirement sale for the shop, known for its eye-catching window displays showcasing the latest bridal trends.

For years, Davis expected her daughter would assume ownership and operation of the successful business. The plan was like a strong marriage, with the shop destined to last for many more years.

But cancer had other plans. Lisa Tremblay was diagnosed with the disease years ago. While the resulting treatments initially slowed her down, she endured and was

The closing of Abbey's Bridal Shoppe is just one of a handful of changes taking place in the Andover business community. Meanwhile, Lyn Evans Potpourri, a women's apparel shop at 9 Main St., is closing her Andover business only next month. ## PIPELINE

Bob Douglas has already devised two alternatives. The first would extend the pipeline down the existing highway, which Salafia said would be “completely benign to us.”

However, that route was said to be triple the cost of Kinder Morgan’s proposal. Town Manager Reginald “Buzz” Stapeczynski also said Tennessee Gas is interested in owning the land for its pipeline outright, as opposed to seeking easements, which would be required if the route traveled along a state highway.

The second alternative would travel closer to the border of Tewksbury, having less impact on Andover.

What was clear was the need for immediate action. Kinder Morgan is slated to submit its formal proposal to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission on Sept. 15. Salafia said he has been told that once that proposal is submitted, it becomes considerably more difficult to alter the course of the route.

“We need to drive the bus here and try to change the route as much as we can,” he said.

School Committee member Barbara L’Italien, a former state representative who is running for the state Senate this fall, agreed. Calling herself a pragmatist, she said she believes the town’s best chance of affecting the outcome is to agree on a unified vision for an alternative route.

“I just don’t believe we are going to be able to stop a multi-state pipeline from coming through most towns,” she said. “We can get up and make good theater, but the thought that it is not going to happen is a little bit naive.”

Stapeczynski said the town, to date, has not received any official notice from Kinder Morgan seeking to survey its land for the pipeline route. Last month, Stapeczynski issued a cease-and-desist order against pipeline workers trying to survey residents’ properties after complaints that surveyors working for Tennessee Gas were employing heavy-handed tactics as they sought to access their land.

Susan Stott, a trustee of the Andover Village Improvement Society, which owns a considerable amount of protected property and open space in town, said her group did receive a request to survey its land, which her board denied. Conservation Commission member Alix Driscoll said her board voted unanimously last week not to allow any surveying of town conservation land by Kinder Morgan and to oppose the project.

“We just want to keep them off the property for now,” she said.

Selectmen agreed to have Stapeczynski and his team continue working on alternative routes to present at their next board meeting on Aug. 4. The town manager will also be contacting the Merrimack Valley Planning Commission to seek its expertise regarding potential environmental implications with the project.

Selectmen also set a tentative date for a second community forum to include state legislators on Wednesday, Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. The meeting is dependent on the availability of the state officials. Representatives of Kinder Morgan and Tennessee Gas will also be invited. The meeting location has not yet been set.

Some residents suggested that Andover join with a group of concerned communities that has formed in Middlesex County to fight the project as well.

Sadly, though, the cancer returned, ultimately claiming her life in 2010 at the age of 41.

Lorraine Tremblay Davis continued on, but she’s now ready to outfit her final brides.

She said the last few years have been difficult ones. But the tough times haven’t come in helping to match brides-to-be with their dream gowns or seeing photographs of them outfitted on their wedding days.

“I’ll see a handwritten note by Lisa ... personal things like that, and it certainly gets to me,” she said last week as she tried to hold back tears.

There’s no new tenant yet for the 4,000-square-foot, two-story space. For now, it will continue to hold memories of a loving mother and her daughter who once ran a popular bridal shop there and made countless dreams come true.

FD medical leave

Cuticchia’s disability pension came to light after Fire Chief Michael Mansfield went to the Finance Committee in June seeking extra funding to pay the medical costs of firefighters injured in the line of duty.

By state law, when a firefighter or police officer is injured on the job, the town — not the employee’s health insurance provider — pays the medical bills, similar to the way workers’ compensation works in the private sector.

Because he didn’t have enough money in his own budget, Mansfield sought an additional $75,000 from the Finance Committee to cover the cost of injuries his department members sustained in fiscal 2014, which ended June 30. That augmented about $20,000 he already had, bringing total medical costs for the department to almost $100,000.

After brief deliberations, the Finance Committee granted Mansfield his request, tapping the reserve fund set aside for emergency expenditures, which this past fiscal year was set at $200,000.

It is the second time the fire chief has been in front of the Finance Committee. Last year, Mansfield hit up the committee for about $50,000 to cover firefighters’ medical bills.

The reason for the high cost of injuries billed to the town over the last two years is primarily a result of Cuticchia’s injuries. Mansfield confirmed that the biggest contributor to the cost overrun was that one lieutenant had been out for more than 1 1/2 years with a back injury.

Mansfield declined to name the injured employee, citing federal and state confidentiality law. But Cuticchia’s name was confirmed by the Retirement Board and the president of the firefighters’ union.

Based on the number of hours of medical leave taken, the last two years were the highest years of medical leave at the Fire Department in the last 12 years.

According to a chart provided by the fire chief to the Finance Committee, in fiscal year 2011, firefighters were out just 366 hours of medical leave from on-the-job injuries. In fiscal year 2012, that number rose to 580 hours. But in 2013, after Cuticchia got injured, the number of hours skyrocketed to 3,583. Last year was even higher, with 4,341 hours of injury leave recorded.

The chart shows a lieutenant was out 2,016 hours in fiscal 2014, costing the town $34,707 in medical leave. The cost of overtime to fill his position topped $127,300. According to the chart, the lieutenant sustained a back injury.

Cuticchia isn’t the only one with costly injuries in fiscal 2014. Another 16 firefighters and two other lieutenants were injured in the line of duty for a total cost, as of the end of May, of about $90,000. Overtime to cover all of the injured firefighters was almost $240,000.

The types of injuries also varied, with eight people out with back injuries, two with knee injuries, and one each with a shoulder, right thumb, mouth and shoulder/elbow injury. Two were treated for exposure injuries.

According to union president Eric Teichert, firefighters are required to log any kind of injury they receive in case they need medical treatment, which is then paid for by the town.

For example, during fiscal year 2013, there were more than 40 injuries reported, but only 14 of them required medical leave and treatment paid for by the town.

Of those requiring leave, one person was injured and out for 176 hours after straining his right shoulder while hooking a hose to a hydrant.

Another injury was sustained when a firefighter twisted his ankle stepping off the ambulance. That injury required 44 hours of medical leave.

Other injuries reported that did not require injury leave included: slipping on ice in the parking lot, walking into a trailer hitch, having pain and ringing in the ears and bumping a door with a knee. One person reported a “chipped tooth” from “exercising” in 2011. Another person reported a left arm injury from an insect bite.

Mansfield confirmed that quite often, treatment is not needed, but that injuries are logged in case medical treatment becomes necessary.

Retirement board policies

In Cuticchia’s case, he apparently needed numerous surgeries and attempted to resume duty, but was ultimately deemed unfit to return to his job.

“The approval of the accidental disability retirement was based on medical panel results,” Kothman said. “The findings of fact are that the member is disabled, the disability is permanent in nature, the injury is work related, and the member is no longer able to perform the essential duties of his position.”

The state commission approved the finding and Cuticchia’s retirement was effective July 9. The Retirement Board will be notified of PERAC’s decision at its next meeting July 24, Kothman said.

The fact that the board approved a disability retirement for its chairman may not sit well with some in town who have criticized the panel for being too lenient in its policies, thus creating more of a burden on the long-term liabilities in the budget.

Bob Landry, founder of the budget watchdog website townofandover.com, said the Retirement Board has “made it clear they aren’t accountable to the town. There’s no shame. He (Cuticchia) has managed to get himself a disability pension. This guy kills me ... with his sense of entitlement.”

The Board of Selectmen and Town Manager Reginald “Buzz” Stapeczynski have tried to convince the Retirement Board to change some of its policies regarding part-time workers receiving full-time retirement and health care benefits, but has been unsuccessful.

During a recent meeting with selectmen, Cuticchia said the Retirement Board is an autonomous group that doesn’t report to anyone in town, but whose actions are governed by state law.

Selectmen Chairman Dan Kowalski has started a series of discussions regarding the Retirement Board in the hopes of altering some of its policies to reduce the hundreds of millions of dollars in obligations owed to retirees over the next 30 years.

He has also appointed a subcommittee to lead the process of picking the next member of the Retirement Board. A decision is expected soon.

phone calls. But in a goodbye letter to customers, she wrote that she was sad to be leaving Andover, and attributed her departure to her business expenses, which she said “were too high.”

According to Lyn Evans’ website, Shotkus also operates shops in Concord, Norwell, Wellesley and Westborough as well as four locations in Connecticut, all of which are remaining open.

Everything, including store fixtures, props and antiques, are being sold at the Andover shop, which will close next month.

Over on Park Street, there has been little visible activity at the former home of Dylan’s pub and restaurant, which abruptly closed last November after it was seized by the state for failure to pay some $191,000 in taxes. The building was sold for $800,000 last March, but its future is unclear. One of the two buyers, Todd Berberian of Andover Eye Care at 77 Main St., said weeks ago that he may move his business there or market the site to some retail stores. When asked about another restaurant opening there, he said that was unlikely because renovation costs would be too high. In the meantime, the large property remains vacant.

The empty Dylan’s joins the long-vacant former Citi Bank office on the first floor of the Musgrove Building in Elm Square, which has had a “for lease” sign hanging for many months.

The Andover Village Square complex of shops at 91 Main St. also has several vacancies. And Andover Bookstore at 89R Main St., which lost a lucrative textbook contract with Phillips Academy in Andover earlier this summer, has threatened to close if its landlord doesn’t reduce the rent.

Holly Nahabedian of Century Bank, who serves as president of the Andover Business Community Association, said the local business scene is simply turning over, as it occasionally does. She’s optimistic that all of the vacant storefronts will soon be filled.

“We had two retirements at businesses that were in town for a long time,” she said. “We wish them well and ABCA hopes any new businesses will keep people shopping locally ... that’s what we’re all about.”

Paul Matarazzo, the town’s planning director, agreed.

“We see these openings as an opportunity ... other businesses can come into downtown,” he said.

Nahabedian added that she’s not concerned that the vacancies will impact the upcoming Andover Day festivities set for Saturday, Sept. 6. The annual day of shopping and know that Andover has a lot to offer and they should shop locally,” Nahabedian said.

Two new Finance Committee members appointed

By BILL KIRK

bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

Two new members have been appointed to the Finance Committee and at least one of them promises to shake things up while the other is vowing to keep an eye on school spending.

Town Moderator Sheila Doherty, who appoints members to the all-volunteer committee as part of her duties, has named Max Arai, 55, of 66 County Road, and Bonnie Zahorik, 54, of 2 Granli Drive, to the committee.

Doherty said she interviewed 12 people and narrowed the field down to the two candidates she thinks will bring the best balance to the committee.

“People on the Finance Committee are one on a committee of nine members,” she said. “They need to be able to hear all sides and hash things out. It’s more important to find people who respect each other’s opinions and can come to conclusions that will help the town.”

The Finance Committee, or FinCom as it’s commonly called, is probably the second-most influential board in town in terms of the budget and Town Meeting. The nine-member committee goes over every item on the agenda for Town Meeting, while also holding exhaustive hearings throughout the year on the budgets of every town department.

The votes it takes are advisory, but Town Meeting voters tend to go along with members’ recommendations.

Arai said he was good friends with the late Greg Rigby, a former FinCom member who was not reappointed following a tumultuous tenure.

Rigby was one of the founding members of townofandover.com, a watchdog website that keeps a close eye on town spending habits.

The remaining founder and website operator, Bob Landry, said Arai “has a great finance background and is a great choice.”

Arai said he has closely studied town finances and is concerned that Andover’s leaders aren’t doing enough to address long-term liabilities, such as retiree health insurance and pension obligations.

“Greg (Rigby) got in all kinds of trouble for bringing this up,” he said, referring specifically to the interest rate assumptions the town uses to forecast future costs and revenues. “I plan on bringing this up. I have brought this up. It’s fairly difficult to negotiate any kind of budget or compensation package if people don’t have a clear understanding of all the different parts.”

He said he hoped his concern about long-term liabilities doesn’t get him into trouble.

“Sheila warned me about this,” he said. “She said her No. 1 goal is to have a FinCom that can work together, and have diversity of opinions so things get discussed. We’ll have to see how this works out. Maybe she’ll regret this.”

Zahorik, meanwhile, was appointed because she has experience in different facets of business and municipal finance, Doherty said.

“She has a generalist background,” Doherty said. “She has experience in marketing and is a member of the League of Women Voters and has moderated the annual budget forum the last several years. She’s involved with the school budget advisory committee and has three children in the school system.”

“The fact she has strong marketing background will help us continue to educate and get the word out to voters about what the recommendations are of the FinCom. We’ve done a lot to educate people on OPEB and the debt tool and strategic financial issues. Someone with a marketing background will help get the message out.”

Zahorik, whose children are ages 13, 15 and 17, said she has 27 years of experience in financial services, including 15 years in information technology. She does direct-marketing analytics and has dealt with large and small budgets, so is very familiar with how budgets work, she added.

“What I find fascinating is that there are a lot of differences between private-sector and municipal budgets,” she said. “How revenue is generated is obviously very different. But the things you spend money on are not that different. It’s about technology, infrastructure and people.”

Last year, when FinCom members complained about lack of access to school budget figures, Zahorik said she realized there may be a problem with the process and timing.

“Everyone involved in the process is trying to fulfill their roles,” she said.

“There are timing challenges about when information becomes available. That’s one of the reasons I’m interested in serving — I want to focus on improving the budget process on timing and collaboration. I hope to contribute to those process improvements.”

As of last week, neither of the new members had been sworn in by Town Clerk Larry Murphy. Zahorik did attend her first meeting last week, but didn’t take any votes. Arai was on vacation last week. They both planned on getting sworn in this week.

OBITUARIES

Donald E. Lundgren, 92

April 21, 1922 — July 20, 2014

WOLFEBORO, NH — Donald E. Lundgren of Wolfeboro, N.H., died on Sunday, July 20, at the age of 92. He was born on April 21, 1922, in Andover, Mass., to Everett M. Lundgren and Ruth (Manson) Lundgren. He moved to Wolfeboro and to Bradenton, Fla., in 1984, after retiring from the Lundgren Funeral Home in Andover, which had been a family-owned business since 1913.

Mr. Lundgren was a proud WWII Army veteran, having served in the European Theater.

He was a member of St. Matthew's Lodge AF&AM in Andover and of the Scottish Rite Bodies of Lowell, Lawrence and Boston.

Predeceased by his parents and his brother, Malcolm, Donald is survived by his wife of 69 years, Marjorie (Howes) Lundgren of Wolfeboro; daughters, Karen Parker and son-in-law, Edward, Bonnie Sanborn and son-in-law, James; son, D. Richard Lundgren and daughter-in-law, Nancy; grandchildren, E. Christian, Holly and Susannah Parker, Rebecca and James Sanborn, Kristina Mendes and her husband, Arthur, and R. Scott and Andrew Lundgren; as well as seven great-grandchildren.

ARRANGEMENTS: Services will be held at 3 p.m., on Thursday, July 24, at the John Breen Memorial Funeral Home, 35 Merrimack Street, North Andover. The family will welcome visitors beginning at 2 p.m., and has requested that any remembrances should be made to charities of personal choice. At the request of the family, the burial will be private.

For condolences and other information, please visit www.breenfuneralhome.com.

William Russell, Jr., 82

January 29, 1932 — July 16, 2014

ANDOVER, MA — William E. Russell, Jr. passed away on July 16, 2014, at the age of 82. Bill will be missed greatly by his beloved wife of 53 years, Judith; his daughters, Suzanne and Donna (Meuth); son, Mark; son-in-law, Michael Meuth, and grandsons, Ryan, Jason and Derek Meuth. Born in Arlington, Mass., Bill was a member of the class of 1953 at College of the Holy Cross. In addition, he received advanced degrees from Boston College and Boston University. A devoted husband and father, Bill's first priority throughout his life was his family. Together with Judith, he treasured time with his children and grandchildren.

Bill was a longtime educator. In 1968, Bill began teaching at Merrimack College, where, for over 30 years, he taught and inspired hundreds of students. He retired in 2000, but rejoined the faculty to teach a special program for freshmen in 2004-05.

Donations in his memory will be made to The Josephites (www.josephites.org).

State Sen. Barry Finegold, D-Andover, speaks to supporters during a rally at the Market Basket store parking lot in Tewksbury on Monday.

Finegold backs Market Basket workers

By SHAWN REGAN
Staff Writer

Thirty-eight Massachusetts lawmakers and mayors led by Sen. Barry Finegold, D-Andover, have injected themselves into the dispute between Market Basket and its employees.

Finegold this week said a petition he started on Saturday calls for an immediate boycott of Market Basket grocery stores and pledges support for employees and members of the public who have protested the ousting of Arthur T. Demoulas.

Arthur T. Demoulas was recently ousted as the company's president by his cousin Arthur A. Demoulas. Arthur A. and the company's board then hired new co-CEOs who the workers believe will make changes that will hurt employees while increasing profits for stakeholders.

At least eight managers have been fired in recent days for their support of Arthur T. Demoulas. On Monday, the fired managers and others called for a full employee work stoppage and for the public to boycott Market Basket stores in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine.

Finegold, whose Senate district includes Andover, Lawrence, Tewksbury and Dracut, said he joined the dispute to support his constituents who work and shop at the supermarket chain. There are four Market Basket stores and two warehouses in his district, he said.

"Jobs are at stake and many of them belong to my constituents," said Finegold, who on Monday attended a rally with an estimated 3,000 Market Basket employees and supporters at the chain's Tewksbury store. Finegold is also a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state treasurer in the September primary.

"Market Basket is one of the biggest employers in my district," Finegold said. "That's why I'm here. ... It's also about keeping a low-cost grocer for the people of the Merrimack Valley and the rest of the state who need it. These people are not asking for a pay raise or better benefits; they just want their leader back."

Local politicians who have agreed to support Finegold's petition include state Reps. Diana DiZoglio, D-Methuen; Frank Moran, D-Lawrence; and Marcos Devers, D-Lawrence; Lawrence Mayor Daniel Rivera, Methuen Mayor Stephen Zanni and Haverhill Mayor James Fiorentini. New Hampshire state Rep. Renny Cushing, D-Hampton, also signed the petition.

At Monday's rally, Finegold told attendees to call their representatives and urge them to support a boycott of Market Basket stores until Arthur T. Demoulas is restored to his former position running the company.

"A lot of us were sitting on the sidelines and heard about a family dispute," Finegold told the crowd. "But now it's time for us to stand with all of you who are risking your jobs."

Finegold's petition reads, in part: "We, the undersigned, stand today with the thousands of Market Basket employees who have walked out of their jobs in protest of the firing of their beloved CEO Arthur T. Demoulas."

Fire truck leaks 40 gallons of diesel fuel

By BILL KIRK
bkirk@andovertownsmen.com

A fire truck leaked 40 gallons of diesel fuel after the strap holding the fuel tank snapped last Friday, July 18, around 4:30 p.m.

The tank dropped to the ground and was dragged underneath Engine 2 for several miles before a motorist behind the truck called 911 to report the leaking fuel.

The truck then stopped on Central Street near the intersection with Phillips Street, where a large puddle of fuel formed. It was contained by Speedy-Dry, a material similar to cat litter that soaks up contaminants.

Fire Chief Mike Mansfield said environmental agencies were informed of the spill because some of the fuel leaked into soil adjacent to the truck on Central Street.

The liquid fuel was being vacuumed up by Coady's Towing, which also had large wreckers on the scene to take the truck away.

Mansfield said that Engine 2 crew was coming to the central station on North Main Street and firefighters on board "didn't know the tank was leaking" as they drove.

He said that when the strap gave way, the tank dragged along the road, spilling fuel as it went. A streak of diesel fuel could be seen from Dascomb Road to Andover Street and onto Central Street all the way to where the truck stopped.

Mansfield said the department has a rigorous maintenance program and that the tank on another truck had just recently been replaced. He said Engine 2 had even been through maintenance recently, but the problem with the fuel tank strap was not evident when the work was done.

"It's something that happens," he said. "We have a great preventive maintenance program, but sometimes it's difficult to detect the condition of the straps. There was no indication of wear or corrosion."

The fuel did not appear to leak into any storm drains, although the trail of the fuel spill did travel several miles, including over wetlands and other sensitive areas. There was no indication the fuel leaked off the road, however.

Electronics, cash stolen in car breaks

More than a dozen cars were broken into and had electronics and other items stolen last week.

Callers from Olde Berry Road, Fleming Avenue and Stirling Street reported the rash of car breaks at around 7:30 a.m. last Monday, July 14.

There were five calls from Fleming Avenue, two from Stirling Street and several more from Olde Berry Road.

Police said 13 cars in all were broken into. Eleven of the cars were left unlocked and two had their windows smashed. Stolen items included small amounts of cash, sunglasses, a Nintendo console, a GPS unit, a small knife and a portable DVD player, among other things.

Detectives were able to lift some fingerprints from the cars. The prints were sent to the State Police crime lab to see if a match could be found.

Some items that may have been stolen were found around 8 a.m. that morning on Stirling Street, according to the police log.

Monday, July 14 Arrest

Samuel Anthony Nieves, age unavailable, of 45 West 3rd St., Apt. 12, Lowell, was arrested on a warrant.

Incidents

A caller from Halsom Road reported at 8:58 a.m. that their missing cat was in the wall. The animal control officer was able to get the animal out.

An Andover Street

resident reported at 4:23 p.m. that someone with an Italian accent tried to sell him and his wife fake Armani products out of the back of a black SUV or station wagon.

A Morton Street resident reported at 6:35 p.m. that while she was walking her dog on Locke Street, a group of three to four teenagers unleashed their dogs and said, "Go get them." Police could not find the teens.

Wednesday, July 16 Arrest

Angel Rivera, 36, of 13 Swan St., Lawrence, was charged with larceny over $250 after allegedly stealing a Federal Express package from the front of someone's house on River Street. A caller had reported to police the previous night that someone stole the FedEx package. He called police again on Wednesday to report that he saw the suspect in the same car seen leaving the scene of the original theft. Police then arrested Rivera at 10:21 a.m. on River Street.

Thursday, July 17 Arrest

Maziar Tavakoli, 37, of 7 Acorn Drive, Andover, was arrested at 10:30 p.m. and charged with domestic assault and battery.

Saturday, July 19 Arrests

Your Dental HEALTH
by Nicholas T. Papapetros, DMD, FAGD

OVERCOMING REFLEXIVE RESPONSE

If dental appointments make you anxious, you should make your feelings known to the dentist and dental hygienist, who can help you overcome your anxiety. A fuller explanation of the procedure at hand often helps patients know what to expect and prepare for any mild discomfort that they may feel. Topical and injected anesthetics make pain a non-issue; however, simply the thought of experiencing pain arouses such anxiety that patients feel a bit overwhelmed. Recent research published in The Journal of the American Dental Association shows that the urge to gag that many patients experience is often founded in fear. Once patient worries are properly addressed with reassurance, soothing music, and/or medication in some cases, dental appointments become worry-free.

Part of our commitment to serving our patients includes providing information that helps them to make more informed decisions about their oral health needs and plans to eliminate anxiety. At DENTISTRY BY DESIGN, we encourage you to talk to us about your dental health. Preventing dental disease is less costly and more rewarding than correcting the problem. We will show you how to care for your teeth. We're located at 19 Barnard St. where we provide quality, personal dental care in a comfortable, immaculate, professional environment. Please call 978.475.5333 to schedule an appointment. Let us help you bring out that natural smile.

P.S. It is the pain that occurs before treatment that makes root-canal therapy so uncomfortable. Most patients report that the root-canal procedure itself is no more painful than having a filling placed.

Rotary awards $2,500 scholarships to 3 Andover graduates

Three members of the class of 2014 from Andover will be starting college with a $2,500 boost from the Rotary Club of Andover.

The Rotary Club has been awarding scholarships to graduating high school seniors for 19 years, distributing $110,000 in that time, according to Peter Caruso, co-chairman of the selection committee.

"Each year it gets more and more difficult to select just three recipients, because the accomplishments, plans and personal poise during all the interviews are just super," fellow selection committee co-chairman Paul Mercandetti said in a release.

This year's honorees are: Marika Cerbone, a first-generation American, completed a significant amount of community service by volunteering in a number of capacities, including at the Lawrence Boys and Girls Club, Andover Historical Society, Winchester Hospital, Frost School in Lawrence and with the League of Women Voters. She was a member of the Andover High School Rotary Interact Club, which fueled her passion to become an international public servant. She will attend American University in Washington, D.C., in the fall.

Angelina Lionetta earned The Barbara Doran Rotary Scholarship. She has a strong focus on community, which was the hallmark of Doran, a long-time Andover resident and banker whose community leadership was well known. Lionetta was a member of the National Honor Society executive board and on the JV track and field team. She has worked with children with disabilities and volunteered with Homes for Our Troops and helped organize a 5K run/walk that raises money for houses for handicapped returning veterans.

She also has taught CCD and has a passion for singing, volunteering for several choirs. She will attend Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H.

Michael Giannone received the Philip Mercandetti Rotary Scholarship in honor of the civic leader and father of Paul Mercandetti. Giannone played football and basketball and worked as a baseball camp coach. He volunteered with the Special Olympics and for Creative Living, a house for developmentally delayed adults. He also organized fundraisers for the Rotary Club of Andover's project for the Margaret Okari Children's School in Africa. He will be attending the University of New Hampshire.

The Rotary Club of Andover, a civic group of men and women who focus their work on the Merrimack Valley, meets Fridays at 7:30 a.m. at the Lanam Club, 260 North Main St.

Local teacher named top educator

Honored for inspiring students to discover engineering college students. They participate in the Future City competition and other engineering challenges throughout the year. To cap off their accomplishments, there is a celebration during Engineers Week, where the students present their work to teachers, mentors, parents and community leaders.

Stephanie Cross of Andover, a teacher at the Lawrence Family Development Charter Center in Lawrence, has been recognized for inspiring the next generation of students to discover engineering with a 2014 Educator Award from DiscoverE.

Cross was nominated for the award by Edward L. Hajduk, an engineering professor at UMass Lowell, who says, "I have found Stephanie to be a truly remarkable teacher, with a passion, drive and genuine love of engineering and her students that makes her unique. She inspires me to be a better educator."

The winners, who are selected by a panel of distinguished national education, engineering and business leaders, receive a $2,000 cash prize and a 3M gift pack of classroom supplies. The other award winners teach in Colorado and Texas. Eight runners-up were also chosen.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers Foundation, Bechtel, ExxonMobil, IEEE-USA and 3M are the sponsors for DiscoverE's 2014 Educator Awards. Visit www.discovere.org for more information.

Through the annual recognition, the engineering profession pays tribute to those who bring engineering to life for students in grades six through 12.

Cross started her professional life as a research scientist, but discovered her passion for teaching when she had children. Twelve years later, she now leads a middle school science department in Lawrence that serves students who tend to be from impoverished situations.

Noting in her statement that Massachusetts' economy is driven by technology and engineering, she says, "Why shouldn't my students be the future of this state's economy?" Cross says that question is what drives her to provide her students with a possible route out of poverty in the form of engineering skills.

Cross says helping students discover engineering is "both a process and a product-driven activity." To bolster the engineering program at Lawrence Family Development Charter Center, she turned to local companies and a UMass Lowell for help.

Through these partnerships, she has created a thriving after-school program where her students are mentored by engineering

ON CAMPUS

Haley Jamieson graduated from Champlain College in Burlington, Vt., with a bachelor's degree in early childhood/elementary education.

James Hamilton made the fall 2013 dean's list at Franklin & Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa. He is a graduate of Phillips Academy.

Market Basket workers, shoppers amp up pressure

There's a revolution going on at the shopping cart corrals, at the entrances to almost every one of Market Basket's 71 stores, in the increasingly empty store aisles.

Across the region — from North Andover to Haverhill to Salem, N.H. — store employees Monday and Tuesday stationed themselves at the entrances, holding signs and petitions, urging shoppers to stay out.

It's a phenomenon unheard of in corporate America.

The Demoulas family's supermarket chain is coming undone, link by link.

Market Basket truck drivers aren't making deliveries, stock clerks carry clipboards urging consumers to sign a petition asking the board of directors to reinstate ousted CEO Arthur T. Demoulas.

Pictures of Arthur T. are taped to empty seafood and produce displays. Fliers explaining why there are no more Cheerios or sweet potatoes hang from the shelves.

A crowd of employees 3,000 to 4,000 strong rallied in Tewksbury Monday, among them the eight who were fired via courier Sunday.

This isn't a union crowd, these aren't public sector workers.

These are the people who run the stores, who ring up groceries, who do cleanup on Aisle 7. They are dedicated to Arthur T. and the company as it operated under him.

Who would consider a grocery store job a career for all but the top-level managers? Market Basket employees, that's who. Their years of service, proudly displayed on company buttons, are impressive, many of 20, 30 even 40 years.

They're loyal because they've been well paid and well treated and they believe in people first, a motto often touted by Arthur T.

Enter Arthur T.'s nemesis, cousin Arthur S. Demoulas. After months of trying to kick Arthur T. to the curb, he succeeded last month.

That's when the family feud that's been simmering — sometimes boiling over — for decades overflowed the pot and spilled into store aisles.

Employees, many putting their livelihood on the line, struck back. And plenty of loyal shoppers have lined up behind them.

Dedicated, passionate, loyal — those are the words workers use to describe Arthur T., but words that also describe them.

They're rebelling. These hard-working mothers, fathers, senior citizens, and college and high school students won't take this one lying down.

They want their leader back and until that happens, they're prepared to mop the freezer section six times a day, rearrange the remaining bottles of apple juice, and tell customers exactly what's happening with their company. And they do regard it as their company.

Customers appear eager to listen, to sign their names to a petition, to stay away from the supermarket they count on to stretch the family food budget in a show of solidarity with the workers.

For some, it's about corporate greed. For others, it's the little guy standing up to the giant. For many, it's supporting family, friends, neighbors who count on Market Basket to keep food on their own tables.

Market Basket stores, particularly the remodeled ones with the in-store cafes, have become community hubs, places people congregate when winter knocks out power, the store to shop at for family and food pantry, the quick stop on the way home to grab a prepared meal and exchange a few words with acquaintances.

Extended families are common, extended families with a supermarket chain as patriarch are not.

What's happening within Market Basket is extraordinary. What the future holds for workers, shoppers and the supermarket chain remains uncertain.

Arthur S. Demoulas may have won the battle, but the war is far from over.

WEB QUESTION

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

As the Demoulas family battles for control of the family supermarket business, where do you stand on the whole Market Basket situation?

BOYCOTTING. I am standing with the employees and their fight for what they believe in and boycotting Market Basket until the workers' demands are met.

LOYAL SHOPPER. I respect the employees' decision to stop working, but their concerns and decision to fight for their old boss are not going to stop me from shopping at Market Basket.

DISAGREE WITH WORKFORCE. Workers may not always agree with the decisions of their executives. But that does not give them the right to stop work without the potential for repercussions.

INDIFFERENT. The dispute is not affecting my choice of where I buy my groceries.

OTHER.

LAST WEEK'S QUESTION

Tennessee Gas is proposing to place a high-pressure natural gas line through town. How do you feel about the plans?

OPPOSE IT. The drilling and fracking of shale to produce natural gas, or shale gas, creates ecological and environmental concerns, with the potential to degrade water quality in rivers and streams and create short- and long-term risks to underground sources of drinking water. 203 votes, 57 percent.

UNSURE. The creation of alternative sources of energy is important. But any gas line project should consider using existing rights-of-way in an effort to cause the least amount of disruption and concern to property owners and residents. 81 votes, 23 percent.

SUPPORT IT. With the growing demand for energy today, natural gas plays an important role as a clean, reliable and affordable fossil fuel and will help ensure we meet our energy needs in the future. 69 vote, 20 percent.

ALL THOSE YEARS AGO

Compiled by
Susan McKelliget

100 Years Ago July 24, 1914

Little Martin Darby, who lives in the Barnard Block, was run over this morning by a team driven by John Collins, the contractor. The little fellow was crossing the square at the time, dragging a sled. He was told to get out of the way of one team and in doing so got in front of Collins' team, which was passing. He was knocked flat, the wheels passing over his back. He was picked up and Dr. Scott summoned. After examination, he found that Martin was bruised considerably, but no bones were broken.

The shutters have been taken down and the new entrance of the National Bank has been opened to public inspection. A very attractive banking room is shown to the people, and reports that have been sent forth regarding the interest that the public has in using some of its good equipment, notably that which provides summer storage for valuables, must be gratifying to the town, which rejoices in the success of its various institutions.

75 Years Ago July 20, 1939

A third call for bids on the town coal supply is being issued by the selectmen, school board and the Board of Public Works, following a conference with the three local coal firms on Monday evening. It is understood that bids form out-of-town dealers will be considered.

Among the flowers that he still proudly cares for himself, William C. Coutts happily greeted the many friends and relatives who called on him Monday in honor of his 90th birthday. He has lived in Andover for the past 67 years, where he has been active in church and fraternal organizations. He is one of the oldest members of the Free Church and is a member of St. Matthew's Lodge and the Square and Compass Club.

50 Years Ago July 23, 1964

A near-drowning several years ago turned potential tragedy to joy at the Hampton River on July 15. Five young people who almost drowned in a ripping, swirling current are alive this week because a polio-crippled lad learned to swim after he himself had nearly drowned at the same spot. Among the five are Kimberlee and Robin Brown, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, 181 Elm St. Two more are Fred and Maureen Hewett of Methuen. Unidentified is one young girl and her brother, who is as close to a hero as most of us will ever know.

Town officials are trying to "find" $900 to $2,000 for a water main into the dump. After a brief discussion Monday night, attempts to locate sufficient funds for the project were referred to Town Manager Richard Bowen and public works office manager Calvin Metcalf.

25 Years Ago July 20, 1989

Despite approaching deep cuts in local aid, Andover citizens will not be asked for a Proposition 2 1/2 property tax override, Town Manager Kenneth Mahoney said. Although the exact figure is still being fought over at the Statehouse, Mr. Mahoney estimates the town will lose between $500,000 and $1 million in the state's attempt to balance the budget.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A big thank-you for a Royal act of kindness

Editor, Townsman

Because not enough is said about random acts of kindness, I would like to share with you and your readers a story of just such an act.

My Mom of 78 years, Joan Mc Sweeney, is a patient at The Blaire House in Tewksbury. The employees there are wonderful to my mother. Recently, my mother's hands have become swollen, so swollen that the staff at The Blaire House said that her rings had to be removed as soon as possible.

I placed a call to Royal Jewelers in downtown Andover and spoke with the manager, David Roberts. I asked if they had someone available who could go to the nursing home and cut my Mom's rings off. I mentioned that I would be happy to pay for this service or compensate whomever went to perform this service. Mr. Roberts stated that he personally would go there that evening after work and that neither he nor the store wanted any form of compensation. His exact words were, "It's just something we are happy to do"

I was, needless to say,

quite surprised, especially given the litigious society we all find ourselves living in, and how easily he could have said the liability was too great. But what transpired was how I was almost brought to tears because of an act of random kindness from a complete stranger. Mind you, I am a customer of Royal Jewelers, but nowhere to the extent that anyone would know me.

David came that evening and did as he said he would with such patience. I need to stress that it turned out to be quite an undertaking as there was some pain and discomfort due to the condition of my mother's fingers.

I really like this town and consider myself pretty lucky to be able to live here and raise my family. Andover is a place that has establishments such as Royal Jewelers that should be commended, for it was their wisdom that brought David to their store and this town.

If you happen to know David, please let him know that you are fortunate to call him your friend, because I certainly am.

Pomps Pond delivers buckets of fun

Swimming lessons, summer camps and paddleboard clinics keep Pomps Pond busy all week long.

But come the weekend, it's all about care-free fun at the town beach off Abbot Street.

This past Sunday was no exception.

Kids dove and did cannonballs off the floating docks, while others tossed around beach balls. Little ones busied themselves building sand castles on the shore.

Whether wading in the water or frolicking in the sand, smiles seemed to fill the faces of all those who spent the day enjoying the popular recreational spot.

Eighteen-month-old James Landers of Andover dumps a bucket of water on himself to stay cool.

Jackie Giordano, right, and Autumn Carvalho, both 8, jump hand in hand off a dock at Pomps Pond on Sunday.

Ari Tacy, 7, balances on a paddleboard steered by Becca Tacy, while his friend, Ari Conlay, 7, jumps off a board steered by Robert Conlay at Pomps Pond.

Andover friends, from left, Forest Boyer, 12, Avery Miller, 14, and Spencer Daniel, 12, watch as Evan Miller, 12, takes a dive off a floating dock into Pomps Pond.

Four-year-old Emily Landers of Andover gets hoisted out of the water by her father, Eric Landers, on Sunday.

Autumn Carvalho, 8, tosses the ball around with Cindy Giordano as the two Andover residents cool off in the pond.

Eric Landers, of Andover, smiles as his 18-month-old son, James, has a blast splashing around in the water.

Out & About: Summer concerts jazz up with EastWest Quartet

The summer concert series at The Park takes a jazzy turn next week with an appearance by the EastWest Quartet on Wednesday, July 30.

Led by baritone saxophonist Jason Miele, the ensemble's repertoire includes original compositions, classic jazz standards and jazz-influenced renditions of contemporary popular music. Listeners will be treated to a journey through some of the many musical styles and forms that the American jazz genre has to offer.

The free show starts at 6 p.m. from the gazebo stage at The Park at Chestnut and Bartlet streets. In the event of rain, the concert will move inside to the adjacent World War I Memorial Auditorium.

The series is presented by the town's Department of Community Series. Visit www.AndoverDCS.com for more.

'HONK!' for summer theater workshop

ShowkidZ, Colonial Chorus Players' summer workshop for young actors ages 7 to 13 is bringing "Honk! Jr." to the stage this weekend at Parker Middle School at 45 Temple St. in Reading.

The classic tale of the ugly duckling come to life follows Ugly as she travels through the marshfields and waters around her home, encountering a band of animals who help her discover she is a beautiful swan both inside and out.

The cast is directed by Mike Pirolo and features several area residents, including Andover's Camille Miner and Tatum Nelson.

Performances are Friday, July 25, at 7 p.m. and Saturday, July 26, at 1 p.m.

General admission is $5 at the door. Visit www.colonialchorus.com for more information.

Free family movie night rolling at Faith Lutheran Church

Faith Lutheran Church on South Main Street holds its next free family fun night at the movies on Friday, July 25. "The Way," an inspirational story for young people and adults about family, unexpected friends and the challenges families face, will be shown simultaneously with "Ratatouille," an animated film for the younger set about a rat, Remy, who dreams of becoming a great chef in one of Paris' finest restaurants.

The evening begins at 6 with a dinner of sandwiches and salad provided by the church. Guests may bring a salad or dessert to share.

Main Street Mobil

Main Street Mobil has been providing customers with dependable, efficient service for years. Owners Sam and Lori Ameen suggest people bring their cars down to the Mobil station for a free 10-point safety check.

Main Street Mobil has ASE-certified technicians who provide full service to all vehicles. They also can perform no-wait drive-in state inspections in their large, six-bay garage. Customers can schedule appointments to reduce waiting time. Customers may wait while their car is being serviced in the comfortable waiting room.

Main Street Mobil provides 24-hour gas and diesel pumping. It also sells Mobil products at affordable prices. Employees are happy to pump gas at self-service prices for handicapped customers and senior citizens can receive discounts on car repairs.

The Main Street Mobil station has now been in business for over a decade. They have a reputation for being honest, responsible, and for customer satisfaction. Sam and Lori are raising two sons in Andover and the two are strong supporters and sponsors of Andover Youth activities.

Main Street Mobil is located next to Memorial Hall Library at 14 North Main St. The business is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. Its service pumps are open 24 hours per day. Telephone: 978-475-2566.

Mark Zavrl, here unleashing a massive throw during his career at Andover High, will be throwing the javelin at Cornell University in New York this fall. Zavrl, who owns the Golden Warriors' school record in the event, also starred in football at both Andover and Phillips Exeter, where he completed a post-graduate year this past spring.

Former AHS football star Zavrl turning focus to track at Cornell

By DAVID WILLIS
dwillis@andovertownsm.com

For so many years, Mark Zavrl believed football would be his future.

"I always thought I would be playing football in college," Zavrl said. "It was a given for so long. But after injuring my knee, I really began to think about my future. I put the decision off for as long as I could, but in the end, I decided to focus on track."

After starring at Andover High as a hard-hitting linebacker and kicker in football and a record-setting javelin thrower in track, the 2013 Andover High School graduate completed a post-graduate year at Phillip Exeter, where he excelled in both sports.

Now, the multi-talented athlete has made the decision he never would have imagined not that long ago — to pursue track when he enters the elite Cornell University in New York in the fall.

"It was a very, very difficult decision and I thought about it for months," he said. "I know that I will miss football so much. But once I made the decision official, I knew that it was the right decision. I am excited to focus on track and accomplish a lot academically."

Although Zavrl did not begin to pursue track seriously until his junior year, Andover High coach Peter Comeau has long believed his potential in the sport is unlimited.

"Mark loves the competition and nothing gets him frazzled," Comeau said about Zavrl last season. "I wouldn't be shocked if he threw over 200 feet. I can see him doing huge things. The sky is the limit."

At Andover, Mark Zavrl starred as both a field-goal kicker and hard-hitting linebacker before a knee injury ended his senior year mid-season. After playing both football and throwing the javelin during a post-graduate year at Phillips Exeter, Zavrl has opted to focus on track as he begins his undergraduate studies at Cornell University in New York this fall.

Growing up, Zavrl played every sport. But football quickly became his first love.

As a sophomore at Andover High, finishing third in tackles (55) and second in solo tackles (34), plus a sack and two pass interceptions.

He also booted three field goals — highlighted by his 42-yard bomb on Thanksgiving Day that helped Andover clinch the Merrimack Valley Conference Division 1 title with a win over Central Catholic.

He was even better as a junior, when he again placed third on the Golden Warriors in tackles (69), led the team with a whopping seven sacks and kicked five field goals.

That following spring, he had his first introduction to track, throwing the javelin, initially as a social activity. His friend and football teammate Joey Comeau was doing javelin and Zavrl figured he'd try it, too, and they would have some fun hanging out together.

"After a while, it started to click," said Zavrl, who threw 181-8 as a junior.

But before he began to truly dominate in track, he

Laramie hones skills among elite at USA Hockey Camp

By PHIL STACEY
Staff Writer

Zach Laramie realizes it's a statistical impossibility that he'll ever be able to play a perfect hockey game.

But that won't stop the Andover goaltender from trying.

"You take things you learn and develop from them in an attempt to continually better yourself," said Laramie, who is set to begin his sophomore year in net for St. John's Prep in Danvers.

Laramie recently returned from a week at USA Hockey's Select 16 National Camp in Buffalo. He was among the top 150 players in his age group from across the country — and the only keeper from the Bay State — to participate.

"I got to see the mistakes I made at the highest level when I was there, and now can go back and work on them so they don't happen again," he said. "Hopefully I'll minimize those in my quest to make my game perfect. It never will be, of course, but the more I learn from those mistakes, the better I'll be."

The 5-foot-10, 150-pound goaltender spent a week at the University of Buffalo honing his skills and playing in games against other elite talent. Having made the Select 16 camp last summer, Laramie had an inkling of what he'd be up against — and how difficult it was simply to earn the invitation.

He first had to try out for Team Massachusetts at the New England Sports Center in Marlboro, where dozens and dozens of players from across the state competed, playing three games apiece and battling to be chosen for one of two all-star teams. Those all-stars then played two games against each other and from that group, a half-dozen forwards, five defensemen and a goalie were chosen to go out to Buffalo for a week of training with USA Hockey.

"It's so different than anything else, just having that 'USA' across your chest," said Laramie, who saw the bulk of time in goal for St. John's Prep in Danvers this past winter as a freshman, posting a 7-6-2 record and 2.63 goals-against average while guiding the Eagles into the Division 1 North playoffs.

"I went into it wanting to be the best I could be, but at the same time realizing I was with the top kids my age in the nation and that the puck was going to go into the net behind me a few times. So I just tried to take it one shot at a time and not worry about what happened before that."

The players in Buffalo were split up into 10 teams, with Laramie one of two goalkeepers on the Forest squad. The team struggled in its five games, going 1-4 and giving up seven more goals (24) than it scored (17). But Laramie said the lessons learned will pay off in the long run.

"I was happy with the way I played," he said. "It's hard for kids from all around the country to jell together as a team in one day, so once we got our first-game jitters out, I didn't think we played that badly."

"The goals I gave up, most of them weren't anything I should've saved: third- and fourth-opportunity shots, a backdoor goal, a breakaway. There were also goals where I know I can be better at stopping."

Laramie, who said he found playing in Buffalo to be much faster than what he's accustomed to, said he is eager to take the skills he learned there and develop them.

Toward that end, Laramie has already spoken with his goalie coach, Haverhill's Mike Buckley (the goalie development coach for the Pittsburgh Penguins), about how he can correct his miscues in Buffalo. He works with Buckley three times a week during the summer months as well as doing off-ice workouts.

Laramie is currently playing in Hockey Night in Boston's annual Summer Showcase, both for the Sophomore and Major tournaments. He'll skate in the Chowder Cup later this summer for Scott Hentosh, his high school goalie coach.

He's also gearing up for his second season at St. John's Prep and helping the team achieve greater success this coming winter.

"What I learned (at St. John's) last year was adapting to a higher level of play," Laramie said. "I had to take responsibility for my actions and own up to my mistakes."

"I felt I grew up and matured as a person, trying to excel at hockey and adapt to the high school game. It's definitely made me a better goalie — and I want to get even better to help St. John's as much as I can."

Pitching sharp, but Andover Legion falls to Lawrence

LEGION BASEBALL

Andover's Cedric Gillette scattered six hits over 5 1/3 innings pitched, but Post 8 fell to Lawrence 4-1 in the District 8 tournament this past Saturday. Cam Farnham doubled and scored Andover's lone run, on a sacrifice fly by Tim Awiszus.

Mike Calabro notched three hits, including two doubles, and collected five RBIs to lead Andover to a 9-0 drubbing over Danvers in the District 8 tournament last Thursday, July 17.

Andrew Selima doubled, tripled and had two RBIs while Cam Farnham added a hit and an RBI and stole two bases.

Tim Kalantzakos allowed just one hit over five shutout innings, striking out five, and Jack Cox struck out three over two innings to earn the save.

Tim Kalantzakos retired 11 straight hitters in a sparkling relief outing, earning the victory as Andover downed Peabody 12-3 last Monday, July 14.

Mike Calabro led the Post 8 offense with a two-run double, Corey Stillings drove in two runs with a single and Jack Cox had an RBI single for the winners.

Andover fell to Haverhill Post 8 on Wednesday, July 16, 13-2.

Andover fell to Haverhill Post 4 on Wednesday, July 16, 13-2.

GIRLS HOOPS FOR HOPE

Hartnett, Caveney score big in pair of wins

Colleen Caveney scored 20 points to vault Andover to a 39-34 victory over Amesbury last Monday, July 14.

Paige Hartnett scored 16 points to pace Andover in a 34-26 win over Amesbury last Wednesday, July 16.

Despite 11 points for Carissa Reming, Andover fell to Cape Ann League powerhouse Pentucket 54-44 last Tuesday, July 15.

had to deal with a massive setback,

In the fourth football game of his senior year, after already recording 30 tackles, Zavrl suffered a torn ACL that ended his season.

"After I blew out my knee, I think it put everything in perspective," he said. "I always wanted to play Division 1 college football. But after the injury, I think I realized that, as much as I love football, it wasn't quite as important as I thought it was."

Zavrl recovered quickly to have a dominant senior season in track.

He shattered the Andover High and region modern (post-2002) record with a throw of 193-8, won the MVC Meet title (187-10) and was third at All-States (185-6).

After Andover High, Zavrl chose to pursue both sports at Phillips Exeter.

"I did well in football," said Zavrl, who played linebacker and blocking fullback on the 6-2 team, but could not kick because of his knee brace. "I felt like I played well, but it didn't have the same family feel as at Andover High."

As the season came to an end, Zavrl continued to explore his college football options. He had an offer to play at Holy Cross, but did not receive the interest he had hoped for from Ivy League schools.

"I really wanted to go to an Ivy League school," he said. "I had the chance at Holy Cross and other Division 1-AA schools, but my father went to an Ivy League school (Dartmouth), and I wanted to follow in his footsteps."

Then Cornell came calling with an offer for track.

"In late December and early January, I was panicking because I hadn't made a decision," he said. "I was put in touch with the Cornell track coach, and two hours later, I had a visit scheduled."

"It came down to Holy Cross football and Cornell track. It was really hard. But after a lot of thought, Cornell was the right decision. I rationalized it that, if I missed football too much, I could always try out for the team. But I loved the school and the track program is excellent."

For now, Zavrl is back in Andover, catching up with friends and working out to prepare for debut on the Cornell track team, where he will throw both the javelin and shot put.

"It's a very different kind of workout," Zavrl said. "It's really different than football lifting. Way more core work. But I am excited."

ANA Synchro ends strong at national contest, Bay State Games

ANA Synchro based at the YMCA in Andover closed out its season by placing five routines in the top 10 at the 2014 U.S. Age Group National Championships earlier this month in Federal Way, Wash.

ANA Synchro was one of 80 teams from across the country that sent a total of 1,000 athletes ages 11 to 19 to compete for the top spots. The competitors qualified through a series of local competitions leading up to nationals.

ANA Synchro athletes who landed in the top 10 were:

■ Sachiko Hagiya of Andover and Maxie Zimmerman and Kate Quinn of North Andover: Sixth in Trio, ages 16-17.

■ Sophia Ju, Grace Alwan, Nicole Carzo, Gloria McNamara and Hagiya, all of Andover; Lily Koenig of Boxford; and Evan Costanzo, Zimmerman and Quinn, all of North Andover: Eighth in Team, ages 18-19.

■ Ruby Remati of Andover: Ninth in Solo, 12 & Under.

■ Gloria McNamara of Andover: Tenth in Solo, ages 18-19.

■ Sophia Ju and Grace Alwan, both of Andover: Tenth in Duet, ages 13-15.

“Placing five routines in the top 10 at this national meet was an outstanding way to finish our season,” ANA Synchro head coach Leah Pinette said in a release. “I was so pleased to see everyone record their best swims of the season. This is exactly the kind of momentum we want as we start thinking about next year.”

Pinette, who completed her first season coaching ANA Synchro, is a nine-time U.S. National team member and the former captain of the 2011-2012 U.S. Olympic selection team.

Also qualifying for and competing at the meet were:

■ Gates Bryan, Courtney Chan and Naomi Turner, all of Andover; Laila Cross of North Andover and Epke Paquette of Groveland: 16-17 Team.

■ Helen He, Lakshita Motwani, Emerald Tan and Melinda Zhang, all of Andover; Katie Wojcik of North Andover and Kyra Donahue of Methuen: 13-15 Team.

■ Carzo and Koenig also competed in the 16-17 Duet; Ju, Alwan and Remati in the 13-15 Trio; and Wojcik and Zhang in the 11-12 Duet. In other ANA Synchro news, athletes Noa Margolin of Andover and Katerina Guerrero of Lawrence each earned a silver medal at the Bay State Games Synchronized Swimming competition held earlier this month in Worcester.

Margolin performed a solo in the Junior Developmental event for athletes ages 8 to 12, and Guerrero swam a solo in the Scholastic Developmental event for athletes ages 13 to 19.

Pinette said she is proud of the athletes for taking on the difficult challenge of swimming a solo for the first time in competition.

“Solos require not just strong technical skills, but an expressiveness to connect with the audience and judges,” Pinette said in a release. “Not everyone can be successful with a solo.”

The official part of the season may be over, but the team will not be idle the rest of the summer. ANA Synchro continues to train with weekly pool workout clinics. The team is also offering a Learn-to-Synch class for anyone who wants to try the sport. For more information, contact Pinette at 978-685-3541 or lpinette@mvymca.org.
